Transcripts Unveil Brutally Frank Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is looking to the United States public for vindication in Watergate political espionage scandal while House of Representatives impeachment investigators meet tonight to decide their next move in the quest for White House evidence.

A majority of the House Judiciary committee apparently was dissatisfied with the edited White House transcripts the president delivered Tuesday in lieu of tapes of 42 presidential conversations the committee had subpoenaed.

In his speech Monday night, the president had said the transcripts would "provide grist for many sensational stories in the press. Parts will seem contradictory with one another, and parts will be in conflict with some of the testimony given in the Senate Watergate committee hearings."

He also noted that parts "will embarrass me and those whom I talked with."

The transcripts proved him accurate in all those predictions.

There were frequent parenthetical notes that portions were "unintelligible" or "inaudible" and many places were marked expletive deleted."

On occasion, the president's anger and contempt flashes out from the transcripts. At other times, he displays compassion

Nixon Asks Court Quash Subpoena

WASHINGTON (AP) — James St. Clair, President Nixon's chief Watergate lawyer said today he will move to quash a subpoena by special prosecutor Leon Jaworski for additional White House tapes relating to the Watergate political espionage scandal.

He declined to say whether the president would abide by an adverse United States Supreme Court decision should the legal battle go that far.

No Gouging In Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — The food prices review board hasn't uncovered instances of price gouging that would fall under the government's proposed anti-profiteering legislation, board chairman Beryl Plumptre said Tuesday.

But of the board does, it would expect the government to act if the legislation is in force, she said in an interview.

Income Tax Date Extended

OTTAWA (CP) — The deadline for filing 1973 income tax returns has been extended three weeks to May 21, Revenue Minister Robert Stanbury announced Tuesday in the Commons.

The news came with less than 10 hours remaining before the original deadline—midnight Tuesday, April 30.

Mr. Stanbury said returns postmarked no later than midnight Tuesday, May 21, will be accepted by the government without penalty.

If amounts owing are paid in full on returns filed up to May 21, no interest will be charged. If less than the full amount is paid, interest will be charged from May 1 at the prescribed rate of six per cent a year, but there will be no late-filing penalty assessed.

He told reporters later that it is the first general extension, ever granted, "as far as I know."

It was made because of delays caused by the national postal strike and flooding in Western Canada, he said.

The Weather

Synopsis: Skies will gradually clear this afternoon in Northern Ontario. Somewhat milder air is forecast to move eastward across the north Thursday. Cold air will reach southern Ontario tonight. The threat of frost is high in all areas but the Lake St. Clair region.

Unemployed To Get Grants To Seek Jobs

OTTAWA (CP) — Travel grants and short-term living allowances will be paid to unemployed workers who want to move to temporary jobs outside the areas where they live, the manpower department said Tuesday.

A manpower release says workers who have been in a temporary job away from home for three to six months will be compensated for return transportation costs. Students who work for at least six weeks may also apply for the transportation allowance.

Another change to the federal manpower mobility program provides a three-day living allowance for workers who take temporary jobs away from home.

News Briefs

Death Penalty Returns

ALBANY (AP) — New York State Senate voted 40 to 18 Tuesday to restore the death penalty and make it mandatory for the murder of policemen and prison employees in the state.

Prison Cost Given

OTTAWA (CP) — The average cost of maintaining a man in prison for a year is $9,654, Penitentiaries Commissioner Paul Faguy told the Commons justice committee Tuesday night.

Miners Back on Job

ELLIOT LAKE, Ont. (CP) — Workers at Denison Mines Ltd., voted Tuesday in favor of returning to work today, ending an 11-day walkout over working conditions.

Woman's Body Found

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — The partly decomposed body of a young woman was found Tuesday beneath a woodpile at the end of a lover's lane near this community just west of Toronto. Last October Mississauga police unsuccessfully searched the area for 18-year-old Neda Nowak, missing from her Clarkson home five miles away.

Pension Change Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada Pension Plan (CPP) amendments provided for equal treatment of male and female contributors without a means test to those 65 to 69 hurdled another parliamentary barrier Tuesday with approval by the Commons welfare committee. The bill will be return to the Commons for final passage before going to the Senate.

Ford Plants Close

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — The Ford Motor Co. closed down auto assembly plants Tuesday, and said by Thursday eight others will be out of work, laying off an estimated 37,000 workers. Ford said strikes against two of its parts supplies are to blame.

Nixon Warns Prices May Again Be Fixed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers will demand new price controls if the 5.4 per cent inflation rate in the United States isn't held in check, President Nixon has told business leaders.

He said the ending of his controls program creates a "great responsibility" for business and labor leaders to use restraint in setting future wages and prices.

"If the fires of inflation continue burning too strongly, the demand for controls will come up again," Nixon told the U.S. Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night.

The president said he will announce next week new measures intended to help the slumping housing industry.

But even as the president was urging restraint in price increases, the country's largest steel company, U.S. Steel Corp., said it will have to increase prices despite an 80-per-cent increase in profits in the first quarter of 1974.

Edgar Speer, U.S. Steel chairman, said the increases will be necessary to finance future expansion. He cited pressures from rising costs of raw materials and the cost of the new wage agreement.

Wage and price controls expired at midnight Tuesday for all except the oil industry.

Meanwhile, about 4.2 million workers are due for immediate pay increases of up to $16 a week under the new minimum-wage law that takes effect today.

The increase is the first in six years. The minimum wage will go up in steps over the next two years to $2.30 an hour.

Italy to Curb All Imports

LUXEMBOURG (Reuter) — Italy's decision to impose restrictions on imports from all countries has plunged the nine-country European Common Market into a new crisis.

The emergency measures announced Tuesday night by the Italian government—to ease the strain of the country's deteriorating balance of payments—challenged the basic community principle of free movement of goods between member states, and loyalty toward beleaguered staff members and such former close friends as John Mitchell.

At one point, the president expressed puzzlement over why officials of his re-election committee would become involved in a burglary to get information from the Democrats.

And, later, after Haldeman had joined the meeting, this exchange took place: Nixon: " . . . let's say, frankly, on the assumption that, if we continue to cut our losses, we are not going to win. But in the end we are going to be bled to death. And in the end, it's all going to come out anyway. Then you get the worst of both worlds. We are going to lose and people are going to . . . "

Nixon: "And in effect, look like a cover-up. So that we can't do."

When it was suggested that some Nixon aides might be hurt by the Watergate investigation, Nixon said: "We don't want to harm the people either, that is my concern. We can't harm these young people (inaudible). They were doing things for the best interests of their country—that is all."

It was clear from the time Nixon disclosed his transcripts plan Monday night that the support he sought was beyond the Capitol; that his goal was to persuade the public he had no advance knowledge of the break-in into the Democratic party headquarters in the Watergate building here or in the cover-up of events pertaining to the break-in.

Despite the 1,308 pages of presidential transcripts, uncertainties remained about what the president knew, and when, and what he intended to be done. It was, as Nixon's lawyers and the president have said, a document marked by ambiguities.

"In all of the thousands of words spoken, even though they often are unclear and ambiguous, not once does it appear that the president of the United States was engaged in criminal plot to obstruct justice," said a White House covering statement delivered with the transcripts.

But those words also created a picture of a president feeling increasingly embattled and frustrated by a scandal, the disclosure of which he considered inevitable but which he hoped to control.

Ottawa Said Underestimating Effect of Price Rises on Poor

OTTAWA (CP) — Government is giving insufficient attention to the effects of prices on food, credit, housing and other goods and services to the poor, a special 56-page study by the National Council of Welfare says.

The report, released Tuesday, says the Consumer Price Index, which reflects the price increases faced by the average consumer, underestimates the effect of cost-of-living increases on those with lower incomes.

This is especially true because the poor pay a greater proportion of their budget on food. And foods bought by lower-income families have gone up in price faster than those purchased by higher-income groups, the study says.

The report says prices to the poor are often higher because of smaller volume sales by merchants in poorer areas, stock wastage through slower turnover, higher insurance costs, higher staff turnover, greater incidence of vandalism and pilferage and the inability to capitalize on bulk purchases because of lack of money.

Rather than tie the benefit levels of social security programs only to the average cost-of-living increase, the council suggests benefits be raised by the real growth in the national income as well.

The council, an advisory agency to the federal welfare minister, also presses for an immediate survey of nutrition among the poor, a concerted attack upon bad practices in sales and marketing, a public inquiry into consumer credit and an end to rules that force the poor to make security deposits for use of utilities.

The consumer price index, which registers price changes precisely only on a variety of goods and services purchased by average consumers, increased 10.4 per cent between March, 1973, and March 1974.

But the council study says prices of relatively low-priced food items such as hamburger, wieners and liver increased far faster.

Environmentalists Ask Policy Check

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for the Canadian Environmental Law Association said today that the planning and policy assumptions of government should be examined to determine their impact on the environment.

Joseph Castrilli told the Pollution Control Association of Ontario that governments now recognize their responsibility for protecting the environment but seldom view environmental consideration as "important enough to provide grounds" for halting a project.

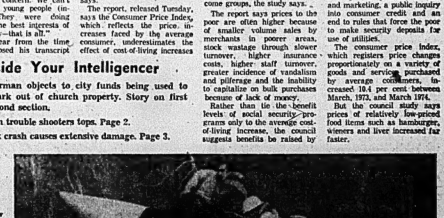
He said the Ontario Energy Board's ruling which has barred discussion on environmental matters in its review of Ontario Hydro expansion plans is an example of government thinking. The board has said that environmental matters will be reviewed by another agency.

"The point is that the broad policy matters being considered by the energy board are environmental matters. . . .

"The decisions which it makes as a result of the present hearings will leave very little for the environmental review board . . . to decide."

He also pointed of the National Energy Board decision to allow Ontario Hydro to export power to the United States without first assessing the social and environmental costs. . . .

Statements by the board in that decision, he said, indicated that environmental and social costs would be considered only when doing so favors the case for granting an application.



Mr. Castrilli also said the cumulative and growth-inducing impact of small projects are a far more serious hazard to the preservation of the environment than a few large ones."

Trouble Shooters

A visitor to the Quinte Mall yesterday would have noticed a little something different when he went to park his car. Lined up in the mall parking lot were 15 new cars each with a pair of young high school mechanics doing their best to figure out what was wrong with it. They were taking part in the Chrysler Trouble Shooting Regional contest which was won by a team from Prince Edward Collegiate in Picton. Here one acrobatic participant applies a little body English to get to the cause of trouble.

Picton Trouble Shooters Fix Problems Fastest

By JIM SMELLE
Staff Reporter

Students from Prince Edward Collegiate in Picton don't fool around when it comes to knowledge of safety awareness and making cars run.

Early in April, a four man team from PECI were runaways in the School Safety Awareness provincial finals held in Toronto.

The four man team were tested on their knowledge on all facets of safety practises during the competition sponsored by the Industrial Accident Prevention Association.

And now a two-man team from the same school will be going to Toronto to take part in the national finals of the Chrysler Trouble Shooting Contest June 17-19. There they will compete with 21 other regional champions from across Canada for scholarships totalling $6,000.

The two, Bernard Prinsen 18 and Edward Sokolowsky, 17, both in Grade 12 at PECI, won this right by winning the 1974 Chrysler Trouble Shooting Regional Contest held at the Quinte Mall Tuesday.

The pair won this regional contest by finding and repairing a series of malfunctions deliberately rigged by Chrysler service technicians.

All 15 secondary schools, from such places as Kingston Peterborough and Cobourg, taking part in the competition had to find and repair the malfunctions within a 90-minute time limit.

The Picton pair had this job done in a little over 40 minutes, a good 10 or 15 minutes before any other competitors.

Before the practical mechanical test got under way, each team took a written examination that counted for 40 per cent of the team's final score.

A special trophy was presented to the school placing highest in this written test. This was won by the pair from Picton, Bernard Prinsen and Edward Sokolowsky.

While PECI won the award for best overall performance, second place went to Sydenham High School while third place was won by Frontenac Secondary School in Kingston. Trophies were presented to all three finishing while smaller trophies were handed out to each participant and coach.

Edward Sokolowsky said after he and his partner won the top spot: "The hardest part was deciding whether everything was ready before we took the car out (on a test run)."

He admitted that he was a little nervous about the test beforehand but after the two got the car fixed up this disappeared. He hopes to become an auto mechanic when he finishes school.

When the two are in Toronto for the national finals, they'll have a tradition to uphold. A team from PECI won the national competition last year.

Trouble Shooting is sponsored by Chrysler Canada Ltd. and its local Dodge and Plymouth dealers to give recognition to student auto mechanics and to encourage them to pursue careers in automotive service. The prize list in this years competition totals more than $50,000 in scholarships, trophies, tools and automotive components for competing schools.

City schools taking part in Tuesday's regional competition were Centennial Secondary School and Quinte Secondary School. Area schools were Trenton High School and Centre Hastings Secondary School.

Legality Delays Parkland Opening

AMELIASBURGH — Opening of public parkland at Massassaga Point on the Bay of Quinte will be delayed until the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority secures a deed of right-of-way to the proposed 60-acre campsite.

The report comes from Mrs. A. I. Markland, PERCA secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Markland said she believed the holdup was only temporary, although no one would be permitted to use the facility while legal access was still not settled. She said Massassaga Estates, a cottage development adjoining the park, had agreed to deed a roadway to the authority.

She received a deed from them but the description in the document does not fit our needs and it is back in the hands of the lawyers to make the necessary changes," she said.

While the park remains closed, it will be kept clean and patrolled by personnel of a provincial SWEEP (Students Working in an Environmental Enhancement Project) group attached to PERCA.

Last year, under SWEEP a day-use area plan was prepared for the site which has 4,000 feet of shoreline directly south of Belleville.

Development Area Sold Town for $1

TRENTON — A "Trenton Town Council request for a small area beside Frost St. for widening Highway 33 was discussed at the meeting of the Lower Trent Valley Region Conservation Authority in Roseneath Tuesday night.

Bill Carter, LTVCA chairman suggested that some "nominal charge be levied" so council could buy back from the authority 6 feet of land bordering the road on each of four lots.

Paul Tripp, former town councillor noted that the council intends to bury all cables in the road development to avoid overhead wiring which might interfere with park development.

The request to the authority concerned only lots under the control of the LTVCA in the Trenton Green Belt area. Most other lots are under deed to Trenton.

The preliminary drawing for the development plan indicates that sidewalks will be on one side of the road only in order to use no more parkland than necessary.

A motion to sell the land for a token dollar was passed by vote.

Open School

STIRLING — George Waldrum, deputy minister of education, will be guest speaker at the opening of Stirling Senior Elementary School May 6 at 8 p.m.

The $630,000 school, in operation since last fall has 11 classrooms, 16 teachers and 300 pupils. It accommodates grades 6, 7 and 8.

The public is invited to opening.

Map Trent Flood Plain

High water levels over the past 100 years will be mapped to determine the maximum flood-plain during severe storms. With this information, the LTVCA can act with authority against developers and builders intending to build on the potentially dangerous flood-plain area.

Bill Carter, authority chairman said the mapping may indicate possible facts on water level increases which would be beneficial to Trenton.

Fireplace Fire

TRENTON — A fire in the home of Peter Anderson, RR 2 Carrying Place today resulted in slight damage to one wall behind a fireplace. The fire occurred at 1.15 a.m. and was blamed by firemen on spreading from a fireplace.

'Tis Spring, but . . .

The water may not be the warmest, but the weather's getting there. Encouraged by warm temperatures Andrea Grenadas, Lisa Pollock, 10-year-old Torontonians, this week tested Lake Ontario at Outlet Beach.

For the Deaf 'Loneliness' Can Be the First Word

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — "The first word is loneliness, when you are deaf," says Paul Serge, teacher of deaf residents at Prince Edward Heights, the Ontario government complex for the mentally retarded.

Mr. Serge, who trained for a time at the Ontario School for the Deaf in Belleville, Tuesday told Picton Rotarians of the problems confronting deaf persons.

He said the deaf person's ability to communicate can be misunderstood even by highly educated individuals.

As an example, he noted when he took an injured friend to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital, one official insisted the deaf youth write down his complaints instead of explaining in sign language.

The official remarked that the injured boy was "dumb" and did not understand the questions being asked.

Mr. Serge told Rotarians that on one occasion an irate truck driver berated a student at OSD for stepping in front of his vehicle as he beeped his horn. A teacher overheard the truck driver's remarks and stopped to explain that the youngster had ignored the horn because he was deaf.

The truck driver replied; "I know he's deaf, but he can hear can't he." "Even the deaf laugh at that. They have a grim type of laughter," commented Mr. Serge.

The deaf be instructs want to convey two main thoughts to persons with hearing:

The first is "You have to be deaf to understand" and the second, "If you are deaf, you are the only one who is deaf".

The teacher urged people to protect their hearing with safety devices such as earplugs when advisable, and be aware of potential hearing problems with their children or grandchildren.

He said that the deaf have, perhaps, the worst education-al problem of all. They are capable of learning as much as hearing persons. But unless the teacher looks directly at them they cannot learn language.

When a deaf child comes to school he knows from one to five words while the hearing child has a much wider vocabulary learned from parents and relatives.

Concern Over Spraying

TRENTON — Public concern over spraying of roadsides with thick oily substance was expressed at the meeting of the Lower Trent Valley Conservation Authority last night.

Residents of Percy and Sydney townships protested use of material to keep down dust, because of the danger of its polluting effects.

Bill Carter, chairman of the authority said these effects may include flow-off into garden, ducks and wildlife killed off, and odor, especially in built-up areas.

Effect on the environment is a result of the material's liquid properties which make it subject to run-off during rains into other areas. Mr. Carter said use of the material was a municipal decision and the authority voted for an investigation of the problem and a report for its next meeting in October. Action may be taken at an earlier date by the resource manager as a result of environmental effects and public opinion.

Big Band For Picton

PICTON — Tickets remain available for a weekend concert in Picton by the Canadian Staff Band of the Salvation Army.

The band's visit is co-sponsored by the Picton Kiwanis Club and the local Salvation Army.

Picton Kiwanian Jesse Mason yesterday reported that already 625 tickets have been sold for the concert Saturday night at Picton United Church. Remaining tickets for this event are on sale at the Lockyer Flower Shoppe and Mason's Department Store.

Campaign Soon Red Shield for Picton

PICTON — Canvassers for the Salvation Army's Red Shield appeal will be in Picton May 13.

Ken Carruthers, a spokesman for the fund drive, Wednesday told Picton Rotarians the goal for Prince Edward County is $5,000.

Mr. Carruthers said 20 persons from the county visited Harbor Lights, a Toronto rehabilitation centre, in 1973. The total cost for their care and treatment was $7,000.

In Prince Edward, the Salvation Army distributed 8,700 clothing items to needy families and 158 families received food vouchers. Also, there were 42 transients who received food and lodgings here.

A total of 80 Christmas hampers was distributed and cash value of all of the distributions was $3,500. Other expenses, including a children's Christmas party totalled $1,200.

Forces Morale

The morale of the armed forces — how can it be described these days?

The recent retirement of two senior officers, navy men, following a reported dispute with chief of defence staff Gen. J. A. Dextrase, led to rumors of low morale in the forces generally.

This has been denied by defence spokesmen in Ottawa. But then denial is the standard reaction to such rumors which in any event may be just that, with little basis for alarm either among servicemen or among the public.

At the same time the image of the services in Canadian life is a relatively low profile one.

Best known perhaps is their role as members of United Nations units in the Middle East and Cyprus, and in years past in the former Belgian Congo. These are peacekeeping initiatives that were the brainchild of the late Prime Minister Lester Pearson during the Suez crisis and in which Canada has participated ever since.

On the domestic scene the people of this area are familiar of course with the presence of CFB Trenton. Its role — and it is a big one — is supplying not only the UN units but Canadian forces in Europe. This is the other major commitment of Canada overseas, and it is of equal status at least with the work of the UN.

But for all we know of the forces' role there is a distance between them and the public a good deal of the time (aside from occasions when bases are open to visitors). Aside too from Gen. Dextrase, the names of the high-ranking officers in the forces' shuffle were unknown probably to most citizens.

So much then for what is known, and not known about our military men.

As to their morale, this subject does surface from time to time; beyond that, however, it seems to cause little more than a ripple in the public mind.

But now we have Prince Edward-Hastings MP George Hees saying in a Trenton address that Prime Minister Trudeau has no interest in the armed forces.

Mr. Hees believes that Canada should "appear strong and maintain the peace," and this in the larger context of the necessity of preventing a third world war. He speaks of a drop in morale that resulted from the Prime Minister's desire back in 1968 to cut the services by a third. As for the present he would like to see the forces used for northern development to make the service "exciting, worthwhile and challenging."

Fair enough. A great deal of lip service has been paid to developing the north but it still remains largely virgin territory, peopled by Indians and Eskimos still far behind in the amenities and opportunities of other Canadians. The only other people there are a handful of bureaucrats, medical personnel — and, yes, small military establishments.

We need our armed services. They should be kept strong, both for Canada's and the western world's sake. The public should know more about them and perhaps its members should be speaking out more these days, consistent of course with any security considerations.

There is a general need for confidence in our armed services, and for public interest in their wellbeing. Preparedness is a quality where a country well, and it is one that so far as the services especially are concerned, cannot be allowed to slip.

Cause and Effect

It is said that accidents don't happen — they are caused. Fats undoubtedly has a hand in many a highway tragedy but the above statement seems to ring true, and from a variety of standpoints ranging from driver carelessness to driver inebriation or both.

There is another element too. According to Gerald Wilde, a Queen's University psychologist and transport consultant, people are willing to risk their lives for a little bit of fun, something contradiction in terms, but apparently that is the way he sees it. As an example he cites a young woman with two children in the back of a station wagon who dashed under the arms of a turning-to passing vig-wag, missing a train by only ten seconds.

A Heady Bag

Foreign Aid, Oil Profits, Co'onialism, Liberationists

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

OTTAWA — "How many countries did you develop today, daddy?" That was the quite serious question put to a senior official of the International Development Research Centre here when he came home from work the other day.

That little-known agency of the department of external affairs deals with foreign aid and assistance problems.

But the humor in the daughter's query points to the humor in the Ottawa scene these days, and general malaise about foreign policy directions when the government's future is in balance.

The foreign aid goes forward as it must, but only under prescribed programs of the Canadian International Development Agency and Export Credit Corporation, but for immediate needs like the yawning famine of Saharan Africa.

In fact all bureaucratic processes of the Canadian state appear outwardly unruffled by the growing uncertainty on Parliament Hill that the Trudeau government will not survive its budget of May 6 and another federal election is not far off, probably this autumn.

The hearts and minds of MPs are on that big domestic event and naturally enough on whether the budget's non-acceptance by NDP Leader David Lewis will affect their political futures on the hustings again.

Yet foreign policy directions of sorts are in the news and being discussed. The announcements of staggeringly high U.S. oil company profits for the first quarter of 1974 remind parliamentarians and the bureaucrats that the multinational oil corporations, being here more and more under control in other major oil-producing countries, still largely call their own tune here.

A CBC morning radio commentator, none other than Edmonton book publisher Mel Hurtig who is chairman of the Committee For An Independent Canada, offered the statistics that Shell in Canada made half a billion in profits between 1969 and 1974 without paying a single penny of federal income tax.

The war against the economic power lobbying and wilful decision-making of the multinational companies is being carried out by others in Ottawa this week.

One of these was Dr. Agostinho Neto, president of the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (PMLA) who came to see the president of the Canadian International Development Agency about the so-called "Humanitarian Aid" which Canada has made available to outfits like his through Third World groups like the Red Cross, some Canadian churches and Oxfam.

The economic thrust of the African Liberation Movements is that Portuguese colonialism protects powerful multinationals doing business in their African territories.

Under special fire here in Canada, aided and assisted by guerrilla leaders like Dr. Neto, is Gulf Oil's big operation in Angola which makes that territory one of Africa's major oil producing areas.

And then of course there has been that unexpected military coup in Portugal, herself, having to do with the war in Africa. Canadian election possibilities or not, the rest of the world simply won't stop going around. In fact, NDP Leader David Lewis will have more to say about the international oil cartel in Canada—meaning that foreign and domestic policy will impinge on each other after all.

North Sea Oil Windfall For The British

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

A new breed of oil sheik will soon appear in the world petroleum market.

Would you believe Scottish? English? Norwegian?

The North Sea, between Britain and Norway, now is recognized as Europe's biggest oil field. Its horrendous winds and swells make it the most dangerous, as well.

That may seem small in relation to the hundreds of billions of barrels that lie under the deserts of the Middle East, or even when compared with the 200 billion barrels that the Alaska oil sands of Western Canada are believed (by conservative estimate) to hold.

But those reserves are big enough to be significant to the United Kingdom. Within two years, it is anticipated that they will be meeting one-fifth to one-quarter of Britain's oil requirements.

Already, gas from the North Sea is supplying the energy needs of a good many British homes and industries.

Some optimists believe that by 1980 North Sea oil and gas will have made Britain self-sufficient in petroleum-based energy.

On the eastern side of the North Sea, Norway's Ekofisk field is expected to pump 15 million tons of oil a year. The Norwegians look to this ancient patent well as a means of wiping out their chronic balance-of-payments deficit, and enabling the country to reduce or eliminate its dependence on the import of foreign capital.

The socialist government in Oslo has been playing its cards carefully, to ensure that Norway will obtain a healthy share of the new petroleum wealth in the form of royalties and corporate income taxes—and has taken a part-ownership position in the oil concessions.

Consumerism: A Word Corrupted

The Globe and Mail

The word consumerism seems likely, in shortly after its coinage, to be misused into losing its first meaning entirely, as so many other words have done. Who, for instance, would now dare to use the word gay to express its original — and irreplaceable — meaning?

Consumerism, with the help of former Consumer Affairs Minister Ronald Basford and present Consumer Affairs Minister Herbert Gray, is already beginning to mean the introspective study of means to distract the attention of the public from the real problems of people who buy things to eat, wear and use, only to find they have been taken.

The 21-member Canadian Consumer Council, which was allowed to fade into oblivion last June, has been revamped by Mr. Gray. The perfect group concentrated mainly on research and some of its efforts have been, from the Government viewpoint, embarrassingly outspoken, pointing the way real consumers were getting. Under the new dispensation the research body has been reduced to six, along, presumably, with its capacity to embarrass.

The new council will have 31 members, but it will be no close to the government's confidential and developing policy plans that it may flog, for, as Mr. Gray, be possible for it to issue annual reports. Mr. Gray, however, says he will meet the council in private at least four times a year, the first time early in June.

To discuss what policy, pray? The consumer still buys in packages packaging which increases the price and confuses the amount of what he buys, and is still bemused by the relationship of amount sold to price asked.

He will not be comforted by the thought of a Council which is so close to policy which he cannot perceive to exist that it may safely nudder only in the ear of the minister responsible for the invisible policy.

Looking Backward

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

30 YEARS AGO

May 1, 1944

Although several oil tankers and government owned boats have been seen plying any of Quinte waters for the past year or so, markers indicating the channels along the water course were only placed in position over the weekend. On Saturday, the buoy tender "Grenville" came up the bay from Picton and tied up at the government dock to load gravel and buoys stored on the dock during the winter months other makers being placed in position from the ship's small motor launch. Its movements in the vicinity of the "Grenville" proceeded on up the bay toward Trenton, Monday morning.

40 YEARS AGO

May 1, 1934

Citizens enjoying the spring breezes on Fireman's Park on Sunday suddenly became somewhat concerned when the top portion of a sedan motor car was observed. At first it appeared as in the river adjacent the old No. 1 fire hall. Though a motor car had apparently been driven right over the abutment wall into the river. However, when a boat was secured and investigations made it was discovered only the body portion of an old automobile was floating slowly down the river.

50 YEARS AGO

Under the auspices of the Quinte Club a dance was held in the Collegiate Academy last night.

Sir Redmond Roblin, Premier of Manitoba, was in Sophinsburg, Prince Edward County, on Sunday to visit his aged father, owing to the fact that a member of the household was suffering with diphtheria and the house being quarantined, Sir Redmond could not enter the house. His father brought out a chair and sat on the verandah and Sir Redmond borrowed a chair from a neighbor and sat in the roadway and the two visited in this way for sometime.

LETTERS

Aid for the Needy Abroad From Churches in Canada

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I have been asked by your newspaper to comment upon the remarks made both in the general and the local press over the past few weeks that much of the monies raised by the church for overseas work find its way to some extent monies contributed by the government of our country toward developing countries is falling into the hands of "liberation movements" whose chief task is to overthrow their governments by force of arms.

I cannot speak for the government nor am I speaking as a representative of my own particular denomination but I do speak as a christian clergyman who is very concerned with the state of the world today.

Arthur Toynbee, the British historian of note states that the world is headed for a world revolution and he blames this upon the great division there is between the western world with its affluence and the developing nations with their poverty.

I do not know whether or not very much of the money that has been raised for relief ever goes toward the purchasing of arms. I sincerely hope that it does not for I believe that our blessed Lord's message would be unmistaken if it did. I am concerned that I am my brother's keeper and that if my suffering because of my inhabitance that I may have economically unconsciously contributed that in some way I must suffer also. For I believe that too many of us today still owe silver Christians look out on the world with dry eyes. Jesus wept over the desolation and human poverty of Jerusalem and set us an example that we cannot ignore.

The danger of blowing this suggested picture of money falling into the hands of "liberation movements" is that it plays into the hands of those who would not feed, clothe or provide shelter for the house who are in the midst of starvation. The supply of money to feed the hungry will dry up and not only will the amount that some have said falls into the hands of unscrupulous persons dry up but also money that goes to feed people will also dry up and the hungry will go unfed and will die.

I believe the only basis for any suggestion that the money is going to buy weapons instead of bread was an article written by a man in a periodical. This to me is not sufficient evidence for the press to continue to publish articles and editorials. Perhaps if more research was made into the subject before statements were made it would do more to enlighten the public. Jesus said that if by anything that we do we hurt "His little ones", it would be better for us if a millstone were tied around our necks and that we were dropped into the sea". I do hope that the many articles written about this subject have not hurt "His little ones", for the ultimate result will be the same.

United Way

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

United Community Services is the agency which collects and distributes the United Way money. I think the strange advice I have lived in two communities which use the United Way is doing very well as a separate agency.

In one of these communities a professional fund-raiser was hired for three months at a campaign time only.

This method was economical and provided a maximum of funds for a minimum of campaign costs. I would recommend this method to Belleville citizens at the May campaign time for concern over United Way funds.

MAY BURROWS.

Davis May Curb Committees

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Scuttlebutt around here is that select committees are the latest fad for murder more control from Premier Davis.

These committees are composed of private members of the house and meet during the off-session inquiring onto specified subjects, anything from high way safety to land drainage to complicated legislation such as the Consumers Act.

Usually there are from four to half a dozen of these committees functioning.

These committees can be valuable, with some much better than others. They can go into a field and uncover a lot of information and make recommendations which can be of value to the government and the legislature. Also they mean that in each particular field of study there are at least a number of members in the house who are on top of that subject.

But also they can get rid of a lot of money, and in some cases at least there appears to be waste.

In 1972-73 (the last fiscal year for which we have detailed accounts) there were six select committees sitting and they cost a total of $771,882.

A good portion of this went for reimbursement of members. The practice which the Camp commission has recommended should be stopped. Members get a very hefty chunk went for travel.

And this is perhaps the prime objection to the committees; that they are too prone to travel, and that this travel doesn't pay off that much.

Usually they are travel-prone is hardly debatable. And the calibre of their investigations sometimes can be questioned also.

One personal experience was with the committee on use of recreational facilities.

This committee had sent delegations to the Scandinavian countries, France and the United Kingdom.

They took a fairly good one, but there was little mention of other countries, and it occurred to me there would be an interesting story in just what is the latest word in outdoor use of schools in other countries.

An investigation revealed it had practically nothing to write home about. Committee Director didn't even have information on how education was financed in other countries.

It is rumored that one of the committee Mr. Davis has in mind is over travel plans, that he will want them cleared through his office.

Incidentally, neither premiers Frost nor Robarts would let committees go overseas. Davis is the first one to have succumbed to it.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
May 1, 1974

A United States squadron under Commodore George Dewey annihilated the Spanish fleet at the Battle of Manila Bay 76 years ago today—in 1898, sinking all seven ships and killing 381 Spanish seamen. Seven wounded sailors were the only U.S. casualties.

1915—French troops released to hundreds of trenches at Ypres when ordered to attack.

Funny, we don't feel 100.

Where has the century gone?

It seems like yesterday that we were sitting in the offices of Harris, Magee, Campbell & McNab, lawyers of London, Ontario, and discussing the best way to finance a brand new life insurance company.

We started out in 1874 with $112,500 in capital stock, a lot of confidence in ourselves and in our young country, and we haven't looked back. We don't intend to start now.

After all, it was forward thinking that built London Life to the point where we now provide more life insurance benefits to Canadians than any other company. And it was forward thinking that made us one of the biggest investors in Canada's economy, helping to build homes, schools and hospitals, pipelines and highways.

It was looking ahead last year, a year of great housing shortages, that prompted us to supply the largest amount of new mortgage money in our history. And just a few months ago, we became the first company to provide Canadians with 15 billion dollars worth of life insurance protection. That took quite a bit of looking ahead.

Another thing happened last year. We knew we'd come a long way towards making Canadians aware of what life insurance could do for them; that life insurance could offer them a lot more than simple protection. But we weren't satisfied. We wanted to step up the dialogue between ourselves and our customers. So, we got in touch with 500,000 of our policyowners, encouraging them to write back with questions about life insurance. The response is still coming in.

But so much about last year.

This year, we've appointed a director of consumer affairs, to keep on top of ways we can serve the public more effectively. And we continue to make the filmed programs of our television series, "The Human Journey", available for screening in high schools, universities, and other non-profit organizations.

Next year? There are ideas in the works and you'll be hearing from us. But you can be sure that, centennial or no centennial, we've only just begun.

Ann Landers

Widow Regrets Moving, Hates Life with Daughter

Dear Ann Landers: Every now and then you rerun a letter because someone thinks it should be repeated not only for those who didn't see it the first time, but for those who saw it and didn't pay any attention. I am in the second category, and now I'm paying the price for my stupidity.

The letter was from a woman, who, when her husband died, moved in with her daughter and son-in-law. That widow strangely enough, made exactly the same mistake I did. Please, Ann, hunt up the letter and rerun it for those for whom it is not too late. Bless you.—Sad and Sorry

Dear Sorry: Here's the letter and I agree, it's one that bears repeating.

Dear Ann Landers: I read the letter from the widow who sold her lovely house and moved in with her daughter. She wrote: "It was the biggest mistake of my life. I am now a guest in somebody else's home."

She's lucky. I made the same mistake, but I'm no guest—I'm a maid and a laundress, a nurse, a gardener, a short-order cook and an answering service. I am not suggesting this is what my daughter and son-in-law had in mind when they begged me to move in with them. They were truly concerned that I would be lonely. But you know the old saying, "The road to Hell is paved with good intentions."

I work harder now than I ever did in my own home. There are four children here and the music is so loud I have three-day headaches. I am under tension constantly because I try so hard to avoid expressing an opinion. I'm afraid I might be accused of "taking sides" or "interfering"—the cardinal sins of old people.

It was sheer folly for me to give up my own home. If this letter helps just one widow make up her mind, it will be worth the pain I suffered to write it. (P.S. Where were you three years ago, Ann, when I needed you?)—Sacramento

Dear Sac.: I was right here three years ago, giving the same advice. You probably read it but it meant nothing to you because you weren't a widow then and the problem was of no interest. Hindsight has 20-20 vision.

Dear Ann Landers: I am the middle kid and lord only knows how much I hate that phrase. Here are a few of the reasons.

1. Your relatives think the oldest one is very smart and the youngest one is just darling. Notice the one who is left out.

2. The oldest kid was allowed to go to the fair by himself. The youngest one was too young to go by himself so Mom asked the neighbors to take him when they took their own kid who is his age. Notice again who got left out.

3. The teachers at school keep wanting to know how come I am not as smart as my older brother. They have also hinted that when my younger brother gets my age, he will be smarter than I am.

I am fed up with the whole scene and I wish you would help me out by printing my letter. I know you can't change my place in the family, but maybe certain people will see my letter and lay off.—Thanks a lot, Miss' Landers.—Kid In The Middle

Dear Kid: Here's your letter, and I certainly hope "certain people" will see it and lay off. Relatives are sometimes a little stupid, but teachers should know better than to compare a kid with his brother—older or younger. Good luck to you in the future.

Successful Living

Sex Education May Harm Youth

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I feel concerned for the younger generation, who are being robbed of a very essential part in their growing up, of self-respect and personal dignity. We are being smothered with sex education until it is nauseating. It has gone to extremes.

So much sex education has not been the answer as it has created more problems. A leading psychiatrist remarked that the proliferation of books and articles on sex has led to more divorces than fulfilled marriages, not to mention injury to the young. When we defy sex in the same way as food, sports and scientific knowledge we move it from its proper place to a role it was never meant to play.

There are no human values; children have nothing to live up to. Movies are a degrading influence and, sad to say, their seniors have brought this about.

A Concerned Citizen.

Dear Citizens: It is a fact that the education given has placed the wrong emphasis on sex, isn't it? Nowadays the stress seems to be on high class performance of the act with all the trimmings.

This means that if a couple gets married and begins fumbling along, they think they are not suited to each other. What should happen is that they have a high regard for each other, then express themselves in physical acts, which include affection, hugging, kissing, ultimately the sex act itself.

As for deifying "any of the subjects you mention, this is going off the beam, isn't it?

Dear Doris: I have very strict parents. They won't let me do anything I should be able to do at 17. I don't get spending money. I'm not allowed to go out with boys, and if I did, my 22-year-old brother would have to come along. I can't wear make-up at all.

I've thought of leaving, but I am not sure where to go. Besides, my father would take it out on my mother. Help!

Unhappy.

Dear Unhappy: At 17 you should be able to go on dates (whom your parents are introduced to) without your older brother along. Try to stick it out until you've finished school. Then look for a job in the city or another town and strike out on your own.

It's too bad to be deprived of fun now, but school is very important, and there'll still be gigd times later.

Books By And About Women

A WOMAN OF FEELING

By Violet Wiesgarten

This is a portrait of that much maligned woman: the middle-aged mother trying to understand her "now generation" children.

She is a woman whose heart is touched by headlines and by her own children who fill her with confusion and fear. They belong to a generation that scorns material things, that engages in full-time protest, both issues for which she has a certain sympathy and understanding but when her son becomes involved in political trouble, she does some serious soul-searching.

This novel explores the relationship between parents and grown children in today's society.

This book is available in the Corby Library.

Team Pasta with Protein Foods For Inexpensive And Nourishing Meals

Chicken Normandy

1 frying chicken (3 pounds) cut in serving pieces
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ cup butter or margarine
1 medium onion, thinly sliced
2 tablespoons sliced celery
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
2¼ cups apple slices (20 ounce can), drained
¼ teaspoon thyme
⅛ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons milk
8 ounces spaghetti

Sprinkle chicken with ¾ teaspoon salt. Melt butter. Add chicken and cook over medium heat until golden brown on all sides. Remove chicken from skillet; reserve drippings.

To drippings in skillet, add onion and celery. Cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, 5 minutes. Add chicken, parsley, apple slices, thyme, ¼ teaspoon salt and nutmeg. Cover and cook over low heat, stirring occasionally, 40 to 45 minutes. Stir in milk just before serving.

Meanwhile, cook spaghetti according to package directions. Drain in colander.

Chicken is first golden-fried then simmered with onion, celery, apple slices, a light touch of thyme and nutmeg.

Next, nutrition-rich:

CHICKEN LIVERS — WITH EGG NOODLES

1 pound chicken livers
Salt, pepper, and flour
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 cans 10 ¾ ounces each) condensed onion soup
8 ounces medium egg noodles, (about 4 cups)
Sprinkle livers with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Melt butter over medium heat and add livers; cook over medium heat until lightly browned. Add soup and heat to boiling point; cover and cook over low heat, stirring occasionally, until livers are done, about 20 minutes.

POPPY-SEED NOODLES

1 package (8 ounces) broad noodles
2 tablespoons poppy seed
⅓ cup slivered almonds
3 tablespoons butter
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon black pepper

Prepare noodles according to package directions. Drain well. Toast poppy seed and almonds in butter. Add to noodles together with seasonings. Toss lightly and serve at once.

Serves 6 to 8 with an excellent light luncheon or supper dish, that goes along with chicken, meat or fish, or stands up on its own.

MACARONI AND CHEESE MOUSSE

¼ cup butter or margarine
1¼ cups milk
1 cup soft bread crumbs
2 tablespoons sweet pepper flakes
1 tablespoon instant minced onion
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon powdered mustard
¼ teaspoon black pepper
1 cup diced sharp Cheddar cheese
1 cup cooked elbow macaroni
3 eggs

Heat together butter and milk and pour over bread crumbs, pepper flakes and onion. Stir in remaining ingredients, except eggs. Beat eggs well and carefully blend with mixture.

Turn into a buttered 1-quart casserole and place in a pan of hot water. Bake in 350 F. oven for 1 hour or until a knife inserted in the center comes out clean. This excellent mousse should be served piping hot. Yields 6 servings.

SPAGHETTI WITH ANCHOVY SAUCE

1 can (2 ounces) anchovy fillets
½ cup olive oil
½ teaspoon paprika
⅛ teaspoon black pepper
1/16 teaspoon instant garlic powder
1 tablespoon parsley flakes
1 pound spaghetti, cooked
Pimiento strips

Cut anchovies into small pieces. Heat in oil 5 minutes or just long enough for oil to absorb anchovy flavor. Add seasoning. Heat one-half minute. Stir in parsley flakes. Pour over cooked spaghetti. Garnish with pimiento strips or roasted sweet red peppers.

MACARONI CHEESE 'N BACON

1 tablespoon salt
2 quarts boiling water
2 cups (8 ounces) elbow macaroni
1 can (10 ½ ounces) condensed cream of mushroom soup, undiluted
1 cup milk
1 package (8 ounces) process Swiss cheese, cubed
½ pound bacon, cooked and crumbled
1 teaspoon prepared mustard

Add salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add macaroni so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander.

Combine soup and milk; mix well. Add macaroni, cheese, bacon and mustard; mix well. Turn into greased 1¼-quart casserole. Bake in 350 F. oven 30 minutes. Garnish with additional strips cooked bacon, if desired. Serves 4 to 6.

Council Tackles Budget

A special meeting of council to set the 1974 city tax rate is likely to be called.

This was suggested Monday by Mayor Robin Jeffrey who noted that the council-budget committee would sit all day on Thursday to work on budget estimates.

This special meeting to formally approve the budget was suggested in order that city taxpayers might know as soon as possible what the year's tax rate would be.

Driver In Fatality Fined $175

A Trenton man, Keith Gordon Dunabee, was found guilty in provincial court Tuesday of having a blood alcohol level in excess of .08. He was fined $175 by Judge J. L. Clendenning.

The charge followed an accident Nov. 4 at the intersection of 6 RD Road and Highway 2 in which a passenger in Mr. Dunabee's car, Marie Lemore, 28, of Brighton, was killed.

Mrs. Rita Charlebois of the centre for forensic science in Toronto testified that a sample of Mr. Dunabee's blood taken at Trenton Memorial Hospital after the accident showed 170 miligrams of alcohol per 100 milliliters of blood.

Passenger Injured

An 18-year-old motorcycle passenger was cut and bruised yesterday during a collision between the motorcycle she was on and a car in front of Quinte Secondary School.

A motorcycle driven by John Graham, 17, of RR 1 in Corbyville with passenger Vicki-Lynn Johnson of Trenton was in collision with a car driven by 28-year-old William McKelvey of Orangeville.

Iron Out Wrinkles

On stage at Belleville Collegiate Institute technicians Steve Hubble (top) and Charles Smith check lighting to iron out wrinkles for the Belleville Theatre Guild's production of Oliver. Lights were still being hooked up at the school earlier this week in an effort to overcome the lack of adequate equipment for Thursday's opening night of a three day run.

Coca-Cola Cop Finally Lifted

For 25 years, youngsters in the vicinity of the Frank—College St., West intersection have had their own school guard. He was a life-sized, enamelled metal figure of a policeman, once distributed as a Coca-Cola display sign.

But Monday night the policeman was stolen. Its owner, Alvin Smith who operates a barber shop on the corner, has reported the theft to city police, but hasn't much hope of getting his mascot back.

"He's been there since 1949," says Mr. Scott. "Every Hallowe'en I used to take him off the street, so he wouldn't get lifted, and now this."

"He represented the police to teenagers and they used to throw stones at him and knock him down," says Mr. Smith. "Then we're going to miss the chance he gave them to take out their spite against the police."

Alderman Concerned About City Beautifying Church Lawn

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Dispite a claim by Alderman Joe Cox that the move could open up a dangerous precedent, the city parks board will spend public money to beautify an East Hill church property lawn.

City council Monday authorized execution of a lease between St. Andrews Presbyterian Church and the city for the church lawn at the corner of Victoria and Church Street which the parks board will develop as a parkette. The renewable lease is for a 10 year period.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey felt the move would be an asset to the city as an otherwise empty space would be developed as a public park.

Alderman Cox said it was all very nice but asked if it didn't open the door for other churches which also might like their properties landscaped.

According to the plans he said the city would be beautifying and landscaping the St. Andrews property right up to the church door.

Tuesday Parks director Lloyd Syer said development costs for the one—acre site were estimated at about $4,000 which would be spent over a two-year period.

Development would include provision of a diagonal footpath across the church property, installation of a light, turf improvement, and planting of trees and shrubbery.

He noted the church lawn was one of the few places in the area which could be beautified and developed as a parkette.

Four or five benches will be installed and a sign erected indicating it as a public park.

The parks board will pay development costs while the church will look after water and hydro service costs.

Red Shield Month

Today is the first of May and it is also the start of the Salvation Army's Red Shield campaign in Belleville. This year's goal, says Major Ray Nelson, is $13,000. And already about $1,000 has been raised even before the official start of the campaign. Major Nelson looks over one of the kits the 275 volunteers will be toting Monday night at the residential blitz.

Lights Give Oliver Headache

Lighting, a factor critical to the success of the Belleville Theatre Guild's production of Oliver, has been the biggest problem production staff has had to face in transferring the musical from the Pinnacle Playhouse to Belleville Collegiate Institute's stage.

But as it now stands, a day before opening night, the problem has been solved to the limits placed upon Guild members by BCI's stage.

To augment existing lighting, lighting technicians have bolted two four-spot lighting. The major moveable furniture in the production consists of two wooden tables and a set of benches for each.

As designed by director Liz Marshall and set designer Jim Westheuser, lighting gives the flexibility the fixed set does not have.

Only props indicate the change of locale in the play.

Clinics Too Close

Drop in Blood Donations Drastic

By AL ZABAS
Staff Rep orter

Belleville branch Red Cross officials are attributing the drop in blood donor response at the March clinic partly to the closeness with which it followed upon the heels of one in January.

Only 603 individuals gave blood March 28 at Club Canada — down from the 442 pints of blood donated in January. The March 28 results were submitted to the April meeting of the Belleville branch recently.

Branch president Murray Workman said Tuesday the main reason for the drop-was that it was scheduled too close to the January clinic.

"A lot of people were automatically eliminated from donating," he said. "There must be a three month waiting period before someone can donate blood again."

Clinic dates are set by the Ontario division of the Red Cross in Toronto and local branches have little say in the scheduling.

The next clinic is set for Club Canada Thursday, June 27.

The March donations mark a return to conditions prior to January when publicity that Belleville was provin cially rated poor as a blood source boosted donor response.

Merritt Hackett, clinic coordinator, said Bellevilians used upwards of 7,000 units in 1973. However, not all units were pints of blood, some were blood components such as plasma.

By comparison, only 1,469 pints of blood were donated last year through clinics here, he said Tuesday.

"Although Belleville is still not giving its full share of blood," said Mr. Workman, "the situation is improving. We're not really saying, Belleville, you blew it again."

Mr. Hackett said close to 1,000 units have been donated so far this year both through public and in-plant industrial clinics.

"It's an increase, but not by much," he said.

March 29, Northern Electric Co. Ltd. employees donated 159 pints. In January 145 pints were donated by royalist College students. Over the four clinics, 118 people were not permitted to give blood.

Hastings Farmers Want More Time

This was the request of the Hastings Federation of Agriculture at the preliminary Port Hope hearing on the routing of the power line.

County federation president Ivan May and director Bill Langstaff said most farmers in the area feel that Hydro deliberately delayed release of the route selection until April so that hearings would be held during the May planting season, the most crucial period for farmers.

As a result, farmers directly affected by the transmission line towers would be denied the opportunity of presenting their objections to the commission.

The two federation representatives say that if Hydro could delay the release of information from January to April after more than two years of study, then it would appear there cannot be a great deal of urgency in making the final decision on the routing.

In its brief to the preliminary hearing this week, the county federation objected to the selected route on the grounds that it unnecessarily takes prime agricultural land out of production.

The brief said farmers appreciated the "alleged" opportunity given through its open planning process to allow them to participate in the proposed routing.

But at the same time it was noted no results of farmer input are reflected in the final route selection. The opinions and recommendations of farmers obviously were given little weight in the final decision it was stated.

Farmers and councils of the three affected municipalities in Hastings (Sidney, Thurlow and Tyendinaga) are unanimous in their recommendation that if the transmission line must go through that it follow lot lines instead of cutting across individual properties.

Cyclist in Hospital

A 15-year-old Shannonville area cyclist is in satisfactory condition in Belleville General Hospital this morning after the bicycle she was riding was in collision with a car.

Janet Crieve was riding her bicycle down County Road 7 in the Shannonville area, Vernon Mingo, 36, of Truro, Nova Scotia, was driving his car on Highway 2 when the two collided at the intersection about 11 a.m. yesterday.

Bulldozer Damaged

Sand was poured into the air cleaner, radiator and hydraulic fluid of the bulldozer.

Also some plumbing within the building had been pulled out. City police estimate total damage at $250.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls for assistance in the 24-hour period ending 8 a.m. Wednesday.

Tuesday, April 30, 5.51 p.m. . . . Tripp Avenue, rubbish fire.

Tuesday, April 30, 10.38 p.m. . . . 164 Foster Avenue, Apt. 4, chesterfield fire.

Radio Thief Drops Goods

The youth was caught in the act when the daughter of the owner of Jack's TV Repair Service on Moira Street East noticed him coming out the window.

He was carrying a radio but dropped it when he ran away. Police are seeking a young person short, with long hair and wearing a blue jacket.

Pensioners Picked

Pensioners Concerned, a community group involved with the plight of the elderly and those on fixed incomes, has elected a slate of officers for another term.

They are: H. Glynne Jones, president; Mrs. C. W. Coleman, vice-president; Ed McQuigan, treasurer; T. A. Kelly, secretary; Russell Brant, publicity; W. James, membership.

City Resident Seeks Even Slower Speeds

Preparation of a city bylaw to legalize reduction of the speed limit no non-arterial roadways to 25 miles per hour has been, slowed by technicalities, but at least one city resident feels there should be an even lower limit.

Several weeks ago on recommendations of Alderman Dr. John Stock, council approved reduction of the speed limit on non-arterial roadways from the present 30 to 25 miles per hour.

But traffic committee members say the action was taken without first conferring with local traffic experts and also there is some question as to which streets the reduced limit should not apply.

Monday, city council a letter from city resident William D. Cook was included on the agenda. In his letter Mr. Cook said he not only approved of lower "in city" traffic speeds but suggested a 20 mile per hour limit would be even better.

He said few motorists drove more than a mile on residential streets before reaching a main road so a 25-mile limit would mean only an extra minute or so.

Many times, Mr. Cook said, he had avoided hitting a child by less than the 15 feet stopping differential between 20 and 30 miles per hour.

"Perhaps even 20 miles per hour is high" suggested Mr. Cook who said he believed that in Deep River the limits was 15 miles per hour on many streets.

Mr. Cook's letter was referred to the city traffic committee.

Charcoal Drives His Auto

CALCUTTA (AP) — A self-taught Indian automotive engineer is cashing in a charcoal pit attached to the rear of his 1954 car to help him beat the energy crisis.

He hopes the gadget—made out of metal pipes and three sheet-metal tanks—will make him a rich man.

"No problem, whatsoever," said Abanindra Nath Ghosh of the charcoal-burning sedan.

"Once you start the car in the morning, it will give you the same performance you get from gasoline."

The device's central tank is the heart of the system. Ghosh fires it off each morning with a burning newspaper.

The other two tanks are filters to eliminate impurities in the carbon monoxide gas given off by the burning charcoal. The gas is again filtered before reaching a special carburetor.

A water compartment in the central tank protects the car's finish from the heat of the tank's 44 pounds of wood charcoal. One tankful, which costs about $1, lasts in the 25-horse power engine for 60 miles, Ghosh said.

Ghosh said he perfected the idea from charcoal-burning system used extensively in India during the Second World War, when the country and the world faced oil shortages similar to the current scarcity.

"The units used in those days had some drawbacks—and so start the vehicle you needed some gasoline, Ghosh said. "My unit needs no gasoline at all. It is wholly powered by charcoal gas, even when starting in the morning."

Ghosh grew up in his father's automobile repair shop after the elder Ghosh returned from the United States, where he worked in 1926-27 at an automotive plant. The inventor has a secondary school education.

With Ghosh behind the wheel outside his family's thatched house in suburban Calcutta, his son rolled up a page from a newspaper and lit it. He rammed the burning paper into a pipe beneath the central tank and within seconds smoke began wafting from the top of the tank.

A detachable bellows was put to work and about one minute later thick black smoke billowed out. Ghosh's son closed the tank's lid and the inventor started the engine with a special starter, embedded in the dashboard beside the regular starter.

"The charcoal inside the tank will keep burning the whole day and the torch or the blowing will no longer be necessary," Ghosh said. "You can stop the car anywhere and pull the starter to start it again."

Ghosh said a tank and pipe set for a car costs about $225—and for a truck about $600, plus labor.

London's 'Fringe Theatres' Date Back to Pre-war Years

LONDON (CP) — London, home of the famed West End theatre, has a fringe theatre. Basically, it is a loose, imprecise term to describe the aggregation of little theatres—many housed in pubs, cellars and attics, that have opened in the last six years.

Any comprehensive survey of fringe theatre would have to go back to 1934 when Norman Marshall opened the Gate Theatre to present the kind of plays then banned by the Lord Chamberlain—the list included Aristophanes' Lysistrata, Laurence Housman's Victoria Regina and Lillian Hellman's The Children's Hour.

Marshall was a great pioneer; and soon there was a crop of enterprising little theatres, such as the Boltons, the Torch and the New Lindsey dotted around the London suburbs.

With their slow demise in the 1950s—largely for economic reasons—London was starved of any real alternative to West End theatre. Then in 1968 there was suddenly a great explosion of energy largely due to the efforts of three bearded, articulate North Americans.

Charles Marowitz, now an internationally-known experimental director, found a derelict garbage-filled basement in Tottenham Court Road and turned it into the Open Space Theatre. Jim Haynes, down from Edinburgh where he had run the Traverse Theatre, took over a tattered warehouse in Drury Lane and called it the Arts Laboratory. Ed Berman, a former Rhodes Scholar at Oxford, formed a community theatre group called Inter-Action.

Why should it all have started in one year? Partly it was to do with a feeling that everything now was open to question in politics, fashion, the arts. Partly it was because a number of people felt that there was a genuine alternative to linear, verbal drama: a theatre of fantasy and shock. And partly it had to do with the inspirational visit to London of the La Mama Theatre Company from Off-Off Broadway and he Open Theatre Company also from New York. Here was physically uninhibited acting and ensemble discipline of a kind one never seemed to see in London.

Six years later, the London fringe theatre still doesn't boast many examples of that kind of group precision. But it does have a number of achievements to its credit.

Three dramatists have moved from little-theatre work into the mainstream. One is Howard Brenton who started with a travelling company called Portable Theatre and who last year had a good play about urban terrorism, Magnificence, produced at the Royal Court and an even better play about Britain from 1945 to the present day, Brassneck, written in collaboration with David Hare, presented at Nottingham Playhouse.

Hare himself has a new play coming on in the West End, Knuckel, directed by Michael Blakemore of the National Theatre. And Trevor Griffiths, a highly political Fringe writer, had his last play, The Party, presented at the National with Lord Olivier, in the lead.

But there are plenty of other signs that the fringe has justified its existence. It has, for instance, made theatre-going cheaper, more informal and relaxed. At the Young Vic, one may find young audiences enjoying everything from Shakespeare to Stoppard for as little as 55 pence ($1.25). At the King's Head pub in Islington there is a three-course dinner and a play for the reasonable sum of £1.35. And at a little theatre like the Soho-Poly, next to Broadcasting House, you pay what you can afford for often snappy and original lunchtime plays.

'Bones' Test X-ray Film

Road Safety Film Honored

LONDON (CP) — A British government film emphasizing the importance of road safety for children has won two major awards at an international films festival in Hollywood.

The film, Sewing Machine, won the trophy for the best public service film at the Hollywood Radio and TV Society's 14th annual international broadcasting awards presentation. It also took the society's over-all grand sweepstake award for television.

Sewing Machine, made for the British department of the environment, shows the last 10 seconds in the life of a little girl. As a clock counts away the seconds, the girl ignores her mother's warnings, crosses the road to see friends and is knocked over by a car.

These foot bones and skull are part of the plastic "medical family" used by Eastman Ko'dak Company in Rochester, N.Y., to test the quality of x-ray film. Samples from all film manufactured by Kodak undergo immediate and detailed tests. (CP Photo)

Parisian Cemetery Has Million Graves

The largest and most select of Paris cemeteries, it houses nearly a million of them.

They are the well-to-do and such notables as Chopin, Moliere, Balzac, Edith Piaf, Gertrude Stein and Oscar Wilde.

Founded in 1804, Pere Lachaise covers 105 acres of hilly wooded land in the midst of a working-class section of eastern Paris. It is strangely like a real estate development. Its curator, as he is titled, compares it to a wealthy residential section of Paris, the 16th Arrondissement, and says he could not afford to be buried there.

The tombs in Pere Lachaise resemble Greek or Roman temples. Made of grey stone, most contain a small chapel with room for two or three at the altar behind latticed iron doors.

In death as in life, Pere Lachaise provides the kind of solid home traditionally associated with the aspirations of the French bourgeoisie. Yet the most visited tomb is not that of any of the worthies of art, politics or war who lie there, but a founder of a spiritualist sect named Allan Kardec.

Made of four rough-hewn stone pillars with a stone slab balanced on top, his grave is constantly visited by women who keep it surrounded with flowers and touch a bronze bust of the master before leaving.

"They ask him to help them win the lottery or the Daily Double or to cure a child," a Pere Lachaise official said.

Another famous tomb is that of the Baroness Stroganoff, wife of a Russian ambassador to Paris, who died in 1818.

"I get five or six letters a year from simple people, sometimes prisoners, who have heard that if anyone spends a year in the tomb, he will inherit the baroness' fortune," the curator said. "They want to know the conditions."

He replies kindly, telling them that unfortunately there are no conditions because it is just a legend.

Another popular tomb is that of Victor Noirs, a left-wing journalist and ladies' man who was shot in a duel by Pierre Bonaparte, a descendant of Napoleon, in 1870.

Climbing on his tomb is reputed to help cure frigidity.

Jim Morrison, a former member of the American pop group The Doors, also lies at Pere Lachaise in an unmarked grave. But his admirers know where it is and have covered the backs of surrounding tombs with chalked inscriptions.

Among them are: "Have mercy for junk," "The music is over," and "No existence is necessary, Jim."

"A lot of bad actors come here and we try to chase them away," a Pere Lachaise official said.

The cemetery administration keeps a special card file of its most visited graves with notes on what made the occupants famous.

With its load of the comfortably-off and the famous, Pere Lachaise is becoming crowded. But there is still room for more. When a family ceases to maintain a tomb, it is taken down and the space leased to new clients.

Previously space was limited only by price: now the maximum plot is three feet by 13. The buyer can dig down as far as he likes, however, and put in as many deceased members of his family as he may wish—up to 20 in some recorded cases.

Houses Come First

Some Parks, Libraries May Wait Says Davis

TORONTO (CP) — Some parks and libraries may have to take a temporary back seat to construction of houses in the government's housing action program, Premier William Davis said Tuesday.

He told Opposition Leader Robert Nixon that the program developed by the province in co-operation with municipalities is designed to cut red tape and expedite construction of houses.

Mr. Nixon asked Mr. Davis about a housing action program in the premier's own riding of Peel North.

He quoted a housing action official as saying that if the town council insisted on such "frills as parks and libraries" for the new communities the program will be cut off.

"Is it the premier's intention that the housing action policy in his own community and elsewhere, in fact, brings forward communities without libraries and parks which surely in this day and age should not be designated as frills?" Mr. Nixon asked.

The premier said there are certain aspects of the total deal with municipalities which may not be immediately settled.

"... The question of other things such as parks and libraries, these will be part of the total development over a period of time, but it may be that in some municipalities we won't be able to settle them finally before other aspects of the program can move ahead," the premier said.

He added that opposition members knew full well the government's total commitment to library services.

"As far as having these facilities available the housing action program does not in any way inhibit this; it is a question of priority and timing," Mr. Davis said.

Farmers and Fishermen Slow Repaying Loans

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government is trying to collect more than $3.7 million in unpaid debts from farmers, and may have to write off $877,661 in loans to commercial fishermen hurt by mercury pollution, an Ontario legislature committee was told Tuesday.

The public accounts committee authorized chairman Patrick Reid (L—Lah.—Rainy River) to consult with the government to determine whether a uniform policy can be drawn up to provide a more iron-clad security for these types of emergency loans.

Ontario provided $30 million in special unsecured loans in 1,100 farmers to help them survive the poor crop years of 1966 and 1967.

Roland Sewell, an executive director of the agriculture ministry, told the committee $568,000 was written off as uncollectable because of death, bankruptcy or illness. There is still $3,710,000 outstanding. The loans were made through chartered banks without security and on the guarantee of the province.

Loans were made only to those farmers who proved half their income was obtained through agriculture.

One loan was refused to hockey star Bobby Hull for his farm in eastern Ontario because he earned more money as a National Hockey League star than as a farmer. Hull has since sold his farm.

Metro Hospital Pay Accord Sparks Threats Elsewhere

TORONTO (CP) — A tentative agreement averting a strike here today by non-professional hospital workers has brought the threat of similar strikes in other southwestern Ontario centres.

Scarcely had the announcement been made Tuesday that the labor dispute involving 11 Metropolitan Toronto hospitals had been tentatively settled when spokesmen for workers in the other hospitals said they might go on strike for parity with wages paid here.

Areas now threatened by strikes are London, St. Thomas, Simcoe, Kitchener, Sarnia, Woodstock, Tillsonburg and Mesford.

The agreement with the 6,000 Toronto workers, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE), calls for a total wage increase of $1.50 an hour in five stages of a two-year contract. The old contract paid housekeeping and dietary aides $2.50 an hour and cleaners $3 an hour.

The agreement must be ratified by the union membership and a spokesman said this would be done as soon as possible.

Provincial mediator W. S. Dickie called the two sides together Monday after bargaining reached an impasse last Friday. At that time the union rejected a four-stage pay increase of $1.30 over two years and the hospitals turned down a counter-proposal for $1.30 and fringe-benefit improvements of $1.50 in pay increases without fringe benefits.

After announcement of the settlement was made in the legislature, Health Minister Frank Miller said Ontario hospitals will be allowed to exceed government spending ceilings—a stumbling block in the negotiations—because of "severe inflationary factors."

He said outside the house he was "fully aware of the tremendous effect inflation has on everybody."

"Obviously, we have to give some sort of assistance."

Mr. Miller said the ceilings might remain, but "adjustments will be made" to cover both increased costs of materials and wages.

A strike would have been illegal because hospital employees are classed as essential workers.

Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, said the health minister had much to do with successful completion of the negotiations but he was critical of the ministry of labor.

Province Backing Pipeline

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government has given qualified support for the extension of a natural gas pipeline from Sarnia to the Quebec border.

In an intervention filed with the National Energy Board in Ottawa, the province stressed that while supporting the extension of the pipeline it wants to make sure that possible adverse effects are minimized.

No Quick Fortune In Mink Ranching

WHEATLEY, Ont. (CP) — Allen Rutter has been in the mink ranching business for 18 years and his wife still is waiting for her first mink coat.

That's his way of saying mink ranching isn't the get-rich-quick business many people believe it to be.

In fact, many mink ranchers across Canada are quitting or pelting out as they put the cause of rising costs.

He says about half of Canada's mink ranchers have pelted out and the only way to survive the current prices of feed is to have access to fresh feed supplies.

The farmers in this area 30 miles southeast of Windsor, Ont., are lucky in this respect as they have been able to buy protein-rich fish scraps from Olmsted Foods Ltd., North America's largest fresh-water fish processor.

A female mink weighing about 2½ pounds probably eats about half a pound a day, he says. But being able to buy the scraps from the fish processor has cut feed bills in halves.

"That's what has saved us in the Wheatley area," he says while making it clear that if he got a good enough price he'd sell tomorrow.

Larger breeding stock are needed today, he says. Ten years ago he could make a living with 300 mink but today he needs 700—800 of which are females.

The breeding season starts early in March and the young are born in late April and early May. Allowing for deaths, he might end up with 3,300 mink and the best thing they do is eat.

The mink are killed, fleshed and skinned in November and the pelts are hung to dry. This is the busy season where extra help is hired and "you do two days work in one."

The pelts are shipped to Toronto for auction in December and January.

Mr. Rutter says one misconception the public has is that prices are fantastic. In fact they vary greatly depending on quality, color and type of fur demanded by the fashion industry.

"You take your chances when the auction," he says, adding that pelt prices are about the same today as they were 10 years ago.

At last winter's auction, white pelts were in demand and few were available so the prices were high, averaging $30.00 for the larger male pelt and $20.50 for the female.

But low-quality furs, brought only $13.96 for the male and $6.15 for the female.

Breeders try to anticipate trends and build up stocks of consistent money-makers but this is difficult, says Mr. Rutter. Sperm tests are conducted and sterile mink don't stay around long.

"If they don't produce, out they go," he says.

Little of the mink is wasted. Carcasses are shipped to Toronto where they wind up as fertilizer or as an oil for cosmetics.

Banker Tells Economic Nationalists To Start Worrying About Arabs

OTTAWA (CP) — An Italian banker and politician suggested Tuesday that some of the at least partially unjustified concern about multinational corporations should be switched to newly-rich Arab oil producers.

Giovanni Malagodi, former cabinet minister and leader of the Italian Liberal party, said the concern should be turned to the fact that some activities of large international oil companies are being taken over by "a handful of unstable and undemocratic governments."

Delivering one of the two major lectures at a meeting of world liberals here, Mr. Malagodi generally played down many concerns about multinationals, expressing more concern over the power possessed by state-owned industries.

In the other lecture, Representative Donald Fraser of Minneapolis, among other things national chairman for Americans for Democratic Action, said there is a need for a code of conduct for multinationals.

But he added, concern for protecting the sovereignty of nations should not be such as to will lead to the destruction of the multinationals which help the goal of a totally inter-dependent world economy.

Dr. Malagodi said problems created by Libyan strongman Mohammad Kadhafi and King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia should be of concern for all.

He noted surplus funds of oil exporters already is $70 billion this year and he wondered what the political repercussions will be of the huge investments these countries will be making in others in the next decae.

He said it was not proved that multinationals were harmful to the economies of host countries and in a number of ways, especially the transfer of technological innovation, they were beneficial.

Constraints Frustrate Press

TORONTO (CP) — The essential function of the American press in keeping the government accountable for its actions cannot be performed if it is subject to constraints, Katharine Graham, board chairman of the Washington Post, said Tuesday.

Mrs. Graham, whose newspaper led the way in exposing the Watergate scandals, told the Canadian Club a major lesson from the "turmoil and tragedy" of Watergate is that "the press must be restrained."

"That would not purify the American system of justice," she said. "On the contrary, it would tend to allow the system to be far more arbitrary and capricious than it now is. . . .

"The surest, safest way to promote due process and equal treatment under the laws is to report the ways the system does and doesn't work. Without a free press, injustices would remain ugly and reforms could not be won."

America should be more free, not less, more vigorous and probing."

Without a vigorous press, our adventure in self-government, with all its strengths and all its idiosyncracies . . . might have ended years ago.

Noting that some people have been talking of putting curbs on the press as the result of Watergate coverage, Mrs. Graham said she "shudders at the notion that the American press should be restrained."

Tough Farm Labor New Drug Antidote

GRACEFIELD, Que. (CP) — On a 200-acre farm near this community, 60 miles north of Ottawa, people who have had enough of a drug-oriented, city life are being offered a chance to escape into a new reality of clean country air, hard—manual work and an absence of drugs.

Get Your Act Together Enterprise (GYATE) is a culmination of the efforts of Tony Mole, who says he is a former heavy user of speed. He found that a three-month stint on a tobacco farm helped free him from dependence on drugs.

He has translated this experience into a program that accepts drug-users willing to help themselves and offers them an atmosphere to bring things back together.

There is not much time for tripping or deciding what you're going to score for your next drug hit if you're splitting wood, turning over ground for a garden or trying to adjust the cranky carburetor on an old tractor.

GYATE has a half-way house in Ottawa where applicants for the program go for screening. The city house also offers a gradual weaning for the drug-user. A commitment to stay for two months is demanded before access to the wooded, hilly farm along the Gatineau River is permitted.

The farm operates on a self-motivated basis. No one is required to work but the demands of a primitive rural existence—no wood chopped, no hot supper—are usually enough to prompt the required effort.

The farm opened in its present location last fall and so far the object has been to acquire some stock, furnish the 100-year-old frame house and prepare the land for spring.

When a person feels he has had enough of the farm and is ready to return to city life he can go back to the half-way house in Ottawa. From there farm "graduates" are given assistance in finding jobs, training and the down place to live.

The program is financed by a $92,000 L.I.P. grant and by contributions that those involved make for room and board out of welfare payments. The farm is owned by three of the staff and instalments on the $30,000 mortgage are paid from their $110 weekly salary.

So far the program has offered the opportunity to 70 people and about 40 have taken the option. But, said one staffer: "Sometimes they will walk six miles through the bush on a freezing winter night to get to a source. There is nothing we can do for people like that."

"The neighbors are incredibly helpful," said Tony Mole. "The first day we were here a neighbor came over with 400 pounds of oats. Assistance of the neighbors is important since most of the staff have little practical experience in farming.

GYATE has applied for another L.I.P grant—$52,000 this year because they have decided to cut down on salaried staff. They are hopeful this will be the last year they will have to go to the government for assistance.

They are preparing an area for a large garden this spring, hoping to be able to sell their produce to nearby restaurants and stores.

Gas Lines Regulation Considered

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta Dental Association and the College of Physicians and Surgeons will meet May 7 to formulate regulations and inspection procedures aimed at preventing the mixup of gas lines.

A coroner's jury decided April 23 that the death of 23-year-old Edmonton girl was caused by switching oxygen and nitrous oxide lines on her dentist's anesthesia machine.

Dr. Bruce Low, president of the association, said Tuesday there are currently no requirements for machine inspection nor limitations on use of the machines.

Costs Rise

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Solicitor-General George Kerr said Tuesday an estimated $98 million will be required to operate his ministry during the current fiscal year, an increase of almost $10 million from 1973-74.

"The bulk of the increase is in support of the Ontario Provincial Police," Mr. Kerr told the legislature committee discussing the solicitor-general's spending estimates. "More than $5 million is for payments of negotiated salaries and benefits."

New Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — A new feed-grains policy will be announced in a few weeks, Otto Lang, minister responsible for the wheat board, said in the Commons Tuesday.

Need Doctors

OTTAWA (CP) — Universities should be given more money to educate medical students, particularly those willing to practise in isolated areas, P. B. Rynard (PC—Simcoe North) said in the Commons Tuesday.

A practising physician before entering politics, he said there is an uneven geographical distribution of medical services. Many doctors were unwilling to practise in isolated regions.

Appointed

OTTAWA (CP) — Ralph Steinhauer, 69, a prominent farmer and former chief of the Saddle Lake Indian band near St. Paul, Alta., has been appointed lieutenant-governor of Alberta, Prime Minister Trudeau announced Tuesday.

The prime minister said in a statement Mr. Steinhauer will succeed Lt.-Gov. Grant MacEwan at the end of June.

Mr. Steinhauer helped launch the Indian Association of Alberta and has been active in farm affairs since he joined the United Farmers of Alberta in 1922.

Reject Offer

UN Reaches Deadlock On Aid to Poor Lands

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada has been working quietly behind the scenes to help break the stalemate in the UN over means of rescuing underdeveloped countries from economic disaster threatened by shortages of food and fertilizer.

An impasse has developed between the industrialized nations and the group of 77, representing the poorer nations, over the wording and substance of a declaration to bring to a close a special session on raw materials and development.

The underdeveloped countries want the assembly to endorse a declaration, put forward by them, which would call for the establishment of a new and more equitable world economic order, action to bring that order into being and a program of emergency aid to countries suffering most from current high prices for food and fertilizer.

The industrialized countries object particularly to passages that would recognize the right of a government to nationalize foreign holdings and determine the amount of compensation. The declaration also would endorse the setting up of international cartels to jack up prices of raw materials.

Fear Voiced Terrorist Bands Might Use Atomic Wastes

OTTAWA (CP) — An official of the European Economic Community expressed concern Tuesday over the possibility of terrorists in the future making use of nuclear wastes to promote their aims.

Prof. D. Ralph Dahrendorf of West Germany, commissioner for education and science in the EEC, said he doesn't like to think of the potential danger of transporting these wastes.

Speaking at the meeting of world Liberals, he said it is an international problem with no system of control and not even the beginning of an idea how to safeguard these wastes.

Prof. Dahrendorf raised the question in passing at the meeting which earlier this week heard Prime Minister Trudeau make a brief mention of the international landscape being too frequently scarred by hijackers and terrorists.

Prof. Dahrendorf touched on the issue only in answer to Earlier in the day he had discussed the matter with External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, touching on possible cooperation and consultation between Canada and the EEC and the possibility of involvement in common projects.

Oil Export Tax $4

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal oil export tax has been set at $4 a barrel for May and will, for the first time, apply to most refined products as well as crude oil.

A formal ways and means notion, clearing the way for broadened application of the tax, was tabled in the Commons Tuesday by Energy Minister Donald Macdonald.

The export tax is adjusted monthly to take changing international price patterns into account. It was $4 a barrel in April also.

The National Energy Board, responsible for exports, has set the export limit for crude oil at 841,000 barrels a day for May.

No figures were released on the volume of refined products that the broadened tax will affect. Plans to extend it to refined products were announced early in April.

Canadian Gasoline Price to Rise 9 Cents

OTTAWA (CP) —. Higher prices for Canadian crude oil will be translated into an eight- to nine-cent wholesale price increase for gasoline and heating oil in mid-May, the chairman of Imperial Oil Ltd. said Tuesday.

J. A. Armstrong, Imperial's chief executive officer, said the company has "under advisement" the question of whether there will be a further price increase because of higher operating costs.

Mr. Armstrong and other company officials were witnesses at a meeting of the House national resources committee, which is holding hearings on a bill to legislate details of an agreement between the prime minister and the premiers establishing a Canadian price for oil for a 12-15 month period.

That agreement boosted the Alberta wellhead price to $8.50 a barrel from $4. The new Canadian price is about $4 less than the cost of landing offshore crude in Canada.

Turner's Statistics Used To Prove Inflation High

OTTAWA (CP) — The opposition has found new ammunition to attack the government's anti-inflation record and was expected to pick up where it left off Tuesday as debate began today on proposed anti-profiteering legislation.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield took a new tactic to discredit Liberal economic policies and used the government's own statistics Tuesday to challenge one of its main defences in inflation.

He said the argument that Canada has done well in controlling inflation compared with other countries is not borne out by statistics in an economic review tabled Monday by Finance Minister John Turner.

This is the case even when Mr. Turner's preferred calculation methods are used, he has been based largely on statistics compiled on the basis of a so-called gross national expenditure deflator.

Past opposition attacks have been based largely on statistics compiled from the consumer price index. Mr. Turner has brushed aside criticism based on this, arguing that the deflator approach gives a truer picture because it takes more economic factors into account than the price index.

The review says inflation in the second half of 1973 was 9.2 per cent higher than in the first half of the year. This compared with figures of seven per cent in the U.S. and six per cent in the United Kingdom, Mr. Stanfield said.

"Can the minister explain why he says Canada's performance is better than that of the United States and the United Kingdom when the figures show this is a misrepresentation?"

Mr. Turner denied that inaccurate statements had been made.

"If you look at the deflator in recent months, you'll see the rate in the U.S. and Europe has been higher," he replied.

The controversy over inflation, the main opposition thrust in recent months, is expected to resume with full force today when the anti-profiteering debate begins.

The three opposition parties have not said how they will vote on the bill, introduced Monday by Consumer Affairs Minister Herb Gray.

Mr. Stanfield said Tuesday the bill will do little to slow inflation.

CN Bill Finally Wins Approval

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill designed to facilitate removal of railway yards and lines from urban cores received final Commons approval Tuesday night after four-year debate.

Passage of the proposed legislation came just before the House rose and after successive long speeches by Conservative members made it look like debate might drag into today.

Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford, shepherding the bill through the House, said at one point Tuesday he did not expect the proposed legislation to get final approval before the day's debate ended.

An inter-party agreement provided a quick second reading for the bill, and Mr. Basford said he could not imagine why the committee study was taking so long.

Bob McKinley, Conservative whip, said there was no strategy involved, but "our guys just keep babbling on."

Three amendments were made to the bill before it received final Commons approval. The proposed legislation go get it now goes to the Senate for debate, then needs routine royal assent to become law.

MEMO FROM HELEN GAGEN, CONSUMER ADVISOR MIRACLE FOOD MART

DO YOU REALLY NEED TOP GRADE?

If you're deeply concerned about food costs, consider these facts:

BEEF: Yes, you should insist on top grade — Canada Grade A. In this case, it's better economy to buy Grade A, even though you choose a lower priced, less-tender cut.

CHICKEN and OTHER POULTRY: For family use, or for casseroles or pies, choose utility. It may have a skin tear or lack one part, but it's at least a grade B bird, possibly A — but cheaper because of the missing part. Reserve higher grades for special serving.

CANNED FRUITS: The cost of Fancy grade fruits with their freedom from blemish, uniform shape and clear juice is justified only for special purposes. Choice, with some variation in size, color, maturity and clarity of liquid is a popular alternative. Use Standard for made-up dishes. All three grades are equally safe.

CANNED VEGETABLES: The expensive Fancy vegetables for uniformity is important. Use Choice when flavor and tenderness are important, but perfect uniformity is not. Use Standard for casseroles, spaghetti sauces, stews, soups, and greatest economy.

FROZEN FRUITS and VEGETABLES: As with canned fruits and vegetables, use top-grade Fancy only when near-perfection is important. Choice grade is a good alternative for most purposes.

Choosing the right grade for the purpose can save you money. Miracle Food Mart's Unit Value Pricing makes it easier to decide exactly how much you save by choosing one grade instead of another.

He Boosts the Area And Promotes Tourneys

Mel Eckford is an electrical contractor.

He is also a booster of the Bay of Quinte area.

Since arriving in Belleville from Timmins in 1961, Mel has become aware of the fact that the Quinte district is "to quote the sports enthusiast, the greatest place to be".

"We've got everything here, right on our doorstep," offers Mel, in his best Chamber of Commerce-type tone.

Although Eckford's playing days are now behind him ("the legs start to go as you get older") he has retained his interest in sports. Senior softball, or fastball if you will, is high on the list of Eckford sports priorities.

That event takes place this year at Alemite Park, June 14-15-16.

"We'll have 12 top notch teams here, including entries from Burlington, Vermont; Oshkosburg, N.Y.; Potsdam, N.Y.; Cornwall; Dunkirk, Brockville, Oshawa, as well as representative from our own Quinte Fastball League" advises Mel.

Looking to the future, Eckford hopes one day to see Belleville represented in the Ontario Fastball League (OFL).

Belleville fans and those in the district should keen Saturday, May 18 open. On that date, they'll have a chance to see why the OFL is interested in bringing OFL action to this city.

Toronto Globals of the OFL, featuring pitchers Pete Landers and Andy Genetti will be here for an exhibition twin bill with Rollins Construction of the local fastball loop, according to Eckford.

It's a great way to launch the 1974 senior fastball season in Belleville. The Quinte League is reported to have set Monday, May 20 for its season openers.

Barrie Aiming For a First

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Barrie Flyers have a case full of trophies to show for their success in senior hockey but they won't consider the collection complete without the Allan Cup.

The Flyers won their second G. P. Bolton trophy in three years Monday when they won the Eastern Canadian championship with a 3-0 sweep over Thunder Bay Twins in a best-of-five playoff.

Earlier, the Flyers had picked up the John Ross Robertson Cup as Ontario Hockey Association Senior A champions, beating Orillia Terriers in that playoff, and the CDV trophy for finishing first in the OHA league for the third year in a row.

Among other silverware picked up by the club was the Percy Belanger trophy to Ernie Miller as the league's top goaltender and the Pinckney trophy, also to Miller, as the league's most valuable player.

"We're going to do all we can now to bring the Allan Cup . . . to Barrie," said player-coach Darryl Sly.

The Barrie squad travels to Cranbrook, B.C., to face the Royals in a best-of-seven Allan Cup final starting Saturday.

Barrie never has won the Allan Cup and this will be only the Flyers' second trip to the Canadian senior amateur hockey championship final.

Nine members of the current Flyers team, including Sly on defence, were with the 1971 club that went to meet Spokane Jets, losing 4-2 in the best-of-seven set against the western champs.

Other Flyers who will be making the return trip are defenceman Jim Thomson and Jack Smith and forwards Pat Monahan, Corby Adams, Ron Robinson, Doug Acombe, Bob Baird and Frank Hinder.

Sly, former National Hockey League player, has a long history in senior hockey, including a stint with Trail Smoke Eaters who won the world amateur championship in 1961.

Cranbrook New To Cup Final

CRANBROOK, B.C. (CP) — Cranbrook Royals have never competed in Allan Cup final play before but they are going into their initial national championship bid with one bat factor to soothe new first-time jitters — a home-ice advantage.

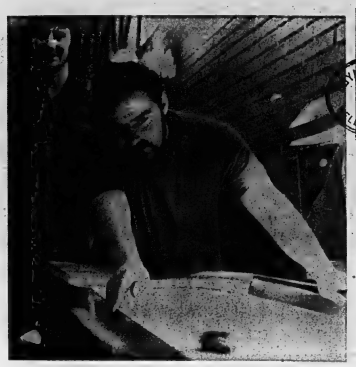
This southeastern British Columbia city will host all action in a best-of-seven series starting Saturday between the Royals and Barrie, Ont., Flyers for the Canadian senior amateur hockey crown.

Cranbrook made it to the national final by defeating St. Boniface Mohawks in a semi-final after, sidelining Spokane Jets and Thail Smoke Eaters in Western International Hockey League playoffs.

This was the ninth year of senior hockey competition for the Royals.

Cranbrook playing coach Eric Sutcliffe will have a number of decisions to make before the series gets under way Saturday. One of them is whether to start Wayne Dell or Leo Karchie in goal against Barrie.

Dell played well enough through the 1973-74 season to be named an all-star in the Western International League.



Karchie was in goal during the sixth and deciding game of the Cranbrook-Thunder Bay series, a game Royals won by a convincing 10-1 margin.

Geoff Powis was the Royals' scoring leader through regular season WIHL play. His 28 goals and 29 assists helped Cranbrook finish second in the league, one point behind Spokane.

Sutcliffe can give a lot of credit for his club's success to some outstanding performances from the rookies on his club like Martin, Bob Murdoch and Wayne Gibbs.

Veterans haven't let down Royals either. Felix Lavallee has been scoring in the playoffs after a rather disappointing season.

Here's How It's Done

Belleville ANAF Dukes took a commanding lead in shuffleboard playoff with Trenton team, Tuesday night in Belleville. Greg Browning, Dukes' captain, delivers rock with encouragement from teammate Bob Reid.

Dukes Are in Command

There was more than one playoff series going on last night. While most people were watching the Chrysler, Boston series the ANAF Dukes were playing host to Dave's Variety of Trenton shuffleboard action.

The Belleville team took seven of the nine games played and need only three more games to win the Zone title for the sixth time in seven years. The first team to win 10 games is declared the winner.

Dukes earned the right to advance to the finals by placing first in the two-day Belleville and District league. The Trenton team also placed first in its league.

The first game of the night was characteristic of the rest of the games with Hugh Norbey and Ronny John of ANAF defeating Dave Nancarrow and Gus McFee 21-20 in a very close match.

The rest of the games went like this: 2nd game, ANAF 21 Dave's 13, 3rd game, Dave's 21 ANAF 9, 4th game, 21 for ANAF 9 for Dave's, 5th game, ANAF 21 Dave's 17, 6th game, 21-18 for ANAF, 7th game, 21-11 for Dave's, 8th game, 21-7 for ANAF, and the final game was won by ANAF 21-11.

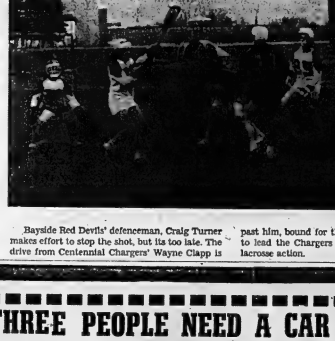
On June 15 the ANAF team will travel to Kitchener to compete in the All Ontario Shuffleboard championships with other ANAF units.

Chargers Wallop Bayside



The Centennial Secondary School Chargers and Bayside Secondary School Red Devils opened their high school field lacrosse schedules with a game at CSS Tuesday night, with the Chargers taking a convincing 12-4 win from the visitors.

Three players fired a pair of markers each for the winners, with Wayne Clapp, Dick Howe, and Dour Nash all contributing two. Singles went to Lyle Pollock, Wally Inwood, Jim Richardson, Rob Thompson, Chris Rutledge and Alan Tehworth.

Pete Young in the Chargers' nests played an outstanding game, coming up with many key saves when an abundance of penalties at times overcame the Centennial crew, especially in the first half of the contest.

Bayside Red Devils' defenceman, Craig Turner makes effort to stop the shot, but its too late. The drive from Centennial Chargers' Wayne Clapp is past him, bound for the goal. Clapp scored twice to lead the Chargers to a 12-4 win, in Tuesday lacrosse action.

Big Effort Not Enough to Stop Bruins

Black Hawks Go Down Fighting

CHICAGO (CP) — Gregg Sheppard can't account for his new-found scoring touch, but it's not surprising to him that he's suddenly overshadowing more highly-regarded teammates.

The 24-year-old centre from North Battleford, Sask., scored his ninth playoff goal in the third period Tuesday night to lead Boston Bruins to a 4-2 win over Chicago Black Hawks.

It ended the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final in six games and the Bruins, who last won the championship in 1972, await the outcome of the Philadelphia Flyers-New York Rangers' series.

Sheppard blasted a shot past Chicago goalie Tony Esposito at 10:31 in the National Hockey League game.

"I had the post covered," said the Chicago netminder, "and he blew it right through my pads."

It was Esposito who pulled the Hawks through most of the previous five games, but it was left for his Boston counterpart, Gilles Gilbert, to pull out game 6 for the Bruins.

Gilbert's acrobatics held the Hawks to one first-period goal by Cliff Koroll, and another from a Chicago power play by Len Frig, to tie the score at 2-2 early in the third.

Don Marcotte's two second-period goals gave the Bruins a 3-2 lead going into the final 20 minutes of regulation time and Phil Esposito added insurance with an empty-net goal 33 seconds after Sheppard's score.

After a disappointing sophomore year, in which he scored just 16 goals—most of them after the New Year, Sheppard had a ready-made answer as to why he's suddenly developed into a scorer.

"I've always been able to score," he said, noting the 24 he's got as a rookie while playing on the "Bruins' checking line. "For the first two months of this year I couldn't buy a goal.

"But I sat down with coach Bep Guidolin and we checked through a few films. He told me then he had no intention of shifting me out and this gave me a lot of confidence."

The Hawks, outshot 31-27, dominated the game, as they have no other in the series—including the two they won on the strength of Esposito's goaltending.

"They were on us like gangbusters," said Boston defenseman Bobby Orr, a key figure in the Bruins' offence. "They were all over us with their fore-checking, just like we did to them in Boston Sunday."

That game wound up in a 6-2 victory to give Boston the series lead for the first time, but Orr said the Bruins "were not expecting them to roll over and die on home ice."

"The Hawks were continually sending two men into the Boston end of the ice when the Bruins had possession, upsetting offensive patterns.

But, it was obvious Chicago missed the scoring supplied by left winger Dennis Hull who came up lame in the fourth game with a muscle spasm low in his back.

Hull didn't dress for Sunday's game and was a surprise starter Tuesday. He didn't last more than three shifts before it was obvious he was in too great pain to continue.

The loss of the Chicago veteran, and an assortment of other ailments, "is something you can't compensate for," said coach Billy Reay.

"We played well in the first two," Reay said. "But Gil Gilbert came up with a lot of good saves.

"Otherwise we would probably have been sitting on a bigger lead. But everyone on their club played well against us, and I'll say one guys were out there to play."

"He (Newell) didn't call a penalty on Orr and then he called one on (Bill) White for the same thing just a few minutes later," said Reay.

White, incensed at the call at 19 minutes of the third period, threw his stick toward the penalty box and drew a 10-minute misconduct penalty as well, prompting Reay to add:

Flyers One Win Away

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Terry Crisp's stick screen woke up Philadelphia Flyers in a Stanley Cup playoff game Tuesday night.

The 30-year-old centre didn't pick up a point in the Flyers' 4-1 win over New York Rangers, but coach Fred Shero couldn't say enough about him.

"Crisp was the guy who did all the shooting and he deserved the second period. He screeamed at me and then (team-mate) Bill Clement got going; we had to go all out."

Shero said he didn't know what Crisp was screaming about but "up until then, the most important thing we did was to survive that period."

The win gave the Flyers a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven National Hockey League semi-final series. The sixth game is scheduled for Thursday night in New York starting at 8 p.m. EDT.

Nolet gave the Flyers a 3-1 margin at 8:05 of the final period when he slapped home a faceoff circle trickled into the net after Glenmike Jarrett had partially block the puck with his right pad.

MacLeish completed the scoring when, after striking the goal post with his first shot, he fired the rebound into an empty net in the final minute.

The Flyers, who received a standing ovation from 17,007 fans when they emerged for the second period, are the first expansion team to have won three playoff games in one series from an established NHL team.

Schultz, who had 79 minutes in penalties before Tuesday's game, picked up a minor, five-minute major and a 10-minute misconduct for a fight with Stemkowski during the first period.

He now has 96 minutes in penalties after nine playoff games this season, topping the previous mark of 85 held by John Ferguson of Montreal Canadiens' in 1969. Ferguson's record was set in 14 games.

Toros Even With Cougars

CHICAGO (CP) — Toronto coach Billy Harris wasn't surprised and neither was playing-coach Pat Stapleton of Chicago as the Cougars after the Toros won 7-6 in a World Hockey Association playoff game Tuesday night.

"It was just a matter of time for us to get those goals because we had been getting robbed," Harris said after Toronto evened the best-of-seven semi-final series 2-2.

Said Stapleton. "They're a high-scoring team, and it was just a matter of when they were going to start putting the puck in the net."

The fifth game in the series will be played tonight in Toronto with the sixth scheduled Saturday in suburban Mount Prospect, Ill., temporary home of the Cougars.

Winner of the series will meet Houston Aeros or Minnesota Fighting Saints who play tonight in Minneapolis. Houston leads that best-of-seven competition 3-2.

Harris went with four forward lines and got production from each. But the unit of ex-Trottier, Bob Leduc and Wayne Dillon starred for the winners, who were outshot 36-30 before 2,646 fans in the 3,000-seat Mount Prospect arena.

Trottier had three goals, two in the second period, and one assist. Leduc scored a goal and picked up an assist, and Dillon had three assists.

Wayne Carleton, Tom Simpson and Dave Sentes scored the other Toronto goals. Larry Mavety, Rosaire Paiement, Jim Bennieck, Jan Popiel, Rick Morris and Bob Liddington replied for the Cougars, who held their own with a 2-2 tie until the Toros scored five times in the second period.

Stapleton said the Mount Prospect arena may have given Toronto an edge. He must have forgotten Chicago's 3-2 win last Sunday in the same location.

"It's a big rink here and the big ice may give them an advantage because they're such a fine skating team," Stapleton said.

The Cougars' regular home is the International Amphitheatre, which was denied the Chicago team for the playoffs because of a prior commitment to house a production of Peter Pan.

Both teams used two goaltenders with Andre Gill starting for Chicago and being replaced by Cam Newton in the third period. Gilles Gratton replaced Les Binkley after Morris scored in the third to reduce Toronto's lead to 7-5.

Despite allowing a goal by Liddington, Gratton turned in a strong 20 minutes to help the Toros cause.

The Toros played without defencemen Steve Cuddie and Rick Cunningham, both sidelined with injuries. Carl Brewer, who turned in a brilliant effort, teamed with Billy Orr while Mike Amodeo played with Brian Gibbons.

Carleton also picked up an assist to increase his playoff point total to 12, six behind leading Mike Walton of the Saints. Trottier, who hadn't scored since the first game of the quarter-final series against Cleveland Crusaders, now has four goals for the playoffs.

Derek Wants Back If Guidolin Out

BOSTON (AP) — Derek Sanderson says he'd like to play for Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League next season, but only if coach Bep Guidolin is no longer there.

"I don't want to leave Boston." Sanderson said Monday.

"But if Bep is back as coach, there's no way I'll be back as a player. Our situation could never be worked out. So I'll havet to wait and see if there's a coaching change when the season is over. If there is a change I want to play for Boston."

Sanderson was suspended several weeks ago for the remainder of the season and the Stanley Cup playoffs after missing a flight home with the team from the West Coast.

He believes the suspension cost him about $30,000 between his loss of salary for the closing games of the season and the playoff share, should the Bruins win the Stanley Cup.

He also suggested that his appeal of the suspension to National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell was unsuccessful because "that guy'll have to talk to my lawyer about that."

Sanderson, who jumped to the World Hockey Association for one year, then returned to the Bruins last season, said he has talked with seven different teams about playing next season.

Further Treatment For Ashbee

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Defenceman Barry Ashbee of Philadelphia Flyers was moved from Tuesday's game to a New York hospital for further treatment of the eye injury he suffered in a game with New York against the Rangers Sunday.

Ashbee was struck in the right eye by a shot from New York defencemen Dale Rolfe at 1:27 of the first overtime period as the Rangers won the fourth game of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final 2-1.

The Flyers said Ashbee was moved to Wills Eye Hospital to get him closer to home and for further examination by specialists.

He had regained his vision in the eye by Monday night.

Aaron's Blast Doesn't Bother Cards' Pitcher

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Twenty years, 719 home runs and 1,280 extra-base hits later, St. Louis was the site of another Aaron home run, this one served up by McGlothen.

"Why should I worry about his 720th," said McGlothen, who helped pitch the Cardinals to a 7-2 victory over the Braves. "He'd hit 719 of them before."

Elsewhere in the National League, Houston Astros downed Chicago Cubs 4-3; San Diego Padres shaded Montreal Expos 3-1; New York Mets edged Los Angeles Dodgers 8-7 and Philadelphia Phillies nipped San Francisco Giants 6-5. The Cincinnati Reds-Pittsburgh Pirates game was rained out.

"He (Aaron) hit a fast ball out over the plate," said McGlothen. "No I wasn't surprised. His first time up I threw him the same thing. I don't know why he missed it but he did."

For the last two seasons, McGlothen has been safe from Aaron's bat. But his turn in places Aaron doesn't inhabit—the American League and the minors.

Lou Brock of the Cardinals sent one out longer Tuesday night. It was a 440-foot homer and landed high in the right field bleachers. The 40-year-old Aaron's blast travelled 360 feet.

McGlothen, now a contributor to Aaron history, almost didn't get his chance. He was a last-minute replacement for Sonny Seibert, who was slightly injured two days ago when he stepped on a rake.

Johnny Edwards' single knocked in Lee May with the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning, leading the Astros to their win and sending the Cubs to their seventh loss in eight games.

Larry Bowa, whose only previous homer was an inside-the-park shot in 1972, slammed a 350-foot drive off Mike Caldwell in the first.

Derrel Thomas doubled home the tie-breaking run in the sixth and Bill Greif teamed with Vicente Romo on an eight-hitter to lead San Diego.

Greif, 2-4, pitched into the sixth and Romo got the final two outs with the bases loaded, striking out Jim Lyttle and inducing Ron Hunt to ground out.

Mickey's Back In the Groove

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The hard-hitting Kansas City Royals would normally look forward to facing a pitcher who is winless in four decisions and has allowed five runs a game. But not when his name is Mickey Lolich.

"I hate to catch a guy who is 0-4 like Lolich was," said Kansas City manager Jack McKeon. "You know that a good pitcher's going to win sooner or later. You just know it."

If McKeon was worried before the game, he was convinced afterwards. Lolich, working mostly with off-speed pitches, scattered eight hits as Detroit Tigers dumped the Royals 7-2.

Aurelio Rodriguez led the Tiger attack with two singles, a double and two runs batted in.

"Lolich pitched a great game," said McKeon. "It was the best I've seen him throw. We just couldn't mount any kind of attack."

Elsewhere in the American League, Oakland A's Angels blasted Boston Red Sox 16-6; Cleveland Indians downed Minnesota Twins 8-3; Texas Rangers outlasted Milwaukee Brewers 12-10; New York Yankees edged Oakland Athletics 4-2, and Chicago White Sox shaded Baltimore Orioles 2-1.

Lolich has lost a little something off his fastball of late and has changed his style of pitching.

"The fastball doesn't go on forever," said Lolich. "I'm 33 so I throw a lot of sliders and a lot of knuckleballs. I had a good curve ball tonight but the velocity wasn't good.

"Maybe that's what I need—don't throw fast and win."

Nolan Ryan struck out a season-high 15 batters in his performance was marred by a fastball that got away in the first inning and Bill Buckner second baseman Doug Griffin just above the left ear. Griffin was carried unconscious from the field and in hospital with a severe concussion.

"The ball was up and in as he just couldn't get out of the way," said Ryan. "It's very unfortunate. It shook me up but I had a job to do."

Denny Doyle led California with five singles while Bob Oliver drove in four runs with a single,a double and triple.

Bert Campaneris, a two-run single to extend his hitting streak to 19 games as Cleveland won its third straight. Fritz Peterson and Fred Beene, both acquired from the Yankees last week, combined on an eight-hitter. Bobby Darwin homered for the Minnesota.

Jeff Burroughs, Jim Spencer and Cesar Tovar his home runs for Texas. Burroughs and Spencer hit theirs consecutively in the eighth inning to put the Rangers ahead for good. Burroughs' drive in three runs for Milwaukee.

Back-to-back home runs by Roy White and Chris Chambliss in the eighth inning gave New York the win. Mel Stottlemyre picked up his fifth victory against one loss. Vida Blue dropped to 0-3 for Oakland.

Bucks' Overtime Win Squares NBA Final

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee Bucks staved off a furious Boston comeback to defeat the Celtics 105-96 in overtime Tuesday night, evening their National Basketball Association final 1-1.

Cornell Warner sank two stuff shots in the last 31 seconds of overtime to end Boston's comeback bid.

The next two games in the best-of-seven final are at Boston, with the next game Friday.

The Bucks out-scored Boston 16-2 in the last five minutes of the first half to open a 52-41 lead. But the Celtics stormed back and forced the extra period when John Havlicek sank two free throws with 58 seconds left in regulation play, tying the score 90-90.

The Bucks took the lead for good at 96-94 with 1:45 left in overtime on a long jump shot by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the last of his 36 points. Two free throws by Ron Williams made it 98-94 with 1:06 to play.

Jo-Jo White, who scored all but seven of his 25 points in the second half and overtime, countered with a jump shot with 46 seconds left, and the Bucks called time out.

Robertson passed from out of bounds to Warner near mid-court, and the 6-foot, forward drove the lane for a stuff shot. Warner was fouled on the play, and converted a free throw making it 101-96.

Milwaukee led by as many as 16 points early in the second half, but White poured in 10 points in the third period to trigger a Boston comeback.

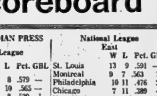
The Celtics held the Bucks to only 13 points in the fourth quarter.

Remparts Skate To Cup Series

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Remparts advanced to the Memorial Cup final Tuesday night by defeating Sorel Black Hawks 4-1 to take the best-of-seven Quebec Major Junior Hockey League final 4-2.

The Remparts, who finished second to Sorel in the QMJHL's East Division, skated to a 4-0 lead in the first period and led 7-1 after the second.

Quebec now will travel to Calgary to compete for Canada's national major junior hockey championship with St. Catharines Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series and Regina Pats of the Western Canada Hockey League.



Jacques Locas and Real Cloutier each had a pair of goals for the Remparts with Daniel Beaudin, Andre Perreault, Richard Nantais and Jamie Bateman adding singles.

Gilles Caruel with two, Michel Bergeron and Pierre Yves Giroux were the Sorel marksmen.

The Black Hawks closed the gap to 7-3 with seven minutes gone in the third period but Cloutier's second goal of the game at 9:24 coaxed them out.

Health Body Says Doctors Are Issuing Too Many Pills

GENEVA (REUTER) — Too many doctors are issuing too many pills for too many wrong reasons, according to a World Health Organization (WHO) report.

The report said there is a potential danger of a medicine-dependent society unless urgent investigations are conducted into drug over-use and methods to halt the alarming rise in the amount of medication taken throughout the world.

Its authors—Dr. Lloyd Christopher, a member of the Geneva-based organization's drugs evaluation unit, and James Crooks, professor of pharmacology at Dundee University in Scotland—said it is important to "give doctors' prescribing habits "prompt and careful attention before too much progress is lost."

Increasing reports of resistant strains of bacteria could be due to an over-liberal prescription of antibiotics, they wrote in the current edition of WHO's official journal, World Health.

The report said doctors often approved combinations of drugs when one was sufficient, prescribed higher doses than necessary and even used drugs" when alternative methods are available.

It also complained of inadequate training of university undergraduates in clinical pharmacology, and said "much remains to be done in the preparation of the doctor to meet the complex problems of drug therapy."

The article recommended regular postgraduate refresher courses for general practitioners, "who could then approach the management of their patients in a more informed and critical way."

According to the article's authors, doctors often give in to the temptation to write out prescriptions to postpone the return of troublesome patients to their offices.

They pointed out that in industrialized countries, more than half the adult population may take some kind of medication every day.

Estimates made on the basis of manufacturers' sales figures, government purchases and field surveys "reveal a vast increase in drug use, and although the evidence is wholly circumstantial, there are signs that there may be a growing problem of drug overuse," the article said.

Dr. Christopher and Prof. Crooks noted that in the United States approximately two billion prescriptions were dispensed in 1970—a 50-per-cent increase over the previous decade—at a total cost to the consumer of $18 billion.

In England and Wales the number of prescriptions issued by pharmacists rose from 186 million in 1949 to 247 million in 1970. In France, even allowing for inflation, total national expenditure on pharmaceuticals increased by 170 per cent between 1959 and 1972.

The report also revealed that in France children under two years of age are high consumers, and that in Sweden married persons of either sex are significantly more frequent drug consumers than the unmarried.

"It is undoubtedly true that the large amount of therapeutically useful drugs made available by pharmacological and pharmaceutical research has contributed to the increased use of drugs," the article said.

"But since many of those drugs exert powerful effects the extent and gravity of the potential problems cannot easily be disregarded."

The WHO article slammed "drug manufacturers for making excessive claims about their products. In information received from those firms by the doctor, "contra-indications, types of patients who may develop side-effects, interaction potential and uncommon side-effects may not be adequately discussed," the report said.

"Another trend to be deprecated is the use of the mass media of press and television to promote unjustifiable claims for over-the-counter products. Sales pressure of this type militates against the public using such drugs sensibly."

Here Comes the Gum

A worker at Adams Brands Limited plant in Scarborough, Ont., heaves a load of raw, unsweetened gum from a hopper into one of the machines used to convert it into chewing gum. The plant manufacturers two-thirds of all the chewing gum produced in Canada. (CP Photo)

Scarborough Plant Gum Headquarters

TORONTO (CP) — A large modern plant in the Toronto suburb of Scarborough produces two-thirds of the chewing gum manufactured in Canada. Adams Brands Limited produces several types of gum, including sticks, pellets and sugarless gum. The chewing base was produced for years by mixing chicle with other ingredients, but chicle was eventually replaced by synthetic ingredients. An official of Warner-Lambert, the parent company of Adams Brands, says the sticky factor of the gum must be controlled, "otherwise it pulls off dentures and fillings." After the gum base has been cooked it is transferred to mixing kettles where corn syrup, sugar and flavoring is added. From the mixing kettles the gum moves to machines which roll it to a proper thickness and slice it into the required length and shape. Scientific studies have shown that chewing gum reduces nervous tension, aids concentration and aids digestion. But it's doubtful the youngster at the candy counter thinks about that. He just likes to chew.

Whirl of Activity

Thousands of chewing gum pellets are tumbled in spinning pans at the Adams Brands plant in the Toronto suburb of Scarborough. The process coats the pellets with a fine sugar mist, which also coats the floor and the worker.

Do-it-yourself Pension Are Plans Being Offered

TORONTO (CP) — Do-it-yourself registered retirement savings plans are said to be attracting new interest in the wake of growing dissatisfaction with professional management in the stock market.

And to capitalize on this new development, the world's biggest stockbrokers are waging a major advertising campaign aimed directly at people who intend to make their own investment decisions.

In Canada, Merrill Lynch, the largest Royal Securities Ltd., the Canadian subsidiary of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith Inc. of New York placed ads asking "Would you rather you make the investment decisions?"

Experts say running one's own retirement portfolio through the tax shelter of a registered plan can be rewarding. But it can be expensive, they also say, both because of possible market losses suffered because of operating expenses.

The tax laws make a registered plan an attractive shelter up to $4,000 a year of otherwise taxable income.

Plans in which somebody else manages the investment portfolio can be set up with trust companies, government-approved mutual funds and life insurance companies.

To manage one's own portfolio, however, one must turn to a trust company and not all want the do-it-yourself business.

One of the most active seekers of the business is Guaranty Trust Co. of Canada which charges a basic fee of three-quarters of one per cent of the portfolio value with a $50 minimum.

It provides a minimum of 10 free transactions a year before it charges a fee for every $5 of the above the minimum. Transactions over that allowance cost $2.50 each.

Guaranty's keenest rival in this area is National Trust Co., which has the lowest basic fee: half of one per cent on the book value of assets, with a minimum of $50. Five transactions a year are included and each additional transaction costs $5.

Montreal Trust Co. has some different wrinkles. Its basic fee is a flat $25 a year plus three-quarters of one per cent on the value of the assets up to $50,000, plus one-quarter of one per cent on any portion over $50,000.

The company charges a minimum of $75 in the first year of the plan, $100 in the second and $125 after that.

There are no transaction fees, although trading several times a week would probably bring a request for payment, the company says.

Royal Trust Co. has introduced a one-time $25 fee for setting up a self-directed plan and a minimum charge of $50 per year. In addition it charges three-quarters of one per cent on the first $100,000 of assets, one-half of one per cent on the next $100,000 and one-quarter of one per cent on any portion over $200,000.

TOOK COPPER FROM PENNY

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States treasury officials reported that the content of the penny was last changed during the Second World War in a move to conserve precious copper and other strategic metals. With issuance of zinc-coated cents in 1943, enough copper was saved to meet the combined needs of two cruisers, five destroyers, 1,343 Flying Fortress planes, 120 field guns and 120 howitzers.

The Canadiana collection in the reference room includes both old and new materials about Canada, with particular emphasis on local history. There are some new publications recently added to this collection:

THEM WERE THE DAYS — P. LeSage, M. Rashotte, and B. Vance

Personal memoirs, rather than a scholarly recording of facts, are the basis of this nostalgic look at the past. The book consists mainly of transcripts of conversations with a large number of Haggerford Township residents, all over 80 years of age, whose stories span the period from the 1860s to the present. This is the kind of book which one can open at any point and begin reading; the effect is like having a pleasant visit with one's neighbors.

FORGOTTEN PATHWAYS OF THE TRENT — Leslie M. Frost

The former premier of Ontario was well-acquainted with the Trent waterway, having lived in the area and having travelled it by canoe. He draws on archaeology and the writings of early explorers to determine the locations of Indian pathways and trade routes in the Trent area, and to describe Indian history and culture. Reproductions of early maps, quotations from travellers' journals, and personal observations make this a convincing and interesting record of early Ontario history, before the coming of the European farmers.

MARCH PAST — Bernard Burns, and others.

This history of March Township, Carleton County, near Ottawa, is the result of an OFY project, during which the authors searched archival records and interviewed old residents, to capture the history of the simple, hardworking people of the area before it was forgotten. Covering the period from the arrival of the first European settlers to the end of the First World War, the lively descriptions of the pioneers, roads, education, government, and important events, make interesting reading. Photographs depict the early settlers and their way of life.

STORIES OF PRINCE EDWARD COUNTY — Alan R. Clipon

The history and legends of Prince Edward County, presented in words and pictures, were originally published in the Kingston Whig-Standard. The collection includes stories about the early settlers, Picton's "bungled hanging" of 1884, and the buried treasure in the sands of Outer Beach.

THE LAND BETWEEN: A history of the United Townships of Lanton, Dighy and Longford — F. V. LeCraw

A Centennial project of the townships, this is a history of the Northern part of Victoria County. From his large amount of research, the author has compiled a great deal of statistical information about the area, together with photographs and very readable stories about the pioneers and their institutions.

FORGOTTEN LEAVES OF LOCAL HISTORY: KINGSTON — H. C. Burleigh

Glimpses of Kingston's past, from the beginnings of French settlement to the early twentieth century, show its growth from a wilderness outpost of a thriving city. The information, much of which would not be found in other books, is made vivid by the author's focus, not on dry, historical facts, but on the people who lived in the area and who made the history.

DELETED FROM BUDGET

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United Nations budgetary committee has deleted an expenditure of $150,000 from its 1974-5 budget for up keep of a cemetery in Korea for UN troops killed in the Korean War. The appropriation had been in the budget since 1960 but Communist countries refused to pay their share. The 11 countries with nationals buried in the cemetery have arranged to pay the costs.

Ancient Hotel

Ashford Castle in Ireland's County Mayo now is a modern equipped hotel with several delightful lounges. The oldest part of the castle hotel dates back to 1228. It is one of several castle hotels available to travellers in Ireland's Connemara district. (CP Photo)

Eire's Castle-hotels Make for Fine Holiday

SHANNON, Ireland (CP) For less than $15 a person, a traveller can put up in a double room of an Irish castle hotel and soak up history and atmosphere.

Shannon is an excellent place from which to do a castle-hotel swing by car through the west-coast Connemara district, famous for its marble, black-faced sheep, Aran sweaters, ponies and distinctive scenery.

Some eight miles from Shannon Airport in Drumcliand Castle, It owes its existence to the courage and trickery of Red Mary, wife of one of the O'Briens who were direct descendants of Brian Boru, high king of Ireland in the 10th century.

When Red Mary's husband was killed fighting against Oliver Cromwell in 1651, his estates were threatened with confiscation by the victorious English. To protect them, she refused to accept her husband's body at Lemenagh Castle, where she lived, and told the English she was unmarried. It was true—she was a widow—and she managed to keep the vast Dromoland estates.

Mary's son built a family castle at Dromoland and married a cousin of Queen Anne. The queen presented the couple with a portrait of herself which still hangs in the castle.

A huge equestrian painting of a 13th-century O'Brien, king of Limerick, is displayed in the hotel reception area and the front hall has a series of portraits of O'Briens.

The present castle with its slender mullioned windows was rebuilt in 1826, except for the original Queen Anne wing. But the O'Briens lost their landed wealth in a series of land acts beginning in the 1880s and were stripped of most of their estates when Ireland became independent in 1921.

In 1962 the castle and 400 acres of land were sold to an American of Irish descent who established the present hotel, installing central heating and putting period furniture in the 67 rooms, all with private bath.

Ashford and Ballynahinch castles require an advance reservation, but can be visited on day trips from Galway. Reservations for meals can be made by telephone.

Ballynahinch, some 49 miles from Galway, was the ancestral home of the O'Flahertys, chieftains of Connemara. The family backed Cromwell and was dispossessed by King James II, who gave the castle and some quarter-million acres to one of his officers, Capt. Richard Martin.

The captain's great-grandson, another Richard born in 1754, won the nicknames Hair-Trigger for his reputation as a duellist and Humanity for his philanthropy. He founded the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and left £100,000 of debts to his son.

In 1927, the property was bought by the famous Indian cricketer Ranjitsinji, who spent a fortune on the grounds before he died in 1933. There are still 2,000 acres of land for hunting.

In the 18th century, Ashford House was added to one side, built in French chateau style. In 1812 Sir Benjamin Lee Guinness purchased Ashford and added another large chateau extension, giving it a rather lopsided look—a turreted castle wedded to a chateau.

The castle overlooks Lake Corrib and has a large ornamental pool in the rear gardens. The hotel has several delightful lounges including the Inglenook with its handsome panelled oak fireplace.

Another interesting hotel in the Connemara district is 76-room Renvyle House, opened as a hotel in 1930, it played host to the poet, Yeats, tenor John McCormack and painter Augustus John.

It is situated on a wild scenic peninsula with the Atlantic as a doorstep and the Twelve Bens mountain range as a backdrop. The rooms are in a combination of wood and tayred decor.

The most ancient part of Breaffy House at Castlebar goes back to 1700. It is a manor-type house with treelined walks on its 60 acres of parkland. Nearby is Ballintubber Abbey which has been in constant use for worship for 750 years, a miracle in Ireland with its religious troubles.

After 20-year Pause, More Marsh Is Cleared

By DOUG SMALL

After nearly a decade, plows are again at work in this market garden region transforming new stretches of bland marsh into rich, soot-black cultivated land.

The 8,000-acre area that produces a major portion of the country's annual 2.7-billion-pound vegetable crop is spreading like an ink stain over the decomposed sedge and marsh grass.

Farmers and shippers agree that the expansion illustrates a marked improvement in the vegetable business.

Manager Glen Henderson of the local Ontario Produce Co. Ltd., division, a 25-year inhabitant of the region, said most of the 350 growers here have prospered, particularly in the last few years.

World food supplies have dropped, demand has increased and the market for Holland Marsh vegetables has spread around the world.

Farmers, who last broke substantial areas of new land in the 1950's, are again clearing new acreage. But this time, "they're a little more cautious Mr. Henderson says.

Between 1951 and 1956, farmers set up a marketing board to sell their produce. The idea was that the board would solve the problems of matching supplies with demand and would free farmers to grow as much as possible. But as production expanded, the farmers were soon faced with price-crippling surpluses and the board collapsed.

Now, aside from seasonal tariffs that protect local vegetable farmers from low-priced imports during the growing season, the industry operates on traditional free-enterprise principles.

Farmers own their own storage facilities and parcel out their harvest of celery, lettuce, carrots, beets, potatoes, parsnips, onions, cabbage, cauliflower, eggplant and other products during the year.

"Over the years, there have been deals made between shippers and farmers where a shipper will agree to buy a whole crop. In that way, a shipper who liked to gamble felt he could perform a little one-upmanship on the market.

"But it's pretty hard to' guess the marketplace and most find it's better to buy from farmers from day to day."

Ontario Produce is only one of a number of shipping, er packing, companies that buy the crops of the Holland Marsh and Mr. Henderson said the competition has helped maintain the prosperity of most farmers.

As well, he said, the increasing cost of shipping vegetables in from other countries like the United States has improved local fortunes.

Still, farmers in the region, who work plots ranging from 10 to 200 acres, tend to regard their prosperity warily.

Most said they feel the need for tough government measures to keep out imports that threaten prices.

Fresh vegetable imports last year, for instance amounted to about 10.7 billion pounds, while exports were only about 164 million pounds. Of the total domestic vegetable production of about 2.7 billion pounds, two-thirds was grown in Ontario.

Despite the gap between exports and imports, Mr. Henderson said, industry "can't yell too loudly" about shipments into the country. It would be difficult to move into new markets if one could not take a little in return.

Farmers, he said, tend to "bring their products up to the back door" and then forget the complexities of the market place.

But shippers were responsible for getting the products to place as diverse as British overseas.

Six different models from which to choose. These are almost the last lots in this delightful sub-division. One of the models is a Tudor styled high ranch with built-in garage. This house has large kitchen with an abundance of cupboards. There are three bedrooms and an L-shaped living dining room. For that future family room there is a room 25 x 14 with direct access from front foyer. The second house is for the person who wants a house of distinction. One of the very few low splits with mansard roof. It also is a three bedroom house with provisions for future family room on lower level. To see this one! If you are an individualist you'll certainly enjoy this house.
"PURCHASER CAN'T CLOSE? — YOU COULD BE LUCKY
It's an ill wind is an saying and it couldn't be truer than in this case. For personal reasons the purchaser of this house cannot go ahead with his sale. We now have it back for sale at the price to be paid which is $4,000 less than the price today. Need we say more? It's on the west side in a finished sub-division. It has a garage — and believe it or not a 9% mortgage. This is a brand new house! Ready to go.
CONDOMINIUM TOWNHOUSE
This will likely be your last chance to own your own house for only $2,900, and only $291 monthly. Only 3 bedrooms unfurnished. Garage and 1½ baths.

DELIGHTFUL BUNGALOW
Why don't the builders build more brick bungalows like this one? It has all the requirements desired in an existing area in the attractive kitchen. The windows are low enough to see the lovely view instead of standing on a chair to look out. The master bedroom is extra large. The landscaping is excellent with 16 fruit trees — rock garden and shrubs. You really should treat yourself to seeing this little gem.
$25,900.00
We have listed a story and a half stucco home — clean — sparkling and homey; on a nice large lot near the hospital. This house has lovely hardwood floors — good sized bedrooms — new modern windows. New roof and a new furnace with a power humidifier. There is a TV tower for color TV and a private fenced patio — well worth your attention.

ONTARIO HYDRO
Central System
Maintenance Centre
GENERAL BUILDING TRADES

SEALED TENDERS, 8 copies, addressed to the undersigned, 620 University Avenue, Toronto, Ontario, M5G 1X6, and clearly marked "TENDER FOR GENERAL BUILDING TRADES, CENTRAL SYSTEM MAINTENANCE CENTRE" will be received up to 2:00 p.m. EASTERN DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME, TUESDAY, June 4, 1974 for the supply of materials, delivery, installation, field testing and finishing of all work for the construction of a garage, stores building and exterior protective coating for Hydro Maintenance Centre.

The performance of this work requires the services of a general contractor and subcontractors for mechanical, electrical and masonry supervision and trades.

The site of the Central System Maintenance Centre is on the north side of Federal Road, one mile west of Lake Ontario on the eastern extremity of Burlington, Ontario.

In order to meet Ontario Hydro's requirements, the Contractor shall be required to complete the work by August 15, 1974, with completion by May 1, 1975.

Tender documents may be obtained on request, on or after April 22, 1974 at the Department of Engineering, 620 University Avenue, Toronto, Ontario, M5G 1X6 or 20 Dyas Road, Don Mills, Ontario, M3B 1V7. Tenders will not be considered unless submitted on the forms supplied by Ontario Hydro and accompanied by a certified cheque drawn on a chartered bank payable to Ontario Hydro, for 10 per cent of the amount, or a bid bond for 10 per cent of the amount, executed by a surety company licensed to carry on business in Ontario. The certified cheque or bid bond will be returned to the unsuccessful tenderers forthwith after the opening of tenders.

The successful tenderer will be required to furnish a performance bond, in the form approved by Ontario Hydro, for 50 per cent of the amount of the contract, and a labour and material payment bond, in the form approved by Ontario Hydro, for 50 per cent of the amount of the contract.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

J. C. Thatcher,
Chairman of the Commission.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Thursday, May 2

Aries (March 21-April 19) This is not a good time to be negligent in matters relating to your health. Be sensible and moderate in all things.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You'll be overly sensitive today regarding what you will interpret as a slight from one you care for. Don't make too much of it.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) If you spend unnecessarily on household luxury items at this time, you'll later be bugged when the bills come in.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You're likely to become a bit moody when something you're planning on doesn't work out as well as you'd hoped it would. Shrug it off.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Continue to be as prudent as possible in all financial dealings. You're apt to come out on the short end otherwise.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll have little tolerance and patience today for certain individuals involved in your affairs. Hang on to your temper when you know who they are. Solace clear of them.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't count on others to do you favors and you won't be disappointed. Stand on your own feet. Be your own person.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There is a complication developing with a friend over a view-point. It's not the day to try to convince one another who is right.

Sagittarius (Nov. 24-Dec. 21) Someone in a little peeved at you because she feels you are hiding something from her that she should know about. What have you been up to lately?

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You tend to view coming events rather dismally today. Nothing to get worrying about before it happens. Besides, things may work out better than you think.

Aquarius (Ja. 20-Feb. 19) If you have anything that you borrowed from another and it's overdue it would be a good idea to get in touch with them to let them know when it will be returned.

Sports Advised For Epileptic

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son, 13, has grand mal epilepsy, but with medication his seizures are very well controlled. He has not had one now for as long as a year and a half.

He is a very active boy and I would like to know what kind of sports are safer for such a child? A friend told me that this can be outgrown. Is this possible?—Mrs. L.F.L.

In a case as well controlled as your son's, almost any sport is allowable, but I suggest he start with the less violent ones—tennis, golf, baseball, swimming. But as to swimming, he should never swim alone, and a swimming coach or buddy should be present. As he is epileptic, no matter how remote the chance of a seizure, it is risky to predict that epilepsy can be outgrown. While that is not impossible, in some cases, it seldom happens that way, and continued medication is the only course I recommend.

Here's an added thought, however. Periods of low blood sugar have been associated with seizures, so a protein snack (to ward off any potential drop in blood sugar) before physical activity makes sense. Muscular activity, you know, does lower the blood sugar. Protein, which is converted slowly into blood sugar, provides a slow, steady release of sugar as a guard against a sudden drop.

Participation in sports, however, is desirable when seizures are well controlled. It is, indeed, part of the psychological help an epilepsy patient should have, to promote the sense of being normal. For too long in the past epileptics were not been treated as normally as they should.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a small wart under my right eye. It started to show about a year ago. Sometimes it gets bigger and then sometimes it almost disappears. It does not hurt. It's just annoying. Do you have something that would dissolve it?—E.S.

No, I don't. But I do have a question as to whether it is a wart or some other variety of growth. Particularly—does it is close to the eye, I'd suggest that you have a dermatologist look at it and decide what to do.

Win at Bridge

Count to nine before losing

By Oswald and James Jacoby

"Well," said North philosophically, "if you are going to overbid you should learn to play the cards better."

"What could I do?" asked South.

"Practice counting to nine," replied North.

South's three notrump was really an overbid. If he had just bid two notrump North would have taken him on to game. After all you don't need much of a hand to reopen when the bidding has died at one heart.

Now let's see what North made by South being unable to count to nine!

If you win nine tricks at a three notrump contract the sunshines and everyone is happy. At least you and your partner are.

East's play was unusual but mighty good. It gave South a chance to go wrong and South did.

South would have been sure of his contract if he had just put his ace of hearts on dummy's queen. His next play would be to vertake his king of hearts on dummy's ace. He would continue to play clubs until East's ace was forced out. Later on he would get to dummy with the jack or 10 of hearts to wind up with two spades, two hearts, five clubs and the rubber.

The CARD Series

The bidding had been:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1♣	Pass	1♥
Pass	2♣	Pass	2♥
Pass	3N.T.	Pass	4♣
Pass	Pass	Pass	?

You, South, hold:
♠K 3 ♥ A J 7 6 5 ♦ A 6 4 ♣ Q 9 4

What do you do now?

A—Bid six clubs. This should be a good gamble.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding five clubs your partner has a dual fear hearts over your four clubs. What do you do now?

Answer Tomorrow

Gals Count Deer

Their meticulous forays into Quinte bushland these days could help decide how long future big-game hunting seasons should run in the district.

Both girls are among teams now taking a census of the district's deer population — suspected on the decline. The drop has been causing concern to provincial government conservation authorities across Eastern Ontario.

And local ministry officials have recently suggested that their superiors consider cutting deer-hunting season in the area by half, says Frank Cheshire, Tweed district biologist. At present, north of Highway 7, the season runs two weeks in late fall.

Replacement in the herds is not keeping pace with attrition. In other words, the number of fawns who survive to become mature deer is lower than the over-all mortality rate.

There's predation, poaching, heavy winters that may affect food supply and shelter.

But, as far as officials can determine, there has been no drooff in the success rate of hunters. The number of deer killed in the Tweed district increased last season, says Mr. Cheshire, although final statistics have yet to confirm the findings finally.

"We're rather concerned if the hunt (number of kills) is up a bit," says the biologist. "That's why we must look closely at the game population from which these animals are being hunted."

Basic to management is having some estimate of the number of deer involved. Hence the census.

At present in the more than 20 townships that form the Tweed forestry districts three two-member teams are prying into the bush seeking clues.

The pellets found over a dedication of how many deer may be using it as a habitat. Such data has been assembled annually for the past three years in the Tweed district. But this year it's specifically important.

If a reduced hunting season is approved this year and next year's census shows an increase in population, it might be a clue to one means of conservation. However, officials draw no inferences.

We're doing this estimate to determine whether the population is still on the decline," says Mr. Cheshire.

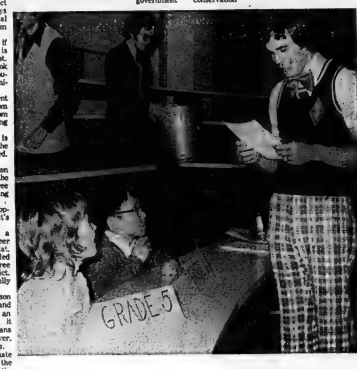
The other two teams involve male ministry personnel.



Both girls figure they tramp about three miles through bush country in a day doing the meticulous observations and counting for the census.

The ministry teams from Tweed began the count as soon as the weather warmed and the ground dried — about two weeks ago. In all, the annual count lasts four to five weeks.

The data collected is combined with other information, particularly statistics gather during the hunting season, to produce the census estimates on which conservationists may work — and, maybe, worry.

The Deer Counters

Sheila Day (left) and Cathy Davis are two girls helping with count of deer in Quinte district bush this spring. They are among natural resources ministry teams scouring bush for signs of deer that will give government conservation officers an estimate of how many of the big-game animals are in local forest herds.

Yardmen Win Goes to Brockville

Prize money from both month-end draws held in Belleville Tuesday evening, went to out-of-town winners.

The $10,000 top Yardmen money was won by Mrs. Lillian Cutting, Brockville, on a ticket purchased from her son; with K. R. Wright, London. Ont., winning $5,000. J. L. Bouchard, Montreal, $2,500, Elizabeth Keller, , Kingston, $2,000 and O. Nezai, Batawa, collecting the fifth prize of $1,000.

Top Spellers

Tammy Backus in grade 5 at Harry J. Clarke school and Lynn-Marie Hurg, in grade 6 at Prince Charles stood up against 26 contestants to win the third annual Y's Men's Club spelling bee last night at Loyalist College. Moderator was Brian Bentley. Garry Sherman was chairman of the committee that arranged the spelling bee that saw participation by grade 5 and 6 pupils from 19 schools. The two winners received a personal trophy and a trophy for their schools.

Call for Trapper

Beaver an Unwanted Emblem

By HARRY HULBALL
Staff Reporter

It may be a national emblem, but that doesn't save the industrious beaver from vilification.

Hence, its unpopularity with some landowners.

Now, suggest provincial conservation authorities, if property owners have unwanted beavers on their lands they should contact an experienced trapper or the natural resources ministry.

The problem has been aggravated by the increase in beaver in Eastern Ontario — several townships, in centre Hastings, like Elzivir-Grimsthorpe are said to possess the highest concentration in the world.

"It's understandable that many landowners, farmers, cottagers and municipal officials are at odds" with the beaver, says a ministry official.

Over the years farmland has been transformed into scrubland — the result of drainage blocked by fallen trees and subsequent flooding in agricultural areas.

What to do:

"Best results have occurred when the landowner notified a good local trapper or the ministry at the first sign of beaver on their property."

The landowner should watch for migrating beaver moving onto his property and contact a trapper immediately.

When trapping in winter and fall has terminated the beaver colonies the dam of trees is removed, restoring the free water flow. Blowing a dam with dynamite usually is the responsibility of the landowner.

"The landowner should watch for migrating beaver moving onto his property and contact a local trapper immediately.

But there's a problem:

Don't give beaver-hunting permission to several trappers. It causes confusion since each trapper might think someone else is doing the job. The ministry advises engaging a "proven trapper" who takes 100 or more beavers a year.

With the number of experienced trappers — encouraged by the high prices of pelts — trappers should be readily available says the ministry. Pelts now average around $20 each.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Can the National Football League's most valuable player become one on the movie screen?

O. J. Simpson believes so and he is training for an acting career with the zeal and strategy he has applied to his performances for the University of Southern California—Heisman Trophy winner and the Buffalo Bills—2,003 yards rushing last season.

"I've been offered leading roles for a lot more money than I've been getting," the running back says. "But I think it's much better for me to sit back and work with actors like Lee Marvin and Richard Burton, Paul Newman and Steve McQueen."

He recently completed a featured role in The Klansman with Marvin and Burton and will squeeze in The Towering Inferno before reporting for football practice June 17.

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Bald star Yul Brynner and Trudy Saralas, 50, star of the television series Kojak, was divorced in Santa Monica Superior Court Tuesday by his wife, Marilyn, on the grounds of "irreconcilable differences."

The couple, married in Los Angeles in 1962, will share $500,000 in community property.

Saralas is to pay $5,000 monthly alimony to his wife, and $500 a month each for the support of their two daughters, Penelope, 11, and Candice, 10.

Cowansville Pen Develops 'Personal Relationships'

MONTREAL (CP) — "Under the old system we were treating prisoners like children and expecting to turn out adults."

Guy Lemire, director of Cowansville penitentiary, says his institution is one of four in Canada trying to erase the "autocracy" of prison through a Living Unit (LU) program in which LU personnel, distinct from security officers, and recreation specialists develop personal relationships with prisoners.

Prisoners are being given responsibility, "perhaps for the first time in their lives," and social experiences that they may never have encountered before, Mr. Lemire said in an interview.

Last spring, before the implementation of the program-security institution about 40 miles southeast of Montreal was a sieve: within two weeks, 11 prisoners escaped. Twenty-eight guards and the replacement of the old dirt path with a road do not invite escapes.

But through group dynamics and the development of personal relationships with LU staff during leisure time, the most crucial time, Mr. Lemire said, some of the tensions usually found within prison walls are removed.

When officers held their first meetings with small groups of prisoners, communication was minimal, said Mr. Lemire.

But soon after the first meetings, which centred on the subject of food, prisoners began to discuss both personal and group expectations of the program, Mr. Lemire said.

At Cowansville, former prison guards chosen for the LU program were instructed in human relations and group dynamics. Half the LU staff are junior college graduates of social science courses and of two-month orientation programs in security.

But the graduates had no prior exposure to prisons, Mr. Lemire said.

The mixing of the two distinct types of staff, with complementary experiences, is the main reason for the success of the LU program.

Mr. Lemire estimated that it may take five years before the new system is working properly.

But, he added, it is change "enough for a decade" when compared with the former "centralized, military" structure of the prison.

Experimental Plane Can Rotate Its Wings

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Robert Jones, a senior scientist with the United States National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), has invented a test plane that even the seasoned air traveller would think about twice before boarding.

On one side of the plane, the wing stretches away from the body of the aircraft in the forward direction, and on the other side, it stretches backwards.

Dr. Jones calls it his anti-symmetrical wing, and he's created enough interest in the design to have Boeing Co. test the concept.

Recent wind tunnel tests by NASA and Boeing are encouraging, Dr. Jones said.

"We've encountered no bad technical problems," he said.

Dr. Jones said in a recent talk at the Quarter Century Symposium of the University of Toronto's Institute for Aerospace Studies that the oblique-wing plane can use substantially less power around the airport because the wing can be pivoted back to a straightened position for landing and taking off.

Dr. Jones is an optimist when people ask him whether passengers would ever get on an oblique-winged aircraft.

He feels the same thing would be true of the oblique-wing aircraft, particularly since the wings would be in the straight position on the ground.

But the passenger's attitude might change in the air when he sees the wings rotating to a crazy angle—even Dr. Jones admits the plan is a "pretty weird idea."

Frenchmen Stay Away From Spas

PARIS (CP) — Frenchmen will soon be told two million Germans and a million Italians can't be wrong.

Patrons of French hot springs have levelled off at about 500,000 a year while their neighbors are flocking to spas in increasing numbers. The industry, and government, are worried and intend to do something about it.

Many of the approximately 100 clinics throughout France have improved facilities, others are planning to do so and the government is throwing its support behind the $300-million-a-year industry with a promotional campaign.

The government has published a study claiming 88 per cent success in curing or improving asthmatic conditions, 69 per-cent success in cases of per-cent a respiratory ailments and 100-per-cent success in treating headaches originating from liver problems.

Frenchmen suffering from ills of industrialized society — nervousness, trauma, highway accidents and lung conditions aggravated by pollution — are being told how a stay at the springs, for about $100 a week, can restore their zest.

And, if that weren't enough, Dr. Colette Chartres of Salies de Bearn spa in southwestern France said "more than one in three cases of sterility that have come to us find the solution to their fertility problem."

Michael Porsatowski, minister of public health and social security, has announced several measures to bolster the industry, which provides jobs for more than 250,000 workers.

A commission will be formed to advise the federation of spa operators; the elderly will receive subsidies for treatment and a law will guarantee that the clinics "scrupulously preserve their medical character."

The spas already owe their survival to the state social security program, to which about 75 per cent of patients are subscribers. They receive between $50 and $70 toward the $300 cost of a three-week treatment, and the government is considering an increase in its contribution.

Dr. Guy Ebrard, president of the spa operators' federation, has complained for some time that the industry cannot survive if doctors are not trained in its methods. The advisory commission is expected to apply pressure on the government to make such courses mandatory for all medical students.

Some medical schools now offer courses, but students are not forced to take them.

The tourism office will also get in on the drive, co-ordinating efforts of municipal governments, doctors, hotel owners and spa operators to convince Frenchmen that the warm waters of the springs provide an opportunity to combine medical treatment with a vacation.

The over-all aim is a four-fold increase in the number of people washing away their ills.

QUESTION: I am considering a trip to Europe taking my own car, and have been told that I will have to get a "Green Card". What is a "Green Card"?

ANSWER: In November, 1951, the Council of Insurance Bureaux met in London to discuss the issuance of an insurance card which would cover all countries adhering to the agreement. The result of the Conference were transmitted to the Road Transport Committee of the Economic Commission for Europe at Geneva and stated that general agreement had been secured internationally among insurers to set up national bureaus to operate the "green card" system. This system eventually came into effect on January 1, 1953.

Since that time all insurance companies which are members of the Council have been qualified to issue to policy holders "green cards" which are valid in all countries where the system operates. The territory covered includes almost every country in Europe, and Great Britain.

The "green card" is actually a booklet of 4 pages about 5 by 7 inches in size, green in color, with spaces for detailed information about the insured and his motor vehicle, and listing the countries where the card is valid, along with other data for the insured.

The holders of "green cards" are insured against third party risks in all countries for which the card is valid, in accordance with the terms of their insurance policy if they are in a country where insurance is not compulsory, and in accordance with the legislation of the country in which the accident takes place if insurance is compulsory in that country.

In European countries where insurance is not compulsory, it is advisable for motorists to carry a "green card" as immediate proof of adequate insurance coverage.

The "green card" system normally operates only in Europe, but bilateral agreements are permitted between individual, national insurance companies of the European group and those in non-adherent countries.

QUESTION: What is required in order to get a passport?

ANSWER: In order to obtain a Canadian passport the following information must be provided to the Canadian Passport Office:

(a) Fully completed application Form A.

(b) Two passport photos signed on the back by the guarantor, who must be one of those listed as eligible in the instructions supplied with the application.

(c) Proof of Canadian citizenship, consisting of one of the following documents which must contain full name, date and place of birth: Canadian certificate of birth; certificate of Canadian citizenship; certificate of proof of Canadian Citizenship; certificate of naturalization; certificate of registration of Canadian birth abroad — issued by Registrar of Canadian Citizenship, baptismal certificate from the province of Quebec only.

(d) Fee of $10.

Arrangements can be made through the Ontario Motor League office in Belleville for members of the Canadian Automobile Association to obtain the passports through the CAA office in Ottawa with a minimum of delay.

Finn and Children Hope to Make Trolls

TORONTO (CP) — Helena Kuusikoski and her two children, Johannes and Minna, all recent immigrants to Canada from Finland, are hoping the provincial government will help them manufacture magical trolls.

They are trying to realize a dream that was a reality back in their native land—to manufacture the trolls and eventually create a troll forest similar to the one they created and run in Finland for 100,000 visitors who came to see the mystical Scandinavian dwarfs.

Helena said the making of the doll-like trolls came about by accident 20 years ago when she and her husband, from who she has since been divorced, made their two children clowns as Christmas dolls.

She said the clowns were such a success that she decided to spread her creative joy around among other children. She began to make and sell her own stuffed dolls.

In Finland, the magical trolls were so successful that they had to add more hands to the business. So unemployed workers, former mental patients and invalids—anyone capable of working with his hands—were added to the payroll.

In no time, Helena said, they were exporting the little trolls to other countries, including the United States.

In the short time they have been in Canada, Helena and her two children have made hundreds of trolls as sample lines to show retailers.

"The provincial ministry of tourism has shown a real interest in us, especially in the troll forest idea," Helena said.

She said in Finnish folklore, the trolls are small creatures who may have fur on their legs or around their necks. They may have toes and are usually endowed with exceptionally large noses. They have pointed ears and are invisible to everyone but children of all ages and people who are especially kind and loving.

"Trolls are like people," Helena said. "And we truly believe there is somewhere a troll forest where there is no fighting, no politics and a peaceful atmosphere all the time.

"We'll tell the people who buy our trolls, they have to believe in the little creatures because we know they will bring good luck."

Election Seems Certain

Profiteering Ban Rejected by NDP

OTTAWA (CP) — Proposed legislation against corporate profiteering was thrown back in the government's face Wednesday by New Democrat Leader David Lewis who called the bill a "death-bed repentence."

Mr. Lewis told the Commons his party will not support the bill, which most observers saw as an attempt by the minority Liberals to gain continued NDP support.

He said the bill would not guarantee protection against greedy companies and warned that "this kind of last-minute thing becomes less acceptable each time it happens."

A party spokesman said the rejection can be viewed as "psychological escalation" prior to presentation next Monday of the 1974-75 budget. The NDP has said it will vote against the budget unless specific demands are met, a move that likely will topple the government and lead to a July general election.

"We weren't going to buy a sop, a dead-bed repentance just before the axe is about to fall," Mr. Lewis told reporters.

But he still was prepared to wait and see what the budget contains before passing any predictions about the government's future.

James Walker (PC—St. John's East) said the Progressive Conservatives will not support the bill without major amendments and then told reporters the chance for further action on the legislation seems slight.

"The stage is set now. There'll be an election called next week. After hearing Lewis today, I'm getting my own election headquarters open."

In the wake of rejection by both major opposition parties, the government was not expected to continue much further on debate of the bill.

A government spokesman said it will continue today, but "one of the opposition parties requested we go on to Canada Pension Plan legislation Friday, so we'll do that."

Mr. Lewis and Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said they would consider it a loss of confidence if the government lost a vote on the bill.

However, Mr. Lewis said he expects Government House Leader Allan MacEachen to stop the debate before a vote.

In the House, the NDP leader said statements by Prime Minister Trudeau and Consumer Affairs Minister Herb Gray indicate the government is not serious about the bill.

"We do not intend to take a piece of legislation that plays a hoax on the Canadian people."

The NDP decision was made despite repeated demands by the party for action against excess profits.

"I think the government hoped to grab our support for what appeared to be an anti-profiteering bill," Mr. Lewis told reporters.

The bill allows the cabinet to roll back or freeze prices and, in some cases, force companies to make refunds to purchasers or to the Crown for excess profits.

Mr. Lewis said the bill would give the government total authority to decide what such powers should be used. There is no guarantee they would be used at all.

Transcripts Not Enough

Body Finds Nixon 'Failed to Comply'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives Judiciary committee said Wednesday night President Nixon has "failed to comply" with its subpoena for Watergate tapes.

The committee's chairman and chief counsel said Nixon's non-compliance may be an impeachable offence.

By a 30-to-18 vote that shattered its bipartisan approach to the inquiry, the committee directed Chairman Peter Rodino (Dem., N.J.) to notify Nixon that his edited transcripts instead of tapes does not meet the committee's request.

"In this country there are no exceptions to the command of law," said John Doar, chief impeachment counsel for the committee, at a rare night-time meeting that lasted until nearly midnight.

The committee declined, however, to recommend that Nixon be cited for contempt of Congress. A motion by Representative John Conyers (Dem. Mich.) to do so was tabled, 32 to 5.

In the end, however, it was a Republican, Representative William Cohen of Maine, who cast the deciding vote which authorized Rodino to send a letter to Nixon citing him for non-compliance.

Two Democrats, Conyers and Representative Jerome Waldie of California, who favored stricter action, had voted against the motion and it appeared headed for a losing 19-to-19 tie vote when Cohen, a freshman and one of the last to vote, cast the sole Republican vote for it.

Minutes earlier had tried to get the committee to send a more-conciliatory letter that specified the shortcomings in Nixon's response and suggested means for improving it, but this move was defeated, 27-to-11.

The letter Rodino is sending to Nixon today is short and to the point. It reads:

"Dear Mr. President: The committee on the judiciary has directed me to advise you that it finds that as of 10 a.m. April 30 you have failed to comply with the committee's subpoena of April 11, 1974."

The committee will begin to receive the evidence gathered by the inquiry staff next week, and the hearing room will be equipped so that all 38 members can listen to tapes on headsets, Rodino said.

He said that is a major reason the committee should have the actual tapes instead of transcripts.

Dissolution Predicted By Gillies

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau will dissolve Parliament after presentation of the budget next week, James Gillies, Progressive Conservative financial critic, predicted Wednesday.

The federal member for the riding of Don Valley in Toronto told the London Progressive Conservative Association the prime minister will dissolve Parliament to avoid a defeat in the Commons.

Mr. Gillies said the election likely will come July 5 with inflation the major issue.

Hydro Makes Bid For Rate Increase

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro says it has applied for a 15-per-cent increase for 1975 in wholesale power rates to municipal utilities and adds that annual increases of 10 to 15 per cent are "anticipated to be necessary" through the five year period of 1975-79.

In a news release issued today, the public utility said the application for the increase to municipal utilities, who supply the majority of Ontario's 3½-million users with electricity purchased in bulk from Hydro, has been submitted to Energy Minister Darcy McKeough.

Hydro also said an increase of about 16 per cent in 1975 is proposed for large industrial users served directly by Hydro.

That rate also would provide for recovery, over a five-year period, of deficits outstanding against the direct industrial customers at the end of 1973.

Hydro said that the application will be reviewed by the Ontario Energy Board in public hearings beginning June 10.

Rates for some 680,000 rural customers who also receive power directly from Hydro will be announced later, the utility said.

Hydro said escalation of salaries and wages, interest rates and prices for fuel, materials, equipment and property, plus the need to expand its system to serve Ontario, are the main factors underlying the proposed increase.

Kissinger in Israel On Difficult Mission

JERUSALEM (AP) — United States State Secretary Henry Kissinger returned to Israel today in search of a Syrian-Israeli disengagement accord, on the embattled Golan Heights. Senior U.S. officials hinted that if he fails President Nixon may cancel his trip to the Middle East.

They said the outcome of Kissinger's efforts will affect the "whole atmosphere" in which the Nixon visit was planned, possibly for this summer following the president's visit to Moscow.

Israeli officials said Kissinger's chances of success are slim. Israel is not prepared to meet Syria's demands for an withdrawal from all occupied Arab lands, they said.

"I come here not to discuss concessions but to discuss security," said Kissinger on his arrival from Egypt. "The issue is not pressure but a lasting peace."

A small cluster of Israelis picketed the airport out of Kissinger's sight, expressing concern that he was pressing Israel to concede too much to the Syrians.

"Your plan for peace will bring war and destruction," said one sign in Hebrew. Another poster denounced "the liar and traitor of the century—Mohammed Ivanovich Kissinger."

The secretary conceded to reporters Wednesday night that the negotiations to try to get Israel and Syria to agree on terms for a partial withdrawal of Israel from into the Golan Heights will be "very difficult."

Civil Service Gets Pay Hike

OTTAWA (CP) — The government opened up its purse Wednesday to the tune of $500 apiece for 350,000 public servants, but while union leaders welcomed the move it was dismissed as an insult by opposition MPs.

The pay increases, which will cost an estimated $180 million this year, will go to most public servants, members of the RCMP and the armed forces.

It does not go to employees of government corporations such as Air Canada, the CBC and Canadian National Railways. Nor will it be paid to public servants whose unions are bargaining now for contracts or units that were given arbitral awards after April 1.

But Treasury Board President C. M. Drury said union leaders said they expect negotiators and arbitration boards will take into account the $500 pay.

In announcing the special payments, Mr. Drury said the action was being taken in view of rapid inflation in the country.

The inflation rate between March, 1973, and March, 1974, was 10.4 per cent and some private employers have already given their workers special increases to ward off inflationary effects.

The increase will be built into current pay levels, meaning that when contracts come up for negotiation, new pay increases will be based on present levels plus the $500.

Claude Edwards, president of the 145,000-member Public Service Alliance of Canada, the largest federal employee union, said the increase will be "a welcome relief" to workers hardest hit by inflation.

Air Traffic Control Workers Voting Today

QUEBEC (CP) — A country-wide vote by air traffic controllers is being conducted today after the federal treasury board made a final contract offer Wednesday to the 2,000 members of the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association in an effort to avert a May 5 strike.

Federal mediator Stanley Hartt said the offer was made to the national council of the association which is recommending acceptance of the contract to its membership.

Both sides have refused to release details of the proposed contract, but Mr. Hartt said the government's offer was "very generous, more generous than I thought it would be."

The controllers earn between $5,750 and $22,232 annually and are seeking improved salaries, working conditions and bonuses in their new collective agreement.

Association President Jim Livingstone said Wednesday both sides decided to remain silent about terms of the proposed contract until after the controllers have voted.

Mr. Hartt said the results of the vote are expected to be announced at midnight Sunday at association headquarters in Ottawa.

Meanwhile, airlines have indicated they are accepting reservations for next week in the hope the strike can be averted.

Minimum Pay to Be Increased

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial minimum wage is to be increased, Labor Minister Fern Guindon said Wednesday.

Mr. Guindon refused to say how much the increase would be, except that Ontario would "compare favorably" with other provinces.

The present hourly minimum wage in the province is $2 an hour for construction workers and $1.75 for others. British Columbia's minimum is to rise to $2.50 an hour in June from the present level of $2.25.

Vegetable Price Boost May Be Justified — Plumptre

OTTAWA (CP) — New contracts that may raise the price of vegetables by 20 to 30 per cent may well be justified, Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the food prices review board, said Wednesday.

For the last several years vegetable farmers have received little or no increases for their products, Mrs. Plumptre said in an interview.

There also is evidence vegetable farmers would have switched to growing more lucrative crops if food processors had not offered more money for the vegetable crops, she said.

She was commenting on predictions said this week by executives of the Canadian Food Processors Association that consumers of canned and frozen vegetables will pay 20 to 30 per cent more in the next few months, mainly because of the increased costs for raw vegetables.

The implications for the consumer of higher farm prices will be studied by the review board and a report on the situation might be forthcoming, Mrs. Plumptre said.

Fielding Questions

During the first drug seminar sponsored by Belleville General Hospital Wednesday, Kingston pharmacist Bryce Miller fields a written question from a member of the audience.

Quinte Will Enjoy Offbeat Education

A day of off-beat education is planned for next Wednesday at Quinte Secondary School as students and teachers participate in enrichment day.

The public is invited to join the students for the seminars and workshops from 9 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. More than 90 activities will be available and participants will make up their own timetables from among the subjects that interest them.

The seminar, moderated by general practitioner George Pearce (left), brought pharmacist Tom Bond (centre) from Prince Edward Heights in Picton and an Ontario College of Pharmacy representative from Toronto to explain the potential dangers involved in improper use of either prescribed or non-prescribed drugs.

The army will bring in trucks and machine guns for a demonstration and the police will explain their work and exhibit the OPP attack dog.

Everything from transcendental meditation to summer job interviews will be available. Workshops will offer exposure to basic typing, photography, automatic calculators, surveying, pottery, tie-dying, piano-playing and hornets' nests.

May 8 is a regular school day and students will be expected to attend two hour-long sessions in the morning and another in the afternoon. Lunch hour will be from 12 to 1:15 p.m. the period from 11 a.m. to 2:15 has been allocated for visiting workshops and displays.

Obituaries and Funerals

William Henry Gilbert
Toronto

The funeral of William Henry Gilbert, former resident of Picton but living in Toronto for the past 20 years, was held Thursday afternoon, May 2, from the John R. Bush Funeral Home.

Mr. Gilbert, who lived at 31 Dixon Rd. Toronto, died April 29 at the Toronto East General Hospital. He was 67.

Born in Belleville, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Gilbert, and was a retired newspaper reporter.

A bachelor, he is survived by sisters Mrs. Leo (Bertha) O'Brien, of London, Mrs. B. (Harriett) Hewitt of Orillia, and Mrs. Frank (Betty) Gergel of Allan Park, Michigan.

MRS. BERTHA LEONE
Belleville—Madoc

A former resident of the Madoc area but living in Belleville for the past 30 years, Mrs. Bertha Leone Maracle, 230½ Front Street, Belleville, died at her home on May 1. She was in her 76th year.

Born at Cherry Valley, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Flake of Thomasburg and was an adherent of the United Church.

Predeceased by her first husband William Wright, she is survived by a daughter Mrs. L. (Jean) Schmidt of Burlington and a son, Malcolm Wright, of Oshawa, four grandchildren and one great granddaughter.

The funeral will be held Friday, May 3, from the MacKenzie Funeral Home at Madoc with service at 2 p.m.

Horseman Buys Winner

The four-year-old mare was reserve junior champion at the Royal Winter Fair in 1972 and last year won first place.

City Firms Win Jobs

Two Belleville firms, AOCO Ltd. and Superior Propane have been awarded separate contracts totalling $31,369, the federal Ministry of Supply and Services has announced.

The contract with AOCO calls for providing equipment serviced during the 12 months ending March 31, 1975. This contract is for $30,000.

The two were among 206 unclassified contracts, each worth $10,000 or more for a total value of $22,694,942, awarded to Canadian firms during the week ending April 5.

Prescription Drug Dangers
Two Not Always Better Than 1

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

If you don't know, ask.

Basically, this was the message a panel of pharmacists delivered to 35 people attending the first drug-oriented seminar at the Edith Cavell School of Nursing Wednesday. Prompted by the Belleville General Hospital education branch, the seminar dealt with the potential dangers a prescription or over-the-counter drug user could encounter without precautionary measures.

Such precautionary measures are simple. One need only ask a doctor or a pharmacist concerning optimum conditions under which any particular drug, or combination of drugs, should be taken.

Above all, follow instructions given by the pharmacist or doctor when taking drugs, panellists urged.

Kingston's Hotel Dieu Hospital director of pharmacy Bryce Miller said Wednesday studies suggest that people fail to take their drugs properly: "Some people feel that if one is good, two are better."

There are no harmless medications, Mr. Bond said. Chronic use of an over-the-counter (OTC) drug can bring on drug related diseases. Use of several drugs at once, whether prescription or OTC, can result in interaction.

In such an instance, the danger lies in possible increasing or increasing the effects of one of the drugs. Treatment could also be prolonged through lack of effect or repeated sensitivity.

Potential hazards exist through self-administration of OTC medicines, a practice encouraged through heavy media advertising, cautioned Mr. Bond.

Commonly used in treatment of the common cold, high vitamin C intake by a pregnant woman can expose the fetus to equally high doses.

"After birth, there have been reports of babies having scurvy when vitamin C has been withdrawn," he said. "Almost everything that goes into the mother gets to the child."

In concluding the evening's discussion Mr. Miller outlined a 10-point program for proper handling of medications. They are:

— Take medication only as prescribed by a medical authority.

— Do not give or take drugs in dark or poor lighting conditions.

— Do not keep more than enough medication for one day or night on the bedside table.

— And do not keep more than one drug by the bedside in a drawer unless the wrong one may be taken.

— Keep all drugs locked away.

— Discard old or outdated medications promptly to avoid toxic effects from those that have deteriorated.

— Never give medication prescribed for yourself to others. More harm than good may be done.

— And finally, keep an up-to-date list of drugs you are using on your person. In the event of hospital admittance, this may save prescription of drugs that would interact adversely with what you take at present.

Credit Card Abuser Finishes Jail Term

Misuse of a credit card brought a conviction against Bernard Peter Ladouceur of Belleville recently obtaining accommodation and a sentence of one day in custody Wednesday in Provincial Court.

Judge J. L. Clendenning took the sentence in view of the two months Ladouceur had already spent in the Quinte Regional Detention Centre.

Ladouceur was convicted of using an Imperial Esso credit card belonging to Marvin R. VanHorne of Sudbury to obtain lodging at River Bend Motel in Belleville Nov. 29 for himself and a female companion. The cost was $116.05.

Two similar charges before the court in connection were dismissed by Judge Clendenning for lack of evidence.

Marvin Russell VanHorne of Sudbury testified that he had given Ladouceur permission to use a card in his son, Greg, to use while attending a cross-country event at Bancroft in November, 1972. Mr. VanHorne subsequently reported his son's wallet and credit card stolen.

Stephen Isaacs, a grade 12 student at Quinte Secondary School testified that he had found the wallet at the 1972 cross-country event in Bancroft. He took the cash and credit card and discarded the rest.

He said that in November, 1973, he had offered the credit card in the name of Marvin R. VanHorne to Ladouceur because I couldn't use it."

Mr. Isaacs said he had kept the credit card for a year, and offered it to Ladouceur when the latter told him he was looking for a car to buy his car.

Paul Price, assistant manager of River Bend Motel in Belleville, told the court the owner Lloyd Price, testified that he had rented one-night accommodation to Ladouceur and a female companion, who used a credit card as collateral.

Subsequent testimony revealed that Ladouceur had telephoned Bancroft detachment of the OPP to determine what motel accepted Imperial Esso Credit cards.

Called to the witness stand by his barrister, Miss Roy, Ladouceur denied being in the River Bend Motel Nov. 29.

Chances Up 'Considerably'

Hellyer: Election by July?

MADOC —Possibility of a mid-summer election was projected here Wednesday night by Paul Hellyer.

Mr. Hellyer, former top-ranking Liberal cabinet minister now Conservative MP for Trinity, was here to attend a local Tory riding association meeting.

He arrived with Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, direct from the Commons following rejection of proposed anti-profiteering legislation. The move saw the NDP unite with Conservatives against the minority Liberal government.

Unless "something drastic happens" results of the NDP withdrawal could mean an election by July 8, said Mr. Hellyer in an interview.

The government now is ready to introduce its budget Monday. But now "there is even some talk the government may dissolve the House immediately after the budget without waiting to be defeated in the Commons ..." he said.

"At the moment — and I don't know how it would be — but — but I'd say the probability of an early election has gone up considerably in the last few hours," added Mr. Hellyer.

Key issue in the campaign will be inflation since "I think people are just sick to death of rising prices," he said.

An election would see a Conservative win, he believed, although he wouldn't predict whether the party would form the various areas, installing pipeline tables, walk paths, trimming hedges and planting trees.

SWEEP Hires More

TRENTON — The number of students to be employed by SWEEP in the Trenton area will be slightly increased this year, says Bill Carter, Lower Trent Valley Conservation Authority chairman.

Dave Murray, program supervisor, the Eastern Region Authority, said, "funds allocated were the same dollars of last year because of competition with central and southwest Ontario. This has caused a decrease in programming."

Despite this, the Lower Trent Valley region will increase its SWEP (Students Working in an Environmental Program) force from 11 to 16 men. The workers will be spending the summer on 1,000 acres owned by the Authority in various areas, including picnic tables, walk paths, trimming hedges and planting trees.

Students Play 'Pirates'

BRIGHTON — Students of East Northumberland Secondary School here are preparing a musical production of Gilbert and Sullivan's Pirates of Penzance to open next week.

Set in the late 1800s, it is "a light-hearted story of tender-hearted pirates falling in love with girls in a different social order — and the problems that arise," says producer-director and English teacher Margaret Andrews.

RCMP Union Not in 'Best Interests'

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand says he personally feels it is not in the best interests of the RCMP to have a union representing its members.

But he told the Commons Wednesday that no members of the force will be penalized for exercising their freedom of speech on the subject.

In reply to questions on reported activity within the RCMP to form some type of staff association, the minister made it clear his reaction would depend on the terms of reference given any such association.

He told Paddy Neale (NDP—Vancouver East) that in the last two years he had had meetings with elected representatives from all 16 RCMP divisions and only one of the 18 representatives favored formation of a union.

think the issues develop as the election goes along — as you really need a pretty good crystal ball to be able to see nine or 10 weeks ahead."

New Executive At Gazette

PICTON — Joseph Cembal, president of the Picton Gazette Publishing Company Ltd., has announced the appointment of Alan R. Capon as managing editor of the bi-weekly newspaper.

The job of managing editor has been vacant since the death of Lindley B. Calnan in May, 1972.

A veteran newsman, Mr. Capon has worked for the past three years as bureau chief in Picton for the Kingston Whig-Standard. He has also worked as Lindsay bureau chief for the Peterborough Examiner and was editor of the Lindsay Daily Post and publisher of the Minden Progress.

CHARLIE BATES

Bates Named A Top Liberal Organizer

MELROSE — Charlie Bates, president of the provincial Hastings Riding Liberal Association, has been named to one of the party's top provincial organization posts.

He succeeds Barry Young, Napanee lawyer, as co-ordinator of party activities and organization in a region involving 22 federal and 31 provincial ridings from Toronto to eh Quebec border.

Conservation Area Protest to Hydro

TRENTON — Opposition to Ontario Hydro's proposed Lennox-Oshawa power corridor through this area has been expressed by farmers and members of the Lower Trent Valley Conservation Authority.

Paul Heisler, an Authority member told The Intelligencer: "I don't see how hydro lines affect wildlife, but they do affect the use of farmland." Delbert McComb, also an Authority member said it was distressing to have a tower planted in a row-crop field.

Brian Boyce, resource manager for the Trenton area, suggested at Tuesday's LTV-CA meeting here that "input be made to Hydro meetings from the Authority on the effects of hydro transmission lines".

National Bid Next

Picton Students Win Regional Car Contest

PICTON — Two grade 12 automotive specialty students from Prince Edward Collegiate Institute are preparing for national finals in the Chrysler Trouble-shooting Contest.

Bernard Prinzen, 18, RR 1, Picton and Ed Sokolowsky, 17, RR 3, Picton, have now won the regional contest at the Quinte Mall in Belleville They will represent PECI in national competition in Toronto in June. Approximately 25 teams will participate in the event.

The contest includes a practical test and written theory.

Cars are "Bugged" with malfunctions and contestants are required to detect and repair the problems as quickly as possible. The first teams to finish without any penalties is the winner of the practical contest.

Malfunctions in the engine are confined to electrical and fuel problems such as ignition, cranking circuit, charging circuit, carburator, fuel lines and pump.

All accessories and safety items, such as lights, horn, washers, wipers and seat belt must be checked and repaired.

If a team fails to detect and repair a major problem, it is automatically disqualified.

The team score is reached by adding its theory score and its finishing practical time. The theory total is the combined score of the team's two contestants.

Winners will receive scholarships and other awards.

This year's team from PECI is coached by teacher, Robert Fagan. Last year Mr. Fagan coached the school's team of David Leslie and Randy Tarmaala who won in the national competitions.

Club Raising Arena Funds

WELLINGTON — A fishing derby, sponsored by Wellington District Lions Club, will be held this weekend to raise funds for the Wellington arena building fund.

Three prizes in each class of competition will be donated by Stuarts' Sport Store of Wellington. Entry fees are $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

The contest opens Saturday, May 4 and concludes Sunday the weekend.

To benefit the arena fund a dance also has been scheduled this week-end at the County Centre. The dance May 10, will feature music by the Sounds of Storm. Admission is $4 per couple.

Lodge is 100 Years Old

PICTON — The Bay of Quinte Lodge, 143, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, will celebrate its 100th anniversary May 4.

A banquet will be held that Saturday night and Sunday there will be a parade to the United Church where the Canadian Staff Band of the Salvation Army will participate in services.

HOW SAFE IS ABORTION?
Lulled into believing that abortion is simple and safe, more and more women are using it as an alternative to birth control. In the process, warns a leading obstetrician, an invitation to tragedy is being extended. In the May issue of Reader's Digest, you'll learn about the four main abortion techniques used in Canada — and the actual risks involved. Find out why legal abortion should function as part of a rescue operation — and not as the primary method of population control. Read ABORTION: THE SECOND-BEST SOLUTION. One of 33 articles and features in the May Reader's Digest. At your newsstand today!

The free chequing that the banks are charging up to $3.00 a month for, Guaranty Trust will give you absolutely free.

Up to $3.00 a month. Absolutely free.
At Guaranty Trust you can write as many cheques as you want absolutely free. And you don't have to pay up to $3.00 a month for a package of other services you'll probably never use.
There are no cheque charges of any kind. No monthly service charges. No minimum balance requirements or any other strings attached.
What's the gimmick?
Simply this. If we can convince you to move your chequing account to Guaranty Trust, before long you'll be doing most of your other banking with us.
The statistics prove it. Most people who have chequing accounts at Guaranty Trust also have savings accounts.
We'd also like you to think about Guaranty Trust investment Certificates. And put away money in a Guaranty Trust Registered Retirement Savings Plan. Or borrowing money from Guaranty Trust to buy a house or anything else you might need.
We'd even like you to think of Guaranty Trust when you decide to sell your house. And as far as we're concerned absolutely free chequing seems like a very good way to start you thinking.
Guaranty Trust Absolutely Free Chequing.

Status Of Indians

The appointment of farmer and one-time Indian chief Ralph Steinhauer as Lieutenant-Governor of Alberta is official recognition, late as it is in coming, of the worth and achievements of Canada's native people.

For long active in farming and in Indian and community affairs in the St. Paul area of Alberta where he once headed the Saddle Lake Indian band, the 68-year-old Mr. Steinhauer likely will now become as well known as Chief Dan George.

But if Mr. Steinhauer has reached the pinnacle of political achievement let's not pretend that social, economic and political equality is the norm in Canada, a country which from a safe and self-satisfied distance looks askance at what it regards as racism and oppression in other countries.

Certainly there have been others among our Indian friends who have done well for themselves in the white man's world, taking their place in the Senate and Commons in Ottawa, but they have been few. Rather more have distinguished themselves in the professions and increasing numbers of Indian and Eskimo young people are coming into the mainstream of Canadian society.

Yet while life may be improving for our native people, the spectre of continued discrimination, lack of opportunity, disgraceful living conditions, boredom and the alcoholism and the violence that go with it, remain.

It is not suggested that this is the case everywhere, but it does remain a factor for many of the descendants of this country's original inhabitants, still groping their way from the mists of an earlier time when their people knew the freedom of an entire continent and a nature oriented lifestyle under a watchful sun-God.

Today the Indian to a large extent is between two worlds — his own traditional one, and the strident clamor of the North American materialist society; for him the identity crisis is real and pressing. If the white man cares at all about this situation, it is not particularly apparent. Government aid programs, where they exist, tend to perpetuate the Indian's state of bondage and dependence and weaken further inborn initiative needing only the right opportunity to help him make his way in the world. For the Eskimos in the far north the situation is much the same.

How much do we, as relatively "New" Canadians, care about the native people? What is the general attitude of Canadians to our own minority people whose presence goes back far beyond the coming of the white man? The answers are not encouraging, to judge from what we read.

This for instance from Washington in recent days: Canadian Law Professor Bruce Cumming of York University says native land rights in-northern Canada are not being respected and 'are being expropriated without due process.' "

And this from The Ottawa Journal: "A jury found Ramone Sacobie, 33, a woman described as 'beaten down' in life because she is an Indian, guilty of manslaughter in the stabbing death of a fellow Indian.

"Defence counsel Scott Milloy described the mother of seven children as a person who has suffered 'untold degradation because she is Indian.' "

There are images in the minds of all of us, of Indian living conditions — in places like McDougallville, an Indian ghetto on the fringe of Red Lake in northwestern Ontario, to which we made reference some time ago. These are not the sort of conditions Canadians like to contemplate, if they acknowledge their existence at all. They should give us pause, however, and reason to think, even to take action to try and alleviate them.

Chauvinist Image

We wonder is the CBC chickening out again where women announcers on television are concerned. Recently we referred to the appearance of Jan Tennent, an attractive and well-spoken young woman who read The National a couple of times one weekend. Well, we have not seen her since and it may well be that the CBC's largely male chauvinist image is too strong or clinging to be shed overnight. A pity too, for other countries have long since been employing women announcers on a regular basis, a factor which enhances programming for viewers overseas.

African Colonies' Future in Doubt

Swift Return To Civil Liberties For The Portuguese

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The newly-installed military junta in Portugal has already shown its difference from the oppressive junta which seized power in Greece in 1967 and Chile in 1973.

Within days of taking over, it has freed Portugal's press from a 40-year-long grip of censorship as well as all political prisoners of the fallen Caetano civilian dictatorship.

In their place in the main prison of Lisbon have gone the officials of the tough-minded PIDE or Portuguese secret police founded by the late cellmate dictator Antonio Salazar.

Both the Greek and Chilean military juntas overthrew long-established democratic processes which, in spite of their internal disarray, were elected governments.

Gen. Antonhidgle Spinola's new military government in Portugal not only overthrew a dec-ades-long oppressive dictatorship of the right but supplied Press and civil freedoms where none had been known in Portugal since the early 1930s.

There are other substantial differences between this coup in Lisbon and the earlier ones in Athens and Santiago. The Portuguese political crisis is just as much about Africa as it is about the Portuguese homeland.

Indeed the cause of the army split which placed Gen. de Spinola and a progressive branch of the officer corps in power, conservative generals, is their conviction a military solution for the future of Portuguese Africa will never take place.

These men who have fought against the growing African liberation movements for 13 years in Guinea, Angola and Moamabique knew all about war in Africa. They feel as so many officers did in the French Foreign Legion at the end of France's Algerian experience that social and political solutions for a Portuguese future in Africa must be found.

Chief among these is the much-decorated, monocled African warrior junta chief Gen. de Spinola who published a book this winter, Portugal and The Future which rocked that country.

Not only did the general defy his country's tough censorship to do so, since no one expected he least of all would say what he did!), but he was fired as deputy chief of the army staff.

Spinola who fought with General Franco in Spain's civil war of the late 1930s and was a central Portuguese military observer with Hitler's Wehrmacht invading Russia in 1942, said the future of Portuguese Africa lay in non-military solutions, most likely in some form of commonwealth government.

This would mean some kind of genuine representative government in the freely-elected National Assembly he has also promised in which blacks and white citizens of the Portuguese territories would have full and equal representation.

That idea is not unlike the former French Union which existed from 1945 until the formation of many French-speaking independent African states in Saharan Africa in the early 1960s. In that period and to a much lesser degree before the Second World War, Africa sat in the French Chamber of Deputies.

It is quite unlikely the guerrilla groups pressing in Angola and Mozambique and in control of about half of Portuguese Guinea will buy the commonwealth concept.

But Gen. Spinola is also thinking of the substantial white and African-born populations of Portugal's Africa who have not yet been heard from.

Steel Industry Seeks To Expand

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Canada's steel industry is pushing ahead with expansion of its production capacity, while it works to squeeze the greatest possible tonnage out of its existing mills.

Over the years our steelmakers have surmounted plenty of obstacles—they had to, in order to remain virtually the only Canadian-controlled heavy industry. This year is no exception.

The current problems include sharp jumps in the price of raw materials, the necessarily slow pace of plant expansion, the high cost of adding new production capacity with expensive pollution-abatement equipment, and the proposed new tax on "undue profits."

To start with inflation, the rising price of scrap steel—a key raw material in the production process—at $100 is up from $60 early this year. The cost of U.S. coal, which Ontario steel mills buy in prodigious quantities, is up 40 per cent in April. Zinc, used to make galvanized steel, is up 60 per cent already this year.

Canadian steelmakers have no choice but to pay the price and pass along the added cost to their customers—and steel goes, directly or indirectly, into an enormous range of industrial and consumer products.

The steel industry's biggest customers are the car makers. They have had to make do with less steel than they need from time to time this year because there has not been enough to go around.

Even when one end of the country to the other, plans are afoot to increase the supply of steel for the auto plants.

British Columbia's Premier David Barrett, for instance, returned from a late-April visit to Japan with the news that the province had commitments from the giant steel companies of Japan to supply enough steel to keep the West Coast construction industry going at full speed.

On the East Coast, the federal department of regional economic expansion has commissioned a feasibility study with a view to establishing a steel mill near a deep-water port.

Steel Co. of Canada Ltd., the leader of the Canadian industry, will reach an annual production rate of six million tons later this year (1973 output was a record 5,721,000 tons of raw steel). The relining of two blast furnaces at Hamilton is curtailing output.

Both Sidco and its neighbor, Dominion Foundries and Steel Ltd., need more elbow room than Hamilton can provide, and are looking to cities on Lake Erie for future growth.

But a $400-million first-phase there is expected to be in operation in 1977 and fully completed by 1979. Dofasco has not yet been able to obtain permission to build on 1,000 acres it holds near Lake Erie.

But projects already under way or planned—at a cost of $1,000 per ton of new capacity—would double Dofasco's annual production to six million tons.

A Very Rowdy Legislature

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — If you take a look at first-time visitors to the spectators galleries here as they leave you will usually see either one of two apparent reactions.

They seem to be either bewildered or laughing to themselves.

You can almost read their minds: "So that's what a legislature is like!"

An exception is if they have happened to know other parliaments. Then they can be in a slight state of shock.

This is a rowdy house. Perhaps the rowdiest we have ever had, particularly at the question period.

This is a daily proceeding which gets under way shortly after the house opens, in which opposition members can ask questions of members of the government.

It will start with Mr. Speaker announcing "questions" and giving the floor for first go to Opposition Leader Bob Nixon or his representative.

Mr. Nixon will ask a question, say, of Housing Minister Sidney Handleman: "You were quoted as saying the government would supply 20,000 lots this year. Do you really think this will do anything for the housing shortage?"

Mr. Handleman will try and explain that this really means there will be 20,000 more lots than last year and that this is only a minimum figure.

But he will have cut through his answer.

And in mid-reply there will be bedlam.

Opposition members will start barracking him.

The government supporters will start barracking the opposition.

And Mr. Speaker will cry "Order! Order! Order Please!" building up to a point of exasperation.

And this is liable to be the whole tone of the question period, with constant noise and interruptions and Mr. Speaker trying to keep control.

There are no aspersions to be cast at Speaker Alan Reuter for the state of affairs.

Mr. Reuter is one of the best speakers we have had.

It is true that this house has got a bit out of control. One likes to see a bit of life in a parliament but this particular house can carry the action too far.

But it is doubtful if anyone could control it.

For underlying the virus probably is the fact that both opposition parties are tasting blood.

They have seen the government slipping and both of them are scenting power. While the government ranks, in turn, are fighting back.

All this makes for a raucous situation.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

May 2, 1974

Napoleon opened his last foreign campaign 161 years ago today—a 1813 offensive to bring combined Russian and Prussian armies at Lutzen in southern Germany. He later captured Dresden but was defeated by a combined force of his opponents at Leipzig in October and was driven to France, where his government collapsed.

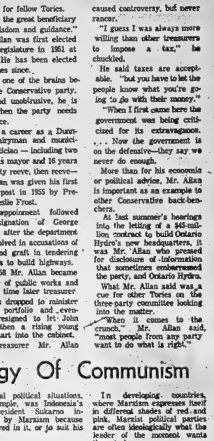
1981—The first sod was turned for the Canadian Pacific Railway.

1968—The Treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle settled French claims to the Spanish Netherlands.

James Noble Allan

Veteran Member Of Legislature Has Been Elected Five Times



TORONTO (CP) — At 73, James Noble Allan is the oldest member of the Ontario legislature and, unquestionably, the most respected.

He was born in Canboro Township when Queen Victoria still was alive and has been in public life for most of the time since he was first elected as a municipal councillor in 1910. For 13 of those years he was a Progressive Conservative provincial cabinet minister, including nine years as treasurer—the most powerful cabinet member next to the premier.

"I think people are sometimes too kindly to me, more than I probably deserve," he said in an interview. "It comes with age. And I guess it's better than being turned out when you're old, isn't it?"

In an address to the Progressive Conservative association in Mr. Allan's Haldiman a-Norfolk constituency, Premier William Davis referred to his colleague as "one of the statesmen of provincial politics."

"James Allan is the kind of man who constitutes, and always, helps one to the difficult times we go through," the premier said. "In those affectionate tones then he usually musters for fellow Tories.

Mr. Allan was first elected to the legislature in 1951 at age 56. He has been elected five times since.

He is one of the brains behind the Conservative party. Respected and influential, he is there when the party needs his advice.

After a career as a Dunsville dairyman and municipal politician — including two terms as mayor and 16 years as deputy-reeve, then receiver — Mr. Allan was given his first cabinet post in 1955 by Premier Leslie Frost.

His appointment followed the resignation of George Doucett after the department was involved in a scandal over fraud and graft in tendering contracts to build highways.

In 1956 Mr. Allan became minister of public works and a short time later treasurer

He was dropped to minister without portfolio and eventually resigned to let John White, then a young Progressive Tory start into the cabinet.

As treasurer Mr. Allan caused controversy, but never rancor.

"I guess I was always more willing than other treasurers to impose a tax," he recalled.

He said taxes are acceptable, "but you have to let the people know what you're going to do with their money."

"When I first came here the government was being criticized for its extravagance.

"Now the government is on the defensive—they say we never do enough.

More than for his economic or political advice, Mr. Allan is important as an example to other Conservative back-benchers.

At last summer's hearings into the letting of a $45-million contract to build Ontario Hydro's new headquarters, it was Mr. Allan who pressed for disclosure of information that sometimes embarrassed the party, and Ontario Hydro.

What Mr. Allan said was a cue for other Tories to the three-party committee looking into the matter.

"When it comes to the crunch," Mr. Allan said, "many people from any party want to do what is right."

Shifting Ideology Of Communism

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Mr. Premier Li Zink insists after many years that communism is not a monolithic force, its shifts of position in ideology reflecting only temporary differences from a norm set down in 1917.

If communism is a world religion, it does indeed have a rich contradictory modern theology to it. But like Christianity, Islam and Buddhism its history have shifted and turned around its dogma to suit a myriad of local economic and social purposes.

Even in the decades past from the years of the Bolshevik revolution when communism was spread, it is clear that definitions of it have varied widely.

The best known is the Soviet Chinese rift, the followers of Mao believing that Moscow has taken the Western capitalistic road of peaceful coexistence and technology at the expense of basic Leninist principles.

So-called "national" Communist movements, begun by Tito of Yugoslavia in 1948 require careful study as the ideology of communism has been absorbed into local political situations.

For example, was Indonesia's late president Sukarno influenced by Marxism because he believed in it, or so suit his ends?

Or, in the Middle East, why is the Soviet public record relative Modern leaders play at games of friendship and alliance with the U.S.S.R.?

If fundamentalist Christianity is a contemporary force on common base, hence the expression "Judeo-Christian tradition," so can Lenin's ideas possibly mingle with those of the Prophet Mohammed.

The fact is, they don't. In the late 1940s when the Soviet Union's sphere were blocked by the British, U.S. and French armies in Europe they include East Germany (officially the German Democratic Republic) and Czechoslovakia, under a new regime of ruthless Stalinism and Albania. Its orientation is a mixture of Stalinism and Leninism.

So, even in these few instances, one must rationalize about any apparent monolithic nature of the national Communist regime, with Mao Tse-tung's personality.

But the facts seem to prove otherwise.

In developing countries, where Marxism expresses itself in different shades of red and pink, Marxist political parties are often ideologically what the leader of the moment wants them to be.

In Chile, where President Salvador Allende was the only elected Marxist leader in history, his economic policies, "the bourgeoisie Marxist." This is an incongruous position, but says in effect that Allende was neither a socialist Communist or a rabid Maoist. Something in between, but Marxist nevertheless.

A very few states in the Communist world today, most of the rigid Stalinist which once marked Soviet domination, in Europe they include East Germany (officially the German Democratic Republic) and Czechoslovakia, under a new regime of ruthless Stalinism and Albania. Its orientation is a mixture of Stalinism and Leninism.

So, even in these few instances, one must rationalize about any apparent monolithic nature of the national Communist regime, with Mao Tse-tung's personality.

But the facts seem to prove otherwise.

The Sad Saga Of Patricia Hearst

Ottawa Journal

Patricia Hearst's sad story could have occurred only in the late 20th century. Whatever she is — kidnap victim, terrified convert to revolution, or, perhaps, a long-term secret psychoanalyst who conspired in a fantastic hoax against not only the police and society but her parents — an event like this would have been unimaginable except in recent years.

U.S. Attorney-General Saxbe labels her "a willing prisoner, a 'not reluctant participant' in the bizarre bank robbery started by the Symbionese Revolutionary Army, ostensibly her kidnappers. Some bank personnel who saw her in action would find this view. Yet the FBI thinks photographs of the robbery indicate other participants forced her to act under duress, with guns pointed at them. Whatever is the last tape recording sent to her parents, she had stated her conversion to the SLA program and determination "to stay and fight" with it. Was this her way of proving that?

Probably only Patricia, wherever she is, really knows. Possibly nobody else ever will. But if and when she is found, as is likely, controversy will rage around whatever story she offers. By this time she has become a symbol of what people want to believe. The majority who detest and fear the tactics and the ideologies of urban guerrilla warfare and kidnap-terrorism will see in her victims' statements a brainwash conversions in today's darkness of noon will see her as a victim of the mind-molding; and revolutionaries will acclaim her as another example of Marx's prophecy, that before the final conflict the proletariat and the bourgeoisie will cross over to the camp of the revolution.

The drama raised doubts from the beginning. George V. Higgins writes in the Boston Globe that the kidnappers told her parents (Clelle Coyle and others) has pointed to some puzzling aspects.

Patricia was kidnapped by terrorists February 4th. A week lounging around her apartment in a bathrobe. Yet the kidnappers told her parents she had credit card and driver's licence to her father as proof they were holding her. Had she actually had them in her bathrobe pockets? Higgins asked these and other pertinent questions in

The New York Times.

If these questions have relevance (and who can be sure?) they don't necessarily alter the picture of her as victim. She smoked marijuana, as is now admitted, and the contradictory arises of the little rich girl, with her servants finding drugged solace in dreaming of herself as a freedom fighter against the capitalist system.

Impossible? Nothing seems impossible in this late 20th century. She may be a terrorized victim, as her parents still believe, or anything else. She is a symbol of our times.

POOR Patricia.

Hospital Workers Accept Agreement

TORONTO (CP) — Non-professional workers at 11 Toronto hospitals voted Monday to accept a tentative agreement reached by negotiators one day before a scheduled illegal strike.

The vote was 1,981 to 1,274.

The agreement reached Tuesday calls for a total wage increase of 31.50 an hour in five stages over two years. The old contract paid housekeeping and dietary aides $2.50 an hour and cleaners $3 an hour.

Canadians Found Killing Themselves

OTTAWA (CP) — A health report tabled Wednesday in the Commons lays out proposals that could save thousands of indulgent Canadians from an early grave, says Health Minister Marc Lalonde.

Hundreds of thousands more would be spared the miseries of health afflictions once the provinces agreed to implement its recommendations.

The 76-page synopsis of health problems and possible solutions, to be used as a basis for developing new policies, portrays a lackadaisical society where many people won't take basic precautions to protect their health.

It lists "a grisly litany" of destructive conditions and habits, including over-indulgence in alcohol, cigarettes and drugs; poor nutritional habits and lack of exercise; promiscuity; carelessness about wearing automobile seat belts; pollution, urban crowding and poverty.

Dozens of diseases, as well as irrational behavior and accidents, could be avoided were it not for these problem areas.

But, even if the report's 74 recommendations were approved by the provincial governments tomorrow, the health department doesn't have the money to implement them, said Mr. Lalonde. Social security and welfare measures have priority.

Kin President Orders Club To Stop Hiring Fund Raisers

TORONTO (CP) — The East Scarborough Kinsmen Club was told Wednesday by its national president to end the practice of allowing professional fund raisers to use the Kinsmen name.

George Irving of Cambridge, Ont., currently on a country-wide tour, was commenting on the club's practice of allowing telephone salesmen for a circus to sell tickets.

"Unless one has absolute control over all aspects of fund raising, one shouldn't lend one's name to it," he said.

Mr. Irving said he was supporting a resolution, to be debated by the club's regional and national conventions this summer, barring use of professional fund raising firms in club projects.

"People are being misled that if they spend $5 on a ticket, $4 will go to cruises and $1 to administration when, in fact, it's reversed," he said in an incr-

CUPE Still Out To Reform CLC

OTTAWA (CP) — Threats of withdrawal from the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) that were made last fall have diminished somewhat, but the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) still seems determined to spearhead a drive for change in the country's biggest labor organization.

CUPE, the country's largest national union with 185,000 members, will send slightly more than one-quarter of the more than 2,000 voting delegates who are to attend the massive congress's biennial convention starting May 13 in Vancouver.

The total congress membership is about 1.3 million.

A major issue is expected to be pressure for reform of the congress. That pressure is coming particularly from public-employee unions, including CUPE.

A CUPE spokesman says the union expects to have 580 delegates from its 1,100 locals at the convention. There were 2,004 pre-registered congress delegates recently, and final totals are expected to be about 2,400.

The meeting will be by fa

the largest Canadian labor convention ever.

A main aim for the public service unions will be to get an executive elected that will be sympathetic to changes that reformers say are needed.

But congress president Donald MacDonald and secretary-treasurer William Dodge will be retiring from the four-member full-time executive.

Big Powers Criticized For Sales of Arms

OTTAWA (CP) — Delegates at the Liberal international meeting here Wednesday criticized the big industrial powers, particularly France, for selling arms to Latin America when developmental aid was needed.

Criticism of that effect by Senator Diego Uribe Vargas of Colombia received strong support from delegates from the United States, Europe and Latin America.

Dr. Vargas said steps must be taken to stop the great powers from dumping their surplus arms in South America.

He warned that such action is strengthening the hand of the junias, creating a scenario for a conflagration of serious proportions and endangering world peace.

He said two steps should be taken: Europeans, Americans and Soviets must agree not to sell arms in Latin America and the Latin Americans must agree among themselves not to buy any more arms than what is needed for national security.

He agreed with others that France is the main country guilty of arms sales in Latin America, more so than the U.S.

Dr. Vargas said it is easy to get credit for arms purchases but Latin Americans cannot get the same credit for develop mental aid projects.

Competition Bill Said Unrealistic

OTTAWA (CP) — Provisions of the proposed competition act which prohibit exclusive dealings and market restrictions will ultimately harm the consumer and small businessman more than big business, the Senate banking committee was told Wednesday.

Representatives of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association (CMA) says the bill, which amends the Combines Investigation Act, is too heavily oriented toward competition based on pricing. It ignores factors such as servicing, marketing and distributing, practices, they said.

The CMA argues that the bill grants too many discretionary powers to the proposed restrictive trade practices commission with a limited right to appeal its decisions.

R. M. Snelgrove, vice-president of Massey-Ferguson Industries Ltd. in Toronto, said the philosophy of price competition contained in the bill "does not reflect practices in the real business world."

Someone should be able to go the restrictive trade practices commission and base his complaint or defence on factors other than pricing, he said.

The CMA also says a supplier should not be accused of restricting trade unless it can be proved that it is unduly restraining competition.

CP News Roundup

Pets Carry Parasites

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Veterinary Association said Wednesday that pet dogs and cats carry parasites similar to those that some Canadians have brought back from Russia.

The association urged pet owners pay attention to personal hygiene, even though there is no proof the disease in animals may be transmitted to humans.

It said in a statement that up to 10 per cent of the dogs and cats seen by veterinarians in Toronto are carriers of animal giardiasis, similar to giardia lamblia, a one-celled organism that causes disease in people.

Trouble Ahead

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial economic nationalism in Canada will make the Foreign Investment Review Act difficult to administer, former Ontario premier John Robarts predicts.

Provincial governments will have "a profound influence" on how the act is administered.

Curbs Urged

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP) — Stephen Lewis, Ontario leader of the New Democratic Party, said Wednesday that development controls should be imposed in the Haldimand-Norfolk area to protect farmland from uncontrolled development.

Car Insurance Agents Are Making Less Money

TORONTO (CP) — Automobile insurance agents are doing a better job of settling claims more quickly but are earning considerably less, on commissions, Industry Minister Claude Bennett said Wednesday.

Mr. Bennett said that although agents are collecting more premiums, commissions have been reduced.

"In the past 25 years, the commission on car premiums has been cut in half from 25 to 12½ per cent. In some cases down to 10 per cent," he told the American Society of Insurance Management conference.

He blamed increased labor and material costs and higher court settlements for the lower commissions.

He repeated the Ontario government's policy of non-intervention in the insurance industry so long as it continues to keep the public interest "to the forefront."

Want Controls

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government wants tough ecological restrictions placed on builders of a proposed oil pipeline from Sarnia to Montreal.

The province, in a brief filed this week with the National Energy Board, laid down more than 100 conditions which it said Interprovincial Pipe Line Co. should meet.

Machine Turns Garbage Into Food for Animals

TORONTO (CP) — Rush Lassiter, a New Orleans, La., restaurant owner, says he has invented a machine that turns wet, messy kitchen scraps and garbage into a dry, sterile food for animals.

The machine was on display Wednesday during the third annual Pollution Control Show, where 200 companies are displaying their answers for a cleaner environment.

Everything from egg shells to left-over potatoes may go into the machine, where it is ground to paste, dehydrated and baked at 400 degrees, before reappearing as brown flakes.

The machine can process six pounds of food wastes—the weekly production of a family of four—in two minutes and can handle the waste from 9,000 meals a day.

The flakes contained 18.8 per cent protein in one sample. They are recommended by the company as a feed supplement for livestock and chickens.

The machine will sell for about $15,000.

Names on the Doors and New Spirit

By SHARON AIRHART

Something as simple as a patient's name on his door in the chronic care ward of a hospital can help change it from a place where elderly people feel isolated and useless to a place of recovery and hope.

In a brief six months, Margaret Cooke, new unit coordinator of chronic care at Belleville General Hospital, has proven the point.

She's put names on the doors for the 75 chronic care patients in her charge and added a fish tank and budgie to their day room. The day room itself becomes dining room at noon every day when those patients who are well enough or want to, dine at tables for four with recorded music rather than eating from trays in their beds.

Bingo games, monthly parties, weekly sing-songs and a "beauty day" every Friday for the women, complete with shampoos and manicures by nurses are helping to brighten the floor.

More important are things like cotton dresses for the women and new pajamas and dressing gowns for the men.

So with the help of the hospital auxiliary and relatives, Mrs. Cooke is providing clothing for her patients.

"We get patients up and dressed and walking if we can so they can go home to their families. That's where they belong."

Mrs. Cooke says that for too long it's been too easy for relatives of the aged infirm to just "dump" them in chronic care wards.

"We feel if patients are active, relatives will visit and say to themselves 'Well, Grandma isn't as bad as we thought she was' and maybe take her home."

Mrs. Cooke, who has worked on geriatrics in British Columbia and Alberta and most recently in Montreal, adds, "Older people have a lot to offer, you know."

In all cases, sending patients to relative's homes is not the answer, she admits. Sometimes there just isn't room or there are too many small children or there would be too great a strain on the family financially.

Often the patient refuses to enter relatives' homes for fear of being a burden.

"In these cases the answer is a senior citizens' home or a nursing home. There they can be a little independent."

Getting them there is more than a matter of taking temperatures.

"Besides rehabilitating patients, after a stroke for example, we're trying to treat them as useful, worthy and dignified people."

The words are a continuing theme throughout her program, supported by new chronic care head nurse Carole Cockburn.

"We need just active hospital routine to allow time for all of these activities, to free time for things like occupational therapy," she says.

"We stress the activities of daily living, helping patients learn to do things again for themselves," she adds. "It's a matter of pride."

"We want them to take more interest. To take patients for a drive or home for Sunday dinner with the family."

"It gives patients something to look forward to," Mrs. Cockburn explains.

"They've read a lot and travelled a lot and suddenly they're sitting in a chair."

Both Mrs. Cooke and Mrs. Cockburn have spent their careers in geriatrics. Mrs. Cockburn says she just plain enjoys elderly people as does Mrs. Cooke, who adds "There's so much potential there and so little being done."

She points out that the aged are a growing segment of the population and society must learn to include them in community life.

"Now when someone needs some care, the trend is to send them to the hospital," she says.

There, until recently, already over-burdened nurses found little time to stimulate patients mentally as well as look after them physically.

"We do what's best for the patient, not what's convenient for the nurses," Mrs. Cooke says, and there's little doubt that her program has changed things at BGH. Reorganization and more efficiency have been coupled with a more human approach.

"It takes teamwork; we're all striving for the same thing," Mrs. Cooke says.

"It takes time and it takes hands."

OTTAWA—(CP) — Training programs for food handlers will be offered across Canada to improve sanitation in the food industry, said Richard Davies of the Canadian Restaurant Association. They will be carried out with the co-operation of provincial and municipal health authorities.

Sorority Members at Banquet

Beta Sigma Phi Sorority Holds Founder's Banquet

The Beta Sigma Phi Founders' Day Banquet took place Tuesday at the Four Seasons Hotel, attended by 80 members from the eight local chapters in Belleville and Trenton.

After the dinner Marion Flynn gave the members a message from the international offices of the sorority.

Mr. Stockton entertained the audience with recitations of his poetry, much of it in a humorous vein.

Following Mr. Stockton's speech, presentations were made to two sorority members were voted "Girl of the Year" by their respective chapters. Cathy Gordon received the Beta Alpha trophy from Leilani Chubb, and Grace Peters was given the Xi Beta Mu award by Marlene Tilley.

Joanne Shaw, convener of the banquet, was presented with flowers as a token of thanks from the members.

Marg Berry, out-going president of the area council, was given a gavel pin in token of her service by the new president Phyllis Allcorn. Mrs. Berry gave a summary of the past year's sorority activities, and reviewed the council meetings which were held monthly at Glanmore House, in the Susannah Moodie library being refurnished with assistance from Beta Sigma Phi donations.

Ann Landers

'Still Boiling'

Dear Ann Landers: I am still boiling over the letter from that jerk who'd rather eat breakfast downtown than have to look at his wife in the morning.

I have a suggestion for him, and for all the other men who think the way he does. (The idiot who wrote said he saw crowds of husbands eating breakfast in coffee shops and cafes, enjoying the morning paper, and they were there for the same reason.)

Gentlemen: If you don't like the way the old girl looks in the morning, hire a housekeeper and a governess for the children. Your wife can then get up when you do, and while you are showering, shaving and dressing, she can get groomed and join you at the breakfast table looking like Miss America.

If you can't swing it, keep your mouth shut and settle for what's there.—N.Y. Reader

Dear N.Y. Reader: You are also a writer. Thanks for putting it so well. I loved your letter, and so will millions of other average "Morning Grotches."

Dear Ann Landers: I have a simple question and will be as direct as I can because I need a straight answer. Here it is: In your opinion, when a boy and a girl get into heavy petting and this considered "having sex?"

I hope you won't think I am cheap. I'm a 15-year-old girl who needs information. Please grind your answer in the paper. My mother "accidentally" opens my mail and if she got a hold of the answer to this one, I'd die.—Not Dumb, Just Inexperienced

Dear N.D.: In our day (back in the Stone Age, of course) we called it "Roman hands and Russian fingers." The language may have changed somewhat in the last 40 years, but the routine is very much the same.

Manual exploration is not what I would call "having sex" but if a girl allows it, she is bound, to cross over the line from exploration to discovery before long. The Landers Law for staying within reasonable limits is: "Four feet on the floor at all times, and all hands on deck."

Dear Ann Landers: That letter from the girl who couldn't relate her mother, no matter what she tried, could have been written by me 30 years ago.

What kind of mother can't bear a cry for help. She is calling too loudly for help herself. What's more, if she recognizes her daughter as the person who wrote that letter to you, she'll probably beat her down even more.

If the mother can't be gotten in a psychiatrist then the daughter should get a job at least 500 miles away, come home once a year, and stay for five days. Or, she should cut the tie completely and remain sane.—I Cut Them

Dear Cut: I consulted with Dr. George Ulett, a distinguished psychiatrist, and the director of the Chicago Institute of Psychoanalytic. He said: "The question is whether or not removal from an intolerable situation can be of help. Of course it can. However, it is not that simple. The writer suggests a 'parentectomy,' either on a permanent basis or one that lasts 360 days a year. Both the mother and child need help. Perhaps if the child showed some concern for the mother, that concept might serve as a bridge to help them both.

"The cutting of ties, though necessary in some cases, is not solutional. One must be aware that the child who cuts ties may have guilt feelings later in life, especially when he or she becomes a parent."

People and Events

The Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association, Belleville branch, presented a student recital on Saturday, April 27 in Hastings Manor. Attended by Manor residents, parents and piano teachers, the recital featured 40 young local pianists.

Mission work and help for the handicapped were highlights of reports at the Marmora Catholic Women's League annual meeting, given by conveners and the president, Leona Brady.

Recent activities sponsored by the CWL include a card party for senior citizens, convened by Mrs. Brady, assisted by Jean Hanley, Beverley Maloney and Leona Brady.

A special committee headed by Marg Monk and Ina March will give attention to shut-ins in the community.

May 5 will be observed as CWL Sunday, and celebrated with a Mother and Daughter Brunch at which Sister Pauline Lally of Kingston will be guest speaker.

During the business meeting, members voted to send twice-yearly donations to the National Pro-Life fund, and to participate in the local cancer blood drive.

A poverty lunch of bread and cheese was shared by candlelight at the close of the meeting.

The Belleville Unit of the Canadian Cancer Society is forming an Ostomy Club for ostomy patients and any interested people from the Prince Edward and Hastings County area.

The first meeting will be held May 1 at the Cancer Society office at 62 Bridge Street East.

Vern Wannamaker will be president of the club, which will provide a place for people who have had colostomies to meet, discuss problems and share experiences for leading an active and useful life.

The first meeting will be a dinner in Kingston last week.

The Neighbor's Aid of Thurlow met recently for a community meeting in the Hall. Guests for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Garry Denison who showed slides of their recent trip to Africa, and described the many countries they visited.

Quinte Women

Vivian Hannah, Volunteer

Since she began helping out at Belleville General Hospital during World War II, Vivian Hannah has been volunteering her time and energy to others.

A member of the St. John Ambulance Nursing Division for more than 30 years, Miss Hannah is active in many areas of the organization. She assists in the teaching of first aid during classes given by the St. John members, and volunteers her time to the emergency department of the hospital.

She works the Saturday shift from 4 p.m. to midnight and often much later, assisting the nurses and orderlies in their duties. Since this is one of the busiest shifts at the hospital, every available person is needed to keep the department operating smoothly.

On Saturday night many of the emergency cases are accident victims," says Miss Hannah. "Some of the people are pretty badly hurt, and it took a while to get used to seeing blood. It doesn't bother me as much now, but I still feel bad for the people in pain."

Miss Hannah says that she has always had an interest in nursing, although her schooling took her in other directions. However, she has used her spare time for the kind of nursing care that her St. John's training enables her to do.

Miss Hannah has spent much of her time with the aged, as well, at the moment gives daily homenursing care to an elderly woman.

Another way that she makes use of what time she has left is to volunteer her services for canvassing. In the past years she has collected donations for the Heart Fund, Salvation Army and the Cancer Society.

Like other volunteers in Belleville, Miss Hannah says that she assists others simply because she likes people.

"Volunteers work is just as satisfying as if you got paid for what you did," she says. "It's the same good feeling of helping others."

In recognition of her services, Miss Hannah was given a special citation from the Priory of the St. John Ambulance Association. But perhaps her greatest satisfaction comes just from her contact with people. She's often present at hockey games, fairs and races, where her first aid training may be needed.

"I don't have much time for hobbies any more," she says, 'but I'd rather be out doing something useful anyway."

NEW COURSE OFFERED

SASKATOON (CP) — The University of Saskatchewan's department of educational foundations will offer a new course entitled Women and Education next fall. Department head Prof. Irene Poelzer said the course will provide a "critical understanding" of sex roles in education and promote greater realization of female potential.

Women Welcomed

Belleville's Toastmasters are now inviting women to join their public speaking club.

The group, now in its third year, helps members become proficient speakers.

Local president Dick Lloyd points out that Toronto Toastmasters' groups have been successful in extending their membership to include women.

The group meets May 14 at 6.15 p.m. at the Shrine Club.

Successful Living

Family Communication Essential to Happiness

By DORIS CLARK

David thinks that problems that he comes up against on his job belong to him and he ought to solve them. He should not worry his wife or family about them.

Then when he gets home, beeping to himself the news he has just heard — that his firm is being bought out and he is in danger of losing his job he snaps at his wife and children — and no one has any idea why Dad is so up tight.

Eventually Hazel, his wife, discovers from a conversation with a neighbor at the supermarket, about the firm changing hands. But this is not before she and David have had a knock-down-and-drag-out argument, raising voices so that two of the youngsters in bed are seen pulling the covers up over their heads.

This is the story portrayed in a National Film Board film 28 minutes in length. It is a wonderful discussion starter for any group wanting to talk about family relationships.

Titled "David and Hazel, A Story in Communication," Enquire about it at any National Film Board office or your local library.

Dear Doris: I enjoy your column. It's good to know you are a Christian and, I pray, one that has made a commitment to Christ. I'm a new convert, praise the Lord But I have much to learn.

Would love to have the leaflet "Facing Forty." I'm double that and then some but I surely could use some help in facing the bad days and nights.

In Christian Love.

Dear Love: Welcome to the club I don't know how I could be more of a committed Christian than I am, considering the fact that I am willing to let myself be lectured to, via the column, by both believers and nonbelievers in the 17 centres carrying my letters.

Perhaps "Facing Forty" would help a double-forty be having the same physical symptoms, but there is some philosophy there which could help.

Your best help can come from your new spiritual thinking, of course. I am sorry about the "bad and sad nights". One friend of mine, now nearing 80, says emphatically, "Growing old is no job for a sissy." Ain't it the truth

Dear Doris: Do you know where I could get my breasts enlarged? I realize that breast enlargement is becoming more common today.

I am also curious about the different procedures of breast enlargement.

Hopeful.

Dear Hopeful: Have you asked your family doctor? He can refer you to a specialist who does this type of surgery.

It is "more common" than not at all, maybe but recently limited to persons whose living makes it important to have attractive curves, like dancers, some actresses, and others who perform for the public.

Golden Wedding

Saturday, April 13, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Franklin celebrated the 50th anniversary of their wedding, with a reception for family and friends at their home in Queensboro. A dinner was held at the Queensboro Women's Institute Hall for immediate relatives.

The couple was married at the manse in 1924, by the late Rev J. G. Nussey, and have lived in their present address since, except for two years when they lived near Sudbury.

Mr. Franklin, born in Minto Township, is a self-employed carpenter and trapper. Mrs. Franklin (formerly Catharina Clemens) born in Lommel, Belgium, came to Canada in 1913.

The couple have one son William, of Havelock, and one daughter Betty LaPalm, of Madoc. They also have eight grandchildren and six great-grandchildren, all of whom were present at the reception.

The couple received many gifts, and a provincial plaque was presented during the reception by Clarke T. Rollins, MPP Hastings. Greetings were received from Premier William Davis.

WINS BLACK BELT

AGINCOURT, Ont. (CP) — Jeannie Pascale Booker, 33, is the first woman in North America to hold an honorary black belt in kyokushinkai, a style of karate which stresses development of the mind. A mother of four who has studied karate for only a year, she says she is behind her 15-year-old daughter in physical skill.

50th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Walker of RR 1 Corbyville celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently.

The couple were married April 9 1924 in Carnilton by Rev. Ross Farnsworth. Mrs. Walker is the former Marie Cole.

The six Walker children are Phyllis Elmy of Belleville, Elsie Swetnam of Niagara Falls, Patricia Cole of Stirling, and sons Lyle of Ottawa, Bruce of Orillia and Ralph of Corbyville. Mr. and Mrs. Walker also have 14 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker farmed until 1956, when Mr. Walker began employment at the Foxboro Co-operative, from which he retired in 1970.

A family dinner was served in St. Mark's United Church, Carnilton, to celebrate the occasion, and an At Home in the afternoon was attended by 130 friends and relatives. The United Church Women served the meal and the tea on these occasions.

30,000 Quebec Workers Join May Day Rallies

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 30,000 Quebec workers answered the call Wednesday to mark May Day with walkouts, work stoppages and rallies to protest inflation, demand reopening of contracts and show union solidarity.

Police estimated that 10,000 persons staged a mile-long march before hearing speeches in a park and attending a rally at a nearby auditorium.

The heads of Quebec's three largest labor federations, Louis Laberge of the Quebec Federation of Labor, Yvon Charbonneau of the Quebec Teachers Corporation and Marcel Pepin of the Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU), addressed about 1,000 workers and students at east-end Lafontaine Park.

The three federations represent about 500,000 workers.

Speakers in Montreal and at other rallies emphasized demands for a $1,000 bonus for 155,000 public service employees.

Union spokesmen estimated 10,000 workers staged work stoppages or walkouts in Montreal.

Included were 4,000 employees at 12 hospitals. Most stoppages lasted half an hour, but two shifts of about 700 nurses and paramedical staff at St. Jean de Dieu Hospital walked out for the day.

Rotating walkouts were staged by production and journalists' unions at the Montreal CBC headquarters and resulted in cancellation of evening television and radio newscasts.

Municipal employees in nearby Laval, Brossard and Chambly walked out as did 350 employees of the Montreal Urban Community Transit Commission.

About 1,200 workers left their jobs at six metal plants, and hundreds of union members staged work stoppages at plants manufacturing paper boxes and at natural gas plants.

In Quebec City, more than 2,000 workers were absent from schools, hospitals and industries. More than 500 gathered at the CNTU headquarters.

Meanwhile, Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer said Quebec is ready to designate May 1 as the official workers' holiday, replacing Labor Day, "if this is the choice of the workers."

The three major union leaders were in Joliette, a town of 20,000 about 40 miles northeast of Montreal, to address an afternoon rally but found the meeting site deserted. A later "people's celebration" drew about 1,000 workers and students.

Union spokesmen said about 8,500 workers at Joliette, where several long strikes have occurred during the last year, took the day off. About 6,000 students joined the walkout.

Student Job-hunters Will Number 400,000

TORONTO (CP) — Francis Minifer, a first-year law student at University of Toronto, is better than most of the 1.3 million students in Canada—including about 700,000 graduate students—seeking summer work or full employment.

Mr. Minifer, who got his real estate licence at a community college between university classes, said he hopes to make about $5,000 during the summer.

School Students Getting Hooked On Computers

So involved have they become that teachers are reporting scattered incidents of having to interrupt students to send them home at night.

A 23-school computer network went into operation last Sept. 17 and in its first three months of operation processed more than 120,000 programs.

Education Minister Ben Hanuschak says the network success has been an "encouraging experience" for his department.

"It has introduced students outside Winnipeg to computer science and data processing, helping students and teachers in several parts of the province to appreciate the working and potential of the computer."

A central computer is located in Winnipeg and each of the 23 schools on the network through-out the province has a terminal comprising a card reader and printer that can process student programs. The terminals are all hooked into the central computer and provide instant transmission and delivery of programs.

About 2,000 students are involved in the use of the terminals included several junior high schools where students are taking computer science on their own time.

selling homes here, where prices have skyrocketed in the brisk housing market. Last year, he made $2,700 in commissions by selling four houses.

Ontario's youth secretariat expects up to 400,000 students will be seeking jobs in the province this summer.

A spokesman for the secretariat said it has already received 10 applications for every one of the 7,400 jobs being offered under the province's $8-million program for student jobs.

And Canada Manpower officials are guarded in forecasting the number of jobs available for students this summer, saying only that the situation should be "slightly better" than last year when 7.9 per cent of all students were without jobs.

That means that if the situation doesn't improve much this year, up to 100,000 Canadian students might not be able to find summer jobs, manpower officials said. Close to 25,000 of them would be in Ontario.

Ministry of manpower officials said they based their forecast on a canvass of Canada's part—$30.5 million to create 700 largest employers regarding their requirements which is carried out in December, with a further check in May.

Officials said they were unsure whether student job prospects have improved, with the easing of the energy crisis and the continuation of the industrial boom.

Despite these somewhat gloomy predictions, there are indications that jobs will be more plentiful than last year.

David Carney, director of University of Toronto's student placement centre, said jobs are running about 10 to 15 per cent ahead of the same time last year.

He said there has been more on-campus recruiting this year and more students getting jobs on their own or returning to previous jobs.

William Pitton of York University's placement centre agreed with Mr. Carney, saying he thought the student employment situation is better than last year.

Ottawa is pouring $86 million into student employment this summer to employ 46,300 directly and to help find jobs for another 370,000.

The Opportunities for Youth program will get the biggest job-creating boost here, with 700 jobs for 24,000 who will average $90 a week in pay.

ADVANTAGE TO CRISIS

NEW YORK (AP) — The energy crisis is bringing a return to the era of written communication, says Harry Cooper, executive director of the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers. Mr. Cooper says the rising cost of gasoline is keeping social visits to a minimum and people are relying on greeting cards and letters.

BBC Show Depicts Life of Real Family

LONDON (CP) — The British public, which loves nothing better than a marathon soap opera on radio or television, now has a real-life version of Coronation Street and Mrs. Dale's Diary to keep it glued to the box each week.

It's called The Family, and chronicles the daily life in intimate, supposedly unrehearsed detail of a bus-driver named Terry Wilkins in Reading, Berkshire, his wife Margaret and their four children aged 9 to 16. Daughter Marian, 19, is living in the same room as lodger Tom Barnes and trying unsuccessfully to get him to name the day—a gift of a sub-plot to producer Paul Watson.

The BBC, which is running the Wilkins saga over 13 weeks, chose Reading as a representative working-class town within easy reach of London and the BBC studios, and then advertised for families willing to be put under the camera-eye. About 50 replies flowed in, but not all were serious applications.

The Wilkinses, by all accounts, are sturdy, humorous individuals who seem unlikely to crack under the strain of TV exposure as did the Loud family of California in a similar American program.

Some critics have doubts about this and about the morality of the TV public acting as "voyeurs," but at least one found the first episode a surprisingly enjoyable experience.

"The most unexpected thing is that it is superbly successful and delicately done," writes Nancy Banks-Smith of The Guardian, often an abrasive critic of such family soap-operas.

She finds the Wilkins family "genuinely funny and glorious" and says the mother came out with one spontaneous line that scriptwriters would fight each other for.

Mrs. Wilkins was talking to daughter Marian, who opined that Tom, her intended, was "a bit thick."

"He's not thick," replied Mum smartly. "Otherwise you wouldn't still be engaged. You'd be married to him."

Early in the first episode, Mrs. Wilkins informed the watching millions that her youngest, Christopher, aged 9, wasn't her husband's child. Added the candid Mrs. W:

Such eager disclosures prompt The Daily Telegraph's critic, Sean Day-Lewis, to wonder what it is about television that draws so many people to offer themselves to the public gaze upon it. He quotes a favorite British TV story, generally supposed to be true, about a well-known public figure who was asked if he would appear on a discussion program for a fee of £25.

He wrote back that he would be delighted, and enclosed his cheque for £25.

Day-Lewis puts the whole phenomenon down to "a hidden urge to undress in public." The Wilkins family, he says, "are doing a three-month streak before the entire nation without fear of arrest."

The family, he reports, seems undaunted by the prospect of cameras following them at all times—stopping only just short of the bathroom—and indeed, seems almost oblivious of their presence. But he confesses to a "feeling of queasiness" about the whole concept.

His misgivings are shared by Elizabeth Cowley of The Evening Standard.

There is a niggling doubt," she writes. "Ought we to enjoy being a nation of voyeurs?"

Conceding that the program may turn out a valuable historical dossier on the life and times of a typical "silent majority" family of the 1970s, she says that even if the experience doesn't break up the Wilkinses as it did their American counterparts, "they are absolutely bound to be

Book of Records Has Set Record

LONDON (CP) — The next edition of the Guinness Book of Records, due out in October, will include itself among the world record-holders for the first time. Its publishers say it now has higher commercial sales than any British book has ever had.

Worldwide sales up to last year were some 19 million, second only to the 24 million of Dr. Benjamin Spock on baby and child care.

The 1971 Guinness Book of Records sold some 4.8 million copies, said Norris McWhirter, co-editor and compiler of the book with his brother Ross. That meant, he said, the book was due to pass Dr. Spock's record within two years and become the world best-seller among commercial titles.

The best seller of all time remains the Bible, with sales since the year 1800 estimated at well over one billion. A New Testament in modern English sold some 30,000,000 from 1967 to November, 1971.

The Guinness Book of Records was launched 18 years ago with backing from the Guinness brewing group. It now is published in 15 languages. Last year the United States edition sold 2.8 million in hard and soft covers, and the McWhirters toured North America this year to promote the next edition.

Among other records the publishers claim for the book are those for the highest hard-cover sales in Britain—858,000 last year—and for the highest foreign-currency earning commercial book title ever.

Old Cathedral To Get Modern Alarm System

Authorities will place more than 80 smoke detectors and six heat detectors unobtrusively in the cathedral—even, covering the top of the 400-foot spire. Many of the detectors will be suspended by adjustable balyards about 130 feet above the nave, choir and transept.

The control unit will be in an ornate casing made by cathedral carpenters to blend with its surroundings.

Should a fire start, the system will set off alarm bells and automatically call the fire department. Alarms will also ring in the homes of the head verger and chief security officer.

Federal Laws Hamper Curbs on Land Sales

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The ownership of Canadian land by aliens is being re-examined in three western provinces, but spokesmen for some provincial governments say federal laws hamper their power to restrict it.

Premier Dave Barrett of British Columbia told the legislature Monday that despite a loophole in the federal Citizenship Act allowing aliens to buy land in Canada, his government will "find some way" to curb foreign investment in B.C. real estate.

In Saskatchewan, a government bill to restrict non-resident ownership of farmland was approved in principle last week and sent into clause-by-clause examination.

However, farmers who live within 20 miles of the province's borders will be allowed to sell land to certain Americans if Canadian buyers cannot be found.

Agriculture Minister John Messer said the exception would not have been made had the federal government brought in a minor constitutional amendment enabling the province to extend the exemption only to nearby Manitoba and Alberta farmers.

The ownership of Saskatchewan's farmland by non-residents is not yet a serious problem, said Mr. Messer, but the bill will prevent the percentage of foreign-owned land from growing.

"The freedom of a few individuals will be restricted for the greatest good of the whole group."

Manitoba was the only western province in which there appeared to be no moves under way to re-evaluate foreign ownership policy.

Sc. V. A. Wood, chairman of an Alberta committee studying the question of foreign ownership, said there are doubts whether restricting land sales is right.

Mr. Wood, whose committee will hold public hearings in 1975, said an outright ban would hit at thousands of U.S. citizens living in Canada and invite retaliation by the U.S. government.

In British Columbia, Premier Barrett said legislation there will distinguish between foreign investment in real estate speculation and industrial development which he said bolsters the economy and will continue to be welcome.

DOLLS STILL SELL

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's expensive traditional dolls are selling well despite inflationary price increases. Sets of 15 handmade, silk-robed members of a miniature imperial court cost $113 this year compared with $138 in 1973.

Leger Wonders If News Presentation Threatens Concern

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian publishers were asked Wednesday by Gov.-Gen. Jules Leger to ponder whether existing news presentation risks further erosion of spiritual concern, with special impact on youth.

"The means at your disposal to convey the image of the world may well have exceeded the human spirit's capacity to absorb," the Governor-General told the annual dinner of The Canadian Press.

Scenes of death or torture, "which once revolted us, leave us more and more indifferent as they become increasingly present," he said.

Perhaps the arsenal of news delivery systems by radio, television, newspapers and magazines had produced a "saturation point in our ability to absorb information, especially in North America. Nothing human or inhuman seems to escape notice."

Gov.-Gen. Leger, visiting his seventh provincial capital since taking office Jan. 14 and making his first public address, suggested youth has reached a crossroads.

"We seem to be moving into a stage of indifference, particularly noticeable among young people, who withdraw to reject from a society that presents them with this vision of the world," he said.

It was a contagious view already affecting all sectors from politics to the churches.

"Youth shares this indifference what they are, it is doubtful it once but, young people being can last."

Panic Won't Deflate Society

By HARRY MULHALL

Greater productivity is the only answer to inflation, Bryce Mackasey, former manpower minister said Wednesday night.

Increased manufacturing capacity and more skilled manpower are the keys to higher productivity, he told the annual meeting of the federal Hastings Liberal Association at Club Canara, as he wound down an active day in the city.

In many instances more production may call for increased technology so industry could stay competitive and thus create future jobs.

Unemployment insurance could help take up the slack in such cases if those drawing benefits weren't stigmatized and the government's insurance system blamed for labor shortage.

Lack of initiative by business is not expanding some years ago has added to present employment difficulties, said Mr. Mackasey. It has helped produce a situation in which productive capacity has been reached before industry was able to absorb all the workers available.

The answer to the inflation dilemma is "not to panic," but to guard against profiteering and price-gouging while ensuring there is honest competition.

A "few good convictions" would be what Canadians might need to "restore their confidence in the government ..." he said.

He criticized various proposals for attempting to solve inflation — including price-wage controls, which he called a "very outmoded, simplistic" method that has never worked.

The swiftness with which the government moved to impose an oil export tax against large American corporations, was one example, of government action against inflation, he said.

Mr. Mackasey, MP for Verdun who resigned from the Liberal Cabinet following the 1972 election, defended the present unemployment insurance system which he introduced as labor minister. It was also during his ministry that the regional Unemployment Insurance Commission computer pay centre — now employing about 600 — was moved to Bellville from Toronto.

Unemployment Insurance has stimulated and stabilized the economy when money was being withheld during labor, said Mr. Mackasey.

"If it weren't for the $2 billion that was re-injected into the economy in 1973 through unemployment insurance benefits we might have been in one of the worst recessions or depressions, in Canadian history," he said.

He recalled the make-work programs of the 1930s depression to criticize the "old, outmoded concept that nobody must get anything unless he works by the sweat of his brow.

"Sure there are lazy bums on unemployment insurance," agreed Mr. Mackasey. "But "there are people who are unemployed because of no fault of their own.

"In the midst of our affluence let us not forget there is another side to our society. Believe it or not, there has an jobless rate running around three per cent, compared to 18 or 11 per cent in some of Canada's be said.

The presence of the UIC means 600 pay cheques for the city.

"Would you like to see those 600 cheques go back to Toronto every week?" he queried. "No you wouldn't. "The spending is good for Belleville. They don't like the spending of unemployment cheques in Conestoga, good in the dead of winter, or in some other small community. Of course it's good."

Mackasey defends UIC staff, computers

Bryce Backs UIC Efforts

Bryce Mackasey, former manpower minister responsible for transferring the regional Unemployment Insurance Commission offices from Toronto to Belleville, Wednesday night defended its officials and computer system from political criticism.

Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, has repeatedly called for an inquiry into operations of the commission itself, producing documents to support charges of inefficiency in computer operations.

Mr. Mackasey told the annual meeting of Hastings Riding Liberal Association, he chose Belleville for the regional operation over competition from other Ontario centres.

He described his decision this way: "I settled for Belleville, battened down the hatches — and I never regretted the move.

"And if Jack Ellis wants to chase you out of Belleville then he's a lot dumber than I thought he was," he added.

"I don't know anyone who ever introduced computerization into any operation that didn't have a very difficult time in breaking in their computer program."

He said the way UIC employees had handled the "mammoth job" involved in the changeover was a tribute to public servants across Canada.

After-The-Speeches Chat

Bryce Mackasey, former manpower minister (centre) relaxes at wine and cheese party after speeches at annual federal Hastings Liberal Association meeting in Club Canara Wednesday night. Named to executive were Gaye Post, vice president, and Frank Chapman, president.

Ellis Pressing Probe

OTTAWA — Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, said Wednesday here he is seeking information on what he believes are "dramatic" increases in the upper-echelon staff of Canada Manpower and the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

As a result he placed several questions on the Commons order paper asking for a complete listing of all increase in headquarters staffs of both divisions of the manpower ministry.

"My understanding is the top-level staff has grown fantastically, while the civil servants in the front lines again are getting little support and backup," he said.

East End Townhouses Run Into Another Snag

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

A proposed 86-unit condominium townhouse development in Belleville's east end ran into another snag Wednesday as an Ontario Municipal Board (OMB) hearing was forced to adjourn to await formal city council approval of a site plan.

The adjournment marks the second time the OMB hearing has been cut short due to lack of necessary approvals prior to issuance of building permits.

Nine months ago, hearings were suspended when OMB officials learned the development had not received draft plan of subdivision approval from the provincial ministry of intergovernmental affairs.

Ministerial approval has now been received, but the latest holdup is likely to delay a construction start for several months.

Proposed by developer-builder Maurice H. Rollins approximately three years ago, plans call for construction of 80 townhousing units on a 4.86 acre site east of Elizabeth Crescent, and south of Bridge St. East. On the north end, 31 single family dwellings are proposed.

The August 2, 1972, hearing was originally called to gain approval for a city rezoning application. Yesterday's continuation was put off indefinitely.

Wednesday, request for adjournment by city solicitor John Miller came after the OMB pointed out the developer is not obligated to agree to build as has been proposed to date.

Neither the city's rezoning by-law nor an existing developer's agreement outlines the specifics of the proposed development.

Hearing chairman W. H. Thompson said: "There is so much that's left undone that all the public knows is a change from R2 to R4G zoning has been made. That doesn't give them an opportunity to exercise their rights."

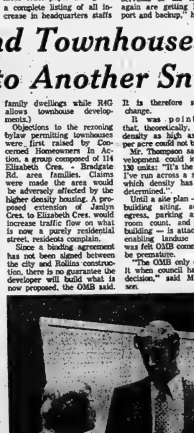
Objections to the rezoning by-law permitting townhouses were first raised by Concerned Homeowners In Action, a group composed of 114 Elizabeth Cres. - Bradgate Rd. area families. Claims were made the area would be adversely affected by the higher density housing. A proposed extension of Jaslyn Cres. to Elizabeth Cres. would increase traffic flow on what is now a purely residential street, residents complain.

Since a binding agreement has not been signed between the city and Rollins construction, there is no guarantee the developer will build what is now proposed, the OMB said.



It is therefore subject to change.

It was pointed out that, theoretically, a housing density as high as 27 units per acre could not be built.

Mr. Thompson said the development could increase to 130 units: "It's the first time I've run across a situation in which density has not been determined."

Until a site plan — outlining building siting, access and egress, parking areas, bedroom count, and units per building — is attached to the enabling landuse bylaw, it was felt OMB comment would be premature.

"The OMB only comes into it when council has made a decision," said Mr. Thompson.

Getting the Word

Solicitor Douglas Boyle receives instructions from client Vera Helmbach, Concerned Homeowners in Action representative, during an Ontario Municipal Board hearing Wednesday. Reconvened at city hall, the hearing was indefinitely adjourned after OMB officials objected to the lack of specific information surrounding the proposed 80-unit Maurice H. Rollins condominium townhouse development east of Elizabeth Crescent.

Angus Duffy, Quinte Emergency Measures Co-ordinator, uses a radiation detection kit to check an OPP office for radiation exposure in the Quinte Mall parking lot following an accident on Highway 37 involving a courier truck carrying medical isotopes. None of the people who visited exposure registered a danger reading of over 2.5 milli-roentgens. The truck was guarded in the lot after it was removed from a ditch to prevent possible exposure from the truck's lead-lined contents.

Radioactive Truck Wasn't!

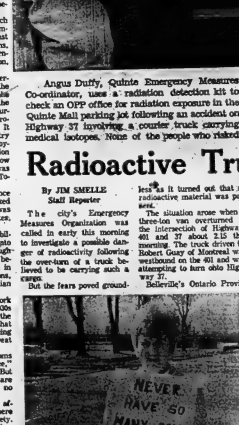
By JIM SMELLE
Staff Reporter

The city's Emergency Measures Organization was called in early this morning to investigate a possible danger of radioactivity following the over-turn of a truck believed to be carrying such a cargo.

But the fears proved groundless as it turned out that no radioactive material was present.

The situation arose when a three-ton van overturned at the intersection of Highways 401 and 37 about 2.15 this morning. The truck driven by Robert Geary of Montreal was westbound on the 401 and was attempting to turn onto Highway 37.

Belleville's Ontario Provincial Police detachment, who investigated the accident, said the driver told them his brakes failed as he was making the turn. The OPP said they believed the driver's destination was Toronto and he may have turned to stop for a rest.



The truck was owned by the Purolator Courier Ltd. Company of Toronto and was carrying a general cargo of insurance bags and medicines, a spokesman for the company said today.

The concern arose when labels warning of radioactive danger were observed. Angus Duffy of the EMO was called in by the OPP to investigate the situation and was on stand-by in case anything occurred.

Col. Duffy used a Geiger counter to check the truck, impounded in the Quinte Mall parking lot.

The concern proved groundless as the Purolator company official explained that the cargo being carried was not radioactive and that radioactive material is carried only on weekends and even then only in small loads in a way to withstand anything short of an explosion.

To Paraphrase . .

This picket in front of International Hardware (Corbin' Lock) on Coleman Street, paraphrases a famous Winston Churchill quotation to air her views. She was one of about 30 office workers at the plant who manned picket lines this morning in front of the plant to back demands for higher wages. They were joined by about 240 production workers who stayed off their jobs when they refused to cross picket lines.

Corbin Lock Strike Latest

By JIM SMELLE
Staff Reporter

International Hardware (Corbin Lock) became the third city manufacturing company to be on strike when 30 office workers manned picket lines this morning to back demands for more pay.

By doing so, they join strikes still continuing at Stewart-Warner and Black Diamond.

The office workers, mostly women, are members of Local 4, International Moulders and Allied Workers, who manned picket lines at 7.30 this morning and were joined by about 240 production workers at the plant, members of Local 428, IMAW, who refused to cross their picket line.

The office workers are protesting a slowdown in negotiations and any settlement would result in a first contract for them.

Shirley Mott, secretary of the union committee said the office workers, didn't cite any particular figure when asked how much of a wage increase they were seeking.

"All we want is a decent wage. The average weekly wage here now is about $77," she said. "We turned down a company offer of an increase of $3 or $4 a week."

Howard Hannon, vice-president of manufacturing at the company, said this morning: "What we have here is an illegal strike. We have the office workers with a wildcat strike and other workers refusing to cross picket lines.

"They say negotiations have broken down. We're still in the negotiating stage," said Mr. Hannon.

This strike brings to nine the number of strikes to hit the Quinte area in the past three months.

Support Batawa Strikers

The Quinte and District Labor Council announced this week its support for the strike of Local 1728, International Association of Machinists (IAM), a Council affiliate, against Bata Engineer in Batawa.

Doug Sword, president of the council, condemned Bata Shoe Industries for strike breaking tactics it is appearing they were using.

R. and M. Leasing, a non-union truck leasing firm from Belleville is being used by Bata to move material across the picket lines said Mr. Sword.

Mr. Sword said, "It is unfortunate that the company has to resort to the use of strike breakers to try to break this legal strike."

Chapman Re-elected

Frank Chapman, Belleville secondary school teacher, Wednesday night was re-elected president of the federal Hastings Riding (federal) Association.

Other executives members: Norman Calnan; Gaye Post, vice-presidents; Ken Seemungal, secretary; Kerry Soden, treasurer; Yvonne Herrington, Rusty Scott, youth vice-presidents.

Former election candidates also were named honorary presidents. They were A. McLean Hall, Frank Foxwell, Robert Temple, and Dr. D.C. McVicker, of Deseronto.

Wanted: Extras

The Star Festival production of Peter Devil's Jacobie is seeking local actors as extras in its Belleville production May 3-5.

Auditions will be held May 8 at Centennial Secondary School at 8 p.m. The auditions are by appointment only through collect telephone calls to : Miss Mitchell, Shaw Festival, 416-468-2153.

Three Respond When Needed, Toros Lead 3-2

TORONTO (CP) — Jack Gibson, Brit Selby and Billy Orr got a little more ice time Wednesday night, much to the regret of Chicago Cougars.

They scored a goal apiece to lead Toronto Toros to a 5-3 triumph over the Cougars and a 3-2 advantage in their best-of-seven World Hockey Association semi-final series.

The sixth game will be played Saturday night in Chicago with the seventh, if necessary, in Toronto Monday. The winner meets Houston Aeros, who eliminated Minnesota Fighting Saints with a 3-1 decision Wednesday in the final.

Orr, a defenceman, scored his first goal of the playoffs at 3:46 of the first period to give the Toros a 1-0 lead. Selby made it 2-0 after lagging a pass from Gibson.

The teams were tied 3-3 until Selby scored his first goal of the playoffs at 5:02 of the final period. Guy Trudeau clinched the win at 12:08.

Toronto coach Billy Harris said Gibson, Orr and Selby haven't been playing much, "but they are there when we need them."

"It's a credit to them they have kept themselves in shape and have come up big for us."

Playing-coach Pat Stapleton of the Cougars was unhappy with referee Brent Casselman.

"We had him for one game in the New England series and I wasn't satisfied with his work then."

Stapleton sicked up a 10-minute misconduct at 2:11 of the first period for protesting a disputed penalty call. Before his comolaint, Casselman had given minor penalties to Daryl Sittler, Eric Prescesky, Rick Morris and Larry Mavety of the Cougars, and a minor to Brian Gibbons of the Toros.

Over-all, the Cougars received a major, three misconducts and 13 minors for 61 minutes. The Toros were assessed a major and 10 minor penalties.

The Toros outshot the visitors 34-25.

TIGER OUT OF ACTION

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Tiger pitcher Lake Walker has been placed on the 21-day disabled list as a result of a head injury he received during an exhibition game at Cincinnati April 22. The 30-year-old southpaw was struck above the left ear by a line drive hit by Reds catcher Johnny Bench.

DENNIS HULL

Received Special Attention

Hull, suffering from a muscle spasm in his back, tried to play early in the game, but after absorbing a couple stiff checks, he retired to the bench because of the pain.

"I'll admit we picked on him when he was in there for that short time," said Guidolin.

The Bruins won the game 4-3 to eliminate the Hawks four games to two in the best-of-seven National Hockey League semi-final.

Burns Sparks Bears

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Robin Burns scored two third-period goals in less than eight minutes to spark Hershey Bears to a come-from-behind 3-2 win over Providence Reds in an American Hockey League playoff game Wednesday night.

Hershey leads the best-of-seven final 3-0.

The next two games will be played in Providence, Friday and Sunday.

Hershey has won nine straight playoff games, tying a league record.

Aeros Move to Final

ST. PAUL, Minn. (CP) — A Howe sitting in the penalty box disputed goal by rookie centre Jim Sherritt lifted Houston Aeros to a 3-2 victory Wednesday night over Minnesota Fighting Saints and into the World Hockey Association final.

The Aeros, who took the best-of-seven semi-final 4-2, will meet the winner of the Toronto-Chicago series.

Houston and Minnesota were tied 11 until Sherritt scored at 9:06 of the third period. Goalie Mike Curran of the Saints was ejected with a game misconduct after he knocked referee Bob Sloan to the ice while protesting the goal.

Curran appeared to have the puck trapped beneath his glove about six inches out from the goal line. But Sherritt jammed his stick beneath the glove and shoved the puck into the net.

"The puck was loose," Sherritt said. "Ore of their defencemen slammed me from behind and when I was falling, I got my stick on the puck."

"I had control of the puck under my stick glove," Curra said. "It was incompetency on Sloan's part."

Curran, expecting a whistle on the play, was incensed when the red light flashed on signalling a goal. He charged Sloan and fell on top of the referee.

Mark Howe scored the other Houston goals, his second of the game, into an empty net with John Garrett pulled for an extra attacker and father Gordie assisted.

Howe, game, but failed to penetrate the goaltending of Don McLeod. Minnesota coach Harry Neale credited McLeod with being big factor in Houston series win.

"Our problem was the inability of our power play to score as often as we did during the regular season. When we did get a decent shot, McLeod stopped us."

"I've never been happier to see a goal go in," said Gordie.

Ted Hampson was the lone Minnesota scorer. He put the Saints ahead 1-0 in the second period on a brilliant individual effort.

The Saints, who had a 2-1 lead in the series, put on the pressure in the final 1:42 of the

John Sheppard Has His Day

By ALAN TEBWORTH

It may not be as prestigious as the famous Boston Marathon, which he competed in two weeks ago, but for John Sheppard, a 17-year-old Grade 12 student at Quinte Secondary School, the winning of this year's Ken Colling Road Race has meant the fulfilling of a goal.

Finishing eleventh in his first year of competition three years ago, he moved up to fifth last year, taking this year's 28th edition of the race in 22 minutes, 31.2 seconds over the four-mile course.

The record 22 minutes, 2.5 seconds, held by Paul Cory of Picton, set in 1970, was never really in jeopardy due to the strong winds which hampered the runners on the home stretch, along Victoria Avenue westward.

Sheppard used a strategy of hanging back for the middle part of the race after leading for the opening quarter. Taking the lead at the start, from BCI, he led until Parrot Drive, relinquishing the lead at that point to Dave Peckham of Brighton, and also allowing Bruce Lowry, of Trenton, and Barry Ray, of Quinte to pass him, but staying close just the same, about 15 yards behind the three.

He then regained the lead in front of the YMCA on Victoria Avenue, making use of his long hours of training for the Boston Marathon, which he ran 42nd under three and one half hours about two weeks ago.

At the finish he led his closest rival by about 10 yards. That closest rival was Ray, also of Quinte. Following Ray was Peckham of Brighton, Mike Taylor of Trenton, Bruce Lowry, also of THS, Paul Havman of Moira, and Terry MacKellar, the third Trenton man in the top seven.

Race convener Brian MacKenzie, head of the physical education department at BCI commented "It was one of the closest finishes ever for the top few runners. It looked more like the finish of the 400 metres, not a four mile run."

Over 90 entries were received for the 28th running of the race, although next year the total may jump substantially.

For the first time in the race's history, girls will be allowed to compete in 1975, although they will have to be recommended by their physical education instructor and principal. Cleo Colling made the announcement prior to the start of the race.

Softball Clinics Scheduled

Tips from the top.

Or — if we explain it to you now, perhaps you won't give us an argument during the season.

The fact is, the Belleville and District Umpires Association has clinics planned for three days, beginning Friday.

Umpire in chief Gerald Murphy has the welcome mat out for all coaches and players, as well as aspiring game officials.

Clinics are scheduled for, the Quinte Tennis and Skating Club, corner of Dufferin and Queen St., Friday, from 6-10 p.m.; Saturday, 9 a.m.-12 noon and Sunday, 9 a.m.-12.30 p.m.

The program is well timed. Softball will mark its official return to the sports scene Monday, May 13 when the Belleville Industrial League swings into action.

PANTHER MARTIN* SONIC LURES make great fishermen
Great fishermen use great lures which catch the big ones. The Panther Martin Sonic Lure sends out a signal that fish can't resist! There's no comparison to traditional bait, because the Panther Martin* works on a new principle. It sends oil, hydrosonic waves that bring the fish right to it, even when they can't see it. It's also always at a 40° angle for super action. Nine sizes to choose from; one for every type of fish and fisherman.

Flyer Goalie Earns Praise From Rangers

By AL McNEIL ...

NEW YORK (CP) — It's the travelling that bugs Bernie Parent. He doesn't care how many games he plays in goal for Philadelphia Flyers.

Parent, one of the reasons why the Flyers have a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final series with New York Rangers, led the National Hockey League during the regular season with 12 shutouts.

He shared the Vezina trophy as the top goaltender with Tony Esposito of Chicago Black Hawks and set records for most wins, 47, most starts, 73, and most minutes played, 4,314.

The 28-year-old native of Montreal will undoubtedly be the key man in Madison Square Gardens tonight when the Rangers and Flyers battle in the ninth game of their series. The game is scheduled for 8 p.m. EDT and will be televised by CBC.

Asked if playing 73 of 78 regular-season games plus all nine playoff matches wasn't too much of a strain on a goaltender, Parent said:

"Not unless the games are back to back or if there's a lot of travel involved. Sometimes the travelling is as hard as playing a game."

The Flyers gained the edge Tuesday night with a 4-1 win after dropping a pair of games in New York, a city which has been the scene of only one victory for Philadelphia in its seven-season history.

"We could have been off and running in that first period and maybe second if it hadn't been for him."

Coach Fred Shero said he seldom asks Parent to practice unless there is a three-or four-day layoff between games.

"Generally he'll come to me and tell me when he wants to work," Shero said.

So far Shero's system with his goaltender said off, and observers agree that had it not been for Parent, the Flyers would not hold their current advantage.

While the Flyers outshot the Rangers 53-49 in the first two games of the series, New York held a 76-35 advantage in the next two. Each team had 28 shots in the fifth game, giving the Rangers a 153-116 over-all edge.

Smiths Falls in Final, Thanks to Rocky Menard

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Outstanding goaltending from Rocky Menard proved to be the difference Wednesday night as Smiths Falls Bears came from behind three times to defeat Thunder Bay Hurricanes 7-5 and win their eastern Centennial Cup hockey series 4-3.

Smiths Falls will play host beginning Saturday in a best-of-seven to Schlirkl, Man., in the national final.

HEAD NOT BROKEN

BOSTON (AP) — Second baseman Doug Griffin of Boston Red Sox, struck above the ear by a pitch during an American League baseball game Tuesday night at Fenway Park, was moved from intensive care Wednesday. He suffered a concussion but no fracture when hit by the pitch from California Angels' Nolan Ryan.

Thunder Bay, of the Midwest Junior League, was the stronger team from the outset of the game and Menard was the only thing that kept Hurricanes from soundly thumping the Central Junior League representatives.

The Hurricanes outshot the Bears 18-7 in the first period and 14-1 during the first 15 minutes of the second period and only managed a 4-3 lead.

The Hurricanes built up a 2-1 lead at the end of the first period with the first and last goals of the frame, but Robertson tied the count at 2-2 after stealing the puck from a Thunder Bay defenceman and walking in alone on Prokopchuk.

Jorgelfson on a power-play and Venasky, with his second of the night, put the home club two goals ahead before Corkran's first goal off a three-on-one breakaway cut the margin to one.

Fournier was left alone in front of the Hurricane net and led the area early in the final frame. Thunder Bay again took the lead on a power-play, but the Bears scored three unanswered goals to gain the victory.

Horse He Didn't Want Will Be in the Field

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Trainer Frank (Pancho) Martin, whose Sham finished second to Secretariat last year, will try to win Saturday's 100th Kentucky Derby with Rube The Great, a colt he didn't want.

"We bought Accipiter; we didn't want this horse," said Martin during stabling at Rube The Great, which has turned out to be a triple stakes winner this year.

Sigmond Sommer, who owned Sham, bought Accipiter from the estate of James Cox Brady and had to buy Rube The Great and a filly named Tourniquette as part of the deal.

Rube The Great and Accipiter were entered Wednesday for Saturday's 1¼-mile classic at Churchill Downs, as were Judger, Cannonade and Hudson County.

About 18 other three-year-olds were expected to be entered by the deadline today.

No more than 14 can start in the Derby under a rule passed Wednesday by the Kentucky racing commission. The intention is to prevent the race ever being split into divisions by too large a field.

Downs officials would have to tell some owners they cannot start if more than 24 are entered, but the situation was not expected to occur this year.

MADRID TEAM FINED

GENEVA (AP) — Atletico Madrid has been fined $30,000 and reprimanded by the Union of European Football Associations for unsportsmanlike behavior in the European Cup semi-final soccer game against Glasgow Celtic in April. A UEFA spokesman said the fine, "by far" the largest in Europe, was imposed because of violent conduct of Atletico players and officials "which caused serious incidents after the game," when spectators, police and players fought on the field.

Ellis Matches Record He Could Do Without

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pittsburgh Pirates pitcher Dock Ellis hit the first three Cincinnati Reds batters Wednesday night, causing some discomfort as he tied a major league record.

"I've never seen anyone that wild," said manager Sparky Anderson of the Reds' after. Ellis' control problems led to a 5-3 National League baseball victory over the Pirates.

Pete Rose, Joe Morgan and Dan Driessen were struck in the back by Ellis pitches and that tied a record held by eight others. Emerson Hawley did it twice—with St. Louis in 1874 and with Pittsburgh in 1896. The last pitcher to do it was Raul Sanchez of Cincinnati in 1960.

After loading the bases, Ellis walked Tony Perez on four pitches to force in a run and then issued two balls to Johnny Bench before leaving in favor of John Morlan. Ellis threw 12 pitches, one of them a strike.

In other games, San Francisco Giants bombed Philadelphia Phillies 13-4, San Diego Padres beat Montreal Expos 5-1, Atlanta Braves nipped St. Louis Cardinals 6-5, Houston Astros tripped the Chicago Cubs 11-7, and Los Angeles Dodgers topped New York Mets 2-1 in 14 innings.

The Reds broke the game open with three runs in the fifth. Driessen opened with a double. Perez singled and Bench walked to load the bases off Morlan. Jim Sadowski then allowed a run-scoring single by Ken Griffey, a bases-loaded walk to Cesar Geronimo to break the 3-3 tie and a sacrifice fly by pinch-hitter Ed Crowley to score the final run.

Doubles by Garry Maddox, Bobby Bonds and Steve Ontiveros sparked a nine-run, fifth-inning rally that powered San Francisco to victory.

DOCK ELLIS

The Giants sent 15 batters to the plate in the fifth, overcoming a 6-3 Philadelphia lead with six hits and six walks.

Rookie Dave Freisleben clinched a four-hitter for his second victory in as many major league starts, leading San Diego over Montreal. Freisleben also hit a double, his first hit, starting a four-run uprising in the third inning against Ernie Mattly Alou singled home the first San Diego run, two others were forced across on bases loaded walks to Dave Winfield and Dave Roberts while the fourth scored on Fred Kendall's sacrifice fly.

Lee May hit a pair of two-run singles to lead Houston. May singled off shortstop Dave Rosell's glove to score two runs in the third inning and tie the score at 3-3. Cesar Cedeno's infield single put Houston ahead 4-3 in the fifth and May drove in two more runs with a single off third baseman Bill Madlock's glove.

Stoneman Logs His First Win As an Angel

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Manager Bobby Winkles of the American League California Angels thinks he has "a pretty darn good ball club," thanks to contributions from the National League.

Stoneman earned his first AL victory in California's 4-2 decision Wednesday over the slumping Boston Red Sox.

"These three and my 20-year-old kid, rookie Frank Tanana, give us four solid starting pitchers," Winkles said. "There are some non-believers around, but we're not a bad ball club. We're in second place and now we're going home thinking big."

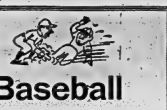
In other games, New York Yankees beat Oakland Athletics 4-3, Detroit Tigers nipped Kansas City Royals 2-1, Milwaukee Brewers routed Texas Rangers 11-3, and Chicago White Sox blanked Baltimore Orioles 2-0.

Winkles used his three NL castoffs as the Angels snapped a five-game losing streak and swept a three-game series with the Red Sox, who have lost eight of their last nine starts.

Singer won the distance with a seven-hit 7-3 victory Monday night, and Ryan followed with a 15-strikeout performance in a 15-6 romp 24 hours later. Then Stoneman came through with ninth-inning relief help from Rudy May.

Singer was acquired in a deal with Los Angeles Dodgers one year after Ryan was obtained in a trade with New York Mets.

Stoneman fell into disfavor with Montreal Expos after being a holdout last year. He had a 4-8 record while pitching just 97 innings after winning a total of 29 games in the previous two seasons.



Less than a month ago, Stoneman cleared NL waivers and the Angels jumped at the chance to get him for cash.

Bobby Murcer and Ron Blomberg started the eighth inning with doubles, powering New York over Oakland. Murcer got his first hit of the two-game series, an opposite-field bloop double to left off Jim Hunter. Blomberg, who tied the score with a sixth-inning homer, followed with a double to right.

LeRoy LaGrow's five-hit pitching and Ed Brinkman's two-run single helped Detroit beat Kansas City for the Tigers' fourth straight victory. Al Kaline and Willie Horton started Detroit's game-winning rally in the second inning with singles.

Dave May slammed a three-run homer and Johnny Briggs and Pedro Garcia added two-run sacrifice fly propelling Milwaukee over Texas. Briggs' fourth homer of the season came off loser Steve Hargan in the third inning and put the Brewers on top to stay, 4-3.

Jim Kaat and Terry Forster combined on a six-hitter and Bucky Dent and Dick Allen delivered run-scoring singles, carrying Chicago past Baltimore. While Kaat was keeping the Orioles in check, the White Sox chased loser Dave McNally in the fifth inning on consecutive singles by Buddy Bradford, Carlos May and Allen.

John Bradshaw says:
"Crabgrass? I use CIL Lawn Doctor®. It works very well"

"I find CIL Lawn Doctor does a bang-up job on my lawn. Easy to use and most effective."

"CIL Lawn Doctor won't burn your lawn. Yet it removes crabgrass, pesky grubs, and broadleaf weeds—and feeds your lawn with a fully balanced lawn food.

"If you'd like my complete guide for growing the perfect lawn, talk to the CIL dealer below. He can really help you."

Quinte Raceway Season Opener

Gerry Walsh Will Be Busy, Friday

By ALAN TERWORTH
Sports Staff

Around the barns, he is tagged as the nickname Short, but when it comes to energy for driving harness horses, 5-foot-7 Gerry Walsh is certainly not short by any means.

The 34-year-old caterer is one of the busier drivers on the three track circuit which includes the Belleville Exhibition and Raceway, Kingston's Frontenac Downs, and Peterborough's Kawartha Downs. On many occasions he handles five or six horses in one card of racing, which may see a total of nine or ten races run.

A prime example of his popularity among horse owners who know his driving talents, is his Friday schedule. He has five drives on the opening night of the season at the Belleville oval, including one with his own horse, Gratton-Worthy, in the seventh race. Only eight races have been scheduled for opening night.

Among his other drives for the night are Brian Wren, in the third, Northco Brownie in the fourth, Tim Bo in the fifth, and Goldmine N in the featured eighth race.

Born and raised on a farm, Walsh has always been around and liked all types of horses. He has developed a particular affinity for race horses.

Gerry races for a hobby. He owns four horses, only one of which, Grattonworthy, is racing at present. He is also a registered trainer, and unofficially a groom "usually most of the time" he grumbles on having to handle the more unpleasant and unglamorous tasks of the sport.

Would he ever consider a career as a full time driver on a big circuit?

"Sure, but it would be like hitting a gold mine" replied Walsh. "You'd have to have the horsrs to do it to start out with."

Although he, has had some experience at the bigger, Jockey Club Tracks, mostly Greenwood in Toronto, with local horses he hasn't really had too much of a chance to take the driving job seriously, as a career, yet.

Friday night's card of eight races marks the opening of the season of 24 nights of racing at the Exhibition track, including Monday night racing on three holidays, May 20, July 8, and September 2.

Seven horses are entered in the $400 featured eighth race, a mile pace and trot. Mobile Sam leaves the gate from the rail position, with Kate McLaird, with Hugh Weenp in the sulky in second spot. Walsh will guide Goldmine N. from the third position, while Guy Lariah is behind Paddy O'Hara in the fourth post position. Tyrus fills the fifth spot, with Ed Weeks the driver, while Ken Weeks will drive Mr. Chick in sixth position. Rusty Pete rounds out the seven horse field with John Murphy handling the reins.

First post time for tomorrow night's race is 8 p.m.

IN MEMORIAM

BANDLE — In loving memory of our dear grandfather and great grandfather, Albert E. Bandle, who passed away four years ago today, May 2nd, 1970.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true.
Always kind to us, dear grandfather,
We do not think of you,
—Always remembered and deeply loved by Elizabeth, Gary and Wendy.
Thanks also great granddaughters Charmain and Jennifer Darren.

BANDLE — In loving memory of our dear grandfather who passed away four years ago, May 2nd, 1970.
Sunshine memories, cadence fall,
Lovely remembrance outlasts all,
And though the years be many or few,
They are filled with remembrance of you.
—Fondly missed and deeply loved, Ruth Bandle Sheppard and Neil Sheppard.

BANDLE — In loving memory of our dear father who passed away four years ago, May 2nd, 1970.
I've had all the world to give,
We'd give it, yes, and more,
To hear father's voice and see a smile,
Just sweet him at the door,
But all we can do, dear father,
Is go and tend your grave,
And leave behind our tears of love,
To the best father God ever made.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter Lois and son-in-law Tom.

BANDLE — In fond and loving memory of our dear father, Albert E. Bandle who passed away four years ago today, May 2, 1970.
God took him home, it was his will,
But in our hearts we love him still;
His memory is as dear today
As in the hour he passed away,
We'll often sit and think of you,
And shed a tear,
The memory is the only friend,
That grief can call to view.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter Ruth and son-in-law Neil.

BANDLE — In loving memory of our dear grandfather, Albert E. Bandle who passed away four years ago today, May 2, 1970.
Those tender memories as dear today,
As the hour he passed away,
Sweet memories are all we have,
To bring you to our mind;
For the days to do not think of you,
Are few.
Memories bring back to find,
If all this world were ours to give,
We'd give it, yes, and more,
To see the face of grandfather dear,
Once more.
—Fondly remembered by Linda and Terry, Tricia and Brad, Brian and Tony, Heather and Tom.

BANDLE — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather who passed away 4 years ago May 2, 1970.
Those tender memories as dear today,
As the hour he passed away,
And those who think of him today,
Are those who knew him well.
The flowers we lay upon his grave,
Will soon decay,
But the memories he has left behind,
Will never fade away.
—Lovingly remembered by daughter, son-in-law and grandchildren Lorrie and grandaughter Kerri.

BANDLE — In better memory of a dear father and grandfather, Albert E. Bandle who passed away May 2, 1970.
Dad is gone,
And found a better Home.
We looked down on the earth,
We saw You pass away,
We saw You close Your eyes,
And bless you so well.
God's garden must be beautiful,
For He takes only the best,
—Sadly missed by Jeff and son Peter, Peter's mother.

BANDLE — In loving memory of my dear husband Albert E. Bandle who passed away four years ago today, May 2, 1970.
We walked hand in hand,
We were so close,
We were so dear,
We were so blessed,
We were so happy,
Then God decided to call,
He took the best,
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by your loving wife Ruth.

FARR — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Evelyn Farr who passed away April 30, 1973.
Dad is gone but not forgotten,
Left a memory dear to all,
Left a heart kind in all his ways,
Thoughts and love in the end of his days.
Sincere and kind in heart and mind,
What a beautiful memory to left behind.
—Always remembered by the family.

IN MEMORIAM

BANDLE — In loving memory of our dear grandfather, Albert E. Bandle who passed away four years ago today, May 2nd, 1970.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true.
Always kind to us, dear grandfather,
We do not think of you,
—Always remembered and deeply loved by Elizabeth, Gary and Wendy.
Thanks also great granddaughters Charmain and Jennifer Darren.

BANDLE — In loving memory of our dear grandfather who passed away four years ago, May 2nd, 1970.
Sunshine memories, cadence fall,
Lovely remembrance outlasts all,
And though the years be many or few,
They are filled with remembrance of you.
—Fondly missed and deeply loved, Ruth Bandle Sheppard and Neil Sheppard.

BANDLE — In loving memory of our dear father who passed away four years ago today, May 2nd, 1970.
I've had all the world to give,
We'd give it, yes, and more,
To hear father's voice and see a smile,
Just sweet him at the door,
But all we can do, dear father,
Is go and tend your grave,
And leave behind our tears of love,
To the best father God ever made.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter Lois and son-in-law Tom.

SORRY

The home with the 9% mortgage is now sold. However as the effect of the last two mortgage rates are 11 and 12% the nice new homes we have under construction with the 9% mortgage look increasingly better. Not only are they at low rates better but the houses are up to $5,000.00 below replacement costs.

TWICE AS MUCH
FOR $4,000.00 LESS

You can country lots are almost twice the size of city lots so the overall price for a house is at least $4,000.00 less. There is also about half as much as city taxes, or less for the high cost of living by calling us today.

County Road Going Wider

Reconstruction of Hastings County road 18 between Belleville and the Shannonville "gravel" is expected to get under way following a public meeting this week at which all aspects of the proposed road widening program were discussed.

County Road engineer Frank Pinder said there was an excellent turnout at Wednesday night's meeting with good discussion and questions.

Reconstruction this year will be on the east section of the county road with the work to be done by county forces.

The road right-of-way will be widened to 86 feet in unrestricted areas, but because the road runs closely parallel with the CN double track, widening in some areas will have to be all on one side.

Because of this, a number of the property owners were fearful of losing stretches of lawn as well as cherished shade trees and were voicing opposition to the road program.

At the meeting, however, owners were assured the county would accommodate them as much as possible in saving trees and lawn.

Residents were told there was no thought of building a super highway — the major improvement being adequate ditching. The pavement width will be 20 feet — the same as at present — with three feet of shoulder with easy slope into the ditch.

A total of 42 properties are affected with 13 of the agreements now approved.

Bus Driver Gets Watch

Long time Belleville bus driver, Gardner Welsh, who retired this week after 28 years on the job was presented with a wrist watch by fellow employees. The presentation was made by Hugh Kerr, local union chairman, at a retirement party held in Mr. Welsh's honor. Mrs. Welsh was presented with a bracelet.

Spirited Play

The room was dark and still and now and again a knock or sometimes two would follow the asking of a question. This was "The Seance" as presented by students of Steve Forrester's theatre arts class which took place in Belleville in 1855 involving A.N. Buell. Working up a trance are fro mleft of table to right: Cathy Dixon, Linda Godbout, Linda Whyte, Olga Brinkman and bodied but still a part of the presentation is Kelvin Wheeler.

Recycling on Increase

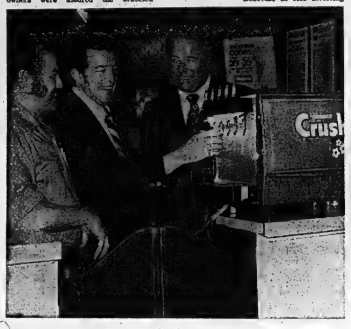
In April, 33 tons of paper were collected from city households an increase of three tons in a month and the heaviest total since the project started five months ago, says Alderman Jean Smith.

Ald. Smith, chairman of the Solid Waste Committee which organized the collection scheme, says the increase proves the project now "really is rolling."

The waste is collected by householders and packaged separately for pickup by the city's garbage contractor who in turn covers expenses by selling it to a Trenton scrap dealer.



Ald. Smith says she now has received several inquiries from city industries who with to dispose of waste paper, to now collected and dumped in the city's waste disposal area in Sidney township.

She says a city dealer in Solid Waste Committee has organized the collection scheme, says the increase proves the project now "really is rolling."

The waste is collected by householders and packaged separately for pickup by the city's garbage contractor who

Ald. Smith says she's hopeful of attracting more industries and institutions — such as schools into such a program.

The Foolside Gang ... Join Them!
The fun is just the price of a day room at The Four Seasons. We have the pool . . . cool and sparkling clean, places to lounge, places to sun. We also provide a play area for the kids as well as tennis courts and other games. We give you a bright and happy room (doze or watch TV in air conditioned comfort if you want!) and we take care of everything you need — food for the mood, refreshments and what-have-you. If peace and quiet are your wish, there's plenty available around our grassy lawns and flower beds.
Join the Foolside Gang any day of the week from mid-morning to 8.00 p.m. Day room charge is $10.00 (based on four adults). Extra adults $2.50 each. Maximum of six persons to a room — children under 14 are free. Call 968-9411 and take plenty of time to reserve your room.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Friday, May 3

Aries (March 21-April 19) A little disagreement may arise between you and a close companion. If it does, try to appease the other party quickly so it won't fester.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Make haste slowly today where your work is concerned else you're apt to be more careless than usual. It's no fun doing things over.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) This should be a fun day for you! At the same time, you're likely to spend more than you should in pursuit of enjoyment.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) The early part of the day will have its frustrations. Don't let them get you down. Things get groovy later on.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't jump to conclusions today or you'll regret it after you've had time to think things clearly through.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Aside from a pal of yours making some unreasonable demands, your day will work out to be profitable before it's over.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You can get the co-operation that you need if you go about it in a tactful manner. Resistance will come only if you're bossy.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Ponder present matters on their merits. Try not to let something that happened in the past, unrelated to today's events, influence you.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll do best if you concentrate on your newest interests. This is where you'll find your greatest challenge and opportunity for progress.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today you'll work a day of achievement if you get past a minor stumbling block. Keep your eye on your goals. Be persistent.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Try not to emphasize the pettier aspects of what you're involved in today. Devote your energies to magnifying the good that can develop.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll be tempted to split your time between serious matters and those more frivolous. You'll be better off tending to business.

Diabetes Threat Worse for Baby

By C. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How dangerous is it for a diabetic to have a baby. I am 31 and learned about six months ago that I have diabetes. It is controlled now but I am about 30 pounds overweight.—Mrs. A.B.

It is not exactly dangerous—these days—for such a mother to have a healthy baby. Five mature delivery and stillbirth occur more frequently in women with diabetes than in others.

With meticulous control of the diabetes, many, many women have had successful pregnancies. Proper diet control means, of course, you must stick to the rules, but with insulin or the diabetes medications we now have, it can be done.

You should shed that extra 30 pounds promptly, as it will help you control your diabetes, and that is particularly important if you are or plan to be pregnant.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am hay fever sufferer. I also have this miserable post-nasal drip and sometimes in the morning this large clot of catarrh in my throat makes me sick and I notice there is a slight pink appearance, and I wondered if there could be bleeding.—Mrs. H.W.

With your allergic condition (hay fever) you undoubtedly have nasal congestion with bogginess of the membranes or polyp formation, which would account for the nasal drip. There could also be changes in the nasopharynx (back of the nose) that could cause oozing of blood.

Although hay fever is a seasonal matter, you could have other allergies causing the trouble—one allergy is often a sign that there may be others.

As for the hay fever, there is still time to start desensitization treatment to protect you next time the hay fever season rolls around, but I would think it advisable to have tests for other possible allergies.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Concerning the baby born with red faces, this may reassure Miss P.G.S. My only daughter was born with a very dark red skin at the turned out to be the most beautiful, blonde, blue-eyed, fair-skinned girl imaginable.—Mrs. G.N.

Maybe that will persuade her sister to stop bugging her about what a red baby she was.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Lately a week or two before my period I notice a swelling in my breasts. They become tender and feel firm in spots. After five days of my period the swelling goes down. I am 21. Is this normal?—C.C.

Yes. Not abnormal—and not unusual.

Hard Luck Joe looked happily at the dummy. He reached over to play the deuce of hearts. East played a diamond and Joe's smile turned to a grimace of horror.

"It always happens to me," he groaned. "Others get 3-2 trump breaks, I get all five in one hand. It never fails! Still I will be OK if West has to follow suit often enough."

Joe cashed dummy's ace and king of spades and two of the three top diamonds. He came to his hand with a trump and won a trick with the queen of spades.

"So far so good," he murmured and led his last diamond. East ruffed and Joe still had to lose three club tricks.

Down one!

How many of your readers have seen how Joe could and should have made his contract?

He had started out beautifully by cashing two of dummy's diamonds and both spades. The trump lead to his own hand followed by the lead of the queen of spades was also correct, but he went wrong on the discard from dummy. He should have jettisoned the last high diamond!

Then he could have ruffed his last diamond with the queen or jack of trumps and overcome the bad break.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Instead of bidding four hearts your partner has bid four diamonds over your four clubs. What do you do now?

Roy Buchanan Praised

His Recognition Late, but Sudden

By MICHAEL LAWSON ..
The Canadian Press

Recognition of Roy Buchanan as a major musical talent may have come too late and too suddenly for the man himself to accept.

While both public and media now applaud his top-quality artistry, the quiet, bearded guitarist does not represent himself to be star material.

Variety, the entertainment trade paper, has called Buchahan a "master guitarist" and Rolling Stone has said Buchanan "may well be the best rock guitarist in the world."

The praise is plentiful these days, but for years Roy Buchanan was a talented unknown, performing his soulful music in coffee clubs, bars and as a backup man in recording studios.

Now a husband and father of six, he is past the point where he needs glamor and bright lights. He recognizes that living out of a suitcase, in a new city every night, is nothing more than hard work. His family lives in a small town in Virginia.

Roy Buchanan, who admits a reluctance to be interviewed, is quiet in his self-esteem. He is quick to discourage too many superlatives from being attached to his name.

"I'm very pleased they like my playing," he said.

But he added: "There's no such thing as the world's greatest guitar player. You couldn't possibly say who is the greatest—I could never.

"Some people might be technically good, somebody else may not have the technical ability. But I'll take the one with the most feeling."

That Buchanan's music is rich in feeling cannot be disputed, and it is in his music that he expresses himself best. A shy, withdrawn personality, his Jekyll gives way to an explosive Hyde when he carries his road-worn Telecaster onstage.

The result is dynamic, but either Buchanan does not recognize it as such or his modesty will not permit him to acknowledge it.

Born in Arkansas, Roy Buchanan grew up in a small rural California community. He developed an ear for music early in life, and his immediate leanings were toward the gospel and blues sound. His father was a preacher.

"I like the blues," he drawled. "To be honest with you, it depends on the mood I'm in. I like all different kinds of music if they're done right.

"I was introduced to hillbilly music and blues in a church. They used to have revival meetings. Once a month the white church and the black church would get together and have this shindig. That's where the blues is anyway—in church, in gospel music."

Buchanan's sound is a curious mixture of rock and light jazz, but ever present is a light touch of the sad, soulful blues which best represent his character.

Roy's career moved full steam ahead when a group of television personnel heard his act at a nightclub and offered to feature his music in a TV special. The NET television network rebroadcast the program several times throughout the United States, which led to a series of major concert dates, including one at Carnegie Hall.

Since then he has recorded three albums. The latest, That Is What I'm Here For, was released by Polydor this year and represents the guitarist at his best.

But even now, at the height of his popularity, Roy Buchanan talks quietly about a desire to revert to the pace of his early career, of finding a small club in Virginia "in the near future" to work regularly while still being with his family.

Jukebox Industry Is Still Thriving

CHICAGO (AP) — Despite Wurlitzer's decision to abandon the jukebox field, the jukebox era still is thriving at a company that has placed its blaring and shimmering machines from harems in Arabia to the traditionall corner saloon.

"We can sell as many as we make," says David Rockola, son of the founder-president of Rock-Ola, Inc., which claims it now is North America's largest manufacturer of jukeboxes. Rock-Ola does not believe that the decision last month by Wurlitzer to end jukebox production signifies the end of an era.

"We think the industry has dynamic growth possibilities," says Rockola, vice-president of vending sales. "Eighty per cent of our distributors have placed one of our new models. . . . Rock-Ola's sales have gone up 100 per cent in the last 10 years."

E. G. Doris, executive vice-president, estimates there are 600,000 jukeboxes tucked in snack shops, taverns, bowling alleys and youth halls around the country.

"By 1980" he says, "a possible quarter of a million new locations for phonograph equipment will be opening up across the country."

Rockola—whose father put the company in the jukebox business in 1934, a year after Wurlitzer—doubts that the life of the jukebox era is threatened by the shift from city to suburban dwellings.

"The young people are so music oriented today, they think nothing of dropping a quarter in a jukebox to hear a couple of songs. And a quarter means less to the average guy now than a nickel meant to his father during the Depression," he

Rules Said Evaded

Police Studying HOME Resales

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial police officers are investigating a number of real estate practices apparently designed to circumvent the rules of the government's Home Ownership Made Easy (H.O.M.E.) plan.

Housing Minister Sidney Handleman told the legislature Thursday that a number of cases already have been referred to the police.

The purpose of the investigation, he said, is to see whether charges might be laid and to determine whether illegal acts had taken place.

The issue was raised when Jan Deans (NDP—Wentworth) asked whether government was aware of a practice whereby the option to purchase land has been offered to the prospective home buyer during resale of a H.O.M.E. building as a separate item.

Under the H.O.M.E. plan houses are built on leased lots with purchasers getting an option to buy the land at a later date.

Mr. Deans suggested that under the H.O.M.E. plan the government should have the first option to purchase when the house is put up for resale.

Mr. Handleman said that while the government would consider all alternatives, the program is designed to provide all the rights of home ownership to people who cannot otherwise afford it.

On other housing matters, Mr. Handleman was asked to check prices on an Ontario Housing Corp. project near Otawa.

Opposition Leader Robert Nixon said he understood that the government corporation bought lots for $25,000 each and was building houses for sale at $19,500.

Albert Roy (L—Ottawa East) said costs for an OHC apartment unit had jumped from $17,500 a unit to $22,000 a unit in several months.

Kissingers Welcomed

Kissinger Arrives In Syrian Capital

DAMASCUS (AP) — United States State Secretary Henry Kissinger arrived in Syria today after nine more hours of talks in Jerusalem Saturday night to renegotiate disengagement on the embattled Golan Heights.

He said he and the Israeli leaders studied "in great detail all the considerations involved in a disengagement agreement."

"I will do my best to present the ideas that have merged out of these discussions as honestly and clearly as I can."

Kissinger was due back in Jerusalem Saturday night to resume negotiations with Premier Golda Meir and her top ministers. He said he will "return here with the Syrian ideas and we will attempt to see if whatever differences exist can be managed and dealt with."

Radioactive Materials Found

Father Is Accused Of Castrating Son

HOUSTON (AP) — A petroleum engineer has been charged with castrating his 13-year-old son by exposing him to radioactive material.

A five-count indictment returned by a grand jury Thursday charged Kerry Andrus Crocker, 41, with castration and assault to murder, maim and disfigure his son, Kirk.

Crocker, who denied the charges, was jailed in lieu of $30,000 bail.

The indictment was served on Crocker at the end of a child-support hearing Thursday at which Crocker's former wife is asking for increased payments to meet the boy's doctor bills.

Kirk, who got out of a wheelchair and used a crutch to make his way to the witness stand, testified for 90 minutes at a hearing in juvenile Judge Robert Lowry's courtroom.

The boy testified that beginning in mid-1972 his father placed metal, cylindrical pellets near his body while he slept at Crocker's farmhouse during visiting periods.

He said the pellets were found in such places as his pillow, under the sofa where he slept and in headphones connected to a television set. He said he always tried to move away from the pellets when he found them.

Barbara Smith, 42, the boy's mother, testified earlier in the hearing that large sores appeared on the boy's ankle, right thumb and inner thighs. The sores would break open and appear to eat away at the skin and muscle tissue.

John Bible, a lawyer, said the boy's testicles have deteriorated. He also said the boy needs a crutch or a wheelchair to get around and can walk by himself only 10 or 15 minutes at a time.

Crocker denied at the hearing that he deliberately exposed his son to the material, identified as cesium.

"I certainly did not," he said. "I absolutely did not."

He said the material was used to log oil wells and that he had a permit issued by the state health department to have possession of the substance.

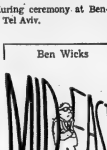
Four of Seven Suspects In 'Zebra' Deaths Freed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Four of seven men arrested in connection with a wave of Zebra murders here have been freed for lack of evidence, police say.

Police Sgt. William Kearny identified those freed Thursday night as Thomas Manney, 31, a star football player at San Francisco State University in the early 1960s; Clarence Jamerson, 37; Dorleta Stallings, 28; and Edrye Porter, 22.

They have been released for insufficient evidence of conspiracy to commit murder.

Kearny said the four were released because it became evident "during the course of the investigation that no further procedures against them are feasible at this time."



But formal murder and other charges have been filed against the three other men still in custody—Larry Green, 22; J. C. Simon, 29; and Manuel Moore, 30, police said. They are to appear Monday before a county grand jury.

The new developments were disclosed as Mayor Joseph Alioto was en route to Washington, D.C., to consult with U.S. Attorney-General William Saxbe on his theory that an organization called "Death Angels" is linked to about 60 killings in California.

Alioto says those 60 killings include 12 murders in a six-month period here in a case San Francisco police have codenamed Zebra after a communications channel. Six other persons were wounded.

All of the Zebra victims were white. They were shot down in apparent unprovoked attacks by young blacks, police say.

Producers Get Little Of Boost

TORONTO (CP) — Gordon Hill, president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, said Thursday farmers will receive only a small part of price increases for processed vegetables.

He criticized reports from the annual meeting of the Canadian Food Processors Association in Ottawa earlier this week that indicated the main factor behind the increases is higher prices paid to growers.

Mr. Hill said farmers now receive 3.5 cents for the peas in 14-ounce can that sells for 26 cents. Under a new contract with processors, farmers will receive six cents for the same quantity.

In Ottawa, Garnet Nix, president of the processors association, said the Canadian public can expect increases of 20 to 30 per cent in retail prices of canned vegetables.

Mr. Hill said Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the federal Food Prices Review Board, has been conned into supporting the processors' contentions.

"When it costs four to six cents for the can and 1.4 cents for the carrots in a 14-ounce can, who is ripping who off?"

Offer Expires

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP) — A $4-million offer for the return of kidnapped newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst, ignored for a month by her terrorist kidnappers, expires tonight.

They money is in an escrow fund in a San Francisco bank, deposited a month ago by the Hearst Corp.

Tape Shows 'Plumbers' Carried Out Burglary

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's tape transcripts indicate that the White House Plumbers committed a Las Vegas burglary, contrary to testimony given to the Senate Watergate committee.

Watergate conspirator Howard Hunt told the committee last Sept. 24 that he and another member of the secret White House intelligence-gathering unit that became known as the Plumbers planned to burgle the office of Las Vegas publisher Hank Greenspun.

But, Hunt said, the burglary never came off.

However, the White House transcript of an April 14, 1973, conversation among President Nixon and his two top advisers, H. R. Haldeman and Ehrlichman, indicates that the burglary occurred and that it was, in some unspecified way, successful.

Nixon: Can you tell me is that a serious thing? Did they really try to get into Hank Greenspun?

Ehrlichman: I guess they actually got in.

Nixon: What in the name of (expletive deleted) bought, has Hank Grunspun got with anything to do with Mitchell or anybody else.

Ehrlichman: Nothing. . . .

Ehrlichman: No. They flew out, broke his safe, got something out (unintelligible). Now as they sat there in my office.

At that point the subject matter changes slightly and Ehrlichman never finishes what he apparently was going to say.

Ehrlichman, now living in Seattle, could not be reached immediately for comment on what he had been told and what, if anything, the Plumbers did.

Air Traffic Men Off at Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada announced early today all air traffic at Montreal International Airport will be grounded when air traffic controllers walk off the job for a six-hour study session at 2 p.m. EDT today.

All incoming transatlantic flights to Montreal will be rerouted to Toronto, an airline spokesman said.

Meanwhile Ian St. James, secretary of the Montreal local of the Air Traffic Control Association, said most of the 100 controllers who man Montreal airport will reject the tentative contract agreement between the association and the federal treasury board.

Fred Ayer, the Montreal local chairman, broke with a secrecy agreement between the association and treasury board and revealed details of the tentative agreement, reached Wednesday night.

He said controllers would receive a 12-per-cent salary increase retroactive to Jan. 1, a three-per-cent increase July 1 and 8 nine-per-cent increase at the beginning of 1975.

"How can we accept that when we read in the newspapers that Ottawa is going to be a 30-per-cent rise in the cost of processed foods over the next year?" he asked.

When the tentative agreement was presented to controllers on duty at the Montreal airport Thursday, "there was an almost spontaneous reaction against it," he said.

No other branches of the association had voted Thursday to follow the Montreal local members in their work stoppage, to begin at 2 p.m. today, he said.

Official results of national voting by controllers on the proposed settlement are expected to be made public late Sunday in Ottawa. The association has threatened a national strike at midnight Sunday night if an agreement is not reached by that time.

Safety Factor Key To Reactor Decision

LONDON (CP) — Energy Secretary Eric Varley says proven safety records, more than any other factor, will determine whether Britain co-operates with Canada in the future production of nuclear power or follows some other system.

Varley also told the Commons Thursday the government will make a decision on the subject within several weeks. He was speaking during a debate on the over-all energy policy to be followed by Britain for the remainder of the century.

Canada has been pressing Britain to adopt the Candu nuclear reactor, a heavy-water system which uses natural uranium and is in many ways similar to a prototype generator being tested here.

Varley gave the clear impression, however, that if the government decided Candu, it would only be as part of a joint venture of some nature and not as an outright purchase.

He denied a report that Britain has already decided on a combination of the heavy-water British reactors and Candu. He said that decision will not be taken until the views of all interested MPs have been heard.

Tax Returns Arrive in Flood

When I Was a Lad...

Strike Up the Band

Traditional Naval music was the order of the day as the band of RCSCC Quinte attended at the 25th annual inspection of HMCS Cataraqui, the Naval Reserve Division at Kingston Tuesday evening. Cataraqui was inspected by Rear Admiral R. H. Falls, CD, soon to take up appointment as Vice Chief of the Defence Staff. HMCS Cataraqui is RCSCC Quinte's affiliated Reserve Force unit and lends support to the trained program of Belleville's Sea Cadet Corps.

Cars Entered Overnight

In once incident, a car parked on Alexander Street was broken into and taken was a lady's purse, a wallet containing a small sum of money and a black leather case containing a bugle horn with a single valve pipe worth about $200. Total value of the theft amounted to $340.

In another theft, stolen were two tires, two mag wheels and an tachometer. These items were taken from a car parked on a service station lot on Herchimer and Dundas Street East. Total loss in this case was $255.

Hookers On Display

Handicraft lovers will have an opportunity May 11 at Loyalist College to examine hundreds of examples of rug hooking by craftsmen from Belleville, Prince Edward County and Kingston area.

The Ontario Hooking Craft Guild will meet at the college and will open their display to the public from 2 to 9 p.m.

Booth Blaze

TRENTON — A fire in a telephone booth at Sydney Street Confectionery at 12:29 p.m. Thursday is still under investigation by the Trenton fire department.

Damage was confined to the telephone and the book directory. No cause has yet been determined.

HMCS Cataraqui Inspection

Sea Cadets Play for Admiral

KINGSTON Tuesday evening saw RCSCC Quinte set sail for Kingston to take part in the Annual Inspection of HMCS Cataraqui, the Kingston Naval Reserve Unit. The inspecting officer was Rear Admiral R. H. Falls, CD, who will take up his duties as Vice Chief of the Defence Staff upon promotion to Vice Admiral this July.

Quinte Sea Cadets were given the opportunity to play a Ceremonial Sunset and Retreat Ceremony before Admiral Falls at the close of the inspection peogram. The Admiral was most impressed by the standard of performance of the local band and noted that when he first arrived on board and could only hear and not see the band, he thought that the Central Command Band of professional Service musicians was in attendance.

Towards the end of the Admiral's Inspection Tour of the Ship, Belleville Sea Cadets had the opportunity to chat informally with the Admiral in one of the messes while they enjoyed light refreshments.

Quinte cadets have enjoyed many associations with HMCS Cataraqui over the past several years, Captain (N) D. M. Drown, CD, Commanding Officer of HMCS Cataraqui was the inspecting officer for RCSCC Quinte's annual inspection last year and arrangements are being made for Cataraqui's assistance to the Belleville Corps to continue and expand as summer school holidays commence.

Quinte cadets will be able to use the facilities of HMCS Cataraqui's Boathouse on summer sailing trips, and Quinte Cadets currently qualified as SCUBA divers, and those in training, will be able to sail on diving expeditions with Cataraqui personnel.

Belleville Citizens will be able to see and hear the band of RCSCC Quinte in concert next Tuesday, May 7th, 7.30 p.m. centage at BCI, doors open at 7 p.m.

An interesting and varied program will be presented with selections ranging from military, to popular, to classical music. Admission will be free of charge with a silver collection at the door in aid of the purchase of a power safety patrol boat to supervise Quinte's summer sailing program.

Striking Workers Scheduled to Meet

Union members of two city industries hit by strikes meet this afternoon in an effort to reach some form of settlement.

The first meeting is of Black Diamond production workers who have been out on strike since March 25. The other is International Hardware (Corbin Lock) who went on strike yesterday.

Members of the Black Diamond union, Local P688, Canadian Food and Allied Workers, were to meet at Parkdale Community Centre at 2 p.m. today to consider the company's latest offer. About 180 workers at Black Diamond are involved.

This offer was made during a meeting Thursday between union and company officials at the plant, one of the few times both parties have met together.

Meanwhile with the newcomer to the strike scene, International Hardware, there was a meeting of the office workers and production workers unions at Club Canara at 2 p.m.

The 30 office workers, members of Local 4, International Moulders and Allied Workers' went on strike Thursday to back demands for higher wages. They were joined by 240 production workers, members of Local 428, who stayed off their jobs by refusing to cross the office workers picket line.

According to a union official of the office workers, there has been no particular figure set for a wage increase. "All we want is a decent wage. Our average weekly salary is about $77," said the spokesman.

The Black Diamond union's original demand was for hourly wage increases of 70 cents an hour for each year of a two-year contract. The company's original offer was an across-the-board hourly wage increase of 46 cents for the first year and 45 cents for the second year of a two year contract.

Also at issue is the question of vacation pay and cost of living benefits. The union is seeking vacation pay equivalent to 2.1 per cent of gross pay instead of one week's vacation payment at a regular rate of a full week's pay which ever is greater.

As for cost of living benefits, the union is seeking regular adjustments of one cent for every .3 per cent on a cost of living index.

Meanwhile, at the city's third strike-bound plant, International Harvester workers carry the strike into its 12th day.

The 140 workers there, members of Local 1538 United Automobile , Workers, are seeking an hourly wage increase of 85 cents an hour over a two-year contract plus cost of living and fringe benefits.

The latest company offer allowed for total hour wage increase package of 65 cents over one year — 16 cents to come immediately, and three cents an hour to come June 1, Sept. 1 and Dec. 1.

Union president of Local 1538, UAW, David McDonald said the spirits of his men on strike are high and they are getting appreciative support from area people with donations and coffee.

WHAT MAKES A FRESH DRUG?
There are many factors that can effect the freshness or potency of drugs. To name but a few there are temperature, light, moisture, type of container and of course, the ability of the drug itself to remain in a potent state. Because of this last mentioned condition most drugs are labeled with a date beyond which they should not be used.
The very first thing your pharmacist will check for is an expiration date on the container. Sometimes, a drug will start losing its potency after it is mixed with something else or is out of its original container. This information is then put on your prescription container.

Flood Problems Lessened

TRENTON — Arie Hoornweg, commissioner of works, expects less problem with rising water levels this year than in 1973.

"The level in Lake Ontario is lower than it was last year," he said, "although if the wind is from the south, water from the Bay of Quinte and the Trent River is higher."

The amount of runoff from the surrounding area to the river and this winter's lack of snow have an effect on the river's level.

Council has taken steps to prevent a repeat of last year's flooding incidents in the Front Street municipal parking lot.

"In the latter part of last year," said Mr. Hoornweg, "we raised the wall along the river so the water can't come over."

A letter from the provincial government to town council about last week's predicted problems in Lake Superior and Lake Erie, but not in Lake Ontario. However, it notified council that sandbags were available for emergency use.

The commissioner also received regular reports from the U.S. Army Engineers on possible increases in water levels for the Great Lakes area.

Madawaska Must Comply With Ministry To Get Funds

BANCROFT — Although the Madawaska Valley Regional Tourist Council might not gain anything from Ontario's scheme to re-organize its tourist regions, the group will have to comply with Ministry of Industry and Tourism's plans in order to receive government benefits.

Members were told Wednesday they are not aligned with the new Eastern Ontario Travel Council. This will include about seven other tourist regions. The new travel council is one of 12 under the Ministry's plan, which reduces the number of regional councils from 37.

No funds will be dispersed by the ministry except to new regions," says an MVRTC letter distributed to members at the meeting.

The letter also said the Madawaska Valley group joined with the option of reviewing its membership from time to time.

John Zyblut, managing director, says this will allow MVRTC the opportunity to align itself with the region that best fits its need. Because of the Madawaska Valley location, future needs may cause it to align itself with another neighboring region such as Central Ontario.

Annual funds from the Ministry will total $75,000 for the Eastern Ontario region — $30,000 will be used for administration and $45,000 for promotion and development.

The travel council will have to raise 25 cents for each government funded dollar.

Napanee Chief's Complaint:

Not Told of Escapes for 12 Hours

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP) — Police Chief J. J. Paquette complained Wednesday that he was not notified for more than 12 hours of the escape of two prisoners from Millhaven Institute, 12 miles east of here.

Meanwhile, the two men obtained a $20 food voucher from a welfare office, were given food and clothing vouchers by the Salvation Army, and drank beer in a Napanee hotel, he said.

Chief Paquette said when he finally was notified of the escape he was given only vague descriptions and was not provided with photographs until later.

Shown the photographs, Harold Alkenhead of the Salvation Army here said he twice provided the two men with vouchers for food and clothing, thinking they were transients.

Police also learned the pair went to the Lennox and Addington County welfare office Monday where they were given a $20 food voucher.

"You don't need identification to get welfare," said Chief Paquette. "I thought it a bit ridiculous."

Police also learned the two had been in a local hotel drinking beer about an hour before it was checked by Chief Paquette.

Two Bancroft Students Go to National Fair

BANCROFT — Two students from North Hastings High School will leave Bancroft Saturday for the Canada-wide science fair in Calgary.

Robin Johns, grade 12 student and Andrew Walker, grade 10, were in competition at Bancroft's annual science fair, Scienscesope '74.

Both won first place with displays, Andrew won the individual science display in the grade 9 and 10 category. Robin, along with her partner Pam Stott, won the partners science display in the grade 11 and 12 category.

Because sponsors of ScienceScope '74 — Bancroft Lions Club — made allowance to send only two students to the national fair, Robin will be the only member of her team competing in Calgary.

This will be both students' second chance, in national competition. Both students attended the 1973 Canada fair in Thunder Bay. Andrew gained honorable mention at that fair.

All winners were announced during the official opening of the ScienceScope Wednesday night. The fair started with a bang — with igniting of two balloons filled with acetylene and oxygen gas. The explosion echoed through the North Hastings community centre.

ScienceScope has been operating for several years, but blossomed last year when the Lions Club expanded it to major community events with commercial displays and bobby competition.

During the three-day event, there are group-sponsored activities, such as rug hooking, in which visitors to the fair can participate.

Some 250 exhibits will be on display to the public until 9 p.m. tonight and from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday.

No Oil Waste For Roads In Trenton

TRENTON — Problems raised recently in surrounding townships over use of an oily material to suppress dust on gravel roads and roadsides may not arise in Trenton.

According to Arie Hoornweg, town commissioner of works, the town hasn't "been using that material for the last few years. We use mostly calcium for dust-laying which melts and has the same effect as water."

The town stopped using the oil-based material, not because of pollution, but because of complaints about odor. It also found that calcium lasts longer than the waste liquid and would revert to oil only as an extreme measure.

Few roads in the town are completely gravel, but the shoulders are still a concern, said Mr. Hoornweg.

Picton Project For Deaf Is a First

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — A pilot project for instruction of the deaf has been initiated under the ministry of education in Prince Edward Heights.

The project, believed to be the first of its kind in Canada, employs total communication among a group of residents at the Ontario government complex for the mentally retarded.

Paul Serge, a program teacher, says the 28 students participate in two different classes. A colleague, Mrs. Pat Riley, instructs in basic communication skills, while he teaches a hard-of-hearing class and a class of deaf pupils sub-divided into two groups.

He says the school's basic goal is to improve each child's self-concept.

"Everything that we do as a start is toward giving the student this ... to let him know that he is valued," says the teacher.

"Although we teach in a group situation we try to teach each student as an individual."

Each student's skills are emphasized and teachers work to increase strengths, skills.

"Success is one word we emphasize. A successful child will try something else," commends the teacher.

Mr. Serge initially works below each student's level to increase opportunities for successful experiences.

When they arrived, some pupils in his class were unable to communicate a single word. Others had some sign language training.

Mr. Serge says the students are taught total communication. This involves speech and lip reading, facial and body expressions combined with sign language, to create a composite whole.

"Our basic premise is that we want some of our children to eventually fit into the deaf society," says Mr. Serge.

He says that at the Ontario School for the Deaf in Belleville the Rochester Method known visible English, is used. It employs all facets of total communication and each word is spelled. This prepares the student for the outside world.

"It is no good to teach the deaf child to cope with the hearing world if the hearing world is frightened of them," observes Mr. Serge.

The teacher says many persons "just turn off" when a deaf individual attempts to communicate by notes.

"Some hearing people take us as 'I don't-have-time attitude'", he remarks.

Mr. Serge says many deaf persons can speak and, if hearing persons look directly at them, they also can lipread.

"Many people appear frightened of the deaf. Others ridicule them or are embarrassed," says Mr. Serge.

As an experiment, the teacher once feigned total deafness for two weeks and reports he also met "many beautiful people" who expressed understanding for his supposed handicap.

He adds, however, that there is a real need for education of hearing people regarding deafness.

Mr. Serge says too often "paternalism" surfaces when a helping hand is offered.

"I have very many deaf friend. I see a need for publication of their needs. Then I start to think I know what's good for them — but I don't. The deaf know what's good for the deaf."

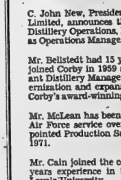
HOW SAFE IS ABORTION?



Lulled into believing that abortion is simple and safe, more and more women are using it as an alternative to birth control. In the process, warns a leading obstetrician, an invitation to tragedy is being extended. In the May issue of Reader's Digest, you'll learn about the four main abortion techniques used in Canada — and the actual risks involved. Find out why legal abortion should function as part of a rescue operation and not as the primary method of population control. Read ABORTION: THE SECOND-BEST SOLUTION. Drivers and Accidents

In addition to the daredevil propensities of drivers, as discussed recently by Queen's University psychologist Prof. Wilde, transport consultant Prof. Wilde there is another startling facet of what might be termed the accident syndrome.

Highway safety programs, says Prof. Wilde, are a waste of money because drivers don't pay attention to them.

We might have suspected as much. Still, it is no less a shock to hear this from a recognized authority. Prof. Wilde is head of a Paris-based safety consultant group.

So what is left? What can be done when the slaughter on the highways continues, when motorists drive like men possessed, pushing up the accident statistics by speeding, lane-hopping and all the rest of it. Any last vestige of voluntary speed curbs from that curiously — the energy crisis — has long since been dissipated. Two recent examples locally were reports of police stopping cars travelling at 110 mph.

As mentioned here before, we are forever reading of accidents around the Tweed area, although having no actual statistics it may be no better or worse there than in other parts of the countryside. In any event, in recent days there was another collision on Highway 37 just south of Tweed. It involved a light truck which was badly damaged, along with its cargo of snowmobiles. The two drivers involved were injured, although apparently not too seriously.

And it goes on. Some of the accidents are more horrendous than others; we think of the two transports which met at night on a bend on the Trans-Canada somewhere near Wawa in recent weeks. Both drivers died in the flaming wreckage.

If safety programs, and even policing, fail to make any difference, then rigorous police enforcement of speed limits and control of dangerous drivers would appear to be the only answer. To travel on 401 at the speed limit of 70 mph is to find oneself being passed regularly by cars travelling at upwards of 90 to 100 mph. This should not be tolerated although, unhappily, it is a great deal of the time.

A Day's Outing

Two examples of a concern for fitness on the one hand, and a lack of such concern on the other, from a weekend drive to Brockville. First, with regard to teenagers and the smoking habit. There hundreds of teenagers from Vermont — the vehicles emblazoned with the name of their home state — relaxing in the sun at a service station stopover, a goodly number of them smoking, and yes, the girls predominating. Oh, yes, we are familiar with the same trend here in Canada, this yen for tobacco among the young. It is something of an old story now.

In Brockville the picture changes. At Blockhouse Island, where cholera victims once were housed and later defence works were erected during the rebellion of 1837-38, there are the usual cars parked at the waterside, and fast cruisers on the river, but with a new spectacle of the times added — bicycles. Teenagers on bicycles — and with fitness capturing the imagination of many adults, a group of housewives also riding the two-wheeled machines.

This, with the Canada Steamship's Murray Bay sailing past and a cruise to Canada descending to accept bread crumbs from willing donors, made for a panorama of Canada of the outdoors on an early summer's afternoon.

To Speak Here

A speaker with an interesting subject for Bellevillians next month is Mrs. Diane Mackay. She is executive director of the Canadian Association in Support of Native Peoples, an Ottawa-based organization. She will be guest of the local chapter of Beta Sigma Phi at a meeting in the Four Seasons June 11. The native peoples of Canada have special problems to cope with as a small minority of a largely white and materialist society, and it will be interesting to hear what Mrs. Mackay has to say on this subject.

Gamesmanship in the Commons

Stanley Knowles' 'Rules' Torpedo That Was Never Fired

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — If and when Parliament blows up in a New Democratic - sparked explosion over Finance Minister Turner's budget, it will come almost as a relief — certainly as an anticlimax.

There have been, so many NDP threats over the 19 months since the indecisive election of October, 1972, to light the fuse and blast the minority Liberals out of office . . . such a boring repetition of David Lewis' threats to dynamite the parliamentary ground from under Prime Minister Trudeau's unsteady feet . . . that when, if, it happens, the likeliest reaction will be a disinterested "so what," or a disillusioned "about time".

The New Democratic threats, so ridiculously transparent, lost since progressed beyond the make-believe stage of a political charade to become almost fun-ny.

Funny like "Stanley's Secret Weapon."

Remember "Maxwell's Silver Hammer" . . . the glitteringly critical annual report with which former Auditor General Maxwell Henderson used to pound the government for its many extravagances?

Well, Stanley Knowles, that new Democratic veteran and long-established authority on the rules and procedures of Parliament, had a bush-bush technique all doped out to dismantle the Liberals.

He is believed to have put his "secret weapon" together in bits and pieces as the need for it became apparent in those parliamentary procedures which, brought together like fissionable material in the nuclear bomb, would bring the House tumbling down in Liberal ruins.

Stanley happened to drop word — nobody knows and Knowles is not telling — that it was just possible that he had found a way to bring down the government even before any test of confidence on the Turner budget.

Ah hah, next thing the Commons learns is that Stanley has been spotted in what was described as "deep conversation" with the Prime Minister.

Had it been about "Stanley's secret weapon"?

Indeed it had, replied the Prime Minister, and take it from him, it was a formidable one.

So ominous was its power, confided the Prime Minister, that it would cause "an explosion" in the Commons.

And he named the dread day of the big blast.

Well, as you might imagine, the dreadful day dawned.

The Commons met.

Everyone held their breath, eyes on Stanley Knowles.

And Parliament never had a more peaceful and absolutely unexplosive day.

Nobody raised his voice in anger.

The Prime Minister forgot to "mouth" whatever those things are he says he does only the Conservative lip-readers know.

And Stanley never made a move.

What went wrong?

It was all a hoax, he explained.

He had never used the phrase "secret weapon" himself — that had been the work of his friends, eh!) — and the Prime Minister, one of his more suckish moods and simply been fooling around with it.

All Stanley had said was that he knew of a way to bring down the government "by using the rules of the House" if and when the combined Opposition parties decided to do so.

Which is something they have not wished to do in all these 19 months.

All he had done was "cite a general proposition" on employ the rules as any Opposition in familiar with Parliament's procedures was "always free to do."

Silly, what?

But that's the kind of Parliament it has become.

Winds Of Change Blow in Southern Africa

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

For racist and authoritarian South Africa there has to be dark irony in the fact that Portugal's toughest African guerrilla fighter as head of the new military junta in Lisbon is the man who has already opened the gates to political change in southern Africa.

What kind and how soon for the big Portuguese territories of Angola and Mozambique which protect South Africa from major guerrilla thrusts, are not yet clear.

What is clear from the Portuguese coup by Gen. Antonio de Spinola is that Lisbon will no longer support a purely military solution to growing liberation movement activity in Africa.

The South African and Rhodesian stands remain basically the same as the Portuguese of a decade ago, that is, to hit the guerrillas where they can be found with superior fire and weapon power.

That's no way to defeat hit-and-run guerrillas, even though the South African armed forces are by far the best-equipped and best-trained in the entire continent.

So was the American army in South Vietnam, but it did not win that war, much less stalemate it very successfully. And in that case, the winds of change also came from the north.

The easier factor to assess is the ability of a white-dominated South Africa to make its so-called "homelands" policy work for its black citizens and to bring equality through it to the republic's basically black and exploited population.

The go-slow racial policies for change of the white-dominated and elected Nationalist party now may be speeded up by events in Lisbon. That has to be the main reason for speeding them up since Prime Minister John Vorster widened his majority in the national election last week in the 28th continuous year in office of the apartheid leaning National party.

Nevertheless, there is a plan and South African leaders are certain it carried to fruition, it could turn this controversial and isolated republic into something like a white black-white state.

The presently structured Bantu "homelands" are surrounded by independent black nations literally within the geographical framework of southern Africa.

These include Swaziland and Lesotho in the southeastern region and the much-larger Botswana, the former Crown colony of Bechuanaland to the north separated between South West Africa (Namibia is its indigenous name) and Rhodesia.

A fully-completed "homelands" policy as outlined by the Pretoria government might give the blacks more land and even their autonomy in that part of the republic including Natal, the Transvaal and the northern and south Cape where Bantu areas now are delegated.

The white world takes up the western Cape plus a protrusion extending into the Orange Free State and the southern Transvaal which are major industrial regions of the booming republic.

None of this, including the extension of the easier and much-criticized concept of the "autonomous" Transkei, has been encouraged by bitterly anti-South African resolutions in the United Nations nor by economic sanctions. Both of these have been spectacular failures in reaching South Africa's heart.

Rather events in Africa itself, chiefly a realization the day of cheap black labor is over in the republic, is forcing changes. There is a very long way for Prime Minister Vorster still to go since South Africa's recent national election for example was overwhelmingly for white voters only.

Watergate Still Wide Open

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — Despite President Nixon's release of 1,308 pages of transcript from taped White House conversations, the raids on executive files and tapes by those seeking evidence of criminal wrongdoing are far from over.

It remains one of the abiding mysteries in Nixon's handling of the political scandals that he has repeatedly stressed his desire to end — as he did Monday night—to put Watergate behind him while pursuing a course that inevitably left the affair wide open.

Politician that he is, Nixon would have known that the Democratic majority on the House of Representatives Judiciary committee was unlikely to be mollified by his declaration that the committee's transcripts instead of the tapes it subpoenaed for its inquiry into his possible impeachment.

Objections by many committee members are even more likely because 11 of the 43 tapes under subpoena are not covered in the transcripts. Nor did Nixon address the question of other tapes and evidence the committee has sought since asking for the original 42 recordings.

And lawyer that he is, Nixon would have been aware that refusing those transcripts but begged the question of a response to a threatened subpoena by committee counsel Leon Jaworski for another 64 tape - recorded conversations from the White House.

The special prosecutor has given the White House until Thursday to respond to his request, otherwise he will seek a subpoena. Such a Jaworski subpoena is possibly even more ticklish for the president than that from the Judiciary committee.

The House Judiciary committee would face an untested legal and constitution thicket if it attempted to enforce a subpoena. Jaworski, on the other hand, is already supported by rulings from U.S. District Judge John Sirica and the U.S. Court of Appeals after an earlier bid by his predecessor, Archibald Cox, to get evidence from the White House.

Jaworski's office had made it plain, even before Nixon spoke Monday night, that transcripts will not do. They will insist on tapes, under the so-called "best evidence" rule of U.S. courts, a rule that requires the best and most original form of evidence available for use in a trial.

And the tapes Jaworski seeks are for use in the case of seven former Nixon aides facing trial in September on a variety of Watergate-related charges.

Apart from the feeling that the president is trying to decide for himself what evidence will be available to those investigating his conduct, Democratic members of the judiciary committee may find other weaknesses in the Nixon proposal to substitute transcripts for tapes.

One weaknesses is in the suggested method of verification. Although committee chairman Peter Rodino and senior Republican Edward Hutchinson commanded respect, they are not as thoroughly briefed on the impeachment case as the committee's senior lawyers.

Impeachment may be the most serious question on the congressmen's agendas, but it is not the only one. Both have scores of other congressional responsibilities to look after.

Nor are Rodino and Hutchinson technical experts, qualified to say whether the tapes they would be verifying have been altered or edited.

The question of tampering would have seemed shameful before last fall. But the "disappearance" of 18½ minutes from a White House tape subpoenaed by Sirica changed the level of suspicion and hampered the committee's to put Watergate to rest for good.

Watergate

Prosecution Is Up Against It

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

WASHINGTON (AP) — A New York federal court jury has provided proof of what many lawyers in the special prosecutor's office have long suspected: None of the cases is open-and-shut.

In attempting to prove they did cross that line, the government repeatedly bogged down in testimony of Dean and G. Bradford Cook, a former SEC counsel and later chairman.

Both men had severe credibility problems.

Cook has admitted he lied three times to a grand jury and once to two congressional committees about the Vesco case.

Dean's credibility has been under attack after he appeared before the Senate Watergate committee last June and accused President Nixon of having had knowledge of the Watergate coverup.

The White House has said that the presidential tapes show that Dean lied to the Watergate committee.

But any evidence that Dean lied has yet to surface. The special prosecutor's office, which has some of the tapes in question, has said they do not contradict Dean.

Peter Fleming, Mitchell's lawyer, also effectively attacked Dean's credibility during the New York trial when he brought out the fact that the former White House counsel had pleaded guilty to obstruction of justice and is hoping his role as a government witness will help him avoid a prison sentence.

At the Watergate trial, at least two other government witnesses, Frederick LaRue and Jeb Stuart Magruder, also will be hoping their co-operation with the prosecution will influence the sentences they received on obstruction of justice charges.

Property Invaded

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Regarding these so-called nature lovers that shoot the rapids of the Moira River, they sure are not what they claim to be. They are a bunch of vandals and thieves that have no concern for the property or things belonging to others.

They come ashore any place they please, walk over not only the lawn of other people, but newly-seeded lawn, also steal anything that is not tied down.

Last Sunday there was a bird feeder I had made taken right from my back yard on the Canniton Road.

Focus on Constituencies

By DON O'HEARN

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — There was one development at the provincial meeting of the Liberals in Sudbury which could have consequences provincially.

Bob Nixon in his set speech to the meeting attacked the party pairs system, he said, was being highly concentrated on the constituencies.

He more or less said that this was the party's only real chance of success in the next vote: of getting a majority or failing that, holding the ridings rather than any general popular support.

To get good candidates and hard-working and effective organizations in enough ridings to come home with a majority.

There is no sign that the party will come up with anything that will give it a lift all with the public.

There's nothing at all now. There probably isn't even one major policy that you could name that now as identified with the Liberals. And there is no guarantee likelihood of one appearing.

What it means they have to look to the ridings.

And this, in turn, means tremendous hard work if the party is to have any success.

Over the past years what success the Liberals have had has probably been on this basis. Where they have had a good member and a good organization they have won. This has been particularly true in Southern Ontario where they have done signal success, most recently in Huron and Toronto-St. Georges last year.

But there is a distinct difference in general elections and byelections.

In the latter a party can concentrate all its strength and its manpower on the one or two elections concerned and can reach a peak of almost political strength.

In general elections this is not possible.

The forces have to be spread and the big effort of byelections is not practical.

His big hope would seem to be concentrating on constituencies to give him a majority.

And with the discontent from which the Davis government is suffering and the NDP confined largely to the big cities and the North there just might be room for Nixon and his party to work with.

But it is a big chance.

Saturday evening was ladies' night at a meeting of the Belleville Club in Winnipeg. Fully one hundred persons were present and a very enjoyable evening was passed. Mr. William (Bill) Squires was the principal speaker, Mr. Squires left Belleville in the early seventies and vividly recalled to the other old timers present the days when the railway penetrated the north country and Belleville was the shipping point for that territory.

Home of the Week

All the daytime rooms, living room, dining room, kitchen and family nook have wide windows facing the view, the three bedrooms face the road.

This type of design is increasingly popular as today's land scarcity requires home owners to go farther and farther into the suburbs or country to find available land.

Frequently a fine view is a dividend along with the price of the land.

In this home, a well-kept garden and view beyond can be enjoyed while preparing meals, dining or relaxing in the comfort of the living room by its cozy fireplace.

Beside the kitchen 'fridge there are six feet, enough to take a washer and dryer if so desired.

The master bedroom has an en suite powder room and walk-in closet.

This home has a charming exterior treatment in brick veneer accented by horizontal siding and a covered porch with shallow arches.

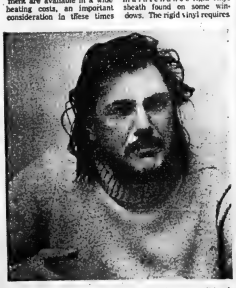
If the lot has a slope to the rear any builder can arrange for rear walk-out doors if it has no natural slope, it may be achieved by suitable earthing.

The design is suitable for any type of heating. Plans for Design R3-GS5 cost $35 for the first set, $11 each additional set and are supplied by return mail. Two new books "Home Available for $1.00 each or by mail (see coupon). Book 1 present designs for homes up to 1600 sq. ft. for 1 storey and split level, 1850 sq. ft. for one and one half and 2 storey. Book 2 includes larger homes and vacation homes. (Ontario residents add 7 per cent Sales Tax on all purchases).

Remodeling May Beat Buying Brand New Home

Just because mortgage money is as tight as Jack Benny's wallet, it doesn't mean you have to continue living in an old-fashioned or crowded home. You can still get the home you want by remodeling at your present address.

And there are advantages to choosing remodeling over the purchase of a new home — some of them unforeseen. Remodeling can result in higher resale value, lower maintenance costs, a more modern appearance and added comfort in the home you have . . . all this without uprooting the family.



One very popular and worthwhile home improvement these days involves the simple step of replacing old windows with new ones. Top-quality windows enhance a home's appearance and add to the home's resale value. Tight-fitting windows with insulating glass can also ment are available in a wide heating costs, an important consideration in these times of energy shortages.

Windows for home improvement are available in a wide range of styles and sizes. Low-maintenance casement, sliding and double-hung windows are big favorites of remodelers.

Modern, good quality windows can put an end to those days when homeowners must pry open sticking windows to clean glass or install storm sash. The use of double-pane insulating glass does away with the need for separate storm windows and the bothersome, task of storing, maintaining and hanging them. It also means there are fewer glass surfaces to wash. If you hire a window washer, windows with insulating glass can result in considerable savings in labor costs.

The current upsurge in home remodeling also has led to a greater increase in low-maintenance finishes. An example of this is low-maintenance rigid vinyl sheath found on some windows. The rigid vinyl requires no painting.

Another remodeling project popular with homeowners is the installation of gliding doors with double-pane insulating safety glass. These doors, which are also available with low-maintenance rigid vinyl, are great for opening up backyards to informal outdoor living.

Serge Monast has been gathering information since 1971 in a study on the French-Canadian family. For the most part, he has been working alone, without grants from traditional research organizations and often using his own money to meet expenses. (CP Photo)

Judge Refuses To Sentence Morgentaler

MONTEAL (CP) — Mr. Justice James K. Hugessen of the Court of Queen's Bench refused on Thursday to sentence Dr. Henry Morgentaler whose acquittal on an abortion charge was reversed April 25 by the Quebec Court of Appeal.

Mr. Justice Hugessen said there is reasonable doubt his court has jurisdiction to sentence Dr. Morgentaler because he has appealed his conviction to the Supreme Court of Canada.

In handing down its decision last week to overturn his acquittal, the Quebec Court of Appeal ruled Dr. Morgentaler must appear before the judge who presided at his trial for sentence.

Dr. Morgentaler, 50, was acquitted last Nov. 13 of committing an illegal abortion on an unmarried 26-year-old student. The defence based its argument on Article 45 of the Criminal Code which states that a doctor performing with care and skill an operation that is medically necessary cannot be prosecuted.

Pickering Plant Waste Trucked 200 Miles

TORONTO (CP) — Radioactive waste from the Pickering nuclear power station near here is being trucked, unguarded and with "no precautions" to the Bruce nuclear facility nearly 200 miles away the legislature was told Thursday.

Energy Minister Dary McKeough said the waste is primarily contaminated rags and paper that had picked up low level radiation.

"What would happen if somebody ran into it?" Mr. McKeough said. "I think nothing."

However, after hearing statements and questions from Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) the minister looked at his advisers and said:

"We had better look at it."

"It is my understanding . . . that this material is sufficiently radioactive that if there was an auto accident there would be a very serious hazard," Dr. Shulman said.

Hospital Workers Call Off Strike

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A $3.18 an hour for registered nursing assistants, and $2.83 to $3.02 an hour for janitors.

John Atkin, president of the union, a division of the Service Workers International Union, said the government decision is really a "first step" to get better pay and working conditions for hospital workers.

Mr. Askin said the long range implication of the latest settlement means the day is coming when hospital workers will receive province-wide settlements to their wage demands.

strike by more than 2,000 non-medical hospital workers at 13 Ontario hospitals, scheduled for noon Thursday, was called off when provincial ministry of health officials agreed to provide the hospitals with extra funds required to give the workers a $1.50-an-hour increase.

The increase is the same amount which 8,000 Metropolitan Toronto non-medical hospital workers received Tuesday, averting a proposed strike Wednesday.

Stanley Martin, deputy health minister, said the ministry could not deny the increase to other areas of the province after the settlement with Metro Toronto workers.

The ministry provides more than 90 per cent of the budget for Ontario's 220 hospitals.

The increase will come in five stages over two years.

They are represented by Local 220 of the London and District Building Service Workers Union.

Radar Device Measures Thickness of Lake Ice

OTTAWA (CP) — A radar device that might make year-round navigation possible in the St. Lawrence Seaway has been developed by engineers at the federal communications research centre near here.

The device can take a continuous measurement of the thickness of fresh water ice from an aircraft or surface vehicle travelling at high speeds.

It determines ice thickness by measuring in billionths of a second the time radio waves take to travel through ice.

In trials on the St. Lawrence and Ottawa rivers this winter, the prototype instrument achieved accuracy as good as one per cent in measuring ice five to 10 inches thick from a helicopter travelling at 150 miles an hour.

But it could penetrate 10 feet of ice or more, says Dr. Walter Chudobiak, one of the instrument's developers. There had not been an opportunity to test it in thick northern ice.

It could enabl helicopters to guide ships operating in icebound waters and stake out ice thick enough to support surface vehicles.

Trudeau Says He Will Blame Foes If Vote Forced Before Bill Passed

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will hold the Progressive Conservatives and New Democrats accountable on the campaign trail if they force an election before the Commons deals with proposed anti-profiteering legislation, Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday.

"I think they'd be very unwise and we'd gladly take this argument during an election," he told reporters outside the Commons.

"The people are pretty fed up with a lot of posturing which comes from both opposition parties."

He said opposition MPs have argued for months that the government should give the food prices review board power to end gouging and profiteering.

"Now we bring in a bill which is going to precisely permit us to act on recommendations of the food prices review board, and they say: 'We don't want a profiteering bill. We want an election.'

The crunch will come next week, likely Wednesday or Thursday, when the first non-confidence vote is taken on the new budget.

The budget, to be tabled Monday by Finance Minister John Turner, will offer the first chance to challenge the government on a confidence issue since the NDP said it may withdraw support from the minority Liberals.

Election speculation hit a peak Wednesday when NDP, Conservative and Social Credit MPs called the anti-profiteering bill weak, badly-drafted and not expected to be still on the Com-

Prime Minister Trudeau's strategy Thursday appeared to be two-fold: An attempt to make the opposition back down and a bid to put opponents on the defensive if an election is forced.

The anti-profiteering bill is only one of a series of new bills mons order paper by the time the first non-confidence vote comes.

A bill to set up the long-awaited national petroleum corporation was introduced Thursday and four more are expected today. They will deal with women's rights, wheat prices, the Supreme Court of Canada and housing.

Agriculture in Quebec Not Now Family Affair

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — From the beginning, Quebec agriculture has been a family affair, father and son cultivating the earth and maintaining the farm in an almost missionary spirit.

The equipment cost little and farmers took their time over their work.

Today, agriculture lags and the two major problems—continually rising costs of production and lack of labour among young people—threaten profound change in the structure of agriculture.

The family tradition is crumbling, it seems, yielding towards companies, consortiums and co-operatives in the near future.

Speaking with farmers and representatives of agricultural organizations leaves an impression of fear, insecurity and pessimism about the future of traditional Quebec agriculture.

Up to March 21, 22 auctions had been announced in Quebec newspapers with 2,240 milch cows offered for sale.

In the whole of last year, there were only 29 auctions of 1,161 animals. There were 10 auctions with 480 animals sold in 1972.

Last year, Quebec farmers received only 9.2 per cent of total Canadian farm income, compared with 15.4 per cent in 1969.

In 1973, net agricultural revenue in Quebec increased by 18 per cent while the revenue over the whole of Canada increased 29 per cent.

Viewed through government eyes, however, the situation seems less threatening. Concentration, mergers and expansion are seen as a normal phenomena which have been taking place for some time in other sectors.

Senior officials say the formation of companies or co-operatives grouping up to six farms can only benefit the farmers, who often complain about lack of holidays and vacations.

Faced with charges of "confusion in agriculture," with no easy solutions, agriculture department officials say the establishment of national marketing boards capable of ensuring a single price across the country is a serious first step toward correcting the situation.

Such organizations already regulate egg and milk production, establishing at least a guaranteed minimum income to producers.

A spokesman for the federal agriculture department in an interview also advocated establishment of marketing boards for other products and negotiations to do so are already going on between the federal and provincial governments.

In general, 1973 was a pretty good year for Quebec farmers, who saw their average net income increase by 8.2 per cent to $3,200.

However, this still is insufficient, farmers say, considering that inflation jumped by 9.1 per cent and set in some of other Quebec workers rose by 14.2 per cent.

The experts say they expect that the current year may be as good if the Quebec government can convince the Canadian wheat board or the federal government to establish price parity for feed grains.

Eastern farmers have long complained about the high price they must pay for feed grains.

Feed takes up more and more of the budget as farmers must pay the high price of transporting grain from the West.

One milk producer in the Eastern Townships said:

"The Quebec government seems much more interested in giving millions and millions of dollars to industry, to large and medium enterprises, because that helps create jobs.

"But on the farm we often have to be content with what we can earn to meet unexpected emergencies."

The farmer may have been referring to the Alberta government's policy of paying $100 million for transport of grain to the interior of the province.

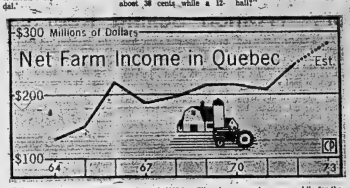
Similarly, the Manitoba and Saskatchewan governments give up to 15 a head for hog production. Quebec subsidies, while Quebec hog farmers, who are facing similar losses also want.

In milk policy, the federal government has just increased the support price of industrial milk to $5.50 a hundredweight from $7.17. The increase applies to March 31, 1975.

"That may be a fine effort by Agriculture Minister Whelan," said an Eastern Townships producer. "But has it occured to you that it costs about $10 to a hundredweight to produce milk?"

Producer, near Joliette, north of Montreal, said the federal government is practising a "day-to-day" policy without taking into account the adjustments needed.

A regional director of the Quebec Farmers Union, he said the solution is to increase the support price to the $10.15 cost of production.



"The time when farmers fed consumers cheaply is over," he said. "It's better for city people to pay a higher price to eat than for them to run out of food, and that's what could happen if we continue to freeze prices at the lowest level."

Farmers are aware of the price consumers must pay for food but they don't consider themselves primarily responsible for inflation of food prices.

"It's strange," said a farm wife in the Eastern Townships. "People don't complain about much when the price of beer, wine, chocolate or cigarettes goes up.

"But when it's milk, bread or meat, everyone cries scandal."

"Have you thought about the fact that a quart containing 40 ounces of milk sells for about 38 cents, while a 12-ounce bottle of beer is worth 25 cents retail and up to a dollar in a club or dance hall?"

Graph shows the net farm income in Quebec province since 1964. Although the net income has risen from $131.7 million in 1964 to an estimated $281.1 million in 1973, the rate of growth is less than in other areas of the country. The 1973 figure rose 12 per cent over the previous year, while for the whole of Canada the increase was 39 per cent. (CP Newsmap)

The woman said city people don't understand the problems of farmers or the essential role they play in feeding the city.

In the country it is believed that the middlemen—retailers and large food stores—are profiting most from price increases.

"Someone must be getting rich from all these price increases, and believe me, it sure isn't us," one farmer said.

While these people were having their say, Quebec Finance Minister Raymond Garneau brought down his spending estimates.

Farmers noticed that, despite inflation, there was no increase in spending for the agriculture department.

Success Story—Women Selling Real Estate

By ISABEL HUGGAN

If you're going to buy or sell a house in the Belleville area this year, the chances are nearly 50-50 that you'll be dealing with a woman real estate agent.

There are 87 women members of the Quinte District Board (the amalgamation of the Belleville and Trenton Real Estate Boards) and 117 men . . . certainly different proportions than when Mary Colling began selling real estate 15 years ago, the only woman out of 22 salespeople then in the field.

Why are so many women

choosing to work in this highly-competitive high-pressure profession?

Talk to women at various stages of their careers in Belleville real estate firms.

"Selling real estate is a challenge," says Edythe Therrien, for six years one of Bowes and Cocks' successful salespeople.

"No one day is like the one before it," she adds. "That's part of the appeal too."

"I like this job because I like people," explains Vi Lindgren at Gerald Joyce Realty Limited, a reply echoed by others, such as Marg Cooke, office manager at A. E. LePage Limited.

"You have to be outgoing and enjoy dealing with all kinds of people," says Mrs. Cooke.

Selling homes and land gives a woman the rare opportunity to face challenge, avoid routine, meet people and make money — chances for personal enrichment in every sense of the word.

So many fields which lead to monetary success, an employee is dependent upon others, upon the structure of an organization, or upon reward based on seniority.

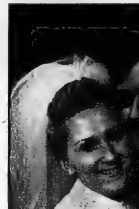
"Whether you make a success of selling or not is strictly up to you," says Lena Stewart, one of B. G. Foster's staff, and one of Belleville's top salespeople.

And what does it take to be good?

"You have to be enthusiastic about what you're doing," says Mrs. Stewart.



When Mrs. Colling was manager of Bowes and Cocks, she looked for certain special qualities when hiring salespeople.

"I'd look for a good personality first of all," she says. "A warm smile, direct eye contact, exuberance and a humanitarian approach to selling houses.

"Sincerity means caring about clients' welfare. People who enter the real estate field to make quick money seldom do well.

"You have to care to do well."

The most important thing is ethics," adds Mrs. Therrien, who was hired by Mrs. Colling.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN CHARLES BRENIZER

Brenizer — Taylor

Bridge St. United Church was the scene of the March wedding of Marianne Leslie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Taylor and John Charles Brenizer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Brenizer of Shawnee Mission, Kansas, U.S.A.

Rev. George Ward officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father and mother, the bride wore a gown of white delustered satin, fashioned with an empire waist. The mandarin edged the matching coat which ended in a chapel train. A headpiece of mariboo held her shoulder length veil of tulle illusion. She carried a Bible with a corsage of daisy mums, baby's breath and ivy.

Krista Meister of Toronto was maid of honor; Janis Brenizer, sister of the groom, and Jan Neundorf of Toronto, were bridesmaids. The attendants wore identical gowns of Dresden blue peau de soie, fashioned with empire lines with bell sleeves and white mariboo trim. All wore mariboo headpieces and carried bouquets of daisy mums, baby's breath and ivy.

Michael Hirschman of Kitchener was best man, and the ushers were Steven Flinn and Stanley Brock of Toronto.

After a reception held at the Four Seasons Hotel, the couple left on a wedding trip to Cozumel, Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. Brenizer will reside on Victoria Park Avenue, Scarborough.

Avalon Lawlor, selling real estate for Roger Gibson Real Estate, attributes much of her "beginner's luck" (she's sold 20 properties in her first 10 weeks) to hard work.

"But," she adds, "you don't mind putting in the hours when you get results. It's hard not to be enthusiastic about a job like this."

MARY COLLING AND EDYTHE THERRIEN

Mrs. Lawlor thinks that as a woman she may have a special advantage when it comes to selling houses.

"A woman likely has more of a "feeling" for houses, for the emotional side of finding a new place to live," she says.

Although some of the other women disagree that their sex gives them any advantage, they do say that in the purchase of a house by a married couple, it's the wife who usually does the actual choosing of a home.

"It's the man who decides how much they can spend, but it's the woman who says which house they'll buy," Mrs. Lawlor says.

If the wife is happy with a house, then the entire family will be happy, since she's the one who'll make the house a home. Being homemakers as well as real estate salespeople, women do know what kind of thing other women will look for.

Of course, besides having the knowledge of how important closet space and furniture requirements are, women — like all real estate agents — have training and experience behind them.

Before being hired by a real estate firm, a person must have taken the three-week course in Toronto, or the three-month series of evening courses at Loyalist College. Even after working, agents are encouraged to take further training in various fields — appraisal, mortgage financing, administration and residential law, to name a few of the areas in which one must be knowledgeable.

"There's more, more than people suspect in selling property," says Mrs. Colling.

Making sure that financial settlements are suitable to both the vendor and the buyer, arranging mortgages and down payments, getting lawyers to handle the transfer of deeds, all kinds of highly technical matters are in the hands of the woman in charge of the sale.

"When you're putting a deal through," says Mrs. Lindgren, "you're under a lot of pressure till it's completed. There are offers and counter offers, often telegrams and phone calls, running back and forth until an agreement is reached. You drop everything till it's all finished."

Some dealings become extremely complex when there are many potential buyers and a great deal of bargaining must take place. Others are amazingly simple, as happens when a buyer with the right amount of money sees that "Dream House" and makes an acceptable offer immediately.

MARG COOKE

"But now, it's obvious to everyone that women are good at showing property."

Many buyers prefer to be taken round by women, for a variety of reasons, including the belief that women are more sincere. They probably are selling real state for fun, not just to make a buck."

There's probably some truth to that last, since most women selling real estate are married ("A single girl would never get time to date!" says Mrs. Therrien) and are able to enter the field because they're supported by their husbands.

"Even if you've lucky enough to make a sale immediately, it may be months until the deal actually goes through, and since you work on commission, you don't get paid till then," says Mrs. Colling.

That husbandly support is important in more ways than just financial, all the women agree.

If a man is jealous or possessive of his wife's time, she won't be able to sell real estate well.

"You need a relaxed mind in order to concentrate on houses and people," says Mrs. Stewart. "You can't be worried about time and meals and housework."

Women with young children who need a good deal of attention usually find selling real estate too time-consuming. Consequently, many of the more successful salespersons are in their late 30s and 40s with children in school or grown up. Women without children are able to devote even more time to their work.

"There's no doubt that selling real estate interferes with your personal life," admits Mrs. Stewart, "but in such a pleasant way that you never mind it."

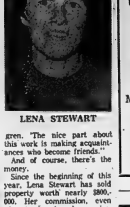
"For instance, I've had clients stay overnight while they were house-hunting, and on weekends sometimes I have as many as 10 people talking real estate in my living room.

"But that's what's fun about it!"

What isn't fun about the real estate business?

The long hours, the frustrations, the detailed paper work, the waiting to make a sale, the hard grind of getting prospects, making contacts, knocking on doors, and perhaps above all, the uncertainly involved.



"You have to have a flexible approach to life," says Mrs. Colling, because you can't plan ahead. You and your husband must be able to cope with things like having a dinner party at 7 p.m., and you arriving home five minutes before!"

And what are the facets to selling real estate that keep these women working hard — even Mrs. Colling, who's been 'thinking of retiring but can't quite quit" — day after day?

"I love the feeling of freedom, being on the road, making my own hours," says Mrs. Lawlor.

"I think I've become a better listener," says Mrs. Cooke, "because in this work you have to listen to people's needs and help them solve problems."

"I keep running into people I know now," says Mrs. Lind-

LENA STEWART

And of course, there's the money.

Since the beginning of this year, Lena Stewart has sold property worth nearly $800,000. Her commission, even after taxes, gives her a sizable chunk of that.

Where else in Belleville can a woman make that kind of money?

MAGIC LADY
By Cosmo

On nails:
I see a lot of women every week and one thing I notice about them and their talks about me is nails. Today's hands are seen so much and smiled more than ever before. Appearance is important and particularly so for you gals that don't go out to work. Just because you're constantly in the eye of the public you are trying to please. Well, I'm sure you're trying to please the girls he works with look better groomed than you? Even short nails are attractive if they're properly kept. Keep them clean and use a hand lotion. Good old cucumber cream is found in Cyzo-Nuro. It comes in a tall tin at most drugstores. You'll be amazed at how quickly you train yourself to wear gloves. Gloves are not only for winter, they're for all seasons. But there one little too large. Much quicker to slip in and out that way. When applying polish to the nails, put a little clear nail polish on as well. A nail hardener is good for this.
ON WIGS:
Are you really going to try to make that wig look natural? Then you must remember that wigs are meant to be worn over your own hair. Tuck your hair under the wig and then comb the wig over your own hair. Use bobby pins to secure the wig. Don't forget to clip the ends of your own hair so they won't show. Don't wear your wig too far back on your head. Wear it low on your forehead. Don't wear your wig too high on your head. Wear it low on your forehead. Don't wear your wig too far back on your head. Wear it low on your forehead. Don't wear your wig too far back on your head. Wear it low on your forehead. Don't wear your wig too far back

Successful Living

Reader Rebels Against 'Ms.'

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I've had a bit of a chip on my shoulder for some time on this subject — "Ms." It actually annoys me; turns me right off. But, like a bad TV show, one can always tune out on the thought.

Except — that I decided to get a credit card from a national women's store. I wrote her I found a garment I wanted and didn't have enough money with me to pay cash for it. My account was opened and a couple of weeks later I received a credit card from head office for "Ms." I immediately wrote to the firm and asked them to kindly use my proper name, Mrs. F—.

However, there was no reply, and shortly after, as was the norm, I received a statement to: Ms. F—. I sent off a cheque for the full amount, and told their credit office that I could not have a card for: Mrs. F—. I did not want it. No word since and I have not gone in their store since.

My daughters, both married, share my sentiments and do not answer either. It's not being vicious, but why do we have to have the tag Ms. when we neither believe in it nor want it?

J.F.

Dear J.F.: When I first received mail addressed to Ms. Clark, I recoiled too - figuratively. My reaction was to make sure that whenever I sign a letter I put, ahead of my name, the work "Miss" in brackets. I thought how old-fashioned I was getting.

The use of "Ms." is one way of giving a lady poise while she makes up her mind do not know whether she is Miss or Mrs. I expect it is tied up with current equal-rights-for-the-sexes arguments since man is "Mr." whether he is married or not. With "Ms." the ladies don't have to tell either!

Funny thing is, most of us would like to tell. We would like to tell it if we were married; and we would like to tell it if we were not.

But time moves on and customs change. The firm who ignored your preference for "Mrs." was a little lacking in courtesy, but sometimes that perhaps just one eneslightened clerk pulled the boner.

this store has merchandise you like and will give you the convenience of a credit account, why start a war?

Dear Doris: Thank you so much for the above piece "Father Forgets". It is indeed the one I was looking for, thanks to your reference. It was unbelievable that it should be found like that. You do provide an amazing service to people.

A quote our minister put in the bulletin a few weeks ago is another phrase of the same idea:

"A father is a man who expects his son to be as good a man as he meant to be."

Tetcher.

Dear Teacher: I am always happily surprised when the mail rolls in with copy after copy of a poem or prose piece a reader has asked for.

In "Father Forgets" there is an important message. Your minister put his finger on the same thought: that some fathers expect their small sons to be, slowly grown, with a man's wisdom, seriousness, and full discipline. Sometimes fathers forget to notice and respect the childish and endearing affection and gestures which make childhood entrancing — and which do seem to be lost, far too often, in manhood.

Confidential to Interested: You asked for the name of the doctor and the diet he recommends for a bio-chemical imbalance. Every case is individual so I can give no prescribed diet that would cover all types of physical abnormality. You will have to write again, enclosing your name and address, and a stamped, self-addressed envelope, I will then write you privately, and can direct you to the doctor.

(Doris cannot begin to answer all your questions in the column. To make sure of your reply, remember to enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope, sending your letter to care of this newspaper.)

Ann Landers

Grief-stricken Sister Can't Accept Death

Dear Ann Landers: My brother, age 21, was murdered three months ago. It is very hard to accept death, especially when it happens to a young and beautiful person. But if death comes as the result of an illness or an accident, one can say to himself, "It was God's will. He had a reason." But death by murder? How can a person accept such a horrible thing?

I know I am not alone. This sort of tragedy has occurred in many other families. Every time you pick up a newspaper you read of a murder somewhere. But until it happens to one of your own, you can't imagine what it means.

I have talked to our minister. He has done his best to comfort me, but he has no answers. I am no closer to acceptance now than I was the night that terrible thing happened. Can you say something to help me?—Still Mourning

Dear Friend: There are many questions for which there are no answers, only many questions, such as "Why him? Why would a good God allow such a thing to happen?" The list is long and I'm sure you know the questions better than I.

You must accept death when it comes to a loved one, no matter how Why? Because you have no choice. You must believe that God in His infinite wisdom had a reason—one known to you now, but it is there

Your brother would be very unhappy if he knew how tortured you are. For his sake you must get over your grief. I suggest therapy for a few months. Good talking sessions on a regular basis can be immensely helpful. Please go.

Dear Ann Landers: I gotcha this time. I've been waiting for you to give some severe advice and you did it. I refer to your advice to the secretary who had to buy a birthday gift in a hurry. She stopped in a drugstore and purchased a bottle of bubble bath. They didn't gift wrap, and the sack looked awful so she threw it away and brought the bottle "naked."

You said it was a pretty lucky way to present a gift but it was no crime. Then you added, "Had you gone to the party naked you could have been arrested for indecent exposure and that is no big deal. Take care of it."

Apparently, Ann Landers, you haven't been to any parties in Sausalito lately, or Palm Beach, Midnight swims (Skinny-dipping, of course, summer co-educational) are not uncommon. And sometimes the guests "forget" to put on the clothes. This is not considered illegal, dear. Nobody can get arrested for what goes on in the privacy of their homes. So, eat your words, baby.—Last Laugh

Dear Last: Sorry, the words are still on the plate . . . for you to eat. You can get arrested for having a quiet little poker game fully clothed in certain cities where gambling is illegal. I am not saying I support such interference by the gendarmes, but it is the law nevertheless. A person might take off his clothes at a party and not get arrested in some cities, but I know of no city where you can go to a party naked. Nudity in public is illegal in every city.

Dear Ann: My husband's parents live near us and they resent it because my front door isn't open for them. Sometimes they come over twice a day. My husband says they are right. Are they?—Just Me

Dear Yes: Anyone who leaves a front door open today is lucky if he gets nothing worse than pesky in-laws. Keep all doors locked, woman, and don't open up unless you know who's on the other side.

Second Glance

By Vira Richmond Graham
THIS MONTH OF MAY

"When that the month of May is comen . . .
farewel my bok . . . !" — Chaucer.

* * *

What is May?
May is . . . :

— A fragrant cloud of petalled blossoms caught in an apple orchard.

— A "V" formation of geese flying north again, high, high, in the sky.

Ah, speaking of enticing fish.

Tetcher.

"I recall when I was a young lad," said a fisherman member of our party as we drove along 401 Highway and neared a modest stream. Both sides of the highway were were lined with parked, empty cars of fishermen.

"Every May," he continued, "I would always go to a grassy hidden spot by a creek near home. There with a sandwich and a piece of string and fish-hook I would sit motionless to watch fish that gathered there.

"I'd wait quite a while, then swiftly drop my line and baited hook into their midst.

"There would be a tug immediately. With a quick pull, wonders of wonders... there'd be a fish on the end of my line.

"What a never-forgetten thrill!

"I'd carefully wrap it in fresh green leaves, proudly carry this trophy home—which mother would prepare for dinner midst praises all around.

"This is why," he concluded, as another fisherman stepped out of an expensive car with many fishing creels, fishing gear, heading for the stream, "I get a chuckle from seeing these city fisherman with the latest in fishing gear stopping at a little brook, such as I used to fish.

"But really, down deep, we are all brothers, regardless of fishing gear or stream. For each is again in search of that memory of the first boyhood thrill of our first fish, that lives in every fisherman."

As one possible answer, perhaps you have heard the story of two brothers who often fished together. But Mike found that his brother

Limited Opportunities

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The intellectual talents of many Canadian women have been wasted in the past, Betty Graham, an official of the Ontario ministry of community and social services, said Wednesday.

Speaking to the Provincial Council of Women of Ontario, Miss Graham, an adviser with the ministry's women services bureau, said her wish is to see equal opportunities for all employees.

"My concern is not to create special opportunities for women but equal opportunities for all employees," she said.

Miss Graham said her newly formed bureau will review job classifications, hiring practices, training programs and equality of opportunity within her ministries, where 7,000 of 19,000 employees are women.

The council, consisting of local councils of women and affiliated groups such as the Federation of Women Teachers of Ontario, met here as part of its annual conference which continues today.

It is preparing recommendations for its annual brief to the provincial governments which will be presented later this year.

Suggested changes dealt with such topics as health, education, government spending policies, land use, lifestyles and the role of women.

The council also called for compulsory physical education in the province's schools.

'Upper Crust' Cuts Down, Too

NEW YORK (AP) — Inflation is causing upper-crust consumers to cut down on the luxuries of life, those $3,000 evening dresses, for example.

That's why designer George Halley, who showed his fall collection on Monday, slashed prices drastically, cutting them by 50 per cent at the wholesale level.

"Women are not spending that kind of money for clothes— no matter how much they have," the spokesman said.

Wholesale prices for the new Halley collection start at $79 and go up to $300. That means retail prices of from $150 to $600.

The designer managed to keep the expensive look that characterized his more-costly clothes. A parade of models, led by actress Alexis Smith, displayed a series of dresses and pants with a soft, swingy look. There were lots of autumn colors—rust, dark green and maroon—for day and plenty of sequins for evening. Hemlines hovered either at the knee or several inches above the ankle.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Saturday, May 4

Aries (March 21-April 19) An unusual situation will develop today that could spell gain for you if properly handled. Be alert to the offbeat.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You may get a unique idea regarding something that can be sold to others. Talk it over with an expert in the field.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Something impromptu will pop up. It should turn out to be a ball. Consider any last-minute invitations that come your way.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) There's going to be a sudden shift in events regarding the outcome of something you've been concerned about. It should please you.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) A casual contact you'll be making through a friend will later prove to be of real help in advancing one of your interests.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Unusual conditions are still favoring you in financial or commercial matters. A good time to go bargain hunting.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't plan too tight a schedule today. There are some nice surprises in store if you let things happen naturally.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Blend both instinct and logic in making important decisions at this time. If negotiating, ask questions that pop into your head.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try to arrange today so it's not all work and no play. You'll be restless unless you're out among people toward evening.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Something that you will do impulsively today will make you look good in the eyes of others. Heed your nobler instincts.

Boy with Rash Needs Specialist

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a boy, 16, and have a rash similar to "jock itch" except the skin has darkened to a light brown. Occasionally there are pimple-like areas. They itch, too.

The itch is unbelievable and will not go away. I have used talc, medicated powders, creams, ointments, alcohol and peroxide and nothing even dents the problem. Perspiration is a yellowish color.

I have had this for a year but I just couldn't go to a doctor. Please try to diagnose this and advise some kind of medication.—C.W.

I can sympathize but it would be unethical politics for me to try to diagnose a condition I haven't even seen—as pointed as your "itch" is and those hit-or-miss remedies which, after a year, haven't helped.

I urge you to see a dermatologist—a skin specialist. The "itch" can tell me why you just couldn't go to a doctor," but I presume it is simply a matter of part. Once you've been examined, you'll realize there was really nothing to it. The doctor does it every day.

With most skin problems, it is virtually impossible to tell what type of problem it is until the doctor has seen it—and there can be drawbacks from waiting too long and trying too many home remedies.

Not that people don't keep trying to do it themselves. Any I can recommend it as a pragdermatologist can reel off exciperiences with cases in which the patient has first tried all kinds of things himself, and sometimes the remedies merely create new irritation so the doctor has a hard time figuring out what the original trouble was. So take a tip from me, and go to a doctor now.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had an operation to remove my Fallopian tubes and most of one ovary but still have one good ovary and get my menstrual period every three weeks. So is there any way I can become pregnant?

A gynecologist say there is an operation which can artificially replace the tubes and also that a wedge of the good ovary can be taken and egg caught as it is released and fertilize it and implant it in the uterus. Could you help us find the names of doctors and hospitals that do this?—Mrs. R.R.

Seems to me that it's up to your gynecologists to do the research and give state-by-state some notably fine medical facilities.

As to replacing the tubes, I question whether adoption wouldn't be the better answer, avoiding the risk of the operation—my "risk" I mean the risk that it would not be successful, no matter how skillfully done. As to your other suggestion, that is in the experimentally far-out range and

Opening lead—♠7

By Oswald and James Jacoby

The code word "ARCH" can be used successfully by the defenders as well as the declarer. If you don't think so, look at this play made by Bud Reinhold of Chicago that helped his team win the 1973 Spingold Con.

Sitting East, he analyzed the lead as top of nothing. That was easy. He reviewed the bidding to note that South had opened and that North and South practically never opened four-card majors.

Further thought told him that his partner must well hold ace-king suits. There were 17 high-card points available to West and South.

"How can I beat this hand?" he asked himself. There was the answer. He could beat it if West held the ace of diamonds. All that was necessary was to attack diamonds with the immediate lead of the king and then plunked it down on the table. When it held he continued the suit. South did the best he could by ruffing, but later on East got in with the ace of trumps Bud led his last diamond. South was forced to ruff again and could not keep Bud from making another trump trick.

Spring in Bloom

The return of the robins and the sight of the first crocus are always thought of as the harbingers of spring. But you know spring is really here when the trees are in blossom and the pretty girls are out in their short skirts. Here's a winning combination - as Deborah Broad takes time out to admire the blossoms which have recently bloomed at Bridge Street United Church.

Motorcyclist Serious

Donald Brumbley of 256 Coleman Street was injured when his motorcycle was in collision with a car driven by 20-year-old Allan Lacroix of RR2, in Frankford.

The accident occurred around 8 a.m. yesterday morning in the North Front and Tracey Street area.

Mr. Lacroix has been charged with failing to yield on a left turn.

11 Students Employed On Summer Projects

Two summer projects under the provincial government's Experience '74 program have been awarded to Hastings county. Funded by the ministry of education, the projects will employ a total of 11 students.

PEOPLE (Preservation and Exploration of Ontario's Past, a Learning Experience) has been given $5,000 to the Hastings county board of education for a project that will employ six people in making a complete set of historic site maps and a slide presentation on the county.

The project will employ three university students, two senior secondary school students and a university graduate in history, who will be project director. The project director's job will last 16 weeks, the others will be employed for eight to 12 weeks. Salaries will be $80 to $90 a week.

The second grant of $2,000 will fund a Catalogue under the SPICE (Students Participating in Community Education) program.

Five students will be employed to visit communities in the county to seek out and catalogue the cultural resources of the area. They will compile information about artists, local historians, libraries, theatres and other resources and relevant material.

The project will last six weeks and will be open to both university and secondary school students. One of the five will be project director.

David Smith, co-ordinator of the community school program of the county board will supervise the projects in conjunction with personnel from the historical society and Quinte Arts Council.

Application forms for employment on the two projects are available in school guidance offices.

Another Hospital Protests

The board of governors of Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital has added its voice to BGH in protesting the nursing school admission policy at Loyalist College.

In a letter from the board, read by college president Herbert Young Thursday night, the Prince Edward county board protested "the lottery method" of selecting nursing school candidates and asked the board to give consideration to other methods.

Loyalist president Young said the nursing advisory council will have recommendation to present at the board's June meeting.

Enrolment of more than 70 students a year depends on hospital clinical facilities, he indicated. In some specialties, such as obstetrics, pediatrics and psychiatric nursing, accommodation is lacking, he said.

The nursing advisory council, whose chairman is Dr. Bruce Croel, will present its findings and recommendations in June.

Delegation Asks Children's Aid to Open Up Membership

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

A Hastings County children's aid society (CAS) special committee Thursday heard oral presentation of a brief calling for several major changes in existing society bylaws geared to open membership to a wider segment of the public.

Membership in the society should hinge only upon an individual's interest and the payment of a $1 membership fee, the brief maintains. It further recommends board vacancies should be filled by the society's membership at a general meeting.

Head of the three-member delegation appearing before CAS board appointed bylaw committee, Lyle Sutherland said the brief had been prepared by an eight-member committee drawn from 29 Belleville and Trenton citizens. All had expressed interest in CAS affairs during two public meetings held in April.

In total, the brief recommends revision of nine of 53 clauses in existing CAS bylaws. Prior to Thursday's oral submission, the brief had been filed in written form with the CAS before an April 29 deadline. It was the only one received at the society's Front St. offices.

Speaking after the bylaw committee hearing, Mr. Sutherland said the brief stems from the CAS March annual meeting at which foster parents were refused membership in the society.

"That's where it all started," he said. "That's where the impetus lies for getting the brief going."

At the annual meeting, board chairman Allan Bronson of Bancroft said the board has followed a policy of excluding foster parents for fear possible conflicts of interest could result. Foster parents are paid by CAS to care for children.

In recent weeks, the society's hall found itself embroiled in controversy over its policy to prohibit foster parent society membership.

As recommended by the brief the membership clause would mark a departure from existing bylaws which provide that a member be retained by a board of directors' resolution. Further, current bylaws state board vacancies occurring in mid-term are filled by the board.

To increase involvement in society affairs, the brief recommends notice of board and executive meetings, agenda and minutes be sent to all society members. Notice of meetings would not be sent in the event of an emergency board meeting.

Only board members now receive notice of meeting.

Proposed revision of another clause is designed to increase executive directors' accountability to the board in their actions relating to CAS staff. Provision is also made in the brief to protect the director from arbitrary dismissal without just cause.

Existing bylaws state the executive director is appointed by the board and can be dismissed by them "at their pleasure."

If acted upon by the bylaw committee, the final revision would require the executive director to recommend to the board a staff dismissal upon just cause. By a majority vote, the board could approve.

All bylaw revisions proposed by the brief will be taken into consideration by the bylaw committee in its study to determine the desirability of permitting foster parents inclusion in the society.

Committee recommendations will go to the CAS board June 27 where upon they will be released publicly.

Any changes in CAS bylaws, if approved by the board, will be sent to the provincial ministry of community and social services for approval.

Basford Believes Railways Would Help Reroute City Line

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The railroads would participate in any rerouting of lines in urban areas — such as the CPR tracks along Belleville's waterfront, Urban Affairs Minister Ronald Basford believes.

"I would certainly hope in any relocation planning process the railways would participate," he told Jack Ellis, MP Hastings in the Commons this week.

"There is no way of forcing them to participate, but I certainly think they would," said Mr. Basford.

His remarks came as the Commons debated Bill C-27, legislation to facilitate relocation of rail lines in urban areas.

The chances of rerouting CPR tracks off now valuable Belleville waterfrontage has been a recurring topic in city affairs for years.

Mr. Ellis, who was among mayors of Belleville who broached the issue, has now written city hall outlining details of the bill.

The east-west CPR tracks — like those of the Canadian National — extend north of Belleville. But the CPR dips south along the Bay of Quinte as it enters the city.

Such a route may once have been necessary for industry development since many industries settled on waterfrontage, Mr. Ellis said.

Removal of the tracks would also be a safety measure — as well as boosting property values, he said.

"If it were not for the tracks, some of that land would be the most valuable in the city," said Mr. Ellis.

Elevating tracks with the railways from time to time, I've found that CN and CP argue quite a bit and that the spirit of co-operation between them does not exist in the way we think it should," said Mr. Ellis.

Mr. Basford said the bill would permit the government to pay 50 per cent of any transportation or urban development study involving rerouting. How such land is disposed of once freed, would likely vary with communities.

Any plan is subject to challenge before the Canadian Transport Commission. The legislation provides powers of expropriation and land disposal.

"I think in most cases there will be a voluntary arrangement worked out as to what is going to happen," said Mr. Basford.

In his letter to city hall Mr. Ellis says if council should decide to take the issue to the planning stage, the actual application must be made through the province.

New Motel for North Front

A motor hotel and office building complex will be built on a piece of property on North Front Street it was announced Thursday.

The exact amount of the purchase price was not disclosed. Residential homes which have been sold are located on the present site.

Mead Johnson Recalls Formula Voluntarily

By SHARON AIRHART

Mead Johnson Canada voluntarily recalled 288 cans of its Enfiac baby formula produced here in November after a Thunder Bay child became ill last week.

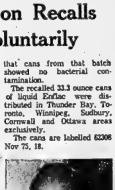
Director of regulatory affairs Mike Burnett said Thursday that although the company believes the batch of formula has already been consumed, it recalled the cans by advertising in newspapers in centres where they were distributed.

Last week, Mr. Burnett said, a Thunder Bay mother became ill last week. Director of regulatory affairs Mike Burnett said Thursday that although the company believes the batch of formula has already been consumed, it recalled the cans by advertising in newspapers in centres where they were distributed.

Last week, Mr. Burnett said, a Thunder Bay mother took opened cans of the product to the federal department of health there after her child, an infant daughter, became ill.

While it is "open to question as to whether the product made the child sick or she became ill in the normal course of events," Mr. Burnett said, the government test did reveal the presence of heat resistant bacteria known as facultative anaerobes of a mixed culture. It was not a botulism-type bacteria.

"In conversation with the government it was decided to recall," Mr. Burnett said.



The formula is manufactured daily in numbered batches, and sterilized in an autoclave in large separate groups. The 18th load of that daily batch, Mr. Burnett said, may have been sterilized only 2½-minutes rather than the normal six.

However, Mr. Burnett said Mead Johnson's tests at the time of manufacture proved that cans from that batch showed no bacterial contamination.

The recalled 33.3 ounce cans of liquid Enfiac were distributed in Thunder Bay, Toronto, Winnipeg, Sudbury, Cornwall and Ottawa areas exclusively.

Graduation Stays Home

Loyalist College will hold its first graduation exercises on its own premises May 25 at 2 p.m. when the cafeteria-gym will be opened to accommodate 1,200 people.

Until this year, the college's graduation exercises were held at Centennial Secondary School, where only 1,000 could be accommodated.

To reserve room for students and their families, the faculty representation has been limited to 70. Loyalist has 270 faculty and administrative personnel.

The college expects to have about 32 award-winning students in front-centre position among the faculty.

David Smith, as the rascally miser Fagin, stole the show Thursday night in the Belleville Theatre Guild's production of "Oliver!" His shuffles and darts his way through the musical, playing tonight and Saturday in the Belleville Collegiate Institute's auditorium. Some seats are still available and can be purchased at the door.

Oliver Triumph Opening Night

If the success of a theatrical production can be judged by the faces of its audience afterwards, then last night's premiere of the Belleville Theatre Guild's "Oliver!" was a triumph.

Almost every one of the 800 people trooping out of the Belleville Collegiate Institute's auditorium was smiling and humming after what they'd seen and heard during the musical's opening night.

A stage romping with irresistible children, among whom a golden-haired Oliver played by Elliott Royle whose angelic appearance made up for his too-thin voice. A little tad for the role, he nevertheless captured the audience as the play spun out the story of this orphan waif and his misadventures.

However, the night belonged not to the hero, but to one of the most lovable villains of all time — Fagin, master of a den of youthful thieves. Lucre is the fine art of picking pockets.

David Smith created an unpronsable Fagin from each miserly little shuffle of his feet to every glint in his rascally eyes. His hands were like birds of prey with a life of their own.

Mr. Smith's singing voice was the best in the show, and his "Reviewing the Situation" was the highlight of the evening.

If Fagin was in a class by himself last night, so was on his heels was Nancy, Diane Coyne's tough but soft-at-the-heart of gold.

A skilful actress, Mrs. Coyne also had a chance to show her considerable talents in singing numbers. Although her voice was a little rough for her final number (a reprieve of the moving 'As Long As He Needs Me') she made earlier scenes sparkle, such as "Oom-Pa-Pa" and 'I'd do Anything'.

Her partner in the toilet-sang-and-dance routine was David Kidd, a favorite with the audience the moment he appeared as the Artful Dodger. Mr. Kidd was amusing and brash, with a good singing voice and stage presence. His costume, like Fagin's, was carefully copied to help he gave the illusion of having a generally poor cut of the 13th century illustration of Dickens' London.

Christopher Marshall brought to the sinister role of Bill Sykes a good gruff voice and hulking physique. Black eye and all, that threatened all the while he was on stage. In contrast to Fagin, who seemed too kindly to be a villain, Sykes seemed too much a monster to be human. Also, Mr. Marshall's gruffness impaired his diction when he sang.

On the other hand, good diction didn't save the day for the opening scene, in which the poorhouse boys sang about "Food, Glorious Food" in such unenthusiastic tones that their precise enunciation was lost.

One of the best-staged number was "Be Back Soon", a superb combination of Fagin and the children, performing well and having fun at the same time.

Although at first glance it would seem unlikely that the four Mr. and Mrs. Sowerberry were having fun, Maurice and Joyce Sykes obviously did just that in the roles of the ghoulish undertaker and his fawning wife. They had many of the same facial mannerisms that made them doubly humorous, though they were guilty of a little over-playing.

Robert Johnston, playing Mr. Bumble, was another too pompous and sing-songy in his caricature, but had a rich voice well-suited to his Act I solo, "Boy For Sale".

Liz Wright brought a nice comic flair to her role of Mrs. Corney, the widow who captures Mr. Bumble with her slow-starting number "I Could Scream".

Deserving mention are many of the smaller roles that filled out the play and gave it life. Paul Kirby's vicious little Dodger, Cathy Parson's nasty trudge, and Jim Alexander's kindly Mr. Brownlow were each well-done as was Ted Bairstow's garnishing doctor.

However there were small unpleasantries that gave away "Oliver" as an amateur production.

The suede shoes and shiny ladle in the opening scene, the mis-spelling of Sowerberry's name on a stage sign, and the too-obvious make-up on many of the cast (most noticably Mrs. Corney and Dr. Grimwig) were glaring.

The lighting was uneven and detracted from the visual beauty of the musical's fine costumes and excellent set, designed by Jim Vershbower. The stagy lent itself to every scene, with a swift switching of props handled efficiently by actors and crew.

The orchestra, under the baton of Frank Martin, did a generally good job of supporting the vocal music which has been coached by Mary Lou Gallagher, the instrumental music occasionally drowned out the voices of the cast, and needs better balance.

An amateur production cannot be expected to score 100 per cent in something as complex as a Broadway musical. But this gets an A plus, as us, as "Oliver!" does, is a tribute to the directing skills of Liz Marshall—C.B.

County Museum Basement Boasts Eskimo Art Display

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

A small and select exhibition of indigenous art is shumbering peacefully at Hastings County Museum, waiting true connoisseurs to waken to its value.

The Eskimo art display has been mounted by the federal department of Indian and Northern Affairs. It includes, among other artifacts, a complete graphic illustration of how Eskimo prints are produced.

The display came to Belleville from the Royal Ont. in Toronto and will be in the city only until the end of May.

Total value of the exhibit is $13,000. It includes appliqued and embroidered felt squares, sculpture and prints.

Two one-dollar engravings from Cape Dorset are valued at $500.

Eskimo prints come from only six print-making centres in the Arctic. After 50 separate prints are pulled, the master stone is destroyed with an X to destroy the design.

The Northern Affairs display includes tools used by the Eskimoes to produce their prints. Hatchets are made of files wrapped with sealskin thongs, and chisels and knives closely resemble x-acto knives, with bone handles.

In the brief 15 years since Eskimo stone prints were first introduced to the southern Canadian market their value has risen from $4 to $250.

"This exhibit proves how the ,white-man's tools have been turned against himself to produce a native art of great value," says museum curator Marten Lewis.

The display has been rounded in the basement of the museum, against white-washed stone walls that display it to maximum advantage.

The department of Indian and Northern Affairs has placed a display of Eskimo art in Hastings County Museum for a month. Constance Moore, museum secretary, holds the carved block from which a print in the exhibit was made. As well as sculpture and embroidery, the display includes a complete set of print-making tools, including knives, chisels, paint pots and brushes.

4 Tenders For Arena

WELLINGTON — Four tenders for reconstruction of Wellington arena have been opened and are under consideration.

Reeve Robert Boyce says the new arena will be called the Wellington District Community Centre.

Tenders submitted were. Miron-Wiggers, Trenton, $327,128; Cook Construction Trenton, $311,313; El Rose, Trenton, Scarborough $308,000; Dejong Wieger Construction of Stirling, $294,273.

Loyalist Students Can Bank on Campus

Next fall Loyalist College students, isolated five miles from the centre of Belleville, will have their own bank to serve their financial needs.

College director of finance, G. G. Harry told the board of governors Thursday night that a sub-branch of a downtown bank will open on the college.

He said the branch would move on campus in response to an expressed student need.

Mr. Harry said four banks had shown interest in the on-campus set-up, but only one, which he refused to specify, had sustained the interest.

Only Equity Need Apply

As reported in Thursday's Intelligencer — which did not mention the necessity of membership in Equity — auditions will be held by appointment only at Centennial Secondary School, at 8 p.m. Wednesday, May 8.

For appointment call collect to Miss Mitchell, 416-468-2153.

Deciding Game Sunday

Rangers Come Through To Force Showdown

NEW YORK (CP) — It took an old-fashioned wrist shot to beat Philadelphia Flyers Thursday night and kept New York Rangers alive in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

The shot, by journeyman Ron Harris, got past Bernie Parent in the third period, breaking a 1-1 tie. The Rangers went on to a 4-1 win.

"As much as we've seen the slapshot take over in the last few years, it still goes to prove that a good wrist shot will beat a goaltender on a hot night," said Ranger coach Emile Francis of the winning goal.

"It's very tough when it's right on."

The win forced a deciding game in the seven-game series, starting Sunday at 4 p.m. EDT in Philadelphia. It will be seen nationally on the CBC.

Parent was at his brilliant best until Harris beat him, keeping the Flyers in the game with a series of difficult stops in the second period.

"Harris made a good move to his right and he caught me going the wrong way—a little bit on one foot," said Parent. "You could say I was just a bit screened, but not much."

Harris, who has played most of the series with a badly-bruised chest and shoulder, said he just wanted to get his shot on the net "and it went in."

"I've scored three goals in the playoffs and I haven't seen one go in yet," he said. "I had the puck on my right and I just shot it—I didn't aim for the corner."

Harris got his shot off despite the fact rookie Flyer forward Bruce Cowick was hanging on to him at the time. Philadelphia defenceman Joe Watson was also in on the play.

It was an overtime goal by Harris that won the fifth game of New York's quarter-final against Montreal Canadiens.

Ninety-eight seconds after Harris scored, Ted Irvine made it 3-1 for the Flyers when the puck deflected off him into the net. Steve Vickers added an empty-net goal in the final minute.

Parent, who had 28 saves, was asked about an especially brilliant save he made early in the third period on Peter Stemkowski after the big Ranger centre made a near-perfect deflection of a hard drive from the point by Jim Neilson.

"The big shot came from the point," said Parent. "I think he (Stemkowski) was in pretty close and the puck stuck in my glove."

Stemkowski and his teammates were so sure he had a goal that they wheeled away from the net with their sticks in the air in celebration.

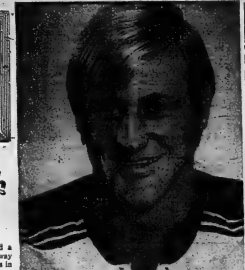
"Joe Watson was the defenceman covering him (Harris)," said Shero. Begnie (Parent) just didn't see it in time."



The Flyers picked up 26 of the game's 60 penalty minutes, giving them 221 for the series and eclipsing the old series mark of 206 assessed Boston Bruins in a 1970 quarter-final against the Rangers.

The game total gave the two teams a series total of 370 minutes, five shy of the all-time series record set in that same 1970 Ranger-Bruin playoff.

Flyer captain Bobby Clarke and Stemkowski battled in the last minute of the game and Philadelphia's Gary Dornhoefer drew a game misconduct for being third man in the fight.

150 Stanley Cup Games

NEW YORK (CP) — Matt Pavelich doubts he would have met his wife Dragica if he had not been a National Hockey League official and says the story that an NHL official's life is a lonely one is a myth.

"There are so many things to see and do in life, there is no need to be lonely," said Pavelich, who worked his 150th Stanley Cup playoff game Thursday night - a record for NHL linesmen.

"I've met many interesting people and have seen and visited many places during my 18 years in the league. But most important, it has given me my family.

"I was able to afford a trip to Yugoslavia in 1963 and while there I met Dragica. I returned the following summer and we were married there. She moved to Canada midways through the 1964-65 season."

Pavelich, who has three children — two boys and a girl — spends most of his spare time on the road either sightseeing — he says he acts as a guide to some of the rookie officials in a city for the first —time or enjoying a movie.

"I don't want to go to see violence on the screen," said Pavelich, who has his own share of violent life breaking up fights in the NHL.

Pavelich also enjoys the current nostalgia fad, often sitting in hotel lobbies with other officials, recalling music of the 1940s and 1950s or trying to stump others with names and characters of motion pictures.

Pavelich, a 46-year-old native of Park Hill Gold Mines, Ont., a community near Sault Ste. Marie, has worked 1,310 regular season games. He said the biggest difference between regular season and playoff play is pressure.

"The players are more tense because of the short series, the loss of which means the end of the season," Pavelich said. "They have to stay up for every game and do not really have much time to relax."

Jacques Plante Out?

QUEBEC (CP) — Paul Racine, president of Quebec Les Nordiques since the club's inception two years ago, said Thursday he will resign his post at a shareholders' meeting of the World Hockey Association team Saturday.

Racine's announcement came after a report that Jacques Plant , coach and general manager of the club this year, had decided to resign.

Racine said in an interview he will keep his post as president of the WHA's finance committee and will represent Les Nordiques at the next WHA meetings. He said he also will be in charge of the finance committee for the series between the top WHA players and players from the Soviet Union next fall.

Racine said he had talked with Plante recently and that the former National Hockey League all-star netminder, who signed a 10-year contract with Les Nordiques last year, had indicated he was considering resigning.

Homero Blancas Hot

DALLAS (AP) — Homero Blancas rode a hot putting streak and a pair of eagles to a six-under-par 66 Thursday and five-first-round lead of the $150,000 Byron Nelson golf tournament.

Blancas had a 33-32—65 in the chase for top prize of $30,000.

That was good for a two-shot lead over Australians Bruce Crampton and Bruce Devlin.

New Zealand's Bob Charles and American Bob Payne.

A record 30 players in the field of 156 broke par and 17 others equalled it, a fact attributed largely to the soft, true greens.

Ben Kern of London, Ont., was seven strokes behind Blancas with a 72. Will Homenuik of Winnipeg had a 73.

A Goal in a Losing Cause

Although the Quinte defenceman jumped into the air to try and stop the shot, Joe Muldoon of Nicholson College (50) got his drive through to the net for one of his team's four goals in the high school lacrosse league game Wednesday night. The goal was in a losing cause, however, as Quinte took the upper hand in the opening game for each team, taking a 6-4 win from NCC, to move into a first place tie with Centennial Secondary School in the league's Western division.

Bernie Howe Named Backup Official in Lacrosse League

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

It is quite often brought to the attention of sports officials that they always seem to miss the major plays in a contest.

Consequently... resounding cries of "Hey! You're blind" arise from the most, competent bench warmers a game has ever known — the fans.

Bernard Howe, 2 12-year-old employee of Quinte Ford, has yet to resort to a scoring eye dog or a white cane and dark glasses, though he does quite frequently turned a deaf ear, and as a result has developed into an all-round official.

Bernie, referees hockey and lacrosse and umpires softball and baseball and is a sanctioned Ontario card holder in each of those four sports.

Bernie's most distinct progressions have been in the sport of lacrosse.

At present he is the only Ontario Lacrosse Association (OLA) sanctioned referee in the Belleville-Kingston area. He is also a back-up referee to the North American Lacrosse League (NALL), a professional association which includes teams from Toronto, Montreal, Cleveland and Philadelphia.

Six referees were chosen from OLA officials by the new NALL. Along with the six regular refs, five back-ups were chosen in case one of the six was unavailable to fulfill his obligations.

"I was surprised when they told me I was to be one of the back-ups," commented Howe, "I've only held an OLA card for three years."

The appointment as a back-up referee to the new pro league means Howe could be called at any time and told to fly to any of the cities in the circuit.

Just as in OLA games all travelling expenses are paid and Bernie receives remuneration for his services, but what most people are unaware of is that if an OLA official's performance is not satisfactory, he can be dismissed at any time.

"As long as you give 100 per cent out there," says Howe, "there will be no questions asked. But once you stop putting forth an all-out effort you might as well forget officiating lacrosse on a pro and semi-pro level."

As an example Bernie noted the dismissal of one referee who had been sanctioned by the Ontario Lacrosse Association for 12 years. The reason was that this particular ref attempted to take it easy in a few games.

"They don't show any mercy," commented Howe, "you either do your job or you're out of a job."

"It's a serious sport with dedicated executives," added Howe, "and they want wholly dedicated officials."

There are only 65 OLA sanctioned referees in the province, even though almost 150 have applied for cards in the last two years. This small group of refs have to handle all Junior games on the A, B, C, and D level and all Senior games as well.

"I enjoy officiating lacrosse," said Bernie, "It's a challenge both mentally and physically."

"The only thing that isn't appealing about it is that if you officiate a lot of sports the way I do you may as well forget any social life," added Howe.

Olympics Take Exhibition Win

The Belleville Olympics of the Premier Soccer League defeated CFB Trenton of the Bay of Quinte League Thursday night in an exhibition soccer game 2-1, in a game played at CFB.

Although Olympics controlled most of the first half of play, the score was tied at no goals apiece at the end of the first half due to poor finishing of plays by the Belleville team.

CFB took the lead in the 15th minute of the second half when a Belleville defender made a bad pass, with the ball sailing past Olympic goalkeeper Sandy Duchard.

D'Anna and Tom Mutwell were the standouts for Belleville in the contest.

The Olympics' next contest will be against a team of their own league, the Premier Soccer League, the Oshawa Wanderers, in an exhibition contest on Sunday. The game will be played at the Oshawa Civic Centre Field.

Quinte Secondary School opened its high school lacrosse season Wednesday night by taking a 6-4 win from Nicholson Catholic College. It was also the opening contest for Nicholson.

In the only game scheduled for tonight, Moira travels to Bayside to take on the Red Devils.

Pats' 103 Game Season Boils Down to Three

REGINA (CP) — For Regina Pats of the Western Canada Hockey League, it's been a long season.

The Pats have played 103 games, more than any other junior hockey team in the country.

But, with all of those games behind them, the whole season boils down to a handful of games when they go after the Memorial Cup in a three-team tournament that begins Sunday in Calgary.

Other teams still in the running are St. Catharines Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior series and Quebec Remparts of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League.

Regina coach Bob Turner, a former National League defenceman, says psychology is the key to his team's fortunes in Memorial Cup play.

Turner coached the Pats when they lost to Montreal Junior Canadiens in four straight games in 1969.

"You have to be a psychologist from the start of training camp until the end of the season," he says. "But it is really crucial now. You can't start teaching them new ways of getting the puck out of their own end at this point."

As Turner sees it, his job is to keep the players in good spirits.

"Tell them they're the best and they better go out and prove it," he says.

Regina won the Eastern Division of the WCHL with a record of 43 wins, 14 losses and 11 ties for 97 points, 16 more than the runner-up Flin Flon Bombers.

They had the best road record in the league, with 17 wins, 10 losses and seven ties away from home.

Best known Regina player is Dennis Sobchuk, who signed a 10-year, multi-million contract with Cincinnati Sixers of the World Hockey Association, then finished second in the scoring race with 68 goals and 146 points.

In the playoffs, he was on a line with Clark Gillies and Ron Ulrich. The trio produced 28 playoff goals and Sobchuk led all playoff scorers with 31 points.

The line wasn't formed until the second game of the semi-final against Swift Current Broncos when the Pats entered the third period trailing 5-1. Regina scored six unanswered goals to win the game and the three have been linemates since.

The second line has Glen Burdon, Jim Minir and Robbie Laird, who scored a team-leading 11 goals and had 25 points for the Pats in the playoffs.

Greg Joly is the kingpin of a strong defence that includes Kim MacDougall, Mike Hannamy, Mike Wirachowsky and Dave Thomas.

In goal is Ed Staniowski, who had a 2.82 goals-against average during the playoffs.

Canucks' Ownership Is Now in Vancouver Too

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canucks of the National Hockey League became Vancouver in fact as well as in name Thursday night with the announcement that a Vancouver-based broadcasting conglomerate has purchased controlling interest in the franchise playing there.

Club president Coley Hall told a news conference that a group headed by Western Broadcast Sales Ltd. of Vancouver has completed arrangements to purchase 701,000 shares of the team from Medical Investments Corp. (Medicor) of Minneapolis and its embattled president, Thomas Scallen. Closing date for the sale is June 15.

The number, 51% of a share, coupled with Western's current holding of 10 per cent of the shares, gives the group 80 per cent of the team.

Frank Griffiths, president of Western, said other Vancouver-based companies would be taking some of the shares that he named only one firm, Premier Cablevision Ltd., which he said would purchase a "substantial interest."

Scallen, the financially troubled president of Medicor, said he had been offered $13.50 a share by a Miami-based group headed by Dan Topping Jr. Acceptance of the lower price meant a difference to Scallen of $1-million.

But it wasn't just a desire to see the team remained that motivated Scallen to take the lower price. The federal government's Foreign Investment Review Agency, which would have to approve any sale of control, is keen to see the team remained Canadian-owned.

Football Talks End Abruptly

CALGARY (CP) — Negotiations between Canadian Football League executives and the CFL Players' Association ended abruptly Thursday, without progress and will not continue for at least three weeks.

During an hour and morning session, the players had asked that the league representatives present a definite counter-proposal to a proposal drawn up by them in January. When the league representatives returned in the afternoon, they were introduced to Ed Garvey, executive director of the National Football League Players' Association, and immediately asked that the meeting be adjourned.

Garvey was present as a consultant to the CFL players and Norm Kimball of Edmonton Eskimos, chairman of the league negotiating committee, said the executive was not forewarned of his attendance.

"We were placed in a position of being confronted by a new face and we weren't prepared to meet under that condition," he said in an interview.

"We asked for the adjournment so we could seek the advice of the CFL executive committee and Mr. Garvey is no longer hiring our own consultants."

George Reed, president of the players' association, said he was "very disappointed that no progress was made."

"There is no question of a players' strike right now," Reed said. "That would be a last resort.

"We haven't used the players leased around in World Football League negotiations as a lever and don't intend to. But we think the CFL can afford what we want and if the clubs want to open their books to show us they can't, we'll be willing to consider our position."

Kimball said opening negotiation would be :"a highly unusual move for management."

Reed said the players want a standard contract including increases in the per-diem allowance paid during training camps, to pay for exhibition games, semi-final, final and Grey Cup games, and in pensions.

Under the old contract, players were paid $600 each for the entire four-to-six weeks training camp—"barely the minimum wage," he said. The association was asking for $1,200 each.

"In 1973, per-diem allowances and exhibition-game pay cost each team an average of $19,200 and our proposal would only cost them another $31,760 each."

Players earn less for each semi-final and final game than they do for regular season games. Reed said. The association wanted the rate of $600 and $500 for semi-final winners and losers to be doubled and the pay for each player in the finals to be increased to $1,500 from $800 for the winners and $1,200 from $600 for the losers.

The $3,000 paid each winner and $2,000 each loser in last year's Grey Cup game amounted to only 8.29 per cent of the $1.4 million taken in gate receipts, Reed said.

RALPH HOUK

Houk Loaded With Hope

The reason is obvious. The Tigers completed a sweep of a three game American League baseball series Thursday night with a 9-7 win over Kansas City Royals.

The game was the only one played Thursday. Scheduled National League games between Cincinnati Reds and the Pirates at Pittsburgh and Atlanta Braves and the Cardinals at St. Louis were rained out.

Houk says he can't understand why many experts wrote the Tigers off as perennial contenders before the season opened.

"I don't know why most people thought we'd be so bad," says Houk. "We've got the added nine players who weren't here last year. There's not a better left side of the infield in the league (and) we've got the hitting.

"If our pitching holds up and I think it will, I see no reason why we can't go all the way."

The Tigers almost blew Thursday's game, giving starting pitcher Joe Coleman an 8-0 lead and watching it shrink to 9-7.

Mickey Stanley, Jim Northrup and Aurelio Rodriguez combined for eight of Detroit's 12 hits and drove in five runs. Northrup's ninth-inning home run gave the Tigers breathing room.

FIGHT PLANNED

NEW YORK (AP) — Former world heavyweight champion Joe Frazier will fight Jerry Quarry in a 12-round bout June 17 at Madison Square Garden as part of a closed circuit television doubleheader, Garden boxing president Teddy Brenner announced Thursday. Light heavyweight titlist Bob Foster will face Jorge Ahumada, an Argentinian fighting out of New York, in Albuquerque, N. M., in the other half of the twin bill.

McLain, Price Both Back With Majors

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Former Cy Young Award winner Denny McLain has signed to pitch for London Majors of the Senior Inter-County League, the semi-professional baseball team announced Thursday.

General manager George Hall of the Majors said McLain and Jim Price, a former major league catcher, were signed late Wednesday night.

Hall said the pair would be paid no more than the other players on the Majors, $30 a game each in expense money. Both players still live in Detroit.

McLain, 31, won the Cy Young Award in 1968 when he won 31 games for the Tigers, who captured the World Series that year, and again in 1969 when he won 24 games.

When he won 31 games in 1968, he became the first 30-game winner in the majors since Dizzy Dean of St. Louis Cardinals in 1934.

JIM PRICE

Subsequently, McLain was suspended because of gambling allegations against him. He never regained his old form and finished out his major league career with Washington Senators, Texas Rangers, Oakland Athletics and Atlanta Braves.

He split last season between Iowa Oaks of the Class AAA American Association and Asheville, Captains of the Class AA Texas League.

Price, 30, caught for the Ti-

IN MEMORIAM

BARNLEY — In loving memory of my dear husband Peter Barnley who passed away May 3, 1971. And while he lies in peaceful sleep The memory we have will always be sacred, lovely and dear. Sadly missed by wife Dorothy, children and grandchildren.

MORAN — In loving remembrance of a dear wife and mother Mrs. Thomas Moran who passed away May 3, 1971.
Many a day her name is spoken,
Many a heart for her doth yearn in fond memory.
A link in our family chain is broken.
But God has gone from our home but memories linger on.
Sadly missed and remembered by husband Tom, daughters and families.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Verrell Jones wish to thank their relatives, friends and neighbours for their kindness and sympathy during the late Mr. Jones' illness.

Scot Began Savings Bank Plan

RUTHWELL, Scotland (CP) — A tiny cottage in this village in southwest Scotland will draw hundreds of financial and savings bank executives, many from overseas, when it opens as a museum to commemorate the birthplace of the world's first savings bank.

In a ceremony Oct. 8, they will mark the 200th anniversary of the birth of Rev. Henry Duncan, the Scot who founded the bank and exported the national virtue of thrift to the world.

Noel Diwiddie, a businessman in nearby Dumfries who is responsible for the museum, said: "We have made a world-wide appeal for items to display in the museum, a custodian has been appointed and special postage stamps will be issued."

A newspaper editor and financial expert as well as a minister, Duncan saw that poverty could be overcome even when wages were low and harvests bad.

He ordered a cargo of corn to be landed at a nearby harbor, sold it to the villagers at cost price and won their goodwill. Then he revived the local industry of spinning.

His main object was to make poor people independent of charity.

He formed the bank in the village cottage on 4 May evening in 1810. Within a year the villagers had deposited more than £150 and in three years its funds stood at £922. Reports of the enterprise spread.

Each depositor had to put in at least four shillings a year or pay a fine of one shilling. Interest was five per cent—four per cent if one withdrew one's money within three years.

Duncan's venture was the forerunner of all trustee savings banks and he is the acknowledged father of the system. Today the British Post Office Savings Bank is the largest in the world.

Diwiddie, a native of Ruthwell, explained: "Duncan realized that not only must the interest returned to depositors be fully earned, but a reserve fund must be set up to protect customers against loss."

The movement spread to Europe and America and has found favor in all the emerging nations of Africa, the Middle East and Far East.

Duncan died in 1846, but his ideas live on in millions of savings bank accounts and in countless homes on living room shelves, where thrifty householders contribute towards the next deposit in the savings bank.

Baddeck N.S., Bay Is Curator Of National Geographic Hall

By BRUCE LEVETT

WASHINGTON (CP) — What's a boy from Baddeck, N.S., doing with His and Hers fertility dolls mounted on his bookcase in a downtown Washington office?

Explains there was no room on his desk, what with that molar from the extinct Alaskan mastodon and the pre-Columbian burial urn and a typewriter which may well predate them both.

T. Kellor Bentley, born in Springhill, N.S., 49 years ago, educated and reared in Halifax and former superintendent of the Alexander Graham Bell Museum in Baddeck, is curator-director of Explorers Hall, showplace of the National Geographic Society.

He has no complaints about his brown-closet of an office, which he shares with a large marble bust of a forgotten dogin, fragments of Spanish treasure galleons and the skull of a mountain gorilla which serves as a bookend.

But of the wide, airy exhibition hall downstairs—his own special preserve—he says "I could use 10 more floors."

The hall features ever-changing displays depicting National Geographic-supported projects going back more than 76 years. It attracts more than 500,000 visitors a year.

One display is built around a dogsled that went to the top of the world with Robert E. Peary. Next to it is a mastodon that went to the bottom of the Mediterranean with Jacques Cousteau.

A corner is taken up with the huge steel gondola which hung from the balloon Explorer when it ascended 14 miles to give man an early glimpse into his stratosphere 40 years ago.

"And, of course, you recognize that," Bentley says of the model of the Silver Dart, first heavier-than-air machine to fly in Canada.

The society was not involved in that flight, although it resulted from an Alexander Graham Bell project. But the flight took place in Baddeck, and T. Kellor Bentley is never very far from Baddeck.

"Two bone each summer for my annual dose of iodine, which enables me to live for another year among the cannibals," he says.

Bentley speaks that way. Ask him how long he has been with National Geographic and he answers: "Ten years come Beethoven's Birthday."

The reference is apt. Bentley, as a young man, was in on the founding of the symphony and opera in Halifax and booked them on tours through the Maritime provinces as "sort of a boondocks impresario."

The path that led to Washington began "when Grandfather Carmichael used to tell us stories of Alexander Graham Bell."

"He called him the modern Leonardo. I became fascinated with the man."

As a student, Bentley worked in what now is the Nova Scotia Science Museum. Holidays he spent in Washington, studying Bell in the National Geographic archives.

"I tried to find one field of human endeavor in which he was not involved. Finally, I gave up."

Bentley became an authority on the man who invented the telephone and, in 1898, took over as head of the Bell Museum at Baddeck. Five years later, he moved to National Geographic.

The society and the magazine had been founded by Bell's father-in-law. Bell became the society's second president and changed the design of the magazine to the present format.

Bell descendants still run both the society and the magazine.

Bentley, his two daughters away at school, lives by himself in a rambling cottage he rents in four acres of forest near suburban McLean, Va.

"If you count my non-deductible dependents, however, I'm not exactly alone," he says.

The household includes a 15-year-old Labrador retriever, blind since birth, and a German shepherd which Bentley swears acts as a seeing-eye dog for the Lab.

There is a Siamese cat and there are three kinds of monkeys, plus a coatimondi, a green parrot, a red-and-gold macaw, three African grey parrots and an aquarium of tropical fish.

"They run free during the summer," he says. "But they spend their time indoors during the winter and so far as I can determine, nobody has successfully housebroken a monkey."

The parrots and fish stay home with a sitter when Bentley goes back to Baddeck each summer. He has enough trouble at the border with his dogs, cat, coatimondi and monkeys.

Besides, there isn't room for everybody in that lighthouse he owns hard by the Seal Island bridge.

At Easter he reproduced, in one-quarter scale, the beauty of Michelangelo's Sistine Chapel ceiling through the medium of huge color transparencies.

His next project was a Colombian exhibit and when that was over, he had to carry $1 million in gold artifacts back to Bogota in his airline carry-on luggage.

Ontario May Invest in Arctic Gas

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario is considering the possibility of investing in gas reserves of the Mackenzie River delta, Energy Minister Darcy McKeough said Thursday.

During debate on his ministry's spending estimates, Mr. McKeough said some consideration is being given to an energy corporation which might participate in the delta.

The issue first was broached when Jack Stokes (NDP—Thunder Bay) asked the minister whether Ontario had considered investing in the delta as a hedge against inflation.

"I think it is only a matter of time that you are going to be looking forward to that source of natural gas," Mr. Stokes said.

"The answer to your question is 'yes'," Mr. McKeough said.

The minister said Ontario would have to reach a decision on how to do it reasonably quickly.

Donald C. MacDonald, New Democratic Party energy critic, asked whether Ontario is contemplating the provincial equivalent of Petroleum Canada to co-ordinate the involvement of provincial utilities in out-of-province developments.

"I don't know at this moment. We could use the vehicle of the Ontario Development Corp. I would see the ministry of natural resources," Mr. McKeough replied.

"I don't know if the answer and I have probably said too much here," Mr. McKeough said.

MacDonald also wanted to know why Ontario is giving "all-out support" to the proposed Mackenzie Valley pipeline when all the evidence is not in.

Mr. McKeough said his support for the McKenzie pipeline hinged on a number of qualifications.

"By the 1980s, gas is going to be needed from some source other than the western sedimentary basin," he said, noting that the best guess now for the source would be the delta.

Support for the Mackenzie pipeline is subject to possible change later, he said.

Ontario, he said, wants to be assured that social and economic costs are taken into account and that any ecological damage is minimized.

Most important, the minister said, the question of native claims must be settled to the natives' satisfaction.

Davis Says Alberta Gas Boost Unjustified

AMHERSTBURG, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis said Thursday night an Alberta arbitration board award for an increase in the well-head price for natural gas was "unjustified."

Mr. Davis, speaking at a Chamber of Commerce meeting in this town 18 miles south of Windsor, said the Ontario public does not realize the impact of the award.

He said the government's energy ministry was studying the award and the impact it will have on Ontario consumers, including the legal aspects of the situation.

The arbitration board award, according to a Union Gas Co. Ltd. spokesman, could mean a 75-per-cent increase in the cost of natural gas to the private homeowner in Ontario by 1975.

The award directed Trans-Canada PipeLines Ltd. to pay 60 cents per 1,000 cubic feet by Nov. 1, 1974, and 73 cents by Nov. 1, 1975, for its Alberta natural gas. The company in turn sells the natural gas to its prime customers, mostly Union Gas Co.

A Union Gas spokesman said the increase could mean an average $100 a year addition to the bill of a residential consumer.

Mr. Davis said the arbitration board's award was "way out of line."

National Petroleum Company Is Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — The government introduced legislation Thursday to establish a national petroleum corporation with power to move into all sectors of the oil industry.

But there are no immediate plans to focus on anything more than research and development, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald told reporters after the bill was given routine first reading in the Commons.

He said the main government concern is to improve the long-term outlook for oil supplies, not to compete with existing companies in the production, refining and distribution of oil and petroleum products.

The company, to be called Petro-Canada, will have initial operating capital of $500 million and be given a further $1 billion over the first five to eight years of operation, he said. Operations would not begin before 1975.

One-third of the money will be used to develop new conventional oil supplies. The remainder will be spent on research and development of non-conventional oil sands deposits, largely in Northern Alberta.

Plans to set up a government-owned oil company were announced last December by Prime Minister Trudeau.

Relief Likely For Homes

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner will face his biggest challenge Monday night when he brings down a budget that must balance precariously between economic and political requirements.

Everyone agrees it isn't easy to face inflation and an expected general election with the same budget. A basic problem is giving Canadians relief from inflation without fueling inflation itself.

What is almost certain is that there will be tax relief for salary and wage earners and business. But with so many options available, no one is predicting their form.

Some predict higher exemptions for income tax—providing the most relief to those with low incomes. There are other possibilities of a decrease in sales taxes, which would have the effect of easing retail prices.

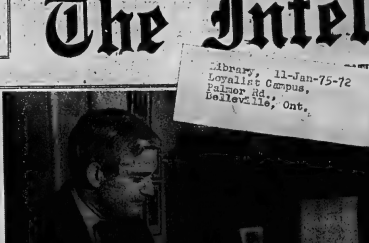
Mr. Turner also could win friends in the opposition benches by removing or reducing the 11-per-cent tax on building materials.

In any event, some government officials say they will be surprised if the budget does not contain some form of relief for hard-pressed home buyers.

If there are to be any substantial tax cuts, it almost is certain that new sources of revenue will be used to avoid a massive deficit, which would add to the country's inflationary troubles. Several suggestions have been made in print, including a surtax on high incomes.

What does seem sure is that the government won't scrap its special low tax rates for manufacturing and processing industries. Mr. Turner said in a recent speech that the greatest challenge facing the country's economy is increasing the productive facilities of those industries.

Sources say Mr. Turner is determined to hold this year's over-all deficit to $1 billion—the same deficit predicted a year ago, but later lowered to $1.3 billion because of an unexpected increased in revenues.



The $1 billion deficit projected was for both budgetary and non-budgetary accounts. Budgetary accounts are those items financed by the government's tax levies while self-financing operations—the Canada Pension Plan, for example—are non-budgetary.

Some economic experts say that, all political considerations aside, the present state of the economy calls for a balanced budget, or one close to it.

There already are predictions of a fall budget, based on the argument that inflation will continue to be a mounting problem then and new, tough measures will have to be taken.

Many experts think the Monday night budget will announce major amendments to the relatively-new Income Tax Act which, officials admit, has produced far more complications than expected. Revenues could be adjusted with the changes.

Apart from tax changes, the budget will provide Mr. Turner with a national forum to repeat his oft-repeated state-of-the-economy message.

Centre of Attention

Finance Minister John Turner, who presents his budget to the House of Commons in Ottawa Monday night, is shown as he worked in his office on Parliament Hill Friday. If his budget is not acceptable to the Conservative and NDP opposition parties, it may force a federal election.

News Briefs

DUBLIN (AP) — Irish police searched dozens of trawlers today in efforts to locate $20.4 million worth of paintings stolen eight days ago in the world's richest art theft. Police said the search at Howth Harbor was prompted by an anonymous telephone tip to a Dublin newspaper Friday night, saying a Frenchman hid the masterpieces in one of the trawlers.

Noise Bill Coming

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario hopes to have proposed anti-noise legislation ready for this fall, Environment Minister William Newman said Friday. He said an experimental program was proceeding in Hamilton and another was planned for Toronto but regulations on noise levels "are not an easy thing to determine."

Metro Taxes Up $30

TORONTO (CP) — Homeowners in Metropolitan Toronto face an increase in property taxes averaging almost $30 this year, it was announced Friday. Metro Council approved an operating budget of $357,608,882 for 1974 — an increase of 7.14 mills over last year's tax rate. The spending is 7.8 per cent more than in 1973. Metro Treasurer said for an average house assessed at $5,000, homeowners will pay $28.85 more this year.

Union Funds Seized

LONDON (AP) — The National Industrial Relations Court ordered total seizure of the funds of Britain's second largest trade union Friday and ruled it in contempt of court. The court ordered the sequestration of all funds of the Amalgamated Union of Engineering Workers for ignoring a deadline last Monday to pay compensation to a farm machinery firm because of a strike. The court ruled the strike was illegal under the Industrial Relations Act.

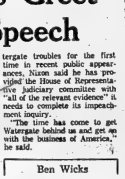
Hecklers Greet Nixon Speech

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — President Nixon, faced with hecklers in his first appearance since making public the edited transcripts of Watergate tapes, says it's time to "get on with the business of America."

Nixon was unable to ignore a small but determined band of vocal critics among a by-invitation-only crowd of 13,000 Friday night at a Republican rally in Phoenix Coliseum.



As the critics jeered and shouted hostile remarks, the president said near the beginning of his off-the-cuff remarks:

"In the great American tradition, we have come here to argue against us. We have more who are for us. And all of you are welcome."

While the great majority of the audience seemed friendly, the persistence of the hecklers prompted Nixon to remark that the right of free speech carries with it "the responsibility to keep quiet while someone else is talking."

Referring directly to his Watergate troubles for the first time in recent public appearances, Nixon said he has provided the House of Representatives Judiciary committee with "all of the relevant evidence" it needs to complete its impeachment inquiry.

"The time has come to get Watergate behind us and get on with the business of America," he said.

Strafing Continues During Peace Talks

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP) — United States State Secretary Henry Kissinger appears to have won an agreement from Syria and Israel to reduce the fighting in the Golan Heights, U.S. officials said today.

But as Kissinger flew here from Damascus to confer again with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, these officials shoted the Kissinger plane said the two sides remain far apart on where to draw the disengagement lines.

Reporters in Alexandria were told that Israel and Syria now are within "negotiating range" of each other on almost all issues.

However, Israel said today its planes strafed Arab guerrilla concentrations on the slopes of Mount Hermon and Syria reported tank and artillery battles all along the heights.

It was the 5th straight day of fighting on the Golan front.

Kissinger will fly to Israel late today to brief Premier Golda Meir and other ministers

Kidnappers Ignore Offer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A $4-million offer for the safe return of Patricia Hearst expired today with no sign of the newspaper heiress kidnapped three months ago.

The money, placed in escrow a month ago by the Hearst Corp., reverted back to the corporation as the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA), which said it abducted the 20-year-old University of California student from her Berkeley apartment Feb. 4, ignored Friday's midnight deadline.

Miss Hearst's father, newspaper executive Randolph Hearst, went to bed two hours before the deadline. A family spokesman described him as dissapointed.

The SLA made no mention of the offer in its last taped communication April 24.

The Hearst Corp., of which Hearst is chairman, offered the $4 million for a food-distribution program for the poor if Miss Hearst was released unharmed.

The development came a day after police and FBI agents located an abandoned apartment that apparently was the hideout of the kidnappers for two months.

Bills Called Ammunition

By KEN POLE

OTTAWA (CP) — In what Progressive Conservatives say is a campaign to gather ammunition to be used against them in an election campaign, the minority Liberal government introduced three new bills Friday, bringing the total for the week to eight.

Most of these bills and another 19 introduced since this session began Feb. 27 will die next week if, as expected by many, the minority Liberal government is defeated in the Commons and an election is called.

Government spokesmen have been saying in public statements recently that the Conservatives will be responsible if an election comes before Parliament can deal with these bills.

Said one Conservative spokesman Friday: "They're (Liberals) just loading up the order paper to make us look bad if they do call an election."

He said the government plans to have Parliament sit well into the summer dealing with business if an election is not called.

Friday's bills would legalize the two-price system for wheat that already is in effect, amend the National Housing Act to provide more federal aid for municipal sewer projects, and amend eight acts affecting the status of women to eliminate sex discrimination.

The latter seeks to guarantee equal status for men and women in most things, including making married women as responsible as married men for providing the necessities of life for the spouse.

The life of the minority government will be decided next week if the NDP introduces a want-of-confidence motion following Monday's presentation of the budget by Finance Minister John Turner.

The vote on the motion could come Wednesday or Thursday and a combined Conservative-NDP vote would dump the government.

Earlier this week, the government introduced five other pieces of legislation, including an act to establish a national petroleum corporation and another amending the Combines Investigation Act to enable the government to crack down on profiteering.

No action was taken on these Friday as the House debated a proposed amendment that would exempt certain religious sects from contributing to the Canada Pension Plan.

Posties Face Punitive Music

OTTAWA (CP) — Any "punitive" actions the government took as a result of the illegal postal strike last month will not be dropped, Treasury Board President C.M. Drury said Friday.

He said those actions are limited to a damage claim filed with the Public Service Staff Relations Board and a refusal to pay workers for periods they were suspended during the strike.

The government will not launch any new action, Mr. Drury said in reply to a Commons question by Otto Jelinek (PC—Toronto High Park-Humber Valley).

"But all the actions which were taken are continuing to the conclusion, and in relation to other unjustified or unjustifiable work stoppages, actions we institute will be pushed through in their conclusion and not abandoned."

Montreal Airport Slowed by Walkout

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal International Airport was busier than normal Friday night after 195 air traffic controllers returned to work at 8 p.m. EDT following a six-hour walkout.

The workers, members of the 2,100-strong Canadian Air Traffic Controllers Association (CATCA), quit work at 2 p.m. to consider the government's latest contract offer.

Service was expected to be normal today.

Air traffic controllers across Canada are voting on the latest government contract offer, and a CATCA official here said Friday members in Quebec province and British Columbia would reject it.

Results of the voting are to be announced Sunday night.

About 350 of the 2,100 Canadian air controllers work in Quebec, while the B.C. controllers number 250.

At present controllers can earn between $8,750 and $22,232 annually, but most make between $14,000 and $18,000.

Federal Communicators Talked into Staying

OTTAWA (CP) — Efforts to ward off a threatened illegal strike by federal radio operators may have had some success Friday night as government and union negotiators agreed to speed up action on a job reclassification plan.

William Doherty, a vice-president of the Public Service Alliance of Canada, which represents the 1,100 employees, said Friday he had received messages from about a dozen centres warning of a walkout at 12:01 a.m. Sunday.

But talks held later in the day may have gone part way to meeting demands of the radio operators, who are part of the communications and weather link in air traffic and shipping.

The majority of the operators earn between $9,000 and $11,000.

Princess at Derby

Princess Margaret and Lord Snowden toured the Spendthrift Farm Friday where they saw Majestic Prince, winner of the Kentucky Derby in 1969. With Princess Margaret are Mrs. C. V. Whitney, her hostess while in Lexington, and Leslie Combs II, who conducted the tour prior to today's 100th Derby.

Hamlet Nixes Post Office

Rednerseville residents may have turned down a proposal to establish a post office in their rural area.

That's the indication from Belleville district postmaster Roy Wainwright following a postal sampling of the Rednerseville area.

About 200 residents were surveyed by the mail on the suggested establishment of a post office in the hamlet of Rednerseville, with a rural mail carrier service for outlying households.

Nearest post office now is Belleville and postal authorities suggested the facility as a possible improvement to small service.

Mr. Wainwright said "quite a few" of the survey forms were returned signifying "good response."

While he still had to complete his study of the survey, he believed the majority response was "negative."

Rednerseville was once served by a post office in its general store. It was closed about 40 years ago.

Corbin Strike Called Illegal

Following is a press release issued to The Intelligencer by Dawson Boyd, press desk of International Hardware Company of Canada Limited:

"In order to protect the company's rights due to an illegal strike, the company has filed grievance procedure claiming damages and have applied to the Labour Relations Board for an illegal strike declaration and consent to prosecute the employees. That the action of the employees is illegal and violates the collective agreement.

"Our lawyers have advised us that by engaging in an illegal strike, the employees are liable to discipline up to and including discharge and prosecution with a penalty of a substantial fine.

"Under section 8.12 of the labour agreement, an employee automatically loses his seniority right's if he is absent from work for three working days.

"H.W. Hanlon, the company Vice-President of manufacturing, stated that Monday would be the third day of this illegal strike.

"Dawson Boyd, President of the company urges the Union Leadership to end this illegal strike and thus stop the needless suffering inflicted on the employees of the company."

Community Centre To Open

SHANNONVILLE — A big parade opens the Tyendinaga Community Centre here May 11.

The Canadian Forces Base Trenton band will lead the procession that will include floats and antique cars, says Don Ellis, chairman of community centre's founding association.

Floats are being built by local residents but entries also will be welcomed from outside the community, says Mr. Ellis.

The parade, scheduled to start at 1:30 p.m. from the fairgrounds here, will precede official opening ceremonies of the centre — a village schoolhouse abandoned by Hastings County school board last year and since converted by the association and its volunteer workers.

It includes the township's first library and senior citizens' building as well as facilities for teens and other youth activities.

Injuries Slight

A 7-year-old North Park St. girl is in Belleville General Hospital today after being struck by a car on North Front St. Friday.

Susan Woods, 7, of 124½ North Park remains in hospital with abrasions to her forehead, right elbow and ankle.

Trucks Collide

A two-truck collision at the intersection of Highway 37 and Thurlow township concession road three, early today, sent a Roslin man to Belleville General Hospital where he remains in satisfactory condition with head lacerations.

Belleville provincial police said a 74-ton pickup truck, driven east on the concession road by Leon LaBarge, 26, of Roslin, collided with a Canadian Pacific Express tractor-trailer, driven south by Tony Salvatore, 39, of Ottawa.

Police estimates damage to the CP tractor-trailer at $3,000 and to the LaBarge vehicle at $1,000.

Fire Damage Heavy

Fire early today extensively damaged the Avonlough Road home of Loyalist College president Herbert Young, on Belleville's western outskirts. Cause of the blaze was still being investigated today after firefighters spent four hours getting it controlled. Mr. Young was away at his cottage at the time, but returned home today.

Student Manpower Office Opens in Theatre Basement

Local labor unrest could be one factor for student job seekers to watch this summer.

Such situations agrees a Canada Manpower officials, could effect the student job market — for which a registration office opens in Belleville next week.

Full-time breadwinners — seeking to subsidize strike pay — could be out looking for those casual chores which can count as a significant contribution to summer job listings at the Canada Manpower Centre for Students.

The centre opens for summer 74 this Tuesday, says Marilyn Williams its young supervisor of the past two years.

Earlier accommodation problems have now been solved.

The centre will open in the basement of the D.L. Storrie Building — public facility known at the Theatre Guild's Pinnacle Playhouse — on Pinnacle St., where quarters have been rented from the city.

While it may be premature to say how the job market will develop this summer, job listings are up somewhat over the same time last year.

"It appears there might be more jobs," she cautiously predicts.

Last year, the centre registered 1,400 high school and university student and placed 1,000 in part-time and casual tasks which can involve anything from berry-picking to lawnmowing. Customarily, many students also find work for themselves after registration.

To date, even before its official opening, the centre already has 450 students listed — almost the same as last year, say Mrs.lyn.

The end of May, as high school closing nears, is the standard peak listing period for the centre's staff, which could effect the whole theatre complex's assistants by June.

This year, the centre is also broadening its communications to assist its youthful job applicants. A 15-minute on community cable television's — Channel 4 in Belleville — starts next Wednesday and will run six to eight weeks. The program are beamed at helping students with employer interviews and job-seeking.

Car Strikes Pole

Belleville police have charged William J. Mullin, 21, of 420 Sidney St. with careless driving following a single-car collision with a utility pole on Dundas St. East at Bleecker Ave. early today.

Police said the vehicle, westbound on Dundas St., went out of control and travelled 310 feet, before striking the utility pole. Damage to the pole, on which several transformers were mounted, was estimated at $3,150.

Police Auction Bikes

Belleville Police Department will hold an auction for unclaimed, found, and other property.

The auction will have 53 unclaimed bikes up for sale at the auction.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said the police department has to keep bicycles for a month before getting them on the auction.

Any stolen bike, provided it has been reported to the police is available for inspection.

"We would be pleased to check out any b'ke before the auction, if owners of stolen bikes will phone us," said Chief Crosbie.

Three Youths Hurt in Accident

GLEN MILLER — Four Trenton youths were taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital Friday where three remain today following a single car collision on Highway 33, south of Glen Miller.

Driver of the vehicle, Donald McCarnan, 17, of 64 Nicolet St., Trenton, remains in the intensive care unit with possible rib fractures today.

Michael Briere, 16, of 507 Front St. and Michael Parker, 16, of 44 Wall St., both of Trenton, were admitted to hospital for observation. Melvid Anderson, 15, of 496 Front St., Trenton, left hospital without treatment.

Belleville provincial police said the McCarnan vehicle went out of control and struck two parked cars before leaving the road surface. It was travelling south on Highway 33.

O'Connor Made Vice-president

Belleville Utilities Commission chairman Gerald O'Connor has been elected first vice-president of the Ontario Municipal Water Association at the group's annual convention in Windsor this week.

His election marks a deeper involvement in the political end of utility commissions. Currently, he holds a directorship in the Ontario Municipal Electric Association (OMEA). As district one director, he represents utilities in eastern Ontario.

Mr. O'Connor is immediate past-president of the Eastern Ontario Municipal Water Association.

QUINTE COUNTRY

Ameliasburgh: It's Just Right For That Leisurely Sunday Drive

The time for that traditional family pleasantry— the fine-weather Sunday afternoon drive — is in gear again.

For a rendezvous on any motorized ramble of Quinte Country this hamlet offers much now — even more as the weeks go by.

For urban dwellers it's within reach of the bigger local centres, a focal point for a leisurely drive through interesting countryside.

Nestled along Roblin Lake on Prince Edward County's high-ridged Bay of Quinte shoreline, the community has both natural and man-made attractions blended gently by time.

There are the lilacs and flowers soon to bloom, planted by Quinte pioneer 125 years ago that still blossom profusely around the settlement.

There are the houses and buildings of architectural character that distinguish this as the prosperous rural settlement it became in local history.

With its population of 250, Ameliasburgh remains the centre of local government for the township of the same name. Although a village plan was registered in 1893 it still remains a hamlet, with its roots bake in the 1840s.

But there's a centennial of a kind coming up this year.

The community's core building — its trim stone municipal hall, was built 106 years ago from material quarried locally. The building went up nearly a quarter century after the township's first reeve — William Dempsey — was elected to office.

It's a township that's not only been history-conscious, but also been creative about its past. One of the big attractions in rural Quinte country is the Ameliasburgh museum, a material recollection of pioneer days that's still growing.

Although it's closed until July 1, the public can still wander its grounds near the township hall. It's part of a rural municipal complex that includes a park, built in Centennial Year — 1967 — giving the public access to Roblin Lake.

But for what could have been one of its dramatic architectural attractions the sightseer these days has to drive well beyond Ameliasburgh. It was the big gable between a service club and radio station players and several dancers, all to assist the arena fund.

This weekend, a Wellington sports shop has organized a fishing derby with proceeds to be added to the building fund and next weekend there will be a benefit dance at the County Centre.

Pressures of Assignments Mount

Bateman Resigns Health Board

Carl Bateman, Hastings County, administrator, has resigned as secretary-treasurer of the Hastings-Prince Edward counties board of health, due to increasing work pressurers.

Mr. Bateman, who also is Belleville General Hospital board chairman, has made his resignation effective June 30 — which means he will continue to co-ordinate board administration for another month.

His resignation was tendered some time ago, but returned by the board with the request he hold office until the year's end.

Growing administrative pressures of his county post are responsible for the move, at a time when all phases of local government — including health — are becoming more complex, said Mr. Bateman. "With the increased responsibility at both levels something had to be done. I have to devote time more exclusively to the county level of government," he said.

Evidence the increasing complexity of local public health administration is indicated by its budgets—which have increased about 10-fold as the board's jurisdiction has grown in seven years.

Mr. Bateman became secretary in 1958 when Belleville and Hastings county amalgamated public health authorities.

The initial budget then was about $55,000 recalled Mr. Bateman. Later, Prince Edward County and Trenton joined to form the present board.

This year's budget estimates — approved by the board only last month — totalled $696,000.

Wellington Sets Example Of Community, Challenge

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

WELLINGTON — Some 50 times dubbed Prince Edward's retirement village, Wellington has doubled this label with a fast-paced fund drive to rebuild its arena.

Community response after the fire that destroyed the old rink, built in 1932, was strictly "now" generation.

The arena building fund, headed by Delbert Boyle, was organized quickly as Wellington and district residents prepared to tackle the job of constructing a new rink from a heap of charred rubble.

The old arena, a private company, became a community arena and an arena commission, with Mr. Boyle as chairman was formed.

Reeve Robert Boyce of Wellington projected concern for the rebuilding project at county council and members turned over a day's indemnities.

Letters were sent to local industries in an appeal for funds and the response boosted the building fund. Also, a grand prize draw was planned for this summer.

But Wellington and district residents pushed their cause, enthusiasm became contagious. Organizations throughout Prince Edward began to organize projects to raise money for the fund.

There was a benefit church supper, a benefit country and western concert, a hockey game between a service club and radio station players and High, the first of eight members of the Satan's Choice motorcycle club to stand trial on charges of trafficking in the drug, was remanded in custody for sentencing. The conviction carries a maximum sentence of 10 years in penitentiary.

The determined efforts of Wellington and Wellington area residents, coupled with assistances from other communities spurred by their enthusiasm, have raised approximately $20,000 for the building fund.

Reeve Boyce says that still another $22,000 is needed and a public appeal has been launched to raise this amount.

This week four tenders for a new arena were opened and now are under consideration.

Th Wellington District Community Centre will become a reality because of a community's participation in an ambitious drive to rebuild.

This display of community spirit deserves applause from Prince Edward County as an example of what can be accomplished through hard work and concern.

In contrast, the Quinte's Sun Post project fell flat although, it was initiated on a much larger scale.

Despite committee meetings, public meetings and public offers of assistance, Prince Edward County still has a public swimming pool.

The late mayor H. J. McFarland approved of the project and once offered to match public donations dollar for dollar.

Even with these promised assists, the plan for a pool fell into limbo and a huge wooden pregress thermometer stands forlornly on the lawn of the Armory Mall.

Vandals have snapped off the wooden tabs marking fund goals on this gauge and the last publicized meeting of the pool committee was called in September, 1972.

Wellington and its surrounding district has shown that when a facility is needed, and wanted, it can happen.

Prince Edward should offer a big hand for the little village that relied on determination and long hours of work to rebuild an arena for its residents.

Rail Relocation also
Bill Boosts Farm Loans, Doubles Improvements

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate gave final approval to four government bills Friday and they are expected to become law next week.

The bills:

—Provide for federal financial aid to the relocation of railway tracks and yards from urban core areas. The bill, expected to cost about $50 million a year for the first five years it is in effect, also provides for grants for the improvement of existing rail grades and crossings.

—Establish five new national parks—two in Quebec and three in the North. The Quebec parks are Forillon and St. Maurice. The three in the Northwest Territories and the Yukon have not been officially proclaimed pending the extinguishing of aboriginal land claims.

—Raise to $50,000 from $25,000 the maximum amount which may be borrowed under each of the Farm Improvement Loans Act, the Fisheries Improvement Loans Act and the Small Businesses Loans Act.

Cheques Left, UIC Asks 29,000 "Why?"

TORONTO (CP) — The Unemployment Insurance Commission, UIC wants to know why about 29,000 Metropolitan Toronto residents did not pick up their cheques here during the recent mail strike.

A UIC spokesman said Friday nearly 3,000 recipients will be called to commission offices next week to explain why they did not do so.

"We're very curious to know why people did not come in," regional director James Donahue said. "We will be asking each claimant the reason."

"If anyone doesn't show up for the interview, he will lose for the benefit cheque and be disqualified from further entitlement."

The commission set up emergency offices at two armories to accommodate the claimants who normally receive their cheques by mail.

Mr. Donahue said those who will not be called include persons who were due to draw sickness and maternity benefits or the three-week UIC retirement lump sum, or those who reported to the armories once but did not return. Claimants who live in remote areas of Metro also will be excluded.

Officials said that at the end of the emergency payments program it was decided not to mail out unclaimed cheques in order to keep proper control.

A New Approach

Vandalism is an appalling problem which seems to defy solution. But then, has anyone really studied it in depth with a view to finding effective counter measures?

The answer, according to an article in The Christian Science Monitor, is in the affirmative.

In Boston, where vandalism costs the taxpayer $1 million annually a sociologist with Harvard's school of architecture, John Zeisal, has just completed a year's study into the problem in the city's schools.

* * *

As might be expected, he approaches the phenomenon from an architectural standpoint. Many schools, he told The Monitor's Clive Lawrence, were designed to be broken. For example, some areas are natural places for "pickup team" games. His studies have shown that probably half of the damage done in schools and called vandalism is not malicious, but accidental. He suggests the word vandalism (from the Germanic tribe that overran parts of Europe and sacked Rome in 455 A.D., destroying art and literature) should be replaced with "property damage". And this, he believes, "is often the result of normally rough and playful people in a fragile environment." He says this kind of "informal" use of schools, aside from being places of learning, should be taken into account by designers.

What about graffiti? Since Prof. Zeisal regards this as "a legitimate needs of teenagers," occurring mostly in certain places, such as entrances, he suggests the walls should have special surfaces that can be inexpensively repainted.

The professor views schools as places designed primarily for the "needs" of the adults using them, rather than for the children. The result is akin to "prison architecture."

Fences he sees as obstacles that say, "Sorry, you can't come closer," thereby presenting youngsters with a challenge.

Melvyn Kaufman, one of New York's biggest builders, takes a similar tack. Most modern buildings, he says, are unfriendly, even hostile. Subway cars and street buses he terms "obscene".

But Mr. Kaufman's structures are designed to achieve an attractive and welcoming atmosphere which if damaged in any way by a youngster places him in the bad books of his peers. He has a building on Water Street in the financial district. It is on stilts with trees, an artificial stream, chairs, and tables. "It invites one in," he says. "People come in and eat their lunch. And they don't leave dirt or litter behind." Ing has colored chairs, benches, raised platforms, and pools — for anyone's use. And it has unusual neon-lighted elevators which Mr. Kaufman is happy for people to ride simply for fun.

* * *

The Monitor's Clive Lawrance also quotes Mary Jo Phillips, who has spearheaded the building of four new playgrounds in her community of Weekawken, N.J. "So much of what people call vandalism," she says, "is just children using their imaginations. Most social equipment, in her opinion, "is boring, unfriendly, and dangerous."

The children get bored and start doing things differently. "I think it shows a fine imaginative quality. "Unfortunately, it leads to accidents and breakages." Her new playgrounds have strong and imaginative wooden equipment and she expects little vandalism.

This is the subject of pressing concern to authorities everywhere. Perhaps it is time for a new approach, as is indicated by these initiatives in the United States. They are worthy of attention.

Lost Art

Every cloud has a silver lining, as witness a New York report pointing out that the rising cost of gasoline is reviving a lost art as well as being good for the greeting card business. Social visiting is down somewhat, but instead people are writing letters more and sending more cards. The age is plenty has brought a decline in many an initiative, but there have been examples of late of a return to old ways which are not unwelcome. This is one of them.

Quebec The Key

Socreds In Possible Deal With PCs To Oust Government

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Except when former Prime Minister Diefenbaker made his 50-seat breakthrough in Quebec in the 1958 election, the Conservatives have been all but shut out of French Canada.

Now it is just possible that some of Real Caouette's Social Credit MPs could change that.

A few of them — four or five, say the Quinn Black corridor gossips whose whispered tales have gone unquestioned and undenied — have been making election overtures to the Conservatives.

They are looking for a "deal."

But back for a moment, to that 1958 election which Dief still could have won handily even without those 50 seats from Quebec.

For in that unprecedented 208-seat national sweep, the rest of the country gave him 158, which by itself was good for a solid majority of 31.

In fact, the year previous, in the 1957 election when he first smashed 25 years of Liberal rule, Dief won minority power with 112 seats, only nine of them from Quebec.

That had been a coolly calculated piece of Conservative strategy, planned by veteran Winnipeg MP George Hamilton Churchill whose reward was appointment as Trade Minister.

He had said in advance that power could be won without Quebec, and he proved it could.

But what he also proved — if indirectly, in subsequent elections confirmed — was that while power might be won narrowly without Quebec, it could not be held — not with French Canada the historically solid base of Liberal operations.

Those 50 Quebec seats in the Conservatives' stunning 1958 election triumph was a one-shot wonder.

The politically pragmatic French Canadians simply banded on the Conservative bandwagon — which they realistically recognized as a runaway — and promptly jumped off in the next campaign when it had run out of momentum.

And true to form, they have ridden with the winning Liberals in the four elections since.

Even two years ago, when Conservative Leader Stanfield came so close to winning — 107 seats, just two short of the 109 Liberal — Quebec gave him only two.

So, like it or not, because Quebec votes as a bloc, Quebec calls the election shots.

And Quebec, while Tory Gordon Churchill did once prove it was possible to win without it, remains essential — in fact, holds the key — to victory for Conservatives and Liberals alike.

Now some of the 15 Social Credit MPs are quietly negotiating to slip the Conservatives what could be that key.

Okay, say there are only four or five of them so far — with the three Quebec "wets" the Tories now have, surely the barest minimum — that would give them eight or nine to start into the campaign.

And once four or five of them shift, well, might not the others move too?

The Social Credit members from Quebec are talking alliance with the Conservatives for the same reason that the New Democrats have been allying themselves to the Liberals.

Fear is the reason.

The NDP ever since the last election has been worried about a wipe-out next time around.

And the Socreds, while not so scared, figure that with the Conservatives as partners, or even allies, they would be a lot safer.

The talk is that two or three want to run as Conservatives.

One or two others are bargaining for a saw-off in other Quebec constituencies to defeat the sitting Liberal.

Under such a saw-off, the Conservatives would run a weak candidate or none at all where the Socreds are strongest. And Social Credit would drop out of the running where Conservatives or the other party left in all still in the negotiations stage.

And it might work.

Leadership Puzzle Grips China Observers

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

What is really taking place behind the scenes in Peking? Who knows? Who will really ever know?

It's very important and in fact essential nevertheless to speculate because China is an uncertain giant, home of one of every four humans alive on this earth, no tiny or obscure Asian nation going through a leadership crisis.

We can say it is a leadership crisis which the People's Republic of China faces in spite of the labyrinthian manifestations that something else is going on.

Last October following his return from China, this columnist speculated at length on a nation as vast as China with no visible leader. Mao Tse Tung and Chou En-lai is 78, with most of the members of the Soviet-style politburo around that age or even older. Some of them must be figureheads, surely.

The new reactions against the status quo began with blasts from the press and government attacking Western intruders of bourgeois music, especially Beethovan, of all things!

Then came a cooling towards friendly new residents in Peking, chiefly diplomats in Peking plus hardening lines in the press and through government announcements criticizing the West for its corrupt ways.

The heads of the Chinese and American diplomatic offices in Washington and Peking haven't been around since November. Mr. David Bruce, the suave and supercivilized U.S. representative in Peking is busy elsewhere on Henry Kissinger-style diplomacy in Western Europe.

The Chinese representative in Washington is home and has disappeared into that great and untrammelled fog of gray-jacketed bureaucrats in the Peking foreign ministry.

How all of this relates to a leadership crisis goodness knows, especially with good old Beethoven getting his knocks from a country where only the smallest handful could ever have heard his music.

More meaningful perhaps is the current campaign to denythologize Confucius and to attack the traditional philosophical view of life as inimical to the quickly-paced course of the Chinese revolution.

Lin Piao, Mao's right-hand side until he led a revolt in 1969 and died in the crash of a British Trident jet of the Chinese airline while trying to escape, is posthumously under a new and anticipated bitter attack.

All this and more is incomprehensible is at least totally puzzling. There is no pat visible succession in China and the methods of finding it will continue in this bizarre way possibly for months to come.

The reactions which seem so strange to us in the West are a blend of traditional Chinese responses as well as those of the revolution under Mao. Taking it on the foreigners is an old Chinese custom and is a subtle yet identifiable way of saying the far-from-perfect West is having another deteriorating effect on the Chinese heritage continuous now for about 4,000 years.

The reaction one can relate directly to the revolution and to Mao is that element of self-criticism which Mao himself introduced which he used now and in turn in the slow process of seeking a new leader and developing a "cult" of "Chairman" — "Mao himself" or ideological and personal immortality.

Mao who is the same age as Franco and who looks back like the aging Spanish dictator to 1936 as the year of his personal breakthrough (that's 35 years ago), will appoint no Juan Carlos, no young man as traditional successor.

Again we in the West watch China move slowly and inevitably through the pangs of criticism of the leaders, with uncertain result.

Cabinet Men Doing A Good Job

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — There are two of the new Davis cabinet ministers who haven't been mentioned yet by me, and on their records they should get a nod for both apparently have been doing a good job.

The two are Sidney Handleman, minister of housing, and John Rhodes, minister of transportation and communications.

This 53-year-old tariff consultant from Ottawa, elected to the house in 1971 for Carleton, has his background, among other noteworthy points, a period of study at the prestigious London School of Economics.

A bit on the shortish and stoutish side, physically he isn't striking.

But once he starts talking he gets attention.

For he is very lucid and to the point. And he takes frank positions. He doesn't dance sidesteps, and where there is something wrong he will admit it.

One has the feeling that if anyone can master and untangle the law in the complex and lagging field of housing he will do it.

Also one can easily picture him as a future treasurer of the province, but perhaps not too long from now.

A handsome six feet four and 65 lbs. was a radio and TV station manager and the mayor of Sault Ste. Marie when he came to the house as the member for that city in 1971.

But he does apparently share one quality with the housing minister. His ecms to have the same political frankness.

When he doesn't know something he isn't reluctant to say so, and when he does know something, even though it is a possible embarrassment, he will talk about it.

This is a tricky portfolio, with the premier looking to transportation for political attraction and with it therefore under a lot of attack.

But Rhodes gives the impression he will keep his cool.

Today In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

May 4, 1974

A Canadian advance party of engineers arrived at Dunsloid, Surrey, 32 years ago today—in 1942—to build an airfield for the RCAF. Employing two thousand men, working two shifts a day, in the peak period, the army engineers had the field ready for the first aircraft on June 29 and it was officially handed over to the air force on Oct. 16.

1949—A four-power conference in New York agreed to end the Berlin blockade, which was actually lifted by Russia May 12.

1967—Jewish underground forces blasted the walls of a British prison in Jerusalem, freeing 251 prisoners.

1918—The Royal Canadian Navy was formed.

1784—The Derby was run for the first time at Epsom, England.

1824—Peter Minuit arrived at New York.

What's a Million ?

Montreal La Presse: Across Canada, there are millions of broken dreams, sad faces and people who will have to resign themselves to the fact that they did not touch the million dollars they had hoped for so much.

The real sadness behind the lottery phenomena is the total belief in the power of chance in giving meaning to life.

The conditions of many workers, the unemployed or welfare recipients, are such that only chance can help them. Their misery is more profound because now their faith has been lost.

In a society where material needs have stifled spiritual values . . . often it is not the poorest who are the saddest but those on the outskirts of a consumer society that madly embraces chance.

The only sadness permitted us today should not come from what we lack but from what we are.

Brantford Expositor

The millions, mostly Canadians, who recently dreamed of winning a tax-free million, are now wondering how to help girls who won it feel and how the million will be spent. If the shock is past, uncertain reaction is happiness.

But the Big Winner Syndrome lies ahead. There will be hundreds of sales offers, investment deals and crank calls. Old friends will suddenly detect gems in girls they hardly noticed before. Some moralists will say lotteries are bad because they dilute individual responsibility by promoting the idea that life is a matter of luck. Fears of robbery or extortion can be expected. But regardless of the worries and changes accompanying unexpected wealth, few if any would reject a chance to become an instant millionaire.

Oil Spill In St. Lawrence

Brockville Recorder and Times

Oil spills are nothing new in the world now, but they never grow with sickening regularity in the ocean lanes or in ocean ports, mostly away from population centres and certainly away from municipal water supplies. One doesn't tend to think of the threat of an oil spill in the St. Lawrence river, but the accident involving an oil tanker running aground west of the city this week demonstrates how vulnerable the St. Lawrence Seaway is to an oil spill disaster. Hundreds of tankers ply the waterway regularly.

It is to the credit of the weatherman, the oil companies, the United States Coast Guard and the federal department of transport that the oil spill here was quickly contained and the potential damage minimized. Even at that, a sticky gooey mess, along shore line for many miles, could take many months to clean up.

To provide some idea of the distance the oil can travel on the surface of the river, U.S. Coast Guard personnel said the film had travelled east about 35 to 40 miles in a matter of two days. It moved in the south channel, on the U.S. side of the river. Had there been rough water and high winds, the damage would have been more widespread.

While it has been said that such an oil spill would not likely effect Brockville's water supply, the opinion is just that. Winds and currents can upset theories and the potential of fouling water supplies of many municipalities along the waterfront is an ever-present danger when there are oil spills. Brockville's water intake works on the gravity system and such a system does create a current. However, slight, it could be sufficient, under certain conditions, we believe, to carry oil into the pumping station. Some other municipalities pump their water from the river.

Public Voice In Strikes

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Please allow me to comment on Judge J. C. Anderson's opinion regarding "Public Voice in Strikes".

He suggests "mediation followed by arbitration" which is inconsistent, with the "Voice of the People". Both labour should not utter inconsistencies.

To use an example, from 100 years ago is dangerous, to put it mildly. A hundred years ago David Copperfield, the children of children still worked 16 hours a day without enough to eat. Hundreds of thousands of Chinese laborers built railways in to attend the rest for decent shelter, bread, butter and occasionally steak; to produce essential goods for essential workers instead of luxuries and junk by the hundred.

Let me point out that any wrong or injustice discovered by the Royal Inquiry Commission on hospital wages and salaries will be proof of injustice and will need to be rectified.

BOB SANDERS,
Shannonville.

UCS And Volunteer Bureau

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Recently you published a letter under my hand-relating to the United Community Services of Belleville Survey with reference being made to the Central Volunteer Bureau.

I have since learned that my information in respect to the initiation of the Volunteer Bureau concept was not in fact the work of Mrs. Burrows but the Social Planning Committee of the UCS.

Likewise, I am given to understand "Meals on Wheels", "Xmas Sharing" and the "Furniture Exchange" all emanated from activities of the UCS Social Planning Committee.

I wish to thank Mrs. Virginia O'Rourke, President of the UCS for taking time to correct my understanding of the situation and I hope this letter will clear up any misunderstandings on this particular aspect of UCS operations.

Discipline But No Strap

By PATRICK JOHNSON.
Principal Upper Canada College

We have consistently opposed the Hall-Dennis report's attack on all forms of punishment in the school environment. I have no use for the strap or any other form of corporal punishment at school and in fact such forms of punishment were abolished at Upper Canada College.

Surely it is bad education to have well behaved girls think they are not going to have to face the consequences of wrong-doing. Surely it is an unkindness to let loafers get away with bullying, vandals with vandalism, etc.

What an appalling lesson it is to do not drive home the lessons of good behaving before these young people find themselves in jail.

Many of us in independent education feel that the Hall-Dennis report's neglect of the restraining virtues is a reflection of the lack of moral support moral climate that now pervades school generally. By restraining virtues, I mean, good manners, obedience, humility, respect for authority among others.

Does society recognize the importance of the development of permissiveness in the schools which results in the suppression of permissiveness in society itself?

Surely long can any society that does not, particularly in its schools, emphasize the restraining virtues, avoid moral and social and, indeed, cultural chaos.

Some modern theorists seem to have replaced the Ten Commandments with a single Commandment namely "Thou shalt not say Thou shalt not."

Pen Mightier Than Sword

By MAURICE SWITZER
Managing Editor

Letters to the editor can be a great source of pride to newspapers.

Nothing provides a better yardstick of how well-read your publication is than to have an editorial page editor constantly conducting a frantic search for space in which to squeeze readers' opinions.

However, handling letters is not without its problems, some of which any prospective penmen should be aware of.

Time and money are at a premium in most businesses. In newspapers, space is often the critical factor.

So taking five pages of foolscap to let the community know you're against income tax isn't really necessary.

* * *

Identification is also an important ingredient. The newspaper must be able to verify that there is, indeed, a John Doe living at Apartment 12, Zwick's Island.

Addresses and telephone numbers should therefore accompany letters, as well as pseudonyms, if the writer prefers anonymity. Some editors insist that letters without signatures should be printed without ink, but most papers feel that people deserve the forum to voice an opinion without having to lay themselves open for attack.

There is a growing trend for people to permit letters to be written over their signatures. The first clue comes when three letters from people purporting to represent the University Avenue cell of the Hillcrest Liberation Front all appear to have been typed on the same Underwood.

Many people are not aware that the publishing of a libellous letter — albeit in complete accuracy — automatically implicates the newspaper. So even if the editor concurs with a correspondent that Alderman Filibuster is a habitual drunk, he can't provide him with the opportunity to print it.

Freedom of speech is not a licence to libel.

* * *

In a similar vein, some writers unleash a few paragraphs of vitriolic comment, then add, for the editor's benefit: "I dare you to print this." Often he is correct; the newspaper wouldn't dare.

The editorial page is no place for personal attacks of any nature. Too often, in the heat of an important debate — at least important to them — readers will confuse personalities with issues. Not only is the other person incorrect, he is a moral degenerate.

While they are entitled to their opinion, they are not entitled to have it printed.

Finally, there exists a fallacy that newspapers are obliged to publish all letters sent by readers.

Most are used, some in a condensed form.

But all are scrupulously assessed as to reader interest, taste (for want of a better word), veracity, and value.

The fact that some writers have letters appearing more often than others is no indication of the merit of their arguments.

It merely means they have more time to put them down on paper.

Shaw Players Make Rare Stop in City

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

If fireworks were permitted this early in May, Quinte Arts Council members would be sending flares and rockets into the night sky to celebrate their most recent coup.

* * *

And a coup it is. Belleville is one of two Ontario cities that have been selected to provide overnight quarters to one of the two leading theatrical companies in the province — the Shaw Festival.

Only the Shakespearean Stratford Festival is garbed with greater prestige than the Shavian company based in Niagara-on-the-Lake.

* * *

Next week, the company will present George Bernard Shaw's The Devil's Disciple to city audiences in the 807-seat house at Centennial Secondary School. The company is the only professional troupe in the world dedicated to performing the works of George Bernard Shaw.

Expectations run high for a full house and excitement soars among organizers anticipating the company's first appearance in Belleville.

Exuding confidence, arts council secretary Diana Aitken says, "I would be surprised if the response is not even more enthusiastic than it was for Servant of Two Masters.

Shaw's play is not a heavy play. It doesn't require a course in history. You just sit back and enjoy it."

* * *

Servant of Two Masters was presented in 1972 by the Neptune Theatre of Halifax. It was a "virtual sellout" said Mrs. Aitken.

Audience response at the time prompted the QAC to renew requests for a performance during a Shavian tour. The community is obviously interested in good theatre," said Mrs. Aitken.

However, the company's presence in Belleville is not only due to QAC requests. A $45,000 grant from the Canada Council touring office enabled the Shaw Festival to undertake a 5½-week, six-city tour of the Maritimes.

Swinging back into Ontario, the company performs in Belleville Thursday, May 9, before going on to Kingston to complete the pre-season tour.

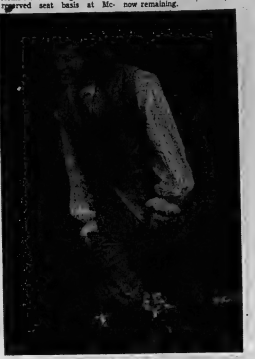
* * *

"It won't be a cut-rate production," said Tom Burrows, Shaw Festival general manager this week. "It's the same production that will play in Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Top-notch Canadian theatrical talent assume principle speaking roles in Shaw's melodrama. Ten local extras — members of actors' Equity — will fill out the cast. Auditions for the later roles can be booked by calling 416-468-2153 collect.

* * *

Two of the principal players are already familiar to Belleville audiences, said Mr. Burrows in a telephone interview.



Playing the role of English General Burgoyne in The Devil's Disciple is Tony van Bridge, a principal in the Neptune Theatre's production in 1972.

Into his fifth season with Shaw Festival, James Valentine also returns to the Belleville stage as Major Swindon, the general's subordinate. Mr. Valentine has appeared with the Neptune Theatre here in Belleville.

Filling out the cast of noted Canadian actors are Domini Blythe as Judith Anderson, wife of the minister portrayed by Norman Welsh, and Alan Scarfe. Mr. Scarfe takes on the major role of Richard Dudgeon.

In a departure from the original schedule for the production.

Tickets for the evening perfon, The Devil's Disciple will go on Centennial's boards for a student matinee Wednesday. Tickets have been sold through the Hastings Board of Education and are being sold on a reserved seat basis at McKnight's on Front St. in Belleville and Brainin Jewellers in Trenton. Prices range from $6 to $4 for fewer than 400 seats now remaining.

Case Of Mistaken Identity

George Bernard Shaw's melodrama The Devil's Disciple is set in the tumultuous times of the American Revolution when the English followed the policy that a hanging in the town square would surely keep the populace in line.

Caught in that tightening noose is Richard Dudgeon, a reprobate, the black sheep of his family, the mocking eldest son willed his father's fortune.

But it's an error — or at least one that could have easily been corrected. Dudgeon, portrayed by Albert Scarfe in the Shaw Festival's production here Thursday, May 9, is content to take the place of Rev. Anthony Anderson at the gallows.

When the British come to take the Rev. Anderson, Dudgeon does nothing to protest that he is not the minister. The case of mistaken identity is the key to Shaw's plot.

Around it revolves the change in character both Dudgeon and Rev. Anderson experience. Dropping his Bible by the wayside, the reverend, played by Norman Welsh, straps on pistols, joins the American rebels, and at the 11th hour saves Dudgeon.

Shaw's play, one of three in his Plays for Puritan series, will be presented to Belleville audiences at Centennial Secondary School May 9 at 8 p.m.

Brought to the city under the sponsorship of the Quinte Arts Council and The Intelligencer, it will be presented by the Shaw Festival currently coming off a 5½-week tour of the Maritimes.

Three Cheers For Dogcatcher!

By LINDA KELLY

They picked up Ralph without a thought,
I thought he was lost, but he was not,
On entering the kennels to clean the place,
I saw him sitting with a smirk on his face!
My temper rose from his actions that day,
And his foolish game only one can play.

But something clicked inside my mind,
I should have been glad he was there to find,
I could have found him dead on the road,
You saved me from hitting a heavy load,
Humane Society, three cheers for you,
Please! Keep up the good work you do!

If your pet gets loose and you find him there,
Don't stomp and rage and tear out your hair,
If you have to pay a penny or two;
Cause you can't have your cake and eat it too,
So take him home but watch him my friend,
Cause if he gets loose we'll just catch him again!

Pupils Decry Vandals

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The pupils of Grade 6 at Hillcrest School would like to complain about the vandalism around our school after school hours.

Foul language is written in paint on doors, windows and walls, windows are broken, and the school has been entered on several occasions.

We don't think the guilty people realize that their parents help to pay for the damage they do.

We are proud of our school, and want the vandalism stopped.

Yours sincerely,
Grade 6

Temperance Union Thrives

By SHARON AIRHART

There are thousands of miles and more than 20 years between the young girl adrift in California and the Stirling matron who is president of the Belleville-Trenton Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Barbara Trupp, who 23 years ago kicked the drinking problem she says would have inevitably driven her to "skid row" found a personal solution in the religion of the Seventh Day Adventists.

That religion, and her belief that only through God can people solve their problems, have brought her to the temperance movement, 100 years old in Ontario this year.

More active now than in recent years, the WCTU is growing, Mrs. Trupp says.

Recently, for example, it received wide local publicity as the 42-member group fought the location of a pub in Loyalist College. The pub was licensed but the WCTU "isn't finished yet", Mrs. Trupp says.

"It seems our groups are coming alive everywhere," she adds. "I think people are getting a little fed up with laxity in morals.

"There's a real turning back to the old path."

It was the "old paths" that helped Barbara Trupp, she says when a family of Adventists took her in and helped her lick her drinking problem.

Her own experience has made her believe she can help others.

"There's connection between Christianity and temperance," she says.

"It makes a difference with God — that's how I stopped."

Temperance WCTU members means more than avoiding alcohol. Coffee and other drugs are forbidden, too.

In fact, Mrs. Trupp sees the religious element as the essential difference between her group and organizations like the Addiction Research Foundation or Alcoholics Anonymous.

"We have a religious emphasis throughout," she says, "because people in trouble have got to know God is behind them. They haven't been able to do it alone."

While helping alcoholics, the WCTU concentrates most of its energy in youth work.

Next week, for instance, is Youth Temperance Education Week and the group is sponsoring a Christian Youth of the Year competition open to any student who neither drinks, smokes or uses drugs.

Along with the contest is a poster competion for students from grades 1 to 13 and essay and scrapbook competitions, all held on a province-wide basis. Last year more than a third of the provincial entries came from the Quinte region.

Long a stronghold of the temperance movement — the movement's founder headed a Picton girl's school — the Quinte area will play host to the 97th annual convention to be held this year at Albert College.

Mrs. Trupp, who has been president of the local group since 1970, says that the June convention which marks the centenary of the group in Ontario, is being held in a most appropriate region.

BARBARA TRUPP, WCTU PRESIDENT

Few Have Clear Image Of Who The WCTU Are

There are two popular images of the Women's Christian Temperance Union and both are wrong according to Barbara Trupp.

Mrs. Trupp says that many people associate the temperance movement with a bunch of old women.

"That just isn't true; we have many young women members," she says, "and some men are honorary members."

The other image you may have — that of the militant anti-alcohol suffragette chopping up bars with an axe — is probably even more offbase.

In fact, despite the fact that the founder of the movement in the province was a school principal, modern WCTUers are far removed feminism.

In 1971 for example, the Ontario group "disapproved" the report of the Royal Commission on the Status of Women, calling day care centres "and certain other matters relative to women's status" the "evils of a malignancy."

In its statement on the report, the WCTU says that the recommendations would lead to "the complete breakdown of the home" and "the destruction of the true status of womanhood", not to mention more widespread impurity and immorality".

The WCTU statement on the Royal Commission takes a swipe at sex education, too.

"An increase in the type of sex education that is a travesty and a mockery, that knows nothing of sanctity and love — only lust — and an ascendance (yes an encouragement) of pre-marital sex as a way of life for the nation, must issue in more disease, more crime and deep-seated distress."

Minister Revives Consumer Council

Consumer Affairs Minister Herb Gray recently revived the defunct Canadian Consumer Council which had been allowed to fade last year.

The new council, which has 21 members instead of the former 21, represents a broad base of interest groups like the Consumers' Association of Canada, the National Anti-Poverty Organization and the widely-known Montreal Diet Dispensary.

A new six-member research council has also been established by the minister. It will be responsible for contracting research on consumer issues and issuing reports on its own initiative.

Getting into a food-buying rut is one of the ways you can lose in the supermarket, a reader points out.

Long a user of one brand of "crunchy crystals", the shopper picked up several packages and was pleased to note that the price had not changed. It wasn't until she mixed up the juice at home and her son said "yuch! that she realized that the contents had been reduced from 24 to 18 ounces. The package size had remained the same.

At the recent Homeshow 74, Ontario Hydro and the public utilities commission got together to display innovations to help consumers use electricity more wisely in the home.

For example, there are new "p" type fuses, which look like colored plastic washers and which absolutely prevent the wrong size fuse being used in a safety hazard — from being used.

Techniques for the proper installation of insulation were displayed and Ontario Hydro's Cliff Booth was on hand to answer that insulation pays for itself in five years.

"It's the cheapest thing in the house and it pays you back the quickest," he says.

Plug-in wall receptacles for heavy-duty appliances like dryers and electric ranges were also displayed. A giant plug is hooked up to your appliance and it locks into a 240 volt major appliance circuit.

For smaller appliances, often the villain when a fuse blows, Ontario Hydro suggests rigid receptacles that allow two to function at the same time.

Now that you've got all that great maple syrup on hand, here are some facts to help you use it well.

If you bought a large container — more than a pint — you should transfer it for storage. Heat the syrup to 180 degrees and pour it into one pint sterilized jars, leaving a headspace. Seal tightly and invert for 10 to 15 minutes. Turn upright; cool. Store in a cool dry place for up to a year. Open containers in small containers. Of course, it won't really "freeze".

If the syrup develops mold or a musty flavor, skim off as much mold as possible. Bring close to a boil in a large saucepan just before it boils add¼ cup skim milk to a gallon of syrup. Boil two minutes. Filter through cheesecloth. Store in the refrigerator and use quickly.

If your syrup develops a sugary crust or crystals, add a little water and let stand very gently until crystals dissolve.

Face Was Familiar

LONDON (CP) — Two women who got into conversation at a dance showed each other photographs of their husband and found he was the same man. In court, John Jones, 47, a hotel night porter who already was married, pleaded guilty to two charges of bigamy and was sentenced to five years.

Ann Landers

Camera Bugs Her

Dear Ann Landers: Other people have aired their pet peeves and said they felt better for having done so. Here's mine.

In the last couple of years I've put on weight. This is especially devastating to me because I always ate everything I wanted, never gained an ounce and had an excellent figure.

I married into a family of camera nuts. They take pictures at every picnic, birthday, holiday, and family get-together. It's really wild.

Since I put on weight I hate to have my picture taken, but they insist on getting me anyway. Why is it that the minute you tell someone you don't want to be photographed they insist on sneaking up and getting you when you aren't looking? They especially love to catch you yawning, eating, or bending over to pick up something.

Need I tell you that all the pictures are exchanged? They make the full route—relatives and friends—and are carried in purses to show at parties.

It seems to me that individuals who don't want to be photographed should have their wishes respected as a matter of good manners. What do you say?—Look At The Birdie

Dear Bird: I agree with you. There is something vulgar and somewhat hostile in the act of behavior you describe. I'm printing your letter for those who have the problem so they can clip it and hand it to their "well-meaning" friends and relatives who do this to them.

Dear Ann Landers: After numerous consultations our 19-year-old daughter finally left home bag and baggage. She has no job and is about three months pregnant. The boy has said nothing about marriage, nor has he offered to help her financially.

I am the father of this girl and I need to know my responsibilities. Should I insist that she come home and offer to see her through? Can I take legal action against the boy? She does not want to marry him and I'm not sure he would marry her in any event.

You will notice I am not mentioning the girl's mother. Her attitude is, "good riddance." Of course this complicates the problem. I need some advice.—Perplexed Father

Dear Perplexed: The boy has a legal obligation to help your daughter financially, and support his child. If she don't want his help, however, you have a serious obstacle.

My curbstone opinion is this: It would be best to urge your daughter to go to a home for unwed mothers, give up the child for adoption and start life again.

Dear Ann Landers: I am fed up with your cockeyed notion that "marrying a divorced man means marrying the whole pack—his kids, ex-wife and his parents."

I married a divorced man and I made it plain I wanted nothing to do with his disturbed kids, kooky wife and nutty parents. His three children are impossible.

Not one of them even slightly resembles their father. I think his ex had some outside help on you know what I mean.

At first things were OK but now he's getting lonesome and wants to have them to the house. I say, "Nothing doing." Please back me up.—Raleigh

Dear R.: Sorry, lady, but you're fighting a losing battle. Get some counselling and learn how to deal with his children or you'll lose your husband eventually.

First Flight Not Success

TORONTO (CP) — Annette Donovan, a stewardess on Air Canada's first commercial flight 32 years ago, remembers the event was not exactly an overwhelming success.

The 10-passenger, twin-prop Lockheed left Montreal for Toronto with stops at Ottawa and North Bay, Ont.

When the aircraft reached Ottawa, the airline—then Trans-Canada Air Lines (TCA)—had to put the passengers on a train because a blizzard closed the North Bay and Toronto fields.

The plane arrived here 13 hours after leaving Montreal.

"I was not disappointed," she said in an interview, "It was pioneering—something new to all of us.

"At that time people weren't particularly air-minded. Flying still was just a word. When faced with the reality of going on a flight it must have been a bit frightening—which explained why some men would take a good belt of liquor just before boarding...

Some took a little too much so TCA made it a rule that if passengers were too drunk the stewardess could discuss it with the captain and refuse to take them.

The inaugural flight was April 1, 1939, and Mrs. Donovan, then Annette Brunelle and a native of Montreal, just managed to inch her way on board.

The airline doctor said she was an inch short of the minimum regulation height of four feet, 11 inches when she applied for the job.

"What difference does it make?" she told the doctor. "They'll take me anyway."

Successful Living

Controversy Continues

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I was interested in "Take Thirty" when they had a program concerning senior citizens. It was all about whether they should be allowed to decide for themselves about going into a nursing home.

For some people it is very difficult for them to mix with others; they can do it some of the time if they can then go back to their own home.

I know one older person who would have been a lot more active in things around him than he is now, if he had been allowed to stay home a little longer. He was pushed into a retirement home against his will by his family and so-called friend.

I have doubt some places are really nice and have cheerful helpers, bi there are others which are not, just like the two letters you had in the column.

P.M.C

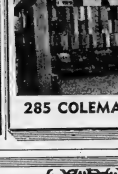
Thank you, Mrs. P.M.C.

I have letter from a nurse who says "We strive daily to give people in our care a little pleasure and some small joys to look forward to, as well as attending to their physical needs. Certainly I have allowed guests to see a pet dog when requested.

"This dear person of 82 has experienced much more of life than I have and must realize that nurses and attendants are just average people. Some are more able to communicate with those in their care than others."

A third correspondent writes: "Real hardship starts when a person gets helpless enough to be confined in the infirmary. Quite often these people do not get that much needed extra care and this causes much suffering...

"On the other hand I would not put all the blame on the nurses. They are professionals and, having their own personal problems, are liable to get short tempered at times and make wrong decisions."



No doubt about it, this responsibility rests on all of us. We need a new look at our elderly citizens. We need a whole new point of view to prize the wisdom gained through experience, the stability and the courage that can come only from having lived a lot.

Birth Defects Linked to Mercury

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A University of Western Ontario professor and a fourth-year honors science student have found evidence they say links mercury, that found in contaminated fish, with birth defects.

Dr. Joseph Cummins of the plant sciences department said it is the first direct evidence that methyl mercury damages cell chromosomes which in turn may cause birth defects.

Dr. Cummins said the mercury attacked and damaged the deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA) which is found in human cells and is the repository of genetic information that enables the cell to reproduce.

It is the same type of mercury found in some kinds of fish in lakes St. Clair and Erie which still are banned from commercial sale in Canada.

Dr. Cummins and Tim Bilsky of Exeter, Ont., conducted the laboratory experiment using a slime mould organism which has DNA and chromosome properties similar to those in humans.

"We have been able to produce a first-rate demonstration that the mercury goes right for the DNA molecule," said Dr. Cummins.

He said the cells continue to live and reproduce after the initial chromotome damage but the new cells maintain the same genetic defect.

Dr. Cummins said it is possible that the DNA molecules, damaged by mercury, in human cells also may pass on genetic defects to a new-born child or even a child born in a second generation.

Mr. Bilsky said the next step would be to use a tissue culture, containing a helic cell, which is a standard human cell used for biological study, to see if the same effect can be repeated.

Dr. Cummins said he would not like to reveal the concentration of mercury used in the experiment since the levels which cause damage in human may be much different.

However, he cautioned that the present acceptable levels of mercury in fish, .5 parts per million, may be too high, particularly for pregnant women.

"We should make more intensive efforts to re-evaluate the limits now used for fish tainted with mercury," he said.

It previously had been documented that mercury poisoning in humans attacks the central nervous system.

"But there is evidence now to say genetic damage can occur at levels lower than where damage to the nervous system occurs," he said.

The source of mercury in the fish has been blamed on an industrial discharge of inorganic mercury by chemical companies.

Bacteria in the water converted the mercury to the more dangerous form, methyl mercury. The bacteria was eaten by small organisms which in turn were eaten by the fish.

Companies along the Canadian and United States shores have reported changing their processes so they no longer use mercury.

Dr. Cummins said large amounts of natural mercury enter the environment.

Craving for Completion Forms Basis of Religion

By DR. GORDON C. SMYTH

In his "Psychology and Morals", Dr. J.A. Hadfield, eminent English neurologist, had a chapter entitled "The Law of Completeness".

"Every organism is impelled to some form of completeness", he wrote. "Fullness of life is the goal of life. The craving for completion is the basis of happiness. It makes belief, immortality with its promise of fulfillment the most persistent of all beliefs."

To many people life unfolds like a three-act play. At the first we assume that the world was made for our benefit, to please and amuse us. This is the attitude of childhood and of youth.

Normally this outlook gives way to the opposite. Instead of: he world being made for us, it seems to be against us. Fore instance, we fight a losing battle against time. We experience the frustrating opposition or indifference of others. We tend to be at odds with ourselves.

Fortunate are those who make it to the third act. We are here to fulfill ourselves. We endeavor to fashion the raw material with which we started out into a finished product of which we need not be ashamed. We try to find the rest of ourselves.

This is the plain meaning of the Parable of the Talents. It is the most fruitful way to look at life. Every experience that comes to us may be so used to contribute to the full. As Christ put this way, "You therefore, must be perfect, as your heavenly Father is perfect." (Matthew 5:48).

Obviously we cannot achieve fruition, completion, fulfillment here. Are not the withheld completions of this life one of the strongest intimations of immortality? Is not this, as Dr. Hadfield noted, what makes belief in eternal life the most persistent of beliefs?

This is the working hypothesis that thousands of the most thoughtful people in every generations have held, on which they have built their lives and serviceable lives. They moved from the stage that the world was pitted against them.

The sooner a person reaches the third stage, the happier and more effective that person will be. Get into, get on with this act!

Protestant Monk Wins Religion Progress Prize

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Sometimes of an evening, the leader of an extraordinary community of white-robed Protestant monks goes out walking alone in the quiet, rural night, and as he gazes up at the star-laden sky, he repeats to himself:

"Nothing is grave except the loss of love."

Brother Roger Schutz, founder and prior of the Community of Taize, France, told of his meditations on those evening strolls in a talk while accepting the $82,000 Templeton Foundation Prize for Progress in Religion.

He said the money will go "to poor people, especially in the southern hemisphere" who are committed to two ideals now animating the world's youth—the struggles for justice for the poor and for a personal sense of God's love leading to an inner emptiness.

"All this is one and the same struggle—that of love," he said. "To the point that nothing is grave except the loss of love."

The Taize community, started by Brother Roger in the aftermath of the Second World War, has become a global oasis of Christian unity and fraternity in worship and work.

Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox monks as well as Protestants mingle there, spending a large part of the rural hilltop church and grounds, sharing in the chanted psalms, prayer and tranquillity.

About 30 brothers from various countries and denominations belong to the order which supports itself by running a pottery shop and a print shop and by farming. They share all goods and resources, following discipline of work and prayer.

At worship they wear white robes with hoods and at other times, ordinary slacks and sweaters. The community, dedicated to Christian unity, has become an ecumenical beacon in the midst of continuing divisions among followers of one Christ.

About 100,000 visitors annually spend time at the community. Many of them lately have been young people, most of whom bring their own tents or bedrolls. The community for several years has been planning a worldwide council of youth, now scheduled to meet Aug. 30.

Brother Roger, now 59, told the meeting in London, England, at which he received the prize that he had great confidence in the new generation of young people, adding: "It is for us, the older generation to listen, never to condemn.

"Listen and again listen, to grasp what is finest in the creative intuition that dwells within the young today. They will not go astray, they will often overcome barriers . . . to carry the whole people of God along with them. Above all, they will know how to go beyond the demarcation lines that separate believers."

The prize was set up in perpetuity by American financier John Templeton, a United Presbyterian, to stimulate "knowledge and love of God." It was presented last year to Mother Teresa, a Roman Catholic nun who started an order serving the poor in Calcutta's slums.

Brother Roger, as a young French Protestant theologian, first sought to start a retreat centre in Taize in 1942, but was forced by the German occupation n of France into exile in Switzerland.

He returned in 1944 to Taize, a little village in the secret eastern part of France, and with three brothers, determined to create a community of "joy and brotherhood."

At the start, he sought permission for the brothers to worship in the village Catholic chapel — a request that made its way up to—and was granted—by the then papal nuncio in Paris, Angelo Roncalli, later Pope John XXIII.

Since then, through funds provided by other Christians, a new church has been built on the hill with a large central meeting hall, special Catholic and Orthodox chapels and other facilities.

Jews and Unitarians United by Disaster

OTTAWA (CP) — Disaster has brought Jews and Unitarians together here in a "celebration of joy and hope" in a Unitarian Temple church.

In October, 1972, fire destroyed the James Street synagogue of Temple Israel, a Reform Jewish congregation in almost a year the congregation held its services and functions in various halls and synagogue centres around Ottawa.

Last fall the Unitarian congregation offered to share its building with Temple Israel and the two congregations reached a one-year agreement. The two groups worshiped together for the first time recently in a special Passover service.

"Religious differences have for too much of man's history led to enmity among men," Rev. Vernon Nichols of the Unitarian church told the combined congregation.

"This joint celebration pro-ims that, whatever our differences, we believe that we are bound together in a single community which is brought together by Rabbi Donald Gerber of Temple Israel conducted the Jewish Passover service informally and explained the history and significance of its parts.

He said afterward that joint worship "is something unique in terms of Jewish congregations sharing facilities with anyone."

"The philosophy of the Unitarian Church is a lot to do with enabling the congregations to worship . . . It has no fixed dogma or statement of belief," said Mr. Nichols. It considers religion to be "a search for values that give meaning to life," and has a belief that comes from a unique revelation many years ago.

Unitarians stress freedom of thought and tolerance of other beliefs.

The Temple congregation plans to construct its own building, "so we can maintain our distinctive congregational identity," Rabbi Gerber said. But the co-operation will continue.

They Are Looking for Ark Again But May Be on Wrong Mountain

By RODNEY PRIDER

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — The animals went in two by two, according to the Bible, and for the last 100 years men have been going up by the dozens to the eastern peak of Mount Ararat in eastern Turkey to search for Noah's Ark.

This summer, yet another expedition will tackle the 16,945-foot peak.

The climbers may not even be looking in the right place. Moslems and many Eastern Christians believe the ark came to rest after the flood not on Ararat but on the much lower mountain of Judi Dagi some 200 miles southwest of Ararat.

The story of Noah and his ship is older than the Hebrew version recorded in Genesis, historians say, and the original Babylonian or Sumerian version probably named Judi Dag. In the far north of the world as they knew it, rather than Ararat, which may not even have been known to them.

The Judi Dag tradition was handed down independently of the Bible and is recorded in the Koran.

This year's team is led by Dr. Henry Morris of San Diego, Calif., and his 36-year-old son, John.

They say they have a permit from the Turkish government to ascend Ararat, which is in a military zone. Their will be the first expedition to bont for the ark since 1969.

The boat line, a six-man climbing party calling itself Search and led by R. E. Crawford of Takoma Park, Md., and Fernand Navarra, a French businessman, tried to assess the possibility of digging out what Navarra said he had identified as a shiplike mass on previous climbs.

The boat, Navarra said, was inconveniently situated at the bottom of a lake of solid ice 30 feet deep, which in turn was covered by a glacier of about the same depth. Navarra said all this would have to be removed to get at the ark.

He sought to back up his claims by exhibiting several three-foot oak planks he said he found 7,250 feet below the summit. He said university tests proved them to be 4,000 years old and to have come from a tree which grew in a temperate climate, According to the Bible, the ark was made of gopher wood. No such tree has yet determined what gopher wood was.

Search planned to come back to Turkey in 1970 to start digging through the ice, but the team was not heard from again. Sources in Ankara say they were denied permission to return.

Ararat lies on the sensitive three-way border of Turkey, Soviet Armenia and Iran. The Russians are reported to have protested in the past against ark expeditions, terming them spying trips.

Morris' eight-man team, which is sponsored by the Creation Research Club at San Diego and supported by the Baptist Church, says it will start work in late June, in early July.

The mountain's most noticeable feature is its single unbroken slope of 13,200 feet, the largest such slope in the world, from the Araxes Valley up to the summit pyramid. The climb takes two or three days.

Search specified exactly where the ice-lake was but apparently no other climbers had found it. Nor did Navarra explain how the pieces he took away were on the surface while the bulk of the ark was entombed in ice.

Taxis Go To Meters

Belleville taxis may soon be equipped with meters.

The owners of both Checker and Central Taxis have asked the police commission for permission to install meters in their cars.

Jim Driscoll, chairman of the commission said at the monthly meeting Friday night that taxi operators want to go to meters because of the increase in the cost of gas and the predicted rise in the minimum wage.

Meters, he said, cost $350 each plus installation charges and each company owner will have to train two men to repair them.

The police commission will meet with the owners next month to decide on meter rates before granting permission for the change.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said he and Mr. Driscoll had investigated meter charges in other Ontario cities and had ridden around the city in a meter-equipped car. The meter was set for the same rates as those in Oshawa, which is the nearest city with meter taxis.

The Oshawa rate is 80 cents for the first one sixth miles, 10 cents for every subsequent one sixth miles, or $6 an hour.

The chief gave several examples of the cost of city runs using the Oshawa rates, compared with the rates now in effect in Belleville.

On the meter, the run from Loblaws' parking lot to the CN station cost $1.60, compared to the present rate of $1. From the CN station to the corner of Bridge and Haig cost $2.20, compared to the present rate of $1.25.

From Bridge and Haig to Belleville General Hospital was $1.20 on meter; it now costs $1.00. From Bridge and BGH to Loblaws was $1.20 compared to $1.00 now. From Loblaws to the senior citizens' housing on Turnbull St. the meter rate is $1.60 cents compared to the present cost of $1.

Belleville taxi owners have not asked for a specific meter rate. Cheif Crosbie will work out the cost per mile of various rates charged in other Ontario centres before the commission meet with the cab owners.

Water purification plant superintendent James Scriven checks chlorine canister weight scales Friday as part of duties he's carried on for the past 18 years, in a surprise move earlier this week, the American Water Works Association presented the 60-year-old Belleviliian an honorary lifetime membership in water work operations.

Corby Effects Changes

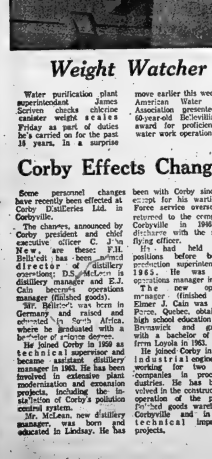
The changes, announced by Corby president and chief executive officer C. John New, are these: P.H. Bellefeil has been named director of distillery operations; D.S. McLean is distillery manager and E.J. Cain becomes operations manager (finished goods).

Mr. Bellefeil was born in Germany and raised and schooled in South Africa, where he graduated with a bachelor of science degree.



He joined Corby in 1958 as technical supervisor and became assistant distillery manager in 1963. He has been involved in extensive plant modernization and expansion projects, including the installation of Corby's pollution control system.

Mr. McLean, new distillery manager, was born and educated in Lindsay. He has been with Corby since 1941, except for his wartime Air Force service overseas. He returned to the company at Corbyville in 1946 after discharge with the rank of flying officer.

He had held several positions before becoming production superintendent in 1965. He was named operations manager in 1971.

The new operations manager (finished goods) Elmer J. Cain was born in Picton, Quebec, obtained his high school education in New Brunswick and graduated with a bachelor of science from Loyola in 1963.

He joined Corby in 1968 as industrial engineer after working for two smaller companies in process industries. He has been involved in the construction and operation of the palletized bottled goods warehouse at Corbyville and in recent technical improvement projects.

Paper Work, Paper Work

Switch of sewage disposal inspections to environment ministry means more paper work for officials like Lloyd Ellerton, chief health inspector in Hastings - Prince Edward counties. Local public health units will process regulations until ministry has own system organized.

Sewage System Changes Hike Rural Rose Costs

Cost of building that dream house in the Quinte countryside has been slightly because of a switch in provincial government inspection jurisdictions.

Private sewage systems, until recently inspected by local health authorities under the Health Act, are now the responsibility of the environment ministry.

Regulations of the Environment Act call for larger sewage system installations in private homes.

The change, along with normal inflation in the past 12 months, says Hastings — Prince Edward public health authorities, could double the cost of septic-tank sewage systems in areas — mainly rural — where no municipal services are available.

There will also be fees charged for inspections hitherto provided as a free service by the counties' health unit. Certificates of approval sought by householders will cost $15. There will be a $10 fee for land severance, inspections. The switch in jurisdictions has also rankled with at least some local health boards— including Hastings-Prince Edward.

One root cause of complaint is that the health units will continue to process inspections until such time as the environment ministry has organized its own system. The ministry last month cautioned the board this could take up to three years.

The Hastings-Prince Edward board at that time approved a Huron County health board resolution protesting the takeover.

Board members also objected to the short notice received from the ministry. Official notice of the switch was only learned officially by the board three days before it became effective.

Thursday, Kingston district ministry representative Larry South and Des Hawkins met with the board to discuss the changeover.

"It's the law and we have to accept it," said board chairman Alderman Ross Smith Friday. "But I don't think it was very well planned."

In effect, she said, the board was placed on a "30 days' notice to do the ministry's work and enforce a new set of regulations.

It also meant the board would have to set up a "fee-collection operation" for both counties.

The more stringent demands of the Environment Act call for much larger areas of bed tile in private septic tanks, said Lloyd Ellerton, Hastings-Prince Edward chief health inspector.

Hitherto, local regulations have demanded installations on the average home running about 130-160 lineal feet.

"Now a system is going to involve from 300-400 lineal feet," he said.

This inevitably will add to the cost of housing, he admitted.

Inflation and the new regulations mean that a system that cost about $200 a year ago, could now cost double.

"This is just a guess. But the costs of installation will be up," he said.

Enforcing the new

WORK SHORT WEEKS

EDMONTON (CP) — Between 2,000 and 2,500 Albertans now are working only three or four days each week, says G. E. Gough, secretary of the board of industrial relations. Almost 100 Alberta businesses and organizations are experimenting with the shortened work week in which employees invested work longer hours each day but fewer days each week.

regulations also means more inspections — and paperwork.

Mr. Ellerton said the volume of paper to process inspections and approvals under ministry regulations "is going to be almost quadrupled, I think."

Inspections involving installations of domestic sewage systems now is a major task of the unit's five-man inspection team.

In 1973, his inspectors processed 1,400-1,500 septic tanks and about 1,000 land severance applications.

Volunteers Hold Open House

Displays depicting the work of city volunteers will open for public viewing at the Four Seasons Hotel Sunday as the culmination of Volunteer Week in Belleville.

Central Volunteer Bureau director, lead by co-ordinator Selma Bochner, have worked since January to bring together over 30 groups in the city that use volunteers to supplement existing services.

Today, the work is complete. All is readied for the open house convention which is scheduled for 2-4 p.m.

"We're looked forward to a good turnout," said Mrs. Bochner Friday. "Advance telephoning has stirred up a lot of interest."

Bonnie Hardy, Cabievue Ltd. aired a series of eight half-hour programs on its community station. Erich featured the services provided by volunteer groups in Belleville.

The four hour of programming will be shown again on video monitors during the open house.

"All groups have been most co-operative. They seemed pleased at the opportunity to show what they wanted to. This way, they project what they want to project."

To facilitate access to the bureau, a number of extension bars have provided a Dial-A-Car service. Those without transportation need only pick up a telephone, call 968-3411, and a car will be dispatched.

For families with children, an area has been set aside in which St. John Ambulance cadets will care for tots.

Black Hawk Motel Not Building

An article in yesterday's Intelligencer mentioned that land on North Front Street would be developed for a motel, hotel and office building.

It is also mentioned that Black Hawk Motor Hotel would be developing the site solely for that purpose.

Dave Dale, owner of the Black Hawk Motor Hotel, clarified his position, by saying that although land is available for that purpose, the Black Hawk Motor Hotel isn't necessarily going ahead with plans to build a motor hotel or office building there.

Prince Edward Votes For One-tier System

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Prince Edward county councillors and municipal councillors have supported a one — tier system of county government in "an expression of opinion" of 29 to nine.

The opinion poll was called last night by Prince Edward warden Keith Macaskill during a meeting of councillors with representatives from the ministry of treasury, economics and intergovernmental affairs.

"Let's get right down to the point and see how people here tonight feel," said the warden.

The meeting, held at the County Museum, was organized to discuss a position paper on the reorganization of Prince Edward's local government forwarded to the county council by the ministry recently.

The paper is based on the county's reorganization brief submitted to the provincial government in 1972 and re-affirmed in 1973.

If discussion on the municipal reorganization of the county result in a general agreement, legislation can be introduced in the spring session of the legislature to reorganise the county.

Darcy McKeough, minister without protfolio, told the meeting that before steps can be taken to reorganize the government as a one-tier system, there must be unified resolutions from each of Prince Edward's ten municipalities and also one from the county, stating its views.

"Then we can proceed," explained Mr. Irwin.

"All we are doing now is discussing a proposal."

He urged councillors to familiarize their constituents with the proposal for a county government and suggested more meetings to study it.

"After you vote, we will do whatever you wish," commented Mr. Irwin.

Mr. Irwin noted that the majority will rule and if council of the municipalities are opposed to the one-tier concept the issue will be dropped on a two-thirds majority vote of council.

"We are not going to force anything on Prince Edward that they don't want," remarked the ministry spokesman.

"If there is a vote tonight, you will vote as individuals, not as reeves or deputy reeves or councillors."

At the suggestion of Hallowell clerk John Mallory, persons attending the meeting were asked for an expression of opinion, not a vote.

After councillors had indicated general approval of the one-tier system, Mr. Irwin advised them to look to the future.

"There is a great need for all of us to look at the possibility of strengthening our local government," remarked Mr. Irwin who stressed that he was speaking as an individual.

"There may be a day when we will step in if you don't do something."

"If you do nothing and the province will step in. Remember that I was never elected," he observed.

In general discussion of the proposal for reorganized government in Prince Edward Mr. Irwin again stressed that there will be no action taken to introduce legislation in the house without the full support of councillors

"This is a unique proposal here and I deserve a bit of thought," he commented.

He said although he feels it can work "very well" in Prince Edward, it would be difficult to implement in other counties.

He noted that in order to bring the necessary legislation in next fall the committee time to study it "the cut-off date" for immediate action is May 25.

He said that as many members as possible could be held in the limited time remaining councillors could postpone action until next year, allowing more meetings.

Mr. Irwin emphasized that all municipal councillors in Prince Edward should be well informed of the one-tier system proposal.

"It is difficult to see legislation going through if there is not a good back and forth discussion in your councils."

He expressed concern whe one councillor from Ameliasburgh township claimed that he was not aware of the details of the proposal. He said that there had been no discussion of the issue.

"I really am amazed to hear you say that you haven't had discussion," observed Mr. Irwin.

Wellington reeve Robert Boyce pointed out that the concept of a county government had been advertised in the local press about two and one half years ago. A brief on county government was printed in 1973.

"Its hard to believe that people were not aware of this until the position paper arrived," he commented.

Picton councillor Jack Evans also stressed that the concept has been under consideration for some time and added that it has been publicized and discussed through newspapers an radio.

Inquest Called May 9 Into Cutter Sinking

A long-awaited inquest into the fatal sinking of a coastguard cutter in Lake Ontario off Prince Edward County, has been called for next week.

The inquest will be held under the direction of Dr. Brock Nugent, Trenton coroner, at Shire Hall in Picton, starting at 1 p.m. May 9. Provincial police at Picton said Friday night they were still issuing subpoenas and could

Cheese Workers Reject Offer

Workers at Black Diamond Cheese Co., on strike since March 25, voted yesterday 99 per cent in favor of rejecting the company's latest offer.

The company had offered the 180 striking production workers an hourly wage increase of 35 cents a hour over two years. This was four cents more than the original offer of 46 cents for the first year and 45 cents for the second year of a two year contract.

The workers, members of Local P688, Canadian Food and Allied Workers, are asking for an hourly wage increase of 70 cents for each year of a two-year contract as well as improved vacation pay and cost of living benefits.

The meeting was held at the Parkdale Community Centre and no meetings between company and union officials are planned in the near fu-not say how many witnesses might be called to testify.

The inquest will focus on the deaths of two crew members of the cutter, based near CFB Trenton, who died several after the vessel had answered a distress call Sept. 6.

Este Breese, 23, Sterling, and Manny Powers, 58, Trenton, died when the 40-foot launch sank during a storm in Athol Bay, off Outlet Provincial Park.

He managed to make shore after four hours in the water, became unconscious, near Salmon Point and was not discovered until the following morning.

A report from a federal transport department inquiry later noted the sinking was not reported for 11 hours. Its lail communication with CFB Trenton was about five hours before it is believed to have sunk. Heavy seas put the cutter's pumps out of action.

It had been sent to the aid of a ketch that had earlier reported steering difficulties in heavy seas as continuation centre at CFB Trenton.

Radio Station Slated for North

BANCROFT — Radio service for this area is one step closer.

Friday, CJBQ station manager Frank Murray announced that the station's proposal to establish a new radio station at Bancroft has been accepted at a Canadian Radio Television Commission (CRTC) hearing scheduled to start in Ottawa June 4.

Mr. Murray made the announcement at a luncheon meeting here to a group of citizens who have been working on establishing some form of community radio service for the area.

According to Mr. Murray, the hearing is only the beginning. "It could take anywhere from six weeks to six months" for the CRTC to make a decision, he said, he added he felt confident the proposal will be looked upon favorably.

Mr. Murray said a copy of CJBQ's brief would be available at the Bancroft office here in about a week. This is intended to allow local persons to see the exact plan and give them time to send their objections or support to the CRTC.

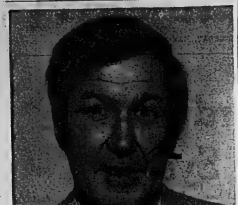
The announcement was good news for the local group, Community Radio North Hastings (CRNH).

CRNH was established in January by the Bancroft and District Chamber of Commerce to investigate the possibility of radio service for the area. The group's recent application to CBC's community radio department for access to the low power relay transmitter located in the village has not been approved.

Members of CRNH have talked informally with CJBQ, and were not aware of the station's plans for local programming.

At the meeting yesterday, Mr. Murray said he has planned two hours of local programming — two hours on Monday evening and from 9:15 to 10 a.m. Monday to Friday. He said both these time periods could be programmed by the local committee under guidance from CJBQ personnel.

The remainder of the programming will be from Belleville with many of the same programs aired on CJBQ being broadcast from the Bancroft transmitter.



Mr. Murray said he plans to expand both news and community service to this area.

The responsibility of choosing call letters for the new station has been delegated to CRNH.

East-west Exchange

Mayor Robin Jeffrey yesterday presented a gift to two Quinte Secondary School students to pass on to the mayor of Major, Sask., where the students will be staying 10 days on a government-supported cultural exchange. Accepting the pottery made by Audrey Davies are Phil Martin and Glen Sine. Eleven students and staff advisor Frank Chapman are returning the visit to Belleville made last year by a group of high school students from Major. The group leaves Belleville May 5 and will return May 15.

Joe Crozier — To Vancouver

Crozier Joins WHA Blazers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Joe Crozier ended months of rumor Friday, signing with Jim Pattison and the World Hockey Association Vancouver Blazers.

Crozier, voted coach of the year in the National Hockey League last season, signed a long-term contract as general manager of the Pattison-owned Blazers.

Reports had circulated for months that Crozier would be returning to Vancouver, where he has coached the Canucks in the Western Hockey League.

Length of the agreement and financial terms were not announced at the news conference the Blazers held Friday morning.

Crozier replaces Phil Watson as the Blazers' general manager. Watson was fired Wednesday after being with the Blazers since the inception of the club in Philadelphia.

There still remains a question as to the duties of Andy Bathgate, who took over coaching duties from Watson midway through the 1973-74 schedule. Bathgate played for the WHA Canucks at the time Crozier coached the club.

"I'm the general manager," Crozier said. "Either I will coach the team or Andy will coach the team. One of us will be on the ice with the players every day.

"If I coach, Andy will be my assistant."

Crozier took over Buffalo's coaching position after Punch Imlach suffered a heart attack in November of 1971. Crozier had been coaching Buffalo's Cincinnati farm team prior to the move to Buffalo.

Another former member of the Buffalo organization joining Crozier in the Blazers' camp is Al Millar, who will be director of scouting for the WHA club.

Crozier refused to say whether any Buffalo players would be joining him on the West Coast.

"We're mulling over a lot of players," he said.

Emms Complains Of 'Favoritism'

CALGARY (CP) — Critics of the new Memorial Cup format say the annual Canadian junior hockey final lacks the drama of the old East-West confrontation.

But Hap Emms, owner of St. Catharines Black Hawks, is stirring up some of the old rivalries.

Emms, whose club represents the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior series in the three-team round-robin for the national championship that begins Sunday and ends May 12, is complaining about "western favoritism."

Regina Pats of the Western Canada Hockey League and Quebec Remparts of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League are the other teams in the playoff.

Major targets of Emms so far have been Ed Chynoweth, WCHL president, and Bob Northcott, manager of the Stampede Corral in which the series will be played.

While waiting for the Quebec entry to arrive Friday night, Chynoweth said that he is not disturbed by Emms' complaints about scheduling of practice times and the fact that a school bus was sent to carry the Black Hawks from the airport to the hotel.

"Hap thinks he's getting an edge," said Chynoweth. "He knows things that way.

"The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association uses this show. We had set up scheduled practice times. The CAHA has told us those times are changed.

"We don't know what the new times are. Maybe the CAHA knows."

Emms, former operator of OHA franchises at Barrie and Niagara Falls, has created similar waves in minor series as spokesman in Memorial Cup finals as representative of both Ontario centres.

"I think that's why we need a return to the old best-of-seven East-West fight," Chynoweth said.

"I don't think that one man should be able to disrupt the whole thing, but we're trying a new system and it has flaws."

Emms threatened, at least tentatively, to pull his club out. But the Ontario spokesman on the CAHA executive has assured everybody the club will stay here.

Ranger Goalie Plans To Keep Crease Clear

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — If his team-mates won't clear Philadelphia Flyers out of the goal-crease area Sunday, goalie Ed Giacomin of New York Rangers says he'll do the job himself.

"We've got to get tough with those guys around our net," Giacomin said Friday. "If no one else is going to move their guys out of my way, my 180 pounds will have to move them."

The Rangers and Flyers stage the deciding game of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup hockey semi-final at 8:00 p.m. EDT Sunday.

The National Hockey League game will be televised nationally by the CBC in Canada and by NBC in the United States.

"You see me getting dumped all the time, but you don't see (Philadelphia goalie) Bernie Parent getting dumped by our forwards," said Giacomin. "I don't like it."

"If anybody runs at me Sunday, I'll be the aggressor. If I have to swing my stick at somebody to keep us in the playoffs, I'll do it.

The gregarious New York goalie took things into his own hands in Thursday's sixth game of the series, won 4-1 by the Rangers.

Midway through the first period, he took a two-handed swipe over the net at the Flyers' Gary Dornhoefer, who has spent much of the series harassing Giacomin.

Lonsberry shoved back and drew a minor penalty. Giacomin was handed a minor for slashing and a second minor for roughing.

The goalie has been fair game for belligerent opponents during the series because of his occasional excursions from the net to chase loose pucks.

If Sunday's game runs true to form, the Flyers have an edge. Each of the first six games has been won by the home club.

"Maybe we're just a bunch of homers," says Philadelphia coach Fred Shero. "I don't think playing at home is a seventh game is that much of an advantage.

"I would rather play on neutral ice."

The two-day layoff between the sixth and seventh games of the series will mean that some of the Rangers' nagging injuries will have extra time to heal.

Mavety: We Don't Expect To Quit

MOUNT PROSPECT, Ill. (CP) — Chicago Cougars, thrown out of their own arena, have been penalized so much that player-coach Pat Stapleton is wondering aloud if they can even keep playing.

Tonight the Cougars will try to keep alive in their best-of-seven World Hockey Association second-final series with Toronto Toros.

The Toros lead the series 3-2. In that case, it would not even make a difference that the Cougars have been thrown out of the International Amphitheatre, their usual home ice, by a production of Peter Pan.

But, if the Cougars pulled it out and then go on to win the final game in Toronto, the league says, there will be heavy pressure on them to find an arena bigger than their temporary digs at the 3,000-seat ice rink in the suburban Randhurst shopping centre.

The Cougars pay they won't give up without a tough fight.

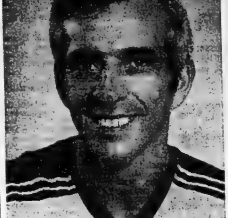
"This team doesn't know when to quit," defenceman Larry Mavety said.

The Cougars are smarting from 61 minutes of penalties called on them in the most-recent match with the Toros, which they lost 5-3.

"It has gotten to the point where we just aren't allowed to play the game," Stapleton moaned after the loss Wednesday.

Although the Randhurst rink has a postage-stamp seating capacity, it actually has more ice surface than the Amphitheatre. Some say this has helped the Toros who are used to a big skating area.

The Toros also are a younger squad, but one Toronto veteran, Wayne Carleton, noted that the Cougars may be a "hungrier" team.



Carleton observed that the Toros ranks are filled with highly paid players who took advantage of the bidding war between the WHA and the older rival, the National Hockey League.

The Toros' defence has been hit hard by injuries.

Rick Ley has been played, but hobbled through Wednesday's game with an ankle injury and his condition hasn't improved.

Steve Cuddie, who was hit in the eye by a puck in the third game of the series, is still in hospital. He is unlikely to play again this year.

Reds Can't Hold Lead

Giacomin — No Welcome Mat

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Jim Wiley fired home a 15-footer at 1:01 of overtime Friday night to give Hershey Bears a 4-3 victory over Providence Reds in the American Hockey League final playoffs.

Hershey holds a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven series and can clinch the Calder Cup Sunday in the Bears' home ice.

The Bears now have won a record 10 consecutive playoff games.

Wiley's goal came after defenceman Larry Sacharuk and forward Doug Roberts of the Reds collided while attempting to clear a rebound.

As the Providence players fell to the ice, Wiley stole the puck, skated into the slot and fired a slap shot past goaltender Peter McDuffe.

For the third straight game, Providence held the lead after two periods.

Don Borgeson scored their first goal during a power play at 5:50 of the first period following Hank Nowak's tied the score for Hershey at 5:29 of the second. Herbst put the Reds ahead 2-1 with a power play goal at 12:41.

But the Bears tied the score when Wiley clicked on a three-on-one breakaway at 1:41 of the third period and Hershey went ahead when Pierre Pagean blasted home a 40-footer at 3:39.

Then Gerry Teeple forced the overtime when he scored the Reds' third power play goal at 14:52.

Hawks Have Balance

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Balance has been the key to St. Catharines Black Hawks Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A championship and the same factor could make them a tough opponent in the Memorial Cup finals.

The Hawks travel to Calgary for the national final starting Sunday.

Although the Hawks finished second during the regular OHA season, seven points behind Kitchener Rangers, and were generally considered not as physical a club as the pennant winners, no team in the league had three such exceptional forwards lines plus a fourth line that could hold its own against opposition.

Coach Paul Emms, who coached Niagara Falls Flyers to the Memorial Cup in 1968, refused to designate his forward units as first, second or third, but the trio known as the GAS line—right winger Dave Gorman, centre Rick Addiuono and left winger Dave Salvian—has been tops in scoring.

Addiuono, 5-foot-11 and 180 pounds, scored 81 goals and 84 assists to tie Jack Valiquette of Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds for the season scoring title.
Gorman, 5-foot-11 and 175 pounds, had 53 goals and 76 assists and Salvian, 5-foot-11 and 165 pounds, 36 goals and 61 assists.

It's Remparts — Again

QUEBEC (CP) — Winning the Quebec Major Junior Hockey league championship has become more or less a tradition with Quebec Remparts.

For the fourth time in the last five years, the Remparts will represent the Quebec league in the Memorial Cup playoffs for Canada's national major junior title.

The Remparts, who lost to Toronto Marlboros in the Memorial Cup final game last year, will meet St. Catharines Black Hawks in the 7-opening game of this year's three-team round-robin in Calgary Sunday. Regina Pats are the other club.

No one really expected Quebec to be in this year's championship. The most vaunted team from the 11-team circuit was Sorel Black Hawks, who finished ahead of Quebec in the battle for first in the Quebec league's East Division.

Sorel defeated Quebec five times in eight meetings during the regular season but the Remparts prevailed in the best-of-seven playoff final, winning 4-2.

Leading Quebec attack was the trio of Jacques Locas, Real Cloutier and Richard Natalis. Locas, who has already signed a contract with Cincinnati of the World Hockey Association, had 99 goals and 107 assists for 206 points in regular-season play while Cloutier had 83 goals and 122 assists for 216 points.

Natalis, one of the toughest players in the league with 212 minutes in the penalty box this season, but still managed to finish third in scoring with 64 goals and 130 assists.

In their other Memorial Cup appearances, Quebec has won once. They were eliminated in the Eastern finals by Montreal Junior Canadiens in 1970 and defeated Edmonton-Oil Kings in a best-of-three final in 1971.

Three Trophies for Special Achievement Presented

By MARK BRETT. . .

Most Valuable Player: Mark Coates; Bill Cook Memorial for the player combining the most sportsman-like play with ability, Robbie Foster; Rookie of the year: Bruce Clark and John Sargeant.

That is how the trophy presentations went last night at the annual Bobcat Banquet held at the Black Hawk Motor Hotel.

The MVP award was donated by Bobby Hull in Memory of the late Bill Foster and Art Culleden. The trophy was presented by Don Foster a man well known around the city for his interest in hockey and his participation in parades.

Mr. Foster reminisced on the days when his son, Art Culleden and Bobby Hull played hockey and softball together and how titley had to forfeit the Ontario Softball Championship because of lack of funds to rent a bus for the trip to Niagara Falls. He also acknowledged what a difficult task it must have been to pick one player to receive the award. Coates was an obvious favorite judging by the response of the audience. Last years winner was Rick Meagher.

For the second year in a row Robbie Foster won the Bill Cook Memorial Trophy for ability and gentlemanly conduct. The trophy was presented by Dick Beare on behalf of Kate Cook and her daughters.

For the first time in the history of the Ethier Memorial trophy for the rookie of the year two players tied for the honors. Bruce Clark and John Sargeant were awarded the trophy by Bob Ethier, donor of the award.

Jack McBride was the master - of - ceremonies for the evening and started off by introducing the executives of the team or the "sexy seven" as he referred to them. Seated at the head table were Doug Murray, Russ Soule, Jim (Snipe) Matthews, Bob Ricketts, Bob Carey and Mr. McBride. Jack had a good word to say about all of them and also took the opportunity to get in a few good natured digs at several players and executives, which set the stage for the rest of the evening.

Mr. Matthews took over the show from here and made several special awards along with his thanks and a few comments for the team and it's members. Snipe told the players that would not be returning next year to drop around anytime, "Those fellas are part of me." He added.

Kevin Joudrey said a few words of thanks to Snipe on behalf of the team.

Bob Temple was also honored last night with an official team sport coat for his assistance in the past year. "He has done more than most people realize" said Snipe.

Doctor Harold Williamson also received a sport coat in appreciation of his help in attending to the needs of the players.

The night had its serious side too, that is the form of a presentation of a cheque to Al Garrison by Snipe on behalf of "most of the people in the room."

Al, who suffered an eye injury early in the season, received a standing ovation from the audience and was obviously moved by the unexpected award.

"I wish it could've been a whole year instead of just five games" he said in accepting the award. He was also high in praise for the team officials and said "the Cats had the best team in the league no matter what anybody says."

Al Trent, President of the Booster Club; also had a few words to say. He first introduced his executive for the past year and added "there will be many more bones next year."

Snipe concluded that "If we had of been in the playoffs against Hamilton we wouldn't have been quitters" referring to the incident involving the Hamilton Jr. B club and the Brameles club.

Coach Moe Hunter said a few words of thanks to the players and Snipe and a special word of thanks to the Booster Club whose support at the out of town games was greatly appreciated.

Mark Coates and Robbie Foster expressed their appreciation to Snipe and Mark presented him with an extra large hockey stick. Snipe also received a standing ovation from the players and fans who showed their appreciation and let him know that he will always remain Mr. Jr. B. Hockey with them.

Mr. McBride announced that training camp would open on Sept. 3.

"So stay in shape. Good-bye and a welcome back."

If you're a farmer planning for the future, the Commerce has the financing you need.

As a farmer you know the importance of planning for the future of your farm business. Often your plans will include the purchase of new machinery, breeding stock, additional land or perhaps the construction of a new building. All of these cost money. At the Commerce we know and that's where we can help.

We can lend you the money you need now. But the important thing isn't the lending, it's the way you can pay back. Over a number of years to suit your cash flow.

The person to talk to is your local Commerce manager. Whatever your credit needs, he can arrange a whole credit package specifically tailored to your farm operation. Whatever it may be. If you wish he can also arrange low-cost farm credit life insurance.

So if you're a farmer planning for the future, see us first. Ask about Commerce financing. It pays in the long run.

Some Pitchers Never Happy

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Some people—like pitchers Eddie Watt of Philadelphia Phillies and Jerry Reuss of Pittsburgh Pirates—are never satisfied.

Reliever Watt was unhappy with the pitch that preserved his team's 2-1 win over Los Angeles Dodgers Friday night in a National League baseball game.

"It's one you can't throw too often and get away with it up in the strike zone," said Watt of the pitch he threw past the Dodgers' Jimmy Wynn to end the final out of the game with the bases loaded.

"I've had better stuff as far as velocity is concerned," said Reuss after he scattered eight hits and posted his first win of the year as the Pirates downed Atlanta Braves 4-2.

Houston Astros downed St. Louis Cardinals 4-1 and Chicago Cubs pounded Cincinnati Reds 6-3 in the other two National League games played Friday.

Rain prevented games between San Francisco Giants and the Expos at Montreal and San Diego Padres ad the Mets at New York.

Yanks Get Lift From Opponent

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Joe Hoerner came out of the bullpen and gave New York Yankees a lift. Trouble is, he pitches for Kansas City Royals.

The reliever astonished almost everyone in Royals stadium Friday night—including himself—by hitting two consecutive batters to help the Yankees forge a 5-4 American League baseball victory Friday night.

"I never did that before in my life," said Hoerner after his second hit batsman forced in the Yankees' go-ahead run in the seventh inning.

New York manager Bill Virdon was just as surprised.

"Well, that's a new way for my club to win," he said. "I've never seen Hoerner do that, and I've seen him pitch a lot.

In other American League games, Chicago White Sox routed Milwaukee Brewers 14-3, Detroit Tigers nipped Minnesota Twins 4-3; Oakland As trimmed Cleveland Indians 3-2 and California Angels blanked Baltimore Orioles 7-0. Rain postponed the game between Texas Rangers and Boston Red Sox.

The Yankees trailed 4-3 when they rallied in the seventh inning. Horner Clarke opened with an infield single against Steve Mingori, the second Kansas City pitcher. Roy White singled Clarke to third and took second on the throw from the outfield.

At this point, Hoerner came into the game and issued an intentional walk to Lou Piniella to load the bases. Chris Chambliss forced Clarke at the plate but Bobby Murcer knocked in the tying run with a sacrifice fly.

Hoerner then nicked Ron Blomberg on a 3-2 pitch to reload the bases and then on his next toss, hit Graig Nettles to force in the Yankees' winning run. Both pitches hit the batters in the back.

The loss dropped the Royals deeper into the American League West basement.

Celtics Take 2-1 Lead

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Celtics, led by Dave Cowens and John Havlicek, put together devastating first and third period efforts for a 95-83 victory over Milwaukee Bucks Friday night in the third game of the National Basketball Association's championship round.

The victory gave the Celtics a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series, which will resume in Boston Garden Sunday afternoon.

Cowens led all scorers with 30 points, despite sitting out the second period after picking up a third personal foul late in the openiny quarter.

Havlicek, regaining the hot shooting form he has shown throughout the playoffs, hit for 28 points.

The pair combined for 23 third-period points. Cowens scoring 13 points and Havlicek 10.

Simons Sweeps By Blancas

DALLAS (AP) — Pill-popping Jim Simons showed no signs of stress Friday as he slashed six strokes off par with a 65 for a 133 total and a two-stroke lead in the $150,000 Byron Nelson golf tournament.

Simons said he takes a minimum of eight aspirin a day to ease the pain of tendonitis in his left shoulder.

"Aspirin always makes me dizzy," said Simons as he battled for the $30,000 first prize.

Simons sweat past Homero Blancas, the first-round leader with a flurry of birdies on putts of 20, five, 10, 15, 14 and 14 feet.

Blancas dropped to second place with 65-70—135.

With only a single bogey, Simmons, nine-under par for 36 holes, was three ahead of Tom Watson, 66, and Bruce Crampton, 69, who had 136 totals.

Forty players were under par 71 after Friday's round including a trio at 137—Kermit Zarley, Jerry McGee and Hale Irwin—and five at 138, including Lee Trevino.

Ben Kern of London, Ont., had a 71 for a two-round total of 148 and Wilf Homenuk of Winnipeg failed to make the cut when he shot a second straight 75 for a 150 total.

WFL Future Doubtful In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — John Bassett, president of Toronto Northmen, said Friday it is "highly unlikely" his World Football League (WFL) club will be playing here this season.

Asked about reports from Memphis that he told reporters here Thursday he wants his club to move to the Tennessee city, Bassett said:

"If I can find a partner or two down there and we can make an arrangement for the stadium, we'll be moving."

Richest Derby Ever

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Trainer Woody Stephens was to send out Judger and Cannonade against 21 other three-year-olds today in the 100th Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs.

Judger, owned by Seth Hancock, went into the Derby with victories in the Florida Derby and the Blue Grass. John Olin's Cannonade was the winner of the Stepping Stone Purse on opening day at the Downs last Saturday.

Other top contenders were the Sigmund Sommer entry of Rube The Great—winner of divisions of the Gotham and Wood Memorial in two previous starts—and Accipeter, and Meshach Stable's Agitate, who counted the California Derby among five victories in six races.

The centennial Derby was the 12th for jockey Bill Hartack, who was to ride outsider Sir Tristram a bid for a record sixth victory. He is tied with the retired Eddie Arcaro with five Derby victories.

The field of 23, most ever entered for the 1½-mile Derby, was scheduled to go to the post at 5:30 p.m. EDT. Television coverage was scheduled for 5 p.m. EDT on the CBS network.

It was easily the richest Derby because of a record 290 nominations and sizable increases in entry and starting fees. Last year it cost $4,100 to run a horse in the Derby; this year $7,600.

With 23 starters, the great purse was $536,500, with $274,000 to the winner.

Past Derby birthday parties have been marked by victories by longshot Donerail, the filly Regret and Secretariat; the Derby battle between Don Meade and Herb Fisher; Bill Shoemaker misjudging the finish line, and the disqualification of Dancer's Image.

Donerail carried Roscoe Goose to a half-length victory over favored Ten Grand in 1913 for a winning mutuel payoff of $184.90, highest in Derby history.

WFL Future Doubtful In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — John Bassett, president of Toronto Northmen, said Friday it is "highly unlikely" his World Football League (WFL) club will be playing here this season.

Asked about reports from Memphis that he told reporters here Thursday he wants his club to move to the Tennessee city, Bassett said:

"If I can find a partner or two down there and we can make an arrangement for the stadium, we'll be moving."

Bassett said that while he couldn't foresee his club playing in Toronto this year because of federal legislation now before Parliament to outlaw the WFL from Canada, he does not yet want to say the club will definitely be moving.

The bill to outlaw the WFL on the grounds that the new league poses a threat to the survival of the Canadian Football League has received second reading—approval in principle—in Ottawa and now faces final reading.

Commons Roundup

Ottawa Backs Sewer Program

OTTAWA (CP) — A government bill designed to extend sewage treatment assistance and get more land on the housing market was introduced in the Commons Friday.

The bill would broaden the sewage treatment assistance program to include financial aid for trunk storm sewers. It also would permit additional grants to municipalities where sewage treatment costs are an unusually heavy tax burden.

New methods of dealing with sewage would also qualify for federal financial help under the new legislation.

The Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. (CMHC) says the new proposals might help bring land on the housing market more quickly. The slow development of serviced land could be blamed frequently on financial problems faced by municipalities in providing sewage and water services.

The bill could help municipalities facing rocky terrain or similar sewer construction problems which place an unusual cost on the shoulders of municipal taxpayers.

Federal grants to these towns would cover one-half of the amount by which their costs exceed a reasonable level per person. This level would be set under government regulations.

Under the sewage treatment assistance program, CMHC currently lends funds to municipalities, provinces or municipal sewerage corporations to cover two-thirds of the capital cost of a sewage treatment plant and the trunk sewage collector system.

When the project is complete, CMHC may write off 25 per cent of the amount of the loan and interest. This continues under the new program.

Portugal OK

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has resumed normal diplomatic relations with Portugal, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons Friday.

Replying to Barney Danson (L—York North), Mr. Sharp said all of "the normal Canadian criteria" have been satisfied in recognizing the military junta which overthrew the regime of Marcello Caetano last week.

Western MPs Against Religious Exemptions

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Alberta Progressive Conservatives turned angrily on their own party Friday for supporting a government bill to exempt certain religious sects from contributing to the Canada Pension Plan (CPP).

Jack Horner (Crowfoot) and Stan Schumacher (Palliser) focused their attack on Conservative welfare spokesman Heath Macquarrie who pledged support last month when the bill first come up for debate.

Members of Hutterite and Mennonite colonies would be among those exempted from CPP contribution if the bill is passed. Both groups have sought exemption on religious grounds, saying their beliefs prevent participation in pension plans.

Mr. Schumacher said Mr. Macquarrie showed "an abysmal ignorance" of the bill's implications and had done a poor job of research.

The Palliser MP seconded an amendment by Mr. Horner to delete the exemption provisions from the bill. The bid was defeated on a voice vote.

Mr. Horner, an Alberta rancher, said Hutterites are a major agricultural force in Alberta and do not deserve special treatment.

Other farmers have to contribute to the plan and would be at a disavantage if Hutterites were exempted.

Mr. Macquarrie sat silently as Mr. Horner's voice boomed through the Commons chamber. He left before the speech was finished.

Later, he said he will stand by his position. It had been endorsed by the party and he had nothing to add.

The clause exempting religious sects makes up only a small part of the bill. Other sections would eliminate inequities between male and female contributors and raise payments for persons qualifying for benefits in the future.

Health Minister Marc Lalonde has said monthly retirement benefits will increase from the current $141.24 to $250 by 1980 and $350 by 1985.

Mr. Horner challenged the argument Hutterites make no demands on society and are entitled to an exemption.

"They take advantage of everything they can."

Not only do they use the newest farm machinery and farming techniques, but they willingly accept government subsidies and assistance, he said.

He added that there are about 7,000 Hutterites in Alberta living in 82 separate colonies and control one million acres of "probably the best land available."

Welland Canal Traffic Light

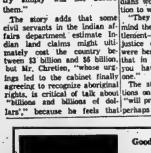
ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Traffic on the Welland canal has been light since the shipping season opened in late March and tonnage is down 50 per cent from the same time last year, a seaway spokesman said Friday.

Malcolm Campbell, director of the seaway's western region said, however, traffic has been increasing in recent days.

So far this season, 483 ships have navigated the canal, compared with 671 at the same time last year.

One reason for the slow start is the recent strike by St. Lawrence river pilots, the spokesman said.

Indian Land Claims May Not Be Absorbed



TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail, in a front-page Ottawa story, quotes Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien as saying if Indian land claims become so big that the country cannot absorb them, "the country simply will not absorb them."

The story adds that some civil servants in the Indian affairs department estimate Indian land claims might ultimately cost the country between $3 billion and $6 billion, but Mr. Chretien, "whose urgings led to the cabinet finally agreeing to recognize aboriginal rights, is critical of talk about "billions and billions of dollars'," because he feels that this might lead to unrealistic expectations among native peoples.

The minister is further quoted as saying that if the size of the claims "created a situation of confrontation over everything or nothing, I don't think the Indians would be in a good position to win that."

"They have to keep in the mind the goals of having a settlement—it is to resolve an injustice created before we all existed. That does not mean that in resolving one injustice you have to create another one."

The story says that negotiations on aboriginal land claims "will probably last a long time, perhaps a generation."

Tories Mark Time On Footbill Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield declared Friday that his party has changed its mind about fighting the government's bill to ban American football leagues from Canada.

He was commenting on a statement by Health Minister Marc Lalonde in Toronto Thursday night that the Conservatives seem likely to support the bill.

"If Mr. Lalonde has made this statement, he must be in some dream world," Mr. Stanfield said in a statement.

Mr. Lalonde said in an interview that earlier discussion by the Conservatives had ended. The bill likely would pass easily this session if Parliament were not dissolved for an election.

The bill, which received approval in principle last week although the Conservatives voted overwhelmingly against it, is aimed mainly at stopping operation of Toronto Northern of the new World Foo-ball League.

A source said the Conservatives had decided to let the bill pass without amendment and then let the government hear the complaints of any outraged football fans.

"That's reasonably certain," said Conservative whip Robert McKinley when asked Tuesday night about the rumor. "It's close."

Heath Macquarrie, the Conservative putting togethe: his party's program for the football bill when it reaches committee, indicated his party would not try to change the bill in committee.

"I'm not contemplating any amendments," Mr. Macquarrie (Hillsborough) said in an interview Tuesday night. "I have no one else's before me either."

Wheat Plan Gets Support

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament gave its first nod Friday toward writing into law the government's two-price wheat program, which Otto Lang, minister responsible for the wheat board, said is currently saving consumers eight cents a loaf on bread prices.

The program, first put into effect without legislation last fall, established a $3.25-a-bushel price to millers for top grade wheat regardless of the world price, which now is about $5.75. The government makes up the difference with a subsidy to the Canadian wheat board to a maximum of $5 a bushel.

Canadian wheat for export is sold for the higher world price.

Mr. Lang said the program has the support of all political parties and predicted its enactment regardless of whether there is an election and a new government this year.

He also said his proposed grain stabilization legislation is nearing completion and will be presented at the House in two or three weeks after final consultations with producer groups and the provinces.

IN MEMORIAM

YOUNG — In loving memory of a dear father Douglas Young who passed away May 4, 1964.
A light is from our home taken
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is made in our hearts
Which never can be filled.
Sweet memories are with us dear father,
The world may change from year to year,
And friends from day to day,
But never will the one I loved,
From memory stray.
—Ever remembered by Mom, Ruth and Gordon.

YOUNG — In loving memory of a dear father Douglas Young who passed away May 4, 1964.
Sadly missed by Jean and Ken.

YOUNG — In loving memory of a dear father Douglas Young who passed away May 4, 1964.
It hardly seems we were parted,
How sweet the memory still,
But each sad hour I treasure,
The world can never fill.
—Nellie Hagerman.

YOUNG — In loving memory of a dear friend Douglas Young who passed away May 4, 1964.
Memories linger each day we miss him.
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they cannot see the scar
Lying within our hearts concealed.
—Sheila.

DEAN — In loving memory of a dear daughter and sister Dean Ann Morrison who passed away May 4, 1970 and a beloved husband and father Clayton Dean who passed away May 4, 1973.
Gone from us from our chairs,
But though we've parted for a while,
We know we'll meet again.
Then there are hugs to meet you,
Some day we know not when,
We shall then be better blessed,
Never to part again.
—Remembered always by family.

MORRISON — In loving memory of our dear dad and son Clayton Dean Morrison who passed away May 4, 1973.
There is a secret known to God,
There is a memory fond and true,
There is a heart that beats for you dad,
And a heartache still for you.
Sleep on dear dad, and take your rest,
But memory turns back every test,
And we remember you best.
Dearly missed by Jennifer and Family.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. Ruth Taylor would like to thank Revs. Ireland and Wilson, Mr. Wearry and staff, and other nurses and doctors for their kind and thoughtful care and for their understanding during our recent bereavement.

Even Doctors Have Faith

By ALLEN SPRAGGETT

Olga Worrall is a faith healer even doctors believe in.

In a recent issue of the respected publication, "Medical Economics," this grandmother in Baltimore woman who has been practising spiritual healing, as she calls it, for 40 years, was praised by several physicians.

Said Dr. Robert Bradley, a Denver gynecologist: "I've known of Olga Worrall over a number of years and I've come to the conclusion that she's a sincere person with a definite gift for healing."

Dr. Paul G. Isaak, a family physician in Alaska, remarked of Mrs. Worrall as a healer: "I must say I am favorably impressed."

Dr. William McGary, director of an Arizona clinic, commented: "Olga Worrall has a remarkable gift, and I'm sure of it."

And Dr. James A. Knight, associate dean and professor of psychiatry at the Tulane University medical school, said: "In view Mrs. Worrall's healing ministry with enthusiasm and confidence."

And what does the chatty, 67-year-old healer who calls everybody "honey" have to say for herself?

"Don't call me a miracle worker," she says. "I simply channel to the afflicted a primal healing power that flows from God. God is the healer, not me. So-called miracles are the working out of the laws of God on a higher level than we understand."

Mrs. Worrall, who accepts no money for her healing work has conducted faith-healing services for many years at Baltimore's Mount Washington Methodist Church. She is the widow of an aeronautical engineer who had a reputation as a healer in his own right. Ambrose Worrall went everywhere with his wife as half of a healing team. Since his death in 1972 she still signs her letters to friends: "Ambrose and Olga."

What sort of cases respond to Olga Worrall's brand of spiritual therapy?

Gai Washington, whose mother lives in Baltimore nursing home, was born, with severe brain damage and by the age of four was deaf, blind and suffering from a serious heart condition. Her brain was so extensively destroyed that doctors described her head as almost empty.

Mrs. Washington took her daughter to Baltimore faith healing service — not once but many, many times over a period of several years. The child gradually improved to the point where today she's described as a virtually normal schoolgirl.

Coincidence? A freak remission of symptoms? Or the delayed result of medical treatment?

Well, a doctor who knew the case well said he did not believe that medical treatment alone could have saved the girl.

Another case is Baltimore boy, Jeffrey Keuney, suffered from a crippling bone disease that doctors said would disable him permanently. Mrs. James Keuney took her son to Olga Worrall and today the boy no longer wears his leg brace and appears perfectly normal.

Of this case, a doctor said cautiously: "Recovery did occur where medically it was not logically expected to occur." But, he added, the cure may have been the result of "sheer willpower" on the boy's part.

Olga Worrall says she isn't fussy who gets the credit as long as a sick person gets well. She has excellent relations with doctors and always encourages people who come for healing to continue their medical treatment until such time as it becomes obvious they no longer need it.

Thus, she avoids the dangerous practice, one for which some faith-healers are criticized by the medical profession, of encouraging or even exhorting people to throw away their medications and simply "have faith." Because of her pro-medical approach, Olga Worrall frequently finds doctors among those who come to her for healing prayer.

"One night," she recalls with a chuckle (she often chuckles), "there were nine MD's in the house all seeking spiritual therapy for their own ailments."

In a field that's riddled with fraud, fantasy and dangerous extremism, Olga Worrall comes across as like sanity itself — cool, softspoken, reasonable, yet compassionate.

"The thing that permitted miracles in Jesus' time 2,000 years ago is still around," she says so calmly that it's hard not to believe her. "If only we would make use of it."

Opening lead—♠3

By Oswald and James Jacoby

A reader from Wisconsin writes, "I would like your comments on the bidding and play of this hand. I thought I bid the North hand quite well, although my partner felt that I should have passed at five clubs.

"He only made four because after winning the first trick with my ace of trumps he led dummy's singleton spade. East had no problem with that lead. He played the four spot. My partner played the jack. West won with the queen and led a second trump where upon my partner wound up down one."

The bidding of the hand strikes us as quite good. Certainly, North should be interested in a slam after South's jump to two spades to show a 19 or 20-point hand. We assume that North's bid of four clubs was made with the intention of finding out if South really had a club suit.

As for the final contract, it had to be a good one. If East had shifty-minded and finally played a low spade, the slam would also have made. South would have gone up with his king.

We also have no criticism of South's play. Almost anyone would have played the jack. We do want to commend East. It takes a really good player to see the need to duck when the spade is led at him and to duck quickly enough so as not to give away the location of the ace.

V+CARD Sense♦

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1♠	Pass	1♥
Pass	3♥	Pass	3♠
Pass	4♠	Pass	4♥
Pass	5♦	Pass	7

You, South, hold:
♠K 2 ♥AJ 7 3 5 ♦A 4 6 4 ♣Q 9 6

What do you do now?

A—Pass. Your partner wanted to bid three notrump. Now, let him play four. He will make it and a slam looks doubtful.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of opening one club your partner has bid one spade. What do you respond?

Oriental Movie Mogul

HONG KONG (AP) — Run Run Shaw, once an unknown theatre manager in Singapore and now acknowledged king of the Kung Fu epic, works seven days a week.

The 69-year-old movie czar also works his people 70 hours a week and treasures his image as father figure to 110 contract players.

In the last year Shaw has turned out 40 pictures, the majority of them Kung Fu or "action" films aimed at the overseas market. He now is working out deals to co-produce films with major studios in the United States and other countries.

There are no unions in Shaw's studios. Shaw can work his people as long as they are willing to stay on the set.

He built "dormitories" at the studio where actors can live during shooting, then expanded them to include four apartment houses where stars, performers and technicians live permanently. The accommodations is rent free.

Shaw says the Kung Fu craze may be waning and he is planning a variety of films—love stories musicals, comedies and dramas.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Sunday, May 5

Aries (March 21-April 19) A good time to bury yourself with domestic matters that need immediate attention. Get going on those chores around house you've put off.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You will have to be more assertive in decisions that face you and your social logs. Be firm, but not nasty.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) A little exercise wouldn't do you any harm at this time. Do something active where you're outdoors in the nice, fresh air.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You'll be in more of a fun mood today. Your attitude will stimulate others. Spend some hours with the young at heart.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Something you've left undone and no one else knows about could be cleared up today if you'd take the time.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Dull people will spoil your day if you share their company. You'll feel more exhilarated with pals who want to do something.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It will be hard for you to dismiss commercial matters from your mind. Why not involve yourself socially with those you're doing business with?

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You won't let up on your ideas to go. You shouldn't. If you think something is worth trying, go do it.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Pick today to get off by yourself to do things that are best done without someone looking over your shoulder.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There's something that needs talking over with a close associate. Don't let too much time go by without ironing it out.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) While others may be sitting idly by, this will be a very productive day for you if you apply yourself and know what needs attention.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Somehow you'll be in contact with will give you the mental lift you're in need of today.

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Monday, May 6

Aries (March 21-April 19) Matters that relate to money or material things are potential trouble spots. Be wary in your business dealings today.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) A close personal relationship is under unusual strain. It won't take much to bring on harsh words. Be forgiving, co-operative.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) It will be very difficult to please superiors. When the boss asks you to do something, don't sluff off. Only your best will be acceptable.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Pressures from your peer group(s) will make you feel uncomfortable socially. Avoid acquaintances or club members with opposing views.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll learn of something unflattering that some outsider has said about you or a member of your family. Don't overreact.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your ideas will be over-ruled by a stronger personality unless you permit it. Try to reach a middle ground without arguing.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This is not a time to spend beyond your means. It would be wise to trim unnecessary frills from the budget where possible.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're apt to be overly insistent upon having your own way today. This will not rest well with your associates.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Something that you've neglected to take care of this past month will hit you in a corner today. Face it. Finish it now.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you're involved in some form of group activity, go along with the group. Rocking the boat you'll have everyone on your neck.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your fondnesses are not as strong as you may think. Don't do anything to alienate those who support your interests.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Have a clear-cut idea of what you'd like to accomplish now. If you don't, you'll be running in circles, with no productive results.

Boredom Can Be Sleepiness Cause

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you tell me why so many old people sleep nights but also sleep most of the day, falling asleep in their chairs any time they sit down? Is there any way of curing this habit? — M.H.S.

It may not be a "habit" because there are some very real reasons for this constant napping.

With advanced age, many of the body processes slow down. Circulation is slower; gradual hardening of the arteries is a part of aging and can reduce the blood flow to various parts of the body.

The result is a decreased supply of oxygen to the tissues generally, both to the brain and the body. I do not mean brain damage. That means that the effort of thinking is somewhat greater.

In the body, I do not mean physical disability, but only that muscles do not respond as vigorously, and exertion cannot be sustained for as long a time. With advanced age, there comes a slowing down.

Add to this that the elderly person may not get much exercise. No particular planned programs. But the ladies for the most part were in small groups, talking. For the most part, the men were alone, dozing in chairs in their rooms. Gregariousness is important to people. And I rather feel that women are more civilized than men in making use of it. A man is more likely to handle something active calories-wise.

Contrariwise, in another home where I had a patient, there was a continuing effort to keep all social programs going — dancing (whether cards or other games), short trips to places of interest, concerts.

The result was a more alert group, considered ago to age. My own patient was one who had to be pushed. Without somebody making the effort to make sure he knew what was available, he too often was just sprawled on his bed reading. Or snoozing. No radio, no TV, no reading for him. So he escaped into slumber.

They aren't all alike, these old folks. But paying attention to them, finding things they can do without becoming too tired — those are the things that mean a lot and have much sleeping. It keeps them looking forward, and that is what they need.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can anything be done about a case of athlete's foot when the toenails are infected? What treatment might help? And will the nails look normal again? — Mrs. L.W.B.

Athlete's foot is a fungus infection — but not necessarily the same type of fungus in all cases. When the nails have become infected, in my experience it is usually pointless to try any home remedies. Rather, go to a dermatologist (skin specialist) for a determination of the type of fungus. He has some medications which are available only by prescription. Generally speaking, once the fungus is down to the chances of having normal-looking nails are pretty good.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it true that leaving a wet diaper on a child more than 30 minutes will cause kidney trouble? — M.F.

No, but it can cause a rash and skin disorders, and anyway infants deserve dry pants even if the only way you can ask for them is to cry or fuss.

Travel Agents Benefit

Query Airlines on Kickbacks

NEW YORK (AP) — The Times says that 23 airline executives have been subpoenaed by a Brooklyn federal grand jury investigating alleged kickbacks by the passenger-hungry airlines to travel agents.

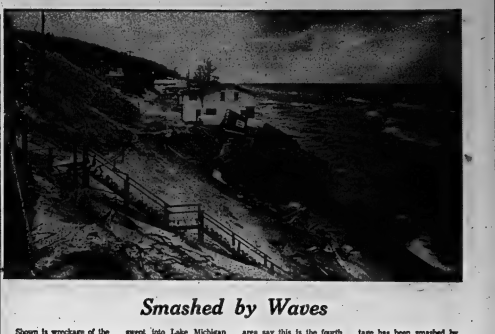
The Times says recent testimony before the grand jury indicated millions of dollars in secret rebates were given to the high-volume travel agents by several foreign airlines and some major domestic carriers — including Pan American World Airways and Trans World Airlines.

The subpoenaed executives, to appear before the federal grand jury within the next two weeks, are employees of 23 airlines that have transatlantic routes, says The Times.

Representatives of Aeroflot, the Soviet airline, are also among those reported to have been subpoenaed.

In an interview, Acting U.S. Attorney Edward Boyd told The Times: "The evidence we have so far indicates that this ticket scalping is very extensive, very widespread."

Boyd told the newspaper that the investigation is looking into alleged fare malpractices, possible airline violations of anti-trust statutes, reports that kickbacks were not reported on the tax returns of the travel agents and other possible offenses.



A larger number of passengers enables an airline to operate more efficiently and receive a larger return on its investment.

The Times quotes sources familiar with the case as saying the rebates ranged from four to 20 per cent of the air fare, in addition to the legal sales commission to travel agents of seven to 10 per cent.

"We were pushed into it," said one unnamed airline official quoted by The Times. He said that airlines that did give kickbacks to the travel agents and tour wholesalers suddenly began losing customers to other air carriers that offered the alleged rebates.

"We had to join or we wouldn't have any people on our aircraft," he said.

The Times says the payments were in the form of cash transferred in the United States or in Europe, or in cheques issued in the travel agents. Sometimes dummy corporations received the cheques for the agents, or the airline made legitimate payments to the tour organizers for advertising or the printing of brochures.

Mayor Not to Discuss Zebra Murders

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mayor Joseph Alioto, who links 13 "Zebra" murders here to black separatist group, has been ordered to keep silent on the case of three young men accused of killing three of the victims.

Municipal Court Judge Agnes O'Brien Smith issued the order Friday at a court appearance for Larry Green, 22, J. C. Simon, 23, and Manuel Moore, 23. The three were ordered to enter pleas May 9.

"No party to this action, no attorney, no public officials from chief of police or sheriff on down or any subpoenaed witness is allowed, under the order, to discuss details of the case," said Smith.

Asked whether the rule will apply to Alioto, she said: "I will include him in."

The mayor has blamed a fanatical group of Death Angels for 80 killings in California, including 13 random slayings here in a case police have codenamed Operation Zebra. Seven persons have been wounded in the Zebra attacks in San Francisco.

But other California law-enforcement authorities say they have no evidence that any such gang exists outside San Francisco.

Four men arrested in the case were released Thursday night for lack of evidence. They were Tom Mauney, 31, a food ball star at San Francisco State in the early 1960s; Clarence Jamerson, 27; Dwight Stallings, 28, and Edgar Burton, 22.

Chief of Inspectors Charles Barca said release of the four does not preclude any prosecution in the future if we develop additional evidence."

Before the arrests, police had listed 12 murders and six injuries in the Zebra file. All the victims were white and shot down without apparent reason by assailants witnesses described as black.

But Green was charged with one count of murder, one of conspiracy and two counts of kidnapping in the Oct. 20 decapitation slaying of Quita Hague, 28, and the slashing and beating of her husband, Richard, 30, an incident not previously listed.

Simon and Moore were charged with murder in the Dec. 20 shooting of Alario Bertuccio, 81, and in the Jan. 28 murder of Jane Holly, 43, in a San Francisco coin laundry.

James Bay Witnesses Threatened

QUEBEC (CP) — Witnesses testifying before the fire commissioner's inquest into the March 21 fire that destroyed a campsite at James Bay have been receiving threatening telephone calls about their testimony, Fire Commissioner Cyrille Delage said Friday.

"If people don't stop trying to intimidate the witnesses, we'll take measures to see that it ceases." Mr. Delage said as the inquest resumed to hear testimony from workers from eastern Quebec who were at the site during the fire and later witnessed the $8-million project.

One witness admitted he received three threatening telephone calls this week.

The anonymous caller told him: "If you spend the night in Quebec, don't stay in Lower Town" and "Everywhere you go we're watching you."

A third call concerned the chances the man might have of getting his job at the James Bay project back again.

The fire commissioner has ordered that the names, addresses and occupations of the witnesses be withheld from publication.

Canadian Forces Will Test Vaccine

OTTAWA (CP) — Government scientists have developed a vaccine that might prevent the deaths of more than 100 victims of cerebrospinal meningitis.

To date, the vaccine has only been tested with mice, which have immune systems similar to that of people, Dr. Harold Jennings of the Immunochemistry section at the National Research Council said Friday in an interview.

But Connaught Laboratories Ltd., a Toronto drug company, plans to produce the vaccine and then conduct field trials with Canadian Forces volunteers, said Dr. Jennings.

The vaccine is the result of four years of research and collaboration by Dr. Jennings, of the council's division of biological sciences, Dr. I. C. P. Smith of the council's biogenics section and Dr. Paul Kenny, a microbiologist in the federal health department's laboratory centre for disease control.

Cerebrospinal meningitis is not widespread in Canada but large-scale vaccination programs would be justified, said Dr. Jennings.

However, there were high-risk groups that are susceptible to the disease, such as armed services personnel, native peoples and inhabitants of poorer, crowded areas.

Babies, youths in their late teens and immunologically deficient adults were most likely to be its victims.

Big Profits In Fertilizer

CLINTON, Ont. (CP) — A Huron County Federation of Agriculture official said Friday there is profiteering in nitrogen fertilizer and he asked that the federal and provincial governments put a stop to it.

Adrien Vos, vice-president of the federation, said in a statement he did not know how many farmers had purchased surplus amounts of fertilizer for resale in the United States.

The statement said some farmers are selling the fertilizer for up to 100 per cent profit.

"Some people said they sent truckloads of fertilizer leaving the companies and just drove to the United States," Mr. Vos said.

The federation release said some nitrogen fertilizer, which usually sells for $150 to $180 a ton, is being resold in the U.S. at profits of $250 a ton.

William Stewart, provincial agriculture minister, said later he had heard rumors that some nitrogen fertilizer was being sold by farmers at a profit to the U.S., but he did not think "anybody really knows what's going on."

Defence Employees Face Upcoming Layoff

QUEBEC (CP) — The president of the Union of National Defence Employees said Friday about 2,400 temporary employees of the federal department of defence will be laid off across the country this month.

Joseph Powers said the layoffs will affect 1,625 workers in Quebec, 600 of whom are currently employed in maintenance jobs at the Canadian Forces base at Valcartier, Que.

About 650 workers in Ontario are scheduled to be laid off May 31 as well as 200 in the Atlantic provinces, 140 in the Prairies and another 160 employees in British Columbia, he said.

Mr. Powers said he has sent a telegram to Defence Minister James Richardson and Health Minister Marc Lalonde, on behalf of the employees who were hired mainly on a temporary basis as part of the government's make-work program.

Leo-Paul Beaulieu, vice-president of the regional council of the union said the government's attitude is irresponsible because it permits employees to be laid off or rehired without warning.

Chlorine Checked

TORONTO (CP) — A study group composed of biologists, chemists and engineers will be established to evaluate the effect chlorine has on fish in provincial waters, an official of the environment ministry's water resources branch has announced.

S. E. Salbach, supervisor of water resources planning and co-ordination for the ministry, said the problem is not significant in large waterways where chlorine-treated effluent from sewage plants is diluted.

But in a small stream, large concentrations of chlorine may kill many fish before they swim to safety, Mr. Salbach said.

He said public health protection, the reason for using chlorine to remove health hazards in water, must take precedence over fish.

However, chlorination practices at sewage treatment plants will have to be reviewed carefully on a case-by-case basis, Mr. Salbach said.

Turner Set For Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — The fate of the minority Liberal government goes on the line tonight when Finance Minister John Turner brings down his third, and most crucial, federal budget.

What he says when he addresses the Commons at 8 p.m. EDT will almost certainly tip the balance between government survival and a federal election.

The betting was heavy at week's end that an election was inevitable and the country would be going to the polls as early as July 8 for the 30th federal vote since Confederation.

"It's 99.99 per cent certain," said one spokesman for the New Democratic Party.

"I don't see any way that Turner can bring in a budget we would support."

Even Liberal MPs and aides were openly pessimistic about staving off defeat when the first non-confidence budget vote is called, likely Wednesday or Thursday.

One said it would take a miracle to reverse the pre-election mood in the Commons, where the Liberals are badly outnumbered.

Standing in the 264-seat House is Liberal 110, Progressive Conservative 106, New Democrat 31, Social Credit 15, Independent one and vacant two.

A more cautious assessment came Friday from a Conservative spokesman.

"We want an election, and all my instincts say, yes. But why was Allan MacEachen (Government House Leader) smiling today?" he asked.

"We've come to the brink before. Maybe the government still has an ace up its sleeve."

Should the government survive, Mr. Turner must appease either the Conservatives or New Democrats. Each party commands enough votes to keep Liberals from falling.

Both seem likely to move nonconfidence motions following the budget, unless its contents are spectacular. If they combine on any non-confidence vote, the government would be defeated and a July election would be all but certain.

NDP Leader David Lewis has made a long nine-point list of demands as the price of continued NDP support for the government. Unless all points are met "undiluted," spokesmen say, NDP members will attempt to topple the Liberals from office.

The price, as most observers see it, is too steep for Mr. Turner to meet. The list includes such proposals as six-per-cent mortgage interest rates, a major crackdown on corporate profits and $200 a-month old-age pensions.

Many people are speculating that Mr. Turner will announce some politically-attractive measures and take its chances on the campaign trail if an election is forced.

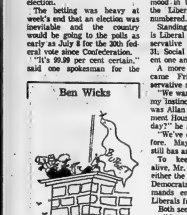
Meanwhile, the government has stacked the deck against prior paper with a string of bills in an apparent bid to put pressure on opposition members.

"We can say they walked away from reams of good legislation," said a government official.

The list includes bills to curb profiteering, set up a national oil company, broaden women's rights, change the National Housing Act and establish a two-price wheat system.

The traditional timetable has been for the finance minister to go over a draft of the budget with the prime minister about two weeks before budget night. The budget always is tabled in the House after the close of financial markets across the country.

Senior cabinet members—the finance-related portfolios such as trade, treasury board and external affairs—get a briefing about a week before. Other cabinet members get a briefing at the end of the week before the budget is tabled, which is about the time the final draft of the finance minister's speech is being completed.



Mr. Turner will write the opening and concluding remarks of the budget speech himself. This sets his own "tone and stance" to the speech, an aide said. But most of the details in between are put together by the finance department officials.

The budget was printed during the weekend—in a guarded section of the government printing office—and 25,000 copies were made in the first run. Defence department aircraft will be used to fly copies to Bank of Canada and revenue department offices in 18 cities, for simultaneous release to the public when the budget is tabled, about 8 p.m. EDT tonight.

Israel Is Making No Concessions

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli government showed no signs of yielding to Syrian demands today as it went into another round of troop-disengagement talks with United States State Secretary Henry Kissinger.

A government spokesman said a cabinet session Sunday produced no decisions on the next move.

"We are still at the beginning of this whole negotiation," said one Israeli official. "It is all fluid and nothing has crystallized."

Health Minister Victor Shemtov told reporters the cabinet will meet again today after its leaders talk further with Kissinger.

Perhaps the toughest decision facing the Israelis is whether to modify their initial refusal to give up some of the territory they seized from Syria in the 1967 war.

Israel has already signalled willingness to give up the territory it captured from Syria last October. But the Syrians are demanding that the Israelis retreat behind that line to give up the devastated town of Kuneitra and strategic mountain areas seized by Israeli settlements established since 1967.

Premier Golda Meir warned in a speech Sunday night that Israel will depend less on Kissinger's diplomacy than on its own "fight for survival."

"I don't make light of the negotiations now going on," she said, "but that is not the decisive factor."

"What is decisive is our fight for survival. . . .

French Field Reduced

Mitterand, d'Estaing Win Entry to Runoff Election

PARIS (AFP) — Socialist Francois Mitterrand will face conservative Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing in a close runoff battle for the French presidency May 19. France's voters decided Sunday.

Backed by the powerful Communist party, Mitterrand led a field of 12 candidates on the first ballot with 10,326,783 votes, or 43.36 per cent of the total cast. Giscard d'Estaing, a member of the Independent Republican party, ran second with 8,390,282, or 27.81 per cent.

Since the heavy turnout of 25 million voters gave no candidate a majority, a runoff must be held between the two high men in two weeks. But the voters dealt a shattering blow to the Gaullist party, which dominated French politics for more than a decade under Presidents Charles de Gaulle and Georges Pompidou.

The official Gaullist candidate, former premier Jacques Chaban-Delmas, polled only 3,603,168 votes, or 14.64 per cent, in what was billed as a battle against Giscard d'Estaing, the leader of the junior party in the Gaullist coalition.

The consensus of politicians and newspapers was that the major challenge in the political pattern made the outcome of the runoff unpredictable, with the result likely to be a photo finish.

The big question mark was how many of the 14 per cent who supported Chaban-Delmas after a campaign marked by personal bitterness toward Giscard d'Estaing would switch their votes to the 49-year-old finance minister.

Conceding his defeat, Chaban-Delmas maintained his resolute opposition to the Socialist-Communist union but avoided naming either Mitterrand or Giscard d'Estaing.

Gaullist party leaders were meeting today to decide their tactics. Should large numbers of third-line Gaullists stay home May 19, Mitterrand might squeeze through to victory.

Campaign Debate

Jacques Chaban-Delmas, left, one of the major candidates seeking Gaullist support in the French presidential election Sunday, and Francois Mitterand, the candidate of the leftist parties, debate Friday night in a Radio Luxembourg studio in Paris. In centre is moderator J. Carlier.

Man Dies in Head-on Highway 401 Crash

Romeo Poitras of Montreal was killed at 4:30 a.m. today when two transport trucks collided head-on on Highway 401, nine miles west of Belleville. An east-bound refrigerator truck crossed the median to hit the westbound truck driven by Poitras. Scattered in the median are rolls of plastic piping carried in the Poitras truck, with a third truck, forced off the eastbound lane standing amid the debris. Traffic backed up for 2½ hours, but began to move after Sidney Township firemen, shown above, washed diesel oil off the highway. For details see story on Page 2.

Faulkner Plans Ulster Unity Party

BELFAST (AP) — Brian Faulkner, Northern Ireland's Protestant chief executive, announced plans today for a new political party dedicated to sharing power with Roman Catholics.

The group, to be called the Unionist party, will challenge old colleagues linked in a "loyalist" merger that seeks to reimpose Protestant rule in Northern Ireland.

Faulkner heads an executive administration, with both Protestant and Catholic ministers, set up by the British in hopes of ending sectarian bloodshed that has cost more than 1,000 lives.

Faulkner resigned early this year as leader of the official Ulster Unionist party because of rebellion against his policy of Protestant-Catholic co-operation and the creation of legislative links with the Irish republic.

Someone Annexes Man's Identity

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Someone seems to have taken over Ronald Walton's identity and sent him to jail for eight days, diverted his income tax refund and gummed up his unemployment insurance records.

Starr Alert, the Windsor Star's action columnist, says investigations into the strange troubles of the 24-year-old father of four have been launched by the Ontario attorney-general's department, the federal revenue department and the unemployment insurance Commission.

The problems of Mr. Walton, a general workman who lives in nearby Colchester South, began early this year when he received a summons to appear in court at Dryden, about 1,300 road miles away in Northern Ontario, to face charges of speeding and failing to notify of a change of address for his driver's license.

He decided to ignore the summons since he had never been to Dryden and on the date of the speeding offence—last Feb. 1—had been in Toronto inquiring about a course at George Brown College.

But he was convicted in absentia and was served with a committal warrant demanding $70 with the alternative of eight days in jail. He did not have the $70 and called on Starr Alert, which set about with the Colchester police and the attorney-general's department.

The attorney-general's office agreed to withdraw the warrant indefinitely. But the call never came, and the attorney-general's office later explained it could not reach the Colchester police chief by telephone.

Mr. Walton went to jail. Shortly after his release, he filed his income tax returns and waited for a $381 refund. That never came, either.

When he called the tax office, Mr. Walton was told his cheque had been sent to Windsor, apparently to someone there using his name and social security number.

At least, Mr. Walton figured, he had his unemployment insurance benefits to live on, until a cheque became 10 days overdue.

It turned out there was no cheque waiting in Windsor and that his file had been transferred to Winnipeg. The UIC office said someone must have filed for benefits in Winnipeg, using Mr. Walton's social security number. It has asked for the file to be returned here and is investigating.

Officials note that Dryden, where the speeding conviction occurred, is only about 300 miles from Winnipeg.

Meanwhile, Mr. Walton wonders when his identity will materialize next.

Air Traffic Controllers Vote to Accept Contract

OTTAWA (CP) — Air traffic controllers remained on their jobs today after voting to accept a tentative contract agreement hammered out last week between union and treasury board negotiators.

The controllers had threatened a national walkout at midnight Sunday unless a satisfactory agreement was reached. A strike could have virtually halted commercial air traffic.

But late Sunday even the controllers in two potential-trouble spots, Montreal and Victoria, had agreed to abide by the national majority decision. The national vote was 57 per cent in favor of the settlement.

The agreement will provide pay raises of 15 per cent dating from July 1 with 13 per cent retroactive to June 1. The 2,100 controllers will get a further raise of nine per cent Sept. 1, 1975.

The controllers now have salaries ranging between $5,700 and $22,222 annually. Most earn between $14,000 and $17,000.

Controllers in Montreal and Victoria were unhappy with the proposed settlement and had threatened walkouts regardless of the national vote.

Late Sunday, however, they decided to go along with the majority.

Jim Livingston, president of the National Air Traffic Control Association, called upon all controllers to stay on the job, but said he understood the frustrations of members of the association.

"They saw other labor disputes in the public service receive swift and generous attention as a result of illegal strike action," he said. Recently, airport firefighters were offered a 30 per cent pay increase by treasury board despite an illegal strike. The firefighters dispute goes to arbitration Tuesday following rejection of that proposal.

The contract will not be signed for a few weeks because there are details to be ironed out, he said.

In Montreal, where a six-hour study session disrupted air traffic Friday, local chairman Fred Ager said controllers were not happy with the settlement.

The Montreal controllers voted more than 80 per cent against the agreement.

The Victoria controllers voted unanimously against the settlement but decided to remain at work. They had earlier said they would strike.

Signing Up

Turnout Pleases Volunteers

Central Volunteer Bureau organizers of the open house-information mart for 30 of Belleville's volunteer groups are satisfied with the public reaction given the first such event in the city's history.

Held in the banquet rooms at the Four Seasons Hotel 2-5 p.m. Sunday, the open house displayed the services provided by volunteer groups in the city.

Selma Bochnek, co-ordinator, estimated 500 people attended.

CVB executive director Ruth Burrows said Sunday, "A lot of people came out to see what it was. I was afraid it would be just the sisters, cousins and aunts that would come."

Sunday, the hotel's second floor was well filled with people. Girl Guides provided baby-sitting services as well as serving refreshments.

Organizers have been working since January to bring such groups as the Canadian Diabetic Association, the National Ballet of Canada, Belleville branch, and the city's Telecare service together for the single day.

Mrs. Burrows was "delighted" with the public turnout. However, she is uncertain whether the open hours will be held next year.

"I don't know about next year. We'll have to get a feeling from the groups. We will have to send an assessment sheet to each group that was here."

Two groups that were scheduled toparticipate in Sunday's open house were forced to man displays with skeleton staffs.

Both were volunteering their services during the Ontario Cancer Crusaders race on the Moira River Sunday.

Frank Keegan, president of the Tri-County (General Radio Service) Quinze, said the group's mobile radio unit was deployed along the approximate 2½-mile route of the races.

As canoeists passed each of the 10 radio units, operators reported that racers had safely gone through check points.

St. John Ambulance volunteers served on standby duty during the races that ended at the mouth of the Moira River from a Riverside Park starting point.

Response from the 30 other groups was good, said Mrs. Bochnek. "They would like to make it an annual event."

Mrs. Burrows said the open house has increased the communication between the CVB and the agencies.

Belleville YMCA general manager Di Diamantides concurred, saying, "Now only does the public know what the agencies are doing, but the other agencies know as well."

River Race

Canoe team paddles through rushing water of Moira River Sunday in annual race organized by Canoe Cruisers of Ontario. Event drew 50 entries, including kayaks.

Canoers Challenge Moira

Small craft skittered down the Moira River in Belleville for nearly an hour Sunday in what has become an annual ritual of skills and thrills.

This skill comes in manouvering canoes and kayaks down two miles of the fast-running waterway. The thrill is making it in sufficient time to qualify for a national championship contest.

The event was the spring-time wildwater race of the Ontario Canoe Cruisers of Toronto, a group of racing water buffs which counts most of its members from the Hamilton - Toronto - Peterugh region.

It's part of the annual program held on various Ontario rivers whose winners will man a provincial team to contest national finals in Chilliwack, B.C. in July.

The Moira racing stretch, from West Riverside Park to Victoria Park, is among the shorter of the various river runs, says Dennis Hendry the club's racing chairman. Yet, because of drops and rocks which churn up the water — and its accessibility through a city centre — it's one of the club's more favored runs.

This year' — the fifth consecutive run — because of an early winter breakup and spring runoff the Moira wasn't running as fast, or as deep, as last year, said Mr. Hendry.

However, some 50 canoeists and kayak paddlers — including women — turned out for the event.

There were only two spills, organizers report, causing only one entrant to quit the race. There were no injuries.

Fastest downriver was Mike Irvine, Peterborough, in a kayak, whose run was timed at exactly 12 minutes. Fastest canoe time was also made by a Peterborough entry — the team of Don Bennet and Eckhart Rapin — in exactly 12.07.8 minutes.

Other winners in the six classes were two girls in kayaks — Janet Theakson, Toronto (14.29.1 mins.) and Nancy Nelson, Hamilton (13.20.5 mins.).

Canoe Club Extension OK

The Belleville Board of Parks Management and the Quinte Exhibition and Raceway have no objection to the proposed building extension planned by the Belleville Curling Club.

The parks board, at a special meeting last week, attended by Quinte Exhibition and Raceway officials as well as representatives from the curling club voted that permission be granted for the curling club building extension.

The curling club proposes construction of a 20-foot extension along the east side of its present building to provide locker and lounge facilities for female members.

Grounds rental rate of $250 will remain the same and the curling club will be allowed use of the area east and south of the club building for parking.

Curling club representatives appeared before the parks board several weeks ago for permission to erect the extension to the club building at the west end of the exhibition grounds.

Decision on the request was deferred until it could be determined if the Quinte Exhibition, which rents the fairgrounds, had any objection.

Car Rolls, Cows Killed

TWEED (Special) — Two Quinte district girls, Laura May Fulton, 19, RR 3, Belleville, and Marianne McKenzie, 20, of Trenton, suffered bruises, possible whiplash and a shaking up when their car rolled on Highway 37 north of Tweed early Saturday afternoon.

Police said that Miss Fulton, northbound about three miles north of Tweed, lost control of her car. The vehicle crossed the highway, rolled over and came to rest on its top in the ditch. Property damage amounted to about $1,500.

Saturday evening Austin Mayers, 60, of RR3, Tweed was driving his pickup truck on the Stoco Road when his vehicle struck three cows that were wandering on the roadway. Two of the animals, owned by Leo Cassidy, RR2, Stoco, were killed and the other injured.

Mr. Mayers escaped injury but damage to his truck amounted to about $1,000.

Alarm Box

Saturday, 12:53 p.m. .... brush fire at the end of Victoria Ave., no damage.

1:45 p.m. ...grass fire near Four Seasons Hotel, no damage.

Store Broken Into Again

Vaughan Automotive and Appliances Ltd. was victimized for the second time in recent months Sunday when thieves broke through the firm's Church St. office front door and made off with $36 in cash and $250 in stereo equipment.

Belleville city police said damage to the door was estimated at $50.

The break-in is still under investigation.

Story Spurs Furniture Flow

Furniture and help in the form of volunteers willing to donate their time and trucks has been overwhelming as a result of a story in The Intelligencer, Saturday, April 27, said Furniture Sharing co-ordinator Terry Miskelly Sunday.

"It's been beautiful," she said enthusiastically, "we've had as many donations this week as we've had in the past two months."

The Monday following the story, she said she received seven calls from people offering to donate furniture.

As a result, five beds frames, two complete beds, five stoves and one refrigerator, tables, chairs, dressers have been received.

Four men have also offered the use of their trucks for transporting the furniture.

Furniture Sharing, a program co-ordinated through Belleville's Central Volunteer Bureau for the past seven years, is one that recycles unneeded furniture from those who have to those who need a few pieces to fill out a home.

She's Bugged!

At first glance it seems Helen Wheaton, London, Ont., president of Ontario leathercrafts group in Belleville Saturday, is being really bugged. But that ou[t]size butterfly that's landed on her glasses is really one of the exhibits of craftwork on display at annual meeting in Holloway Street United Church.

Shortage Faces Hobbyists

Leather has matured.

It's no longer a material used by craftsmen, but a medium for artists.

That's maybe one reason why amateur craftsmen — like the 100 that gathered in Belleville Saturday — are finding their hobby more expensive these days.

There are other reasons why the cost of the craft is harder on the purse leather or otherwise. Nonetheless, the hobby has a growing following, says Helen Wheaton, of London, Ont. Mrs. Wheaton was elected president of the Canadian Society for Creative Crafts at the group's annual meeting at Holloway St. United Church.

The society counts slightly more than 200 members in its six branches, all centred in Ontario. The Belleville group has 28 members.

The totals are going up each year — as interest in leathercraft generally, says Mrs. Wheaton. Now, artists — as distinct from creative craftsmen — also are using leather in various ways, including sculpting, she says.

The interest' comes at a time when there already is "quite a shortage" of leather on world markets — inevitably pushing up prices.

Argentina, a major beef exporter, has decided not to sell any more hides abroad. Countries like Italy are making more shoes for world markets.

Imports of shoes and other leather goods has shrunk commercial demand in Canada for domestic hides. In turn, this has caused tanneries to close, further reducing the availability of leather for Mrs. Wheaton and her fellow craft workers, she explains.

She says she now pays about $7 for a cow hide — enough material to help produce one purse or four wallets. This is "up quite a bit" in the past years.

Nonetheless, interest in the craft continues "active" and the outlet it provides for creativity was in evidence at the exhibition that was part of the annual meeting. Creations ranged from butterfly brooches to complete western riding outfit — including the saddle.

Elected the CSCL executive along with Mrs. Wheaton were May Corbett, Barrie, and Beula Reynolds, Woodstock, vice-presidents, and Dorothy Muma, Toronto, treasurer.

Colborne to Get Giant Refinery

The Colborne area, 30 miles west of Belleville is to be the site of a new $75-million oil refinery which is expected to employ up to 100 persons.

Ashland Oil, a subsidiary firm in the same area would supply it with fuel delivery trucks.

Negotiations between the principals of the oil company — reported to be a recently formed private organization headed by Delbert McLaughlin, reeve of Colborne and James Cochrane, reeve of Cramahe township, were revealed last week and are stated to have been under way for more than six months.

Size of the proposed refinery is a 400-acre area south of Base Line Road and north of Lakeport Road and runs from the western boundary of Colborne to the Cramahe-Haldimand township line.

Reeve McLaughlin said municipal officials involved right from the start of negotiations have been concerned about the possible effect of the plant on the environment and feels certain there will be no disturbance for area people.

"Everything will be done in accordance with the laws laid down by the provincial ministry of the environment," he said.

The company, which still has not been named, expects to refine 30,000 to 50,000 barrels of Canadian crude per day and hopes to get its supply from the proposed Sarnia to Montreal pipeline.

Digging of test holes and surveying are expected to start this spring with construction to get under way in 1975. Completion is expected by 1977.

Competition On Saturday

Ambulance teams from major Ontario centres will stage a province-wide competition in Belleville May 11.

Ab o ut 30 four-member teams are expected to compete in the provincial event involving the Ontario Ambulance Operators.

It is the first time the contest — now in its sixth year — has been held in Belleville where the organizing member OAO service is City Ambulance. Its team took first prize three years ago.

The event is aimed at keeping first-aid techniques upgraded and up to standard.

The contest will be held at the Four Seasons Hotel and will last most of the day. The winning team will enter an annual, international contest, usually held in the United States, but this year scheduled for Toronto.

Car Hits Tree

WELLINGTON — Alvin Stanley Hamell, 41, RR 2 Hillier, was treated for face cuts at hospital in Picton, after his car hit a tree on Highway 33 early Saturday.

Provincial police estimated damage to the 1967 car at $1,500.

Fly in Ointment

The irony behind the cft - heard "fortunate Canadians" tag increases with any understanding of some of the problems that affect our society. It is true Canadians are not starving in the streets on the manner of famine - stricken lands abroad; at the same time situations exist that should give us pause before exclaiming, as many a returning traveller does, how "fortunate" we are.

There are frequent references in newspapers, and in various surveys, to "the poor." But somehow this all slides off the proverbial duck's back and we go on patting ourselves on the back about how well-off and how "fortunate" we are.

But the country does have its poor, and they are not amused by such misconceptions. In recent days for instance the National Council of Welfare charged that the Government is giving insufficient attention to the effects of prices of food, credit, housing and other goods and services to the poor. It says the Consumer Price Index, meaning the average consumer, underestimates the cost-of-living increases on those with lower incomes such as pensioners.

In what other ways are we rather less than this promised land? Well, we have the evidence of Queen's University psychologist Gerald Wilde that some people are willing to risk their lives for a little bit of fun. Worse, according to Corrections Minister Richard Potter, suicides have become a problem in Ontario; he revealed recently that the year's saw 1,078 suicides in the province, and probably another 600 that could not be proven.

Prof. Wilde, incidentally, says that highway safety programs are a waste of money because drivers pay no attention to them. Similarly, we would say that smokers pay no attention to warnings about the habit being a health hazard.

This brings us to a report presented to the Commons listing what is described as "a grisly litany" of destructive conditions and habits prevalent in our society. It ranges from over - indulgence in alcohol, tobacco, drugs) to poor nutritional habits, promiscuity, and such factors as pollution, urban crowding and, yes it is mentioned here too — poverty.

To compound this cumulative tragedy, Health Minister Lalonde says that even if the report's 74 recommendations are approved by the provinces, the health department does not have the money to implement them. Social security and welfare measures he says, have priority — and there is irony in this too — "security" and "welfare" are words that are synonymous with the national maldaise.

Thus, if Government cannot help much it must be left to citizens themselves, to turn over a new leaf, and make of this country a society that is not only wealthy materially, but sound in body and mind.

Mayor's Motorcycle

We don't know whether Mayor Robin Jeffrey would care to follow suit, but Cambridge Mayor Annette Milne has taken to travelling back and forth from her Blair home by motorcycle.

She says, "how can you justify driving a car when the gas tank only holds 125 cubic to the gallon." To show that this is not just a lark, Mayor Millar rode her machine to a recent regional council meeting in Kitchener. She has now ordered a sidecar to help transport her brief case and the occasional passenger.

Let's hope she takes care though. We see that the demand for motorcycles in the United States is so great that dealers cannot keep up with demand. Furthermore, with increased usage, more accidents are being reported.

Sidecars moreover are not used much here, except by police forces, and they require some skill in maneuvering.

A Fine Actress

Movie and stage fans will have been saddened by the passing of entertainment luminary Agnes Moorehead. The matriarchal witch of the television series, Bewitched, Miss Moorehead had been a character actress for more than half-a-century. She is gone now; however, with Bewitched still going strong on television, she will live on together with her pretty television daughter, Elizabeth Montgomery, and "mortal" son-in-law Dick Sargent, will continue to grace the screen for a little while longer.

Cabinet Leaks

Seat-Belt Legislation Reveals Split In PC Caucus

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Government is having caucus trouble.

Caucus, along with cabinet, is one of the two secret procedures in our political system.

It is when all members of a party get together behind closed doors and give their opinions on legislation and also how the government, or their political party, is conducting itself.

The privacy of caucus is usually quite strongly held, and so reporters, and thereby the public, usually don't know too much about what is going on in caucus.

But there still are leaks. And the current leak is that the Davis government has quite a rebellious caucus.

This has shown principally in seat-belt legislation.

It was announced in the Speech From the Throne that the government was contemplating action in this field.

Very soon grumblings came out of the PC caucus, and eventually they reached the public.

Some members of caucus didn't agree with compulsory seat-belt legislation. And probably as a consequence of this to date we haven't seen anything in this field from the government.

But apparently this is only the tip of the iceberg.

From the rumors there are a number of other controversial actions, or inactions, toward which there is opposition in caucus and the government is thereby being held back in its legislative program.

This resistance by the private members now would go back a number of years.

At one time, and particularly all through the regime of Leslie Frost, the PC caucus wasn't much more than a rubber stamp.

But then in the early days of John Robarts there was the Police Act and an open revolt.

Roberts was forced to withdraw the act, largely through the attitude of his caucus, and since then it has been a more powerful body.

This power was strengthened last year when the government had to withdraw its planned energy tax, again largely because of caucus protest.

And today it is said to be in such a position of strength—and also of controversy—that it is a factor that can even knock down the government's future speeches.

Some Offbeat Advice to Budding Executives

South African Financial Gazette

Advice to young businessmen on how to make a success of their careers was given by Jan Pickard, the former Springbok rugby player, in a talk to the Jubilee Afrikaanse Sakekamer in Cape Town.

The chairman and managing Director of Picardi Investments, Mr. Pickard is a successful businessman in his own right. He made these suggestions to the youthful newcomer to the business scene—

Don't think you know everything about everything.

Never borrow money from your father-in-law.

Avoid club life and keep off the racecourse.

Never kiss a woman on a hotel step.

Mr. Pickard began by advising young Afrikaners entering the business world to start their own enterprises early in life.

"Don't consider manufacturing, because factories are the biggest consumers of capital you can get," he said.

"The best business is one where there is a big flow of income.

"Start therefore in the retail section and begin by selling something for cash. But remember, this entails hard work and long hours.

"Avoid bankers. This is difficult terrain."

Capital might have to be acquired; in this respect there were one or two golden rules.

"One of them is to remember that Afrikaners are not inclined to help one another."

"The same applies to families. Never ask your father-in-law for money because he will never forget it."

What must the aspiring businessman do, then? "The best method usually is to get money from a stranger, someone whom you least expect will help you."

What about banks? Mr. Pickard's advice was: "Tell your bank manager everything about yourself and your business. And pay your loans regularly.

"But never give the bank too much security. The excess security will never come back to you — the bank will always keep it."

Another good rule was not to try to be too clever. "There are many pitfalls in the business world and only attorneys and accountants understand some aspects."

Mr. Pickard also had advice to give on women. "When you marry you assume a new responsibility," he said. "Remember that a wife who has no job can be very trying. A good businessman must look after his family. A happy family is of more value than all the money in the world." And take care with other people's wives, he said. "Whatever you do, stay on the right side of the wives of businessmen. The power of a woman is tremendous."

Don't take care when you kiss a girl and where. "If you kiss someone on the step of a hotel, don't put your arm round her. It is better to stand with your arms behind your back. Then at least you can tell your wife: 'I did not kiss her, she kissed me.' Your wife will believe you eventually."

Don't go horse-racing, said Mr. Pickard. "Now and then it can be amusing but Afrikaners do not accept this."

And don't drink too much. Make a point of not having drinks with business partners but a visit to another city or town.

"When you are in Durban or Johannesburg and you feel like drinking and joking with your employees and friends, think again and stay in your hotel room.

"Another thing — if you are part of the establishment you must not laugh too much. Someone will say you were 'intimated' with a girl with that you, even though she is the wife of your accountant."

Avoid social pitfalls in club membership, said Mr. Pickard. Afrikaners were known as supporters of clubs, which got a hold on members if they went there every afternoon for drinks. "In most clubs the same old souls are there every evening and they don't seem to get anywhere in life. It is better to go home and have a drink with your wife in the evening."

And finally: "If friends come to borrow money from you, regard the loan as a donation. If you get it back you're lucky."

Parents, Children and Vandalism

Brockville Recorder and Times

Vandalism has reached such proportions in some cities that citizens are having to form their own protective groups. But this week, the tenants of a 18-storey Toronto apartment building started the wheels in motion to provide a means of protecting their property — not so much because of the vandalism but because the owner was threatening to throw them all out if it didn't stop.

The owner of the apartment building has posted a 24-hour guard and has issued orders to hold for police any youth found on a floor other than his or her own without a legitimate reason. Owners with dogs have been ordered out. Corridors have become marked with dog excrement. And dog owners are abusive to the superintendent.

But the most damage is done by youngsters between the ages of 8 and 13. The problems stem from the parents' lack of control over the children, Wallpaper is stripped from the walls, windows are broken, lighting fixtures smashed or stolen, stairwells used as garbage pumps by the tenants, and plaster smashed. Last week the owner just finished an $1,800 paing job only to have several holes kicked in the freshly-painted walls. Exit signs, fire hose and fire extinguishers have been stolen along with light bulbs by the dozen.

There is always a certain amount of vandalism in this area although nothing to compare with the Toronto case. It is enough to enrage any good citizen to view the hostile old stone home on the north end of California avenue, for instance. Abandoned shortly after the farm was purchased by the city, it hasn't a window intact today. Everything movable has been stolen and anything that could be broken has been broken. It is a shocking mess of destruction, one of the worst examples of vandalism in this area.

Our modern vandals are giving the original Vandals a bad name. They sacked Rome in the fifth century but didn't know any better when they plundered and destroyed the city. Society today is increasingly at the mercy of the barbarians among us who deface, destroy, wreck and ruin. And it can be traced usually to a lack of discipline at home.

Girl's Death in Don Jail

Peterborough Examiner

The death of a 16-year-old girl in a Toronto jail has exposed a tale of failure.

On Feb. 16, Meredith Coleman hanged herself in a jail cell where she was awaiting trial on a charge of theft. She gave Don Jail's staff members little warning of her depression and suicidal intentions. To most it appeared a smiling, quiet and well-behaved prisoner.

Her earlier life might have given a clue. She was taken from her Elliot Lake family when she was 12 and became a ward of the Children's Aid Society. Later she went under care of the ministry of correctional services.

The tragedy like Meredith's death has heard a tragic story about the girl's life, her troubles with the law, her difficulties at home and finally, her death at the Don Jail.

Despite the minister of correction's contention that a jury Meredith herself who was the failure, rather than the prison system, it is difficult to avoid some criticism of society's methods of dealing with young offenders.

In Ontario, a 16-year-old is considered to be an adult and is charged with the same responsibilities and faced with the same consequences as an adult.

Clearly there are cases where this type of thinking is inadequate and harmful.

If the inquest into Meredith's death tells us nothing else, it should at least suggest that the Don Jail was not the proper place for a disturbed girl with a history of instability and trouble. The jail would be depressing to even the most hardened adult.

Dairy Farmers in Cost Squeeze by Bureaucracy

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The plight of the Eastern Ontario dairy farmer and the tremendous reduction in regional cheese industries has continued long enough. These two developments can be directly linked to the increasing control of production, distribution, processing and pricing of dairy producer by multinational dairy corporations.

Agricultural corporations are able to manipulate prices to their own advantage even when marketing boards are involved. The price of milk is set at the farm gate, but this control does not extend to the later stages of processing and distribution. The price paid by the consumer does not reflect the set price. Price increases to the consumer are often double or triple the amount passed on to the farmer. In one case, the price of milk used in cheddar cheese decreased (1971-72) yet the price of cheese to the consumer continued to rise. Eastern Ontario by processing corporations hurts farmers through a decrease in demand for their products, and hurts consumers who must pay higher prices.

Despite rising food costs, farmers in Eastern Ontario are not benefiting from these increases. Instead, the number of people leaving the farm increases every year. In 1973 alone, 2100 farms in Ontario discontinued production, many of these in the Belleville vicinity.

Most of the money from increases in food prices is going into processing, packaging and other middle men in the food chain. The extra money that the farmer does receive for his produce has been more than offset by rising production costs. High costs and low returns are squeezing existing farmers out of production.

There appears to be two significant villains in this tragic development — the Ontario Milk Marketing Board (OMMB) and Krafico Corporation. The decision-making and coordinating structure of the OMMB has made it possible for Krafico to buy out small plants for the purposes of obtaining their quotas (set by the OMMB), thereby securing for Krafico a growing monopoly position over processing and production.

George McLaughlin, chairman of the OMMB, stated last June that he is not at all concerned about foreign domination of the Canadian dairy industry by large foreign corporations. The pricing and quota system of the OMMB has caused the elimination of over 300 independent and co-operative dairy processing plants in Ontario since 1965. There are presently 216 dairy processing plants, (42 of which are cheese plants), left in Ontario. Continuation of present policies jeopardize many of these remaining operations.

The National Farmers' Union (NFU) has charged that government, (notably the province of Ontario), have deliberately sided in an antagonistic concentration in the dairy industry through incentive grants, land use policies, and pricing systems. In order to reverse this trend the NFU has, for the past two years, co-ordinated a boycott of Krafco products. Already some success has occurred; Krafico's profits fell 23.5 per cent last year while most of the industry's profits grew. If more people participate in boycotting Kraft a real benefit for both the farmer and consumer could be achieved.

Farmers and consumers cannot tolerate the existing squeeze, as food prices increase and farmers receive an ever smaller portion of the food dollar.

Thin Pickings for Jurors

Ottawa Journal

Jurors constitute a cornerstone of our judicial system, according to received doctrine, but one wouldn't guess it by the prevailing rate for jurors. Members of a coroner's jury are paid a pittedum allowance of $8.75; of a provincial or Ontario supreme court jury, $10.

Hence many intelligent and responsible citizens subject to a for a jury lasting several days or weeks are willy-nilly taking a massive cut in pay during that time. It must be especially hard on those, because they are in a milieu where judges and lawyers for both Crown and defence are well paid; and in the case of some lawyers, well off indeed. Yet juries make the vital decisions and (hypothetically at least) exercise the power appearing in that court.

Over the generations of jurors' compensation, nobody suggests that it be equalized with the pay of judges, but the comparison or junior executives (everybody on a jury is built like one) and a right, not an occupation, underlines the fact that federal civil servants are compensated for any financial loss they may suffer, while private trade union contracts provide that employers make up the difference between regular pay and jury compensation. Yet jurors are called upon to do the latter into brackets realistic in terms of the 1970s.

What Is the Army's Role?

Montreal La Jour: The Canadian army is trying to make Operation Neat Pitch appear commonplace. This was predictable. When the game has been discovered, what's the point in trying to declare: it was nothing but a game.

These military gentlemen will have to excuse, us for having more than recollections . . . that do not allow us to forget the context in which their little manoeuvres are taking place.

It is not the first time the Canadian army has engaged in something unusual. Only what may have changed is the explicit importance now given to this kind of manoeuvre. . . .

In Canada, the army has frequently been called upon to undertake repressive operations. Thus it was against workers involved in the general strike in Winnipeg: in 1935, it was against representative workers meeting in Regina since then it has been a more powerful body.

This power was strengthened last year when the government had to withdraw its planned energy tax, again largely because of caucus protest.

And today it is said to be in such a position of strength—and also of controversy—that it is a factor that can even knock down the government's future speeches.

Quinte Cuisine

Just about a year ago, Quinte Cuisine began appearing in The Intelligencer each Monday. Since that time, it's proved to be a popular feature not only with readers but with staff who often sample the recipes . . . in the interests of research, of course! Through the year we've had repeated requests for a few of the recipes. One of the most popular has been one of the first we published, Gale's Oven Stew, a tartey and easy supper dish ideal for any time of the year. It was contributed by Gale Wilson of Valleyview Crescent.

Gale's Oven Stew

1 to 1½ lbs. stewing beef
two tbsp. instant tapioca
one can vegetable-tomato juice two tsp. sugar onions potatoes carrots celery
salt and pepper

Place raw meat and stewing vegetables of your choice in a large roasting pan, sprinkling with sugar, tapioca and salt and pepper. Pour in juice to nearly cover. Bake at 300 degrees, covered, for three hours.

Do you know any good cooks? The Intelligencer is looking for cooks in the area willing to share their recipes with our readers. If you're a good cook, or if you know one, write The Women's Department, The Intelligencer. Be sure to include his or her address and phone number.

FEES PAYABLE FOR LICENCING PRIVATE SEWAGE SYSTEMS

IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION ACT, 1971, AND REGULATIONS ENFORCED BY THE MINISTRY OF ENVIRONMENT, APPLICANTS FOR CERTIFICATES OF APPROVAL OF PRIVATE SEWAGE SYSTEMS HAVE TO PAY A FEE OF $15.00 .

THIS REGULATION IS EFFECTIVE APRIL 16, 1974.

INFORMATION FOR INSTALLERS OF SEWAGE SYSTEMS

Classes 1-6 inclusive

1. General This sheet provides some details on the procedures to be followed to obtain approval for the construction, installation and use of private sewage disposal systems. A Certificate of Approval is required for the following classes and types with the exception of a Class 1 system:-

(a) A Class 1 system is used only for the disposal of human body wastes and include a chemical toilet, an earth pit privy, an incinerating toilet, a pail privy, a privy vault and a recirculating toilet.

(b) A Class 2 system of leaching pit is used only for the disposal of sewage other than human body wastes.

(c) A Class 3 system or cesspool receives or is used for the disposal of the content of certain class 1 systems.

Notes:-

(i) A residence served by a class 1 system only, will require a leaching pit for the disposal of sink and kitchen wastes.
(ii) An establishment served by a chemical toilet, a pail privy, a privy vault or a recirculating toilet will require either a cesspool for on-site sewage disposal or the availability of a hauled sewage disposal system.

(d) A Class 4 system consists of a septic tank and a leaching bed. (Tile bed).

(e) A Class 5 system consists of a holding tank for the storage or retention of sewage.

(f) A Class 6 system consists of a proprietary aerobic sewage treatment plant. An application for a class 6 system must be submitted to the Ministry of the Environment.

2. A Use Permit is only required for Classes 4, 5, and 6.

3. If installed by anyone other than the lot owner, the individual must hold a licence issued by the Ministry of the Environment.

Fees: The fees to be forwarded with an application for a Certificate of Approval are:-

(a) For a certificate of approval for the construction, installation or establishment of a Class 4, Class 5, Class 6 or Class 7 sewage system $15

(b) For a certificate of approval for the enlargement extension or alteration of a Class 4, Class 5, Class 6 or Class 7 sewage system .... $15.

Ann Landers

Mom Made Her Feel Ugly

Dear Ann Landers: I saw myself in your column a few days ago, the child with the two pretty sisters and a mother who favored the "beauties."

When I was a small child I remember mama taking us out for walks and, always pulling my hood down over my face or wrapping a scarf around my head so only my eyes would show. My sisters looked like dad's side of the family, all of them blonde, blue-eyed and fort to locate Miss B and tell beautiful. Once a neighbor mentioned this to mama and asked, "Why does THAT one resemble?" Her answer cut me like a knife. She said, "Some one must have dropped her on the doorstep."

I grew up thinking I was the ugliest, most worthless thing in the world. It affected every fact. I did. I actually hated to look at myself in the mirror.

A wonderful person changed my life. She was my fifth-grade teacher. That wise lady sensed my anguish and kept me after school one day. She told me I was really quite a nice-looking girl, that my face was "interesting" and when I grew older I would probably be considered very attractive. She asked me to stay after school frequently to "help her." We had many talks and I can truthfully say that wise and generous lady gave me a truly new outlook on life.

I hope all teachers everywhere will read this letter carefully. It will give them some insight into the importance of kindness and emotional support to the less attractive student. God bless Miss B., wherever she is.—Grown Up And Grateful

Dear Grateful: Thank you for a beautiful letter. Has it ever occurred to you to make an effort to locate Miss B and tell her what she did for you? I know the woman is still living. Who does THAT one resemble? Her answer cut me like a knife. She said, "Some one must have dropped her on the doorstep."

Dear Ann Landers: A year ago my husband asked me to join a club called "W.S. Undressed." He heard about it at work and knew three members. He said it would help my sex life. And I, wonderful person that I am, went along with the idea. It was a Wife-Swapping group. I hated the idea from the beginning but decided to go along with it because it was so important to him. The people were creepy. Many of the women told me it made their lives exciting and they really enjoyed it a lot.

Well, I'll tell you what it did to me. It made me despise myself and my husband for bringing this ugly, rotten thing into our lives. When I think of what I have done I get sick to my stomach. I must have been out of my mind to have agreed to this insane scheme.

I am filing for divorce and I hope to God I never again see another member of W. S. Undressed, man or woman, as long as I live.—Shamefaced In Massachusetts

Dear S. F.: About five years ago when I first started to receive letters about such clubs I found it hard to believe they actually existed. Then several couples wrote joint letters telling me what a shot in the arm it had given their marriages. I came to the conclusion that they were bonkers and I told them so.

Thanks for your testimonial, dear. Now that you have scraped the scum off yourself I wish you luck in making a new life.

Confidential to Can't Live Without Him: Yes you can. And it will be a better life. I assure you. Bite the bullet, baby, and don't look back. Your future is ahead of you.

'No Maiden' Wants Prayer

By DORIS CLARK

25 cents for "A Maiden's Prayer," not that I need it, being no maiden and over 70, also a widow many years. But a laugh does more good than a pill!

It seems when you want a man you pray to St. Anne, the saint of lovers. Years ago we were out sightseeing and we all threw coins into a wishing well. I threw mine, saying as I do so: "O Dear Saint Anne please send me a man!"

We all laughed, but on reaching the hotel I was told a new arrival was asking for me as we came from the same town.

When I met him the poor man had such a "tremble and shaking". I felt so sorry for him; but also felt it served me right for provoking the saint and throwing my money to the centre of the rippling water.

Dear Isabel: You have fun, don't you? Keep it up!

Dear Doris: I was moved to write because of a letter signed, "Would Dearly Love Help".

I would like to write to him or her. It seems the writer has no family, whereas I have heaps of family. We have several old neighbors in homes and they are well treated.

I assure you I've no axe to grind and intend no mischief.

Dear Christine: Bless you! I know W.D.L.H. will enjoy hearing from you and will answer you. He is an elderly gentleman, alert though physically handicapped, and has a friend who will type his letters for him.

And it seems he has now been visited by his precious dog, has been given a dandy birthday party, and has some appreciative things to say about his nurses. Maybe all he needed was to make his wants better known.

"I'm quite sure you have no axe to grind. What a thought! (Don't bet, muddle along. Do something about what's troubling you. A letter to Doris, in care of this newspaper, can put you on the way to more Successful Living.)

Books By And About Women

EVERYONE WAS BRAVE
The Rise and Fall of Feminism in America
By Wm. L. O'Neill

In the 1920s the Feminist Movement in America dissolved because women now had the vote and could gain access to virtually any important occupation. Its task had been accomplished — had it?

William L. O'Neill argues with some conviction — that American women are hardly any better off than they were fifty years ago. This lively history depicts the American woman's struggle for equality from its earliest stirrings in the 1830's to the present day. The author concludes that the Feminist Movement failed largely because it failed to come to grips with the fact that marriage and the family have been the chief obstacles to woman's emancipation.

The "woman question" is still with us, often in a very brilliant way. Were the years of struggle in vain? Mr. O'Neill has tried in his book to bring the history of the Feminist Movement in America to bear on some of the questions that trouble us today.

This book is available in the Corby Library.

Ameliasburgh: 'Selling Job' For One-tier

PICTON — Ameliasburgh Clerk, William Nightingale predicts it will require "quite a selling job" township residents to present county government as an advisable move.

"Ameliasburgh has turned socially and economically to the north," he claimed at a meeting of councillors Friday night.

County council took a survey of township opinion poll favorable to amalgamation.

Mr. Nightingale said community spirit is strong and the township takes price in its volunteer fire brigade and its ambulance.

He felt that a great deal of local initiative could be lost by adopting a one-tier system of government.

"I believe in the concept of it but I feel it will take a real selling job," commented the clerk.

Donald Irwin, representative of the ministry of treasury, economics and intergovernmental affairs assured the clerk that local autonomy and volunteers would not be lost in a county government system.

"Both are still there and will carry on," he stressed.

Fish Raise Arena Funds

WELLINGTON — Cold breezes did not daunt participating anglers in the weekend fishing derby here. Sponsored by the local Lions Club, the event raised funds for the new Wellington Arena.

Weighing in took place at The Sportman Drive-in, Wellington and included three classes. Winning a rod and reel outfit for the biggest pickerel (3 lb., 5 oz.) was Jim Smith of Wellington.

Second prize for the biggest pike, went to Robert Rodgers, Picton. He won a three-tray tackle box, with a fish to weighing 13 lb. 13oz.

Third prize, 12 year and under, was won by Glen Baker, 10 years old, West Hill, Ont.

All prizes were donated by the Sportsman Drive-Ins here.

Taxes Tonight

TRENTON — Town council is preparing to bring in its yearly budget tonight.

Park's and Recreation budget was discussed a few weeks ago and the budget for Trenton fire department was established after last Monday's committee meeting.

Individual budgets may be adjusted by the Council members before tonight.

Sticks, Pucks, Sweaters Are on His Want List

In the mood for mercury testing?

Here's one to tax anyone's ability to recall happenings of more than a few years ago.

Remember one of the first pitchers you ever saw use the windmill style?

Now let's see. Was it the late forties or the early fifties? No matter, we'll go on to other clues.

He did his pitching for teams in the Quinte area.

To say he was a fierce competitor is putting it mildly.

Once, becoming incensed with a plate umpire who refused to call strikes on pitches our friend was convinced were zipping right down the pipe, he resorted to violence.

But he made more than one big mistake that day.

Not only did he blow his top and take a swing at the game official; he didn't wait for the umpire to remove the mask.

Needless to say, that punch was a costly one. He injured his hand and was suspended.

Are you getting warm yet?

Well, his name is Maurice but he didn't go by that during his days in this district 25 or so years ago and he still doesn't.

After leaving this area, he began working sports for the Toronto Telegram.

He went from there to the big time. If anything other than newspaper work can be considered "big" he didn't make it.

This fellow is now very concerned with hockey sticks, pucks, sweaters and what have you.

No, he's not a trainer.

Ready to give up?

Correspondence coming from his place of business is signed: Hall of Fame, Toronto.

Yes, he's the curator and secretary of the Hockey Hall of Fame at Exhibition Park, Toronto.

We've taken the long way around to inform you that the hall is now open for visitors.

The hall is open to the public seven days a week.

Actually, we should say halls.

Canada's Sports Hall of Fame is also a part of the show in the building at the CNE.

Hours are 10.30 a.m. to 5.30 p.m., Tuesdays through Sundays. Monday, you can visit between the hours of 10 a.m. to 4.30 p.m.

Whether you've been there before, the halls are worth seeing. Return visits only mean one more scoundrel will be missed the last time around.

And when you go, look Left-ty up and say hello. No doubt he'll be glad to see you and discuss the old days in the Bay of Quinte area.

SLICES — This must be the day for nostalgia.

Bill Shaw's main concern during the summer months is his Quinte Football League Orwells Motors team. He passes on the information that Charlie Kingsley who at one time did-did football playing with some of those great Point Anne Oldboys of the past, is still active in the sport.

"Charlie is playing for Burlington in the Ontario Football League and I keep telling him not to quit," says Shaw. "Charlie is one of the few old Point Anne regulars still playing the game."

Shaw also imparts some other noteworthy information.

Richmond Hill Dynes who need no introduction to fans of the diamond sport, will be paying a visit to Alemite Park here, June 1.

Dynes will be hooking up in an exhibition twin bill with a select team from the Quinte League.

"We'll be out to make a good showing against Dynes," says Shaw.

It promises to be quite a summer for sports fans who enjoy an entertaining ball game.

Toronto Globals of the OFL are here May 18, remember. They'll meet Rollins Construction of the QFL in a pair of contests that day.

* * *

Dynes picked Timbers up for the Canadian Championships last year and had hoped to sign him for the 1974 season.

Timbers gave it plenty of thought and while he did, officials of Oshawa Twny's did some sweating. Barry ended the guessing game late last week when he signed with Tony's because "the OFL has to be number one, not only in Ontario, but in Canada, if I'm going to be playing in the Toronto league, I don't think I want to find the pitching challenge I want."

Timbers also had some kind words for Dynes.

"The fans here are great. The players appreciate it."

* * *

Quinte Transport dropped out, with some of the players joining United of Belleville, making room for the Warkworth team which had earlier been assigned to playing only exhibition matched with other BQSA teams.

* * *

Peter Crowle, BQSA president, has announced some changes in the group's schedule.

The Bayside Society's Handage game with Belleville United on Sunday for Bayside Secondary School, will be played at Centennial Park Centennial Park, instead. The date is Wednesday, May 8. Game time is 6.15 p.m.

Also, the game matches the same night have Belleville Parsons meeting CFB, Trenton at Frankford's Island while Bata Braves play host to Brighton Cleaners.

List of Awards For John Hiller

DETROIT — John Hiller of Toronto will carry off most of the spoils at Awards Night at Cobo Arena, Monday, May 7, but he will share the spotlight with Dick Sharon and Mickey Stanley, Tiger outfielders.

Sharon will receive a trophy for being named 1972 Tiger Rookie of the Year' by the Detroit Sports Broadcasters Association. The presentation will be made by Vince Doyle, of Station WWJ president of the association.

Stanley will get another Gold Glove trophy to add to his collection. He selection for the award denoting fielding excellence in 1973 was the fourth of his career but his first since 1970 Stanley will get his trophy, given by the Rawlings Sporting Goods Co., from Vic Wertz, Tiger scout and former outfielder.

Hiller, who made headlines in 1973 when he came back from a heart attack to establish major league records with 38 saves and 18 victories in relief, will be saluted five times during the Awards Night ceremonies with these awards:

King Tiger of 1973; trophy from the Tiger Fan Club Association.

Fireman of the year, American League; made from The Sporting News.

Comeback of the Year, American League; plaque from The Sporting News.

Tiger of the Year; plaque from the Detroit Baseball Writers Association.

Heart of the Year; plaque from the Michigan Heart Association.

Philadelphia Shrugs Off 'Expansion' Tag

It's Flyers and Bruins in Cup Final

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Philadelphia Flyers have pushed the word patsy into the vocabulary of the National Hockey League.

Ever since the league's first expansion in 1967, NHL governors have been wailing for the new teams to reach a state of equality with their longer-established partners.

The Flyers graduated before 17,007 Philadelphia fans Sunday by beating New York Rangers 4-1 and taking their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final by the same margin.

Philadelphia qualified for the best-of-seven final against the Boston Bruins, beginning in Boston Tuesday night, the first time an expansion team has advanced that far in cup play at the expense of one of the pre-1967 heavyweights.

If Louis Blues reached the final on three occasions but did so by knocking off opponents in their own expansion division.

Philadelphia out-muscled and outshot the Rangers throughout the first two periods and won the only fight of the afternoon when left winger Dave Schultz hammered New York defenseman Dale Rolfe near the 12:00 mark of the game.

"I haven't seen many fights that won hockey games, but that one did," coach Fred Shero of the Flyers said. "They (the Rangers) didn't hit anyone for the rest of the game."

The Flyers outshot the Rangers 18-9 and 19-10 in the first two periods but New York bombarded Bernie Parent with 15 shots in the final 20 minutes, while Philadelphia managed only nine on veteran Ed Giacomin.

Parent allowed a first-period goal by right winger Bill Fairbairn and third-period goals by left winger Steve Vickers and centre Pete Sternkowski.

But Philadelphia won on a power-play goal by centre Rick MacLeish—his 11th of the current playoffs—in the opening period, centre Orest Kindrachuk's second-period goal, and two by right winger Gary Dornhoefer.

The Philadelphia management once again turned to songstress Kate Smith's recording of God Bless America instead of the United States national anthem before the start of the game.

They use the hymn for what they describe as "all key games" and the Flyers have responded by winning 35 games, losing three and tying one.

The Philadelphia victory marked the first time the team has won the seventh game of a series and the first time an expansion team has ever won four playoff games from an established club.

The loss left the Rangers still looking for their first Stanley Cup in 34 seasons and 8 marked time (fourth time since they have lost the seventh game of a series.

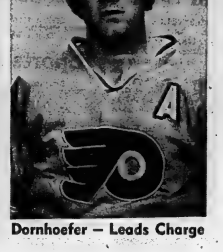
"I was confident we were going to get a good effort," Shero said. "These guys were just sky high before the game started."

He said that with three minutes left, Orr play and his team leading 4-3, he had tried to get his defensive units on the ice.

"That's why I kept throwing (Bobby) Clarke and (Terry) Crisp out there," Shero said. "They (the Rangers) were pulling on a hell of a lot of pressure."

Asked if he thought Boston would apply similar pressure in the next series, Shero replied: "The Rangers couldn't do it for 60 minutes, and I don't think Boston will be able to do it either."

Shero said the Rangers had good players but "when you're kept too long you get to think you own the place."



This was an apparent reference to some of the players who have been with the Rangers for years.

Some of the pressure applied by the Rangers was nullified with less than a minute to play when the New York team was penalized for having too many men on the ice.

Giacomin had been yanked in favor of a sixth attacker when lineman John D'Amico spotted seven New York players on the ice. Coach Emile Francis hastily slid his club bed been in the middle of a line change at the time. but D'Amico ruled that two Rangers had jumped on the ice to replace the goalkeeper.

In a gurgislingly quiet Philadelphia dressing room, Dornhoefer said he was particularly pleased to get his second goal at 8:31 of the third period, 12 seconds after Vickers had brought the Rangers to within one goal of the Flyers.

"I very really don't know what happened except (Boss) Lonsberry gave me the puck from behind the net. Just seconds before, Vickers got away from me I gave him a goal. But that one made up for it."

Chicago Squares Series with 9-2 Win

Cougars, Toros Settle Differences Tonight

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Toros' coach Billy Harris has found some solace in his team's 9-2 defeat by Chicago Cougars, who Saturday tied the World Hockey Association best-of-seven semi-final series 3-3.

"They have the momentum, but I'd much rather lose 9-2 than 3-2 or 2-1," said Harris, rule.

"We've only lost one game at home during the playoffs and the last time we got beaten badly—it was 11-3—we won the next six games in a row."

The teams meet again tonight at Maple Leaf Gardens with the winner qualifying to meet Houston Aeros in a best-of-seven championship series.

Both coaches adopted an "anything can happen" attitude.

"It's one game now, so anything can happen," said Cougar coach Pat Stapleton. "If they let us play hockey it should be an interesting game."

Stapleton has complained several times during the playoffs about the number of penalties called on his team. After the fifth-game loss in Toronto, he said officials were not letting Cougars play the game.

Rosaire Paiement, whose three goals Saturday—his sixth, seventh, and eighth goals of the playoffs—powered the Cougars' victory, was optimistic.

"It's anybody's game now and I think it will be our game," he said.

If the Cougars win tonight their first problem will be finding a place to play their home games.

The Cougars lost their rink at the International Amphitheatre to a theatrical production and held their playoff games in a small, suburban arena. The WHA has banned use of that arena in the finals and Cougars owner Jordan Kaiser says he is considering several other possibilities but won't say what they are.

The Toros expect to have Rick Cunningham back in action tonight. Cunningham was injured in the fourth game when he stopped a shot with his ankle.

"I had a premonition we were going to lose Saturday," said Harris, "so I approached the game with the idea that I wanted my best possible lineup available if a seventh game were necessary."

Although Cunningham may be ready to play, centre Wayne Carleton is a doubtful starter. He sprained a ligament injury Saturday and retired in the first period.

Memorial Cup Opener to Hawks

CALGARY (CP) — Coach Paul Emms declared himself satisfied with the calibre of play Sunday night after his St. Catharines Black Hawks trimmed Kitchener Rangers 4-1 in the opening game of the 1974 Memorial Cup round-robin playoffs.

But his father Hap, who owns the club, had other ideas.

"We played about half as well as we can," said the 19-year-old Emms. "Anybody could tell we were a better club than we showed tonight.

"Of course, I wasn't coaching—and a coach is always happy with a win — but if we don't play better than that, we won't win another game."

Captain Rick Hampton battled bones two loose pucks to spark the Ontario champions. Other goals were added by Dave Gorman and Mark Dumesnil.

Three goals came in the third period after 46 lackluster minutes ended in a 1-1 tie.

Hampton scored the only first-period goal and Real Cloutier connected for Quebec in the second.

Moments after Hampton's second goal, which gave the Black Hawks a 3-1 lead, most of the standing-room-only crowd of 6,577 began moving toward the parking lot.

The Black Hawks meet Regina Pats, Western Canada Hockey League champs, tonight in the second game of the three-team national junior playoff that ends Sunday. Regina and Quebec tangle Wednesday.

Hampton, a 17-year-old centre who collected 25 goals in the regular season, was easily the outstanding player on the ice. He led the Black Hawks' aggressive forechecking and provided much of their muscle.

"It's rare to have a captain so young," Hap Emms said. "But he's mature and . . . probably our best hockey player. He's an outstanding leader."

Hampton's first goal, after four minutes, came when Quebec goalie Robert Sauve kicked a rebound toward him. Hampton bounced the puck back into the net as Sauve, borrowed from Laval of the Quebec Junior Hockey League for the playoff, was out of position.

Appearing tense, the Black Hawks held a big edge in the first period and again in the third but struggled throughout the second.

Team Wins But Coach Is Unhappy

OTTAWA (CP) — Selkirk Steelers beat Smiths Falls Bears 5-4 in the opening game of their best-of-seven Centennial Cup final, but Steelers coach George Dorman said his team played only 20 minutes of hockey.

"We can do better than that," said Dorman, shaking his head after the hard-hitting game played before 3,000 fans.

"You know these kids were a little bit up tight because it's a big thing for them to come into the Centennial Cup final, but they can play a lot better."

Dor defence was making a lot of mistakes that they shouldn't have and the kids weren't clearing the puck."

While Dorman expressed dissatisfaction, Smiths Fall coach Glen McKenney displayed disbelief.

"How can you blow a 5-1 lead? That's what it's all about. Sure the kids weren't hustling and it hurts to lose the first game, but it's even harder to lose the seventh."

Smiths Falls had a 3-1 lead at the end of the second period on two goals by Terry Fournier and one by Des Allen. Gord Kharniuk had scored the Selkirk goal.

Brooks — His Advice Helps

Goalie Plays Down His Contribution

BOSTON (CP) Despite an impressive 17-2 won-lost record during the regular season, Ross Brooks is resigned to watching young Gilles Gilbert handle the goaltending as Boston Bruins try to wrap up their third National Hockey League championship in five years.

The 35-year-old sophomore is not expected to see much action in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final against Philadelphia Flyers that opens here Tuesday night.

"It's a good feeling to be winning even though I'm not playing," Brooks said Sunday. "I'm happy to sit on the bench if that's the way it has to be."

Meanwhile, Bep Guidolin is looking to Brooks, who spent his career in the minors before being elevated to the Bruins last year, to give any constructive criticism he can to Gilbert in the championship round.

"I tell him on the bench to watch Gilbert, see if he's covering the angles properly and is coming out quick on all shots," said Guidolin. "Most times Brooks has gone to him (Gilbert) between periods and pointed out a thing or two that has been a big help.

"They room together on the road and Brooks has told me he never saw a kid so dedicated and with such a good temperament. Brooks' attitude on the club is just great.

"All the guys are, but especially Brooks who's on the bench and knows there's not much chance he'll play."

Brooks plays down Guidolin's assessment of his role in Gilbert's performance in the playoffs.

"I tell him little things and he points out things to me," says the Toronto native. "We help each other and that's the way it should be.

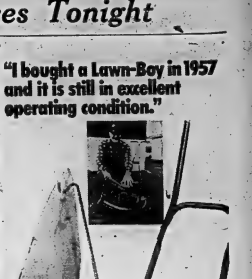
"After all, we're fighting for the same thing winning the cup.

"I've told him to concentrate a lot more in playoffs. I told him he's got to get ready early for each game and not wait until coming into the dressing room before starting to think about it.

"He's been playing fantastic goal in the series, but he's been that way all year long. Nothing bothers him and he's loaded with desire."

Cup notes:

Philadelphia Flyers are bolstered by a number of Bruin expatriates - Bernie Parent, Joe Watson, Barry Ashbee, Terry Crisp, Gary Dornhoefer, Ross Lonsberry and Rick MacLeish.



Boston northmen and tied one in fire meetings with the Flyers this season.

Winning the East and West divisions, respectively, Boston and Philadelphia players stand to earn $15,000 by winning the Stanley Cup.

Boston's Bobby Orr led NHL defencemen with a plus-64 mark this year—he was on the ice for 64 more Boston goals than were scored while he was there.

Flyers coach Fred Shero, who had Jacques Plante and Gilles Villeneuve in the minors, calls Parent "the best goaltender I've coached."

"I bought a Lawn-Boy in 1957 and it is still in excellent operating condition."

Back in 1957, Robert Norman of Laval, P.Q., bought a Lawn-Boy power mower, model 8511B. He didn't know it then, of course, but it would go on working faithfully for more than 16 years. That's what you get when you buy a Lawn-Boy—years of trouble-free performance.

Compare our lowest-priced Lawn-Boy power mower with other so-called "bargain" mowers. The Lawn-Boy has a lightweight magnesium alloy housing that completely eliminates rust. A 2-cycle engine that uses pre-mixed oil and gas and does away with engine burn-outs on terraces and steep slopes. A rugged, reinforced blade and staggered wheels for a smooth, level cut. And the largest muffler in the industry for quiet operation. Some models even offer Solid State CD ignition, which means faster starts, no ignition points to wear out and up to 4 times longer plug life.

As the years roll by, your Lawn-Boy will keep rolling with them. Choose from the budget priced 19", model 5023; the 19" or 21" push or self-propelled Deluxe or Solid State models; 2 commercial models; a rider; or a cordless electric. In all, there are 15 different great Lawn-Boys. See your dealer now while his selection is still complete.

Remember, a Lawn-Boy may cost you a little bit more, but it lasts a lot longer, to boot. So, in the long run, it's well worth the investment...right, Mr. Norman? Right!!!

Who's on Second? A Dodger Mix-up Causes Problems

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Comedians Bud Abbott and Lou Costello never figured out who's on first and Los Angeles Dodgers couldn't figure out Sunday who was supposed to be on second.

Second baseman Dave Lopes and shortstop Bill Russell both were on second, but as fielders, not base runners. And it so rattled pitcher Tommy John that he made a wide throw, setting up a two-run Philadelphia rally in the ninth inning that gave the Phillies to a 3-2 win over Los Angeles.

Elsewhere in the National League, St. Louis Cardinals shaded Houston Astros 3-1, Cincinnati Reds downed Chicago Cubs 5-2, San Francisco Giants won a doubleheader from Montreal Expos and 8-1, Atlanta Braves edged Pittsburgh Pirates 7-6, and New York Mets split a pair with San Diego Padres, taking the opener 6-4 in 10 innings.

In Saturday's games it was Chicago 3 Cincinnati 2, Montreal 4 San Francisco 2, New York 8 San Diego 2, Pittsburgh 4 Atlanta 3, Philadelphia 7 Los Angeles 5, and Houston 11 St. Louis 2.

John held the Phils to four hits and one unearned run until Mike Schmidt opened the ninth with a single. Greg Luzinski bunted and John threw wild to second.

"Lopes was expecting the bunt and was breaking toward by reed," Philadelphia manager Danny Ozark. Unfortunately for Dodgers, he was Russell. "When John turned around and saw two men covering first base, he confused him."

Relief ace Mike Marshall replaced John and Bill Robinson sacrificed the runners along. Del Unser was intentionally walked, loading the bases, but Tommy Hutton was unintentionally walked, forcing home the tying run.

After Bob Boone fouled out, Greg Gross and Mike Ragsdanisti walked on four pitches, pushing the winning run across.

Reggie Smith's two-run homer and Bob Gibson's five-hit pitching through eight innings stabled the Cardinals to end a three-game Astrodome skid and snap Houston's five-game victory streak.

Home runs by Joe Morgan and Johnny Bench sparked Cincinnati. Bench also delivered a run-scoring single, as did Tony Perez. Jack Billingham held the Cubs to five hits until the eighth when they scored both their runs on Carmen Fanzone's bases-loaded single.

Mike Caldwell tossed a six-hitter for the Giants in the first game while Tom Bradley pitched a four-hitter in the nightcap and San Francisco took advantage of four Montreal errors for seven unearned runs.

Two of the errors came in the fifth inning. Steve Ontiveros got aboard when center fielder Willie Davis dropped his fly ball and Chris Speier was safe on pinch hitter Jerry Davanon's throwing error.

John Milner's two-run homer in the ninth inning gave the New York Mets a 6-4 victory in the nightcap, after Tom Seaver had settled for a 3-0 lead in the first game. Milner connected off eighth inning loser Dan Frisella.

Ron Reed and Tom House teamed on a six-hitter and Dave Johnson belted a two-run homer in the 10th inning to give Atlanta a victory against Pittsburgh.

Two runs scored all their runs in the third on Hank Aaron's double, Johnson's homer and Rico Carty's single.

The reed and Ralph Garr's double keyed the Braves' rally.

In the opener, San Diego's Clarence Gaston doubled home the tying run in the ninth inning against New York relief ace Tug McGraw and then scored the winner on a two-out single by Derrel Thomas.

Cannonade Leads Derby Field

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Cannonade beat 22 three-year-olds to win the Kentucky Derby. And now he'll probably have to beat at least 13 to win the Preakness.

A field or 14 is shaping up for the second jewel of the Triple Crown May 16 at Pimlico, including Cannonade and Derby runner-up Hudson County, which was 2¾ lengths back at the end of the 1¼-mile race timed in 2:06.

However, Judger, Cannonade's stable-mate, which finished eighth in the Derby, might skip the 1 3-16-mile Preakness. Owner Seth Hancock indicated that he might point Judger for the 1¼-mile Belmont Stakes, the final Triple Crown race June 6.

Other Derby horses, which are Preakness probables are J. R.'s Pet, Little Current and Destroyer, which ran fourth, fifth and sixth respectively.

Rube The Great, a major Derby contender, which finished 10th, and seventh-place Buck's Bid were Preakness possibles, but Buck's Bid's trainer, Tony Bardaro, said Sunday his colt won't go if the Preakness field is larger.

It will be large, in fact it might have to be split, a situation that would occur if more than 14 were entered. There is precedent—the 1918 Preakness was run in two divisions.

"Both horses came out fine," said trainer Woody Stephens as he shipped Cannonade, owned by John Gilb, and Judger to New York. Judger, considered by some as the stronger part of the entry, got a pretty good pounding in the Derby. He collided with Little Current at the half-mile pole and was bumped again at the three-eighths pole.

Stephens said it was Little Current that he was worried about by the Derby, not Rube The Great or Aplitude, considered by many people as the biggest threat to Stephens' pair.

"I know I could beat those horses, I had them," Stephens said of Rube The Great and his stablemate Aeotpiter (1HO Sat-urday), which he trained before they were brought by Sigmond Sommer.

Cannonade paid $5, $3 and $2.60. Robert Odom's Hudson County, a member of the mutuel field, ridden by Mike Miceli of Toronto, finished second and paid $4.40 and $2.60. Hudson County was 3¼ lengths in front of the Meeken Stable's Agitate, which paid $2.80.

Another Preakness candidate that performed before the Derby was Bay Crest at 183,624 was Silver Florin. Not to be confused for the 1,238,000 Derby Silver Florin was the $50,000 Twin Spires Purse and earned a shot at the Preakness for which, trainer Gran Rattler said, he will be made a supplementary nominee for $18,000. Other Preakness candidates are Hasty Flyer, Jolly John, Neapolitan Way, Better Arthur, Be A Native, Bold Reasoning, Stonewall, All Genes, Derby and Roanoke, the Florida winner which missed the Derby because he was injured in the Blue Grass Stakes.

At Churchill Downs, a forecast said it would be later before a decision might be made regarding Flip Sal, the Derby casualty, which stood in a stall with his ankle swollen.

Flip Sal was entering the backstretch in the Derby when he broke both sesamoid bones in his left front ankle and tore the ligaments in the same foot.

"We don't think there's a chance for him," the forecast said, "but the decision will have to be made later."

Harmon Killebrew Still Has Power

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota's Harmon Killebrew, at 37, is not the feared slugger he once was, but he still has his moments.

He had one of them Saturday, unloading career home runs 549 and 550 as the Twins blasted the Detroit Tigers 9-3.

Killebrew put the Twins on top with a two-run shot off Detroit lefty Woody Fryman in the first inning and followed that with a 434-foot two-bagger in the fifth.

Elsewhere in the American League, Texas and Boston split a pair, the Rangers winning 5-3 and the Red Sox 10-8, Kansas City Royals whipped New York Yankees 8-2, Chicago White Sox edged Milwaukee Brewers 4-3, California Angels shaded Baltimore Orioles 8-7, and Oakland and Cleveland divided a twin bill, the A's winning 3-0 and the Indians rallying 9-3.

In Saturday's action, Kansas City defeated New York 5-1, Texas beat Boston 1-0, Chicago beat Milwaukee 4-2, Minnesota blanked Detroit 10-0, Cleveland defeated Oakland 8-2, and Baltimore lost to California 3-1.

Killebrew now has four homers and 13 runs batted in for the season. Larry Haas and Bobby Darwin also hit homers for the Twins, all at the expense of Fryman, now 0-3.

Vic Albury was the winner for Minnesota with relief help from Bill Campbell. Gary Sutherland hit a two-run homer and Gerry Moses a solo shot for Detroit.

Tom Grieve rapped a pair of run-scoring singles and Jeff Burroughs drove in another with a double as Texas held onto the top spot in the West Division. Steve Hargan, 2-1, won it while Luis Tiant lost in the fourth time in five decisions.

Boston snapped a five-game losing streak in the nightcap as a Rico Burleson and Dwight Evans belted three-run homers. Evans also contributed a single and double as Juan Marichal got credit for his first AL victory. Dave Nelson and Toby Harrah homered for Texas.

Vada Pinson cracked a 2-2 tie with a two-run homer in the seventh and the Royals racked New York newcomer Dick Woodson for four runs in the eighth, three of them on a double by Fran Healy. Steve Busby allowed just six hits to raise his record to 4-3. Bobby Murcer drove in both Yankee runs with a single and sacrifice fly.

Bucky Dent's first major league home run, a two-run shot in the eighth, gave Chicago the victory. Dick Allen collected a pair of singles for the Sox to extend his hitting streak to 10 games. Milwaukee scored its runs in the ninth on singles by Pedro Garcia and Bill May and a three-run homer by Don Money.

Rookie Dave Chalk's ninth-inning homer gave California its margin of victory, extending the Angels' winning streak to six games and Baltimore its losing streak to five. Frank Robinson, Mickey Rivers and Bobby Valentine homered for the Angels. Dick Selma was the winner and Grant Jackson the loser, both in relief.

Catfish Hunter hurled a five-hitter and Sal Bando belted a two-run homer for the A's in the first game. Hunter, 5-2, now has 28 career shutouts. Steve Kline took the loss for the Indians and was tossed out of the game in the fifth for arguing with plate umpire Art Frantz after balking in the game's first run.

Canada's Island Proves Spokane Fair Feature

Unofficial observers estimated that more people passed through Canada Island than any other exhibit at Expo 74, with the exception of the massive United States' and Soviet pavilions.

Comment from visitors to the four-acre island, which consists of a park, children's playground, amphitheatre sponsored by Canada and a pavilion with multi-visual presentation by British Columbia, was almost unanimously favorable.

"I think it's the neatest thing at the fair," said Dixie Stevens of Spokane, who brought two of her own children and four others to Expo on opening day Saturday.

U.S. President Richard Nixon officially opened the fair Saturday.

"There are enough pavilions," said Al Hammond, who moved to Spokane seven years ago from Vancouver. "Expo needs more open space like this and it really represents Canada."

"This is the only place where they are really protecting the environment, instead of just telling people to protect it," said another Spokane resident. "It is good that this is going to remain after the fair."

She was referring to Canada's plans to donate the park it built for $500,000 to the city, of Spokane when the fair closes Nov. 4.

"Lineups were" common throughout the fair, but Canada Island experienced little of this since it is an open, natural area. There were occasional delays in front of the B.C. pavilion.

The Alberta amphitheatre, where stumps of Douglas fir trees serve as seats for the visitors, was covered with more than 175 persons very time an amateur group from Canada stepped on stage to perform.

Bourassa Denies Patronage

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa said Sunday there has been absolutely no patronage involved in the awarding of government contracts and criticized the opposition parties for their "negative" attitudes on the question.

Both the Parti Quebecois and the Parti Creditiste members in the national assembly boycotted three legislative committees studying spending estimates last Thursday in protest against the Liberal government's adjournment of the assembly until Tuesday, claiming the move prevented them from asking more questions about alleged conflict of interest involving the Simard family, of whom Mr. Bourassa's wife is a member.

The premier, speaking on radio station CKAC, said the whole question of conflict of interest involving government ministers is being studied by a committee formed this year.

He said the government had been extremely careful in making certain his ministers were not involved in business dealings which would result in their positions in government.

The Simard family, he said, had on occasion been penalized in its business dealings because family members were involved in politics.

Caribbean Rum To Be Duty Free

PORT OF SPAIN (AP) — Rum produced in Trinidad and other Caribbean Commonwealth countries will enter Canada duty free starting July 1, it was announced Saturday.

Senator Thomas Gatcliffe, chairman of the West Indies Rum and Spirits Producers' Association, described this latest development as a "major breakthrough" for Caribbean rum on the Canadian market, where imports had declined because of duty and other restrictions.

Rum imports to Canada exceeded two million gallons last year, most of it coming from the Bahamas, Guyana, Jamaica, Trinidad and Tobago and Barbados.

Khrushchev Opposed Troops Being Kept in Allied Lands

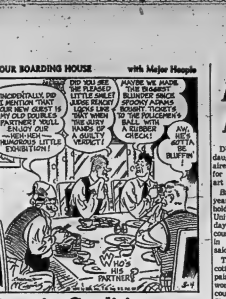
NEW YORK (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev believed the stationing of Soviet troops in other socialist countries was a mistaken policy that "accomplishes nothing and earns the confidence of no one," says a new set of Khrushchev memoirs made public Sunday.

The late Soviet leader said: "If I had any influence on the policy of the Soviet Union, I would urge that we sign a mutual arms control agreement providing for on-site inspection in designated parts of the country around our (western) frontiers."

Extracts from Khrushchev's tape-recorded memoirs were begun in last week's edition of Time magazine and were continued in this week's editions. Earlier excerpts were published in 1970 under the title Khrushchev Remembers. The latest tapes are to be published in full next month as Khrushchev Remembers: The Last Testament.

"When I was the head of our party and government, we decreased the size of our army both in the Soviet Union and in the fraternal (Warsaw pact) countries," Khrushchev said in the memoirs. "I'm still in favor of removing Soviet troops from other countries, and would fight for implementing that policy if I could."

"But how can anyone fight for the reduction of armed forces when a certain grain is preaching quite the opposite?" he asked. He apparently was referring to Mao Zedong. Leonid Brezhnev, who has maintained Soviet troops in Eastern Europe and has sought to justify the Warsaw pact invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968.



President Eisenhower rejected Khrushchev's 1959 proposal that the two countries eliminate all foreign bases. The United States was willing to accept a ban on producing and testing nuclear weapons, but only with international inspection and other controls.

Khrushchev made these other points:

—On the shooting down in May, 1960, of American Francis Gary Powers in his U-2 spy plane, Khrushchev said that if Eisenhower had apologized for the flight, the incident might not have had a major effect on U.S.-Soviet relations.

—But Khrushchev said that when he and other officials telephoned let himself be pushed around by his secretaries of state."

—Khrushchev said Jacqueline Kennedy "didn't impress me as having that special, brilliant beauty which some women have, but she was youthful, energetic and pleasant, and I liked her very much. . . . I knew she was a millionaire, and consequently

Legal Aid Advertising Postponed

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's legal aid plan, currently under scrutiny by a provincial study group, has had a request for a $50,000 advertising program postponed pending the group's findings, Frank Callaghan, deputy attorney-general, said Sunday.

However, Mr. Callaghan denied a published report that the ministry had deleted $150,000 allocated for advertising from the plan's $13-million budget for the 1974-75.

He said in an interview the ministry had never budgeted $150,000 for advertising campaign and termed as "absolutely untrue" a report that the advertising program was shelved because it would lead to more clients and additional costs in running the plan.

Pyramid Sales Are Suspected

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto police, aided by Quebec Provincial Police, raided the offices of Holiday Magic Ltd., cosmetics firm here Saturday and confiscated 24 boxes of company records.

A Toronto police official said the Quebec police have issued warrants for the arrest of the firm's president, Robert Wahba of Toronto, and vice-president, Magella Dionne, formerly of Rimouski, Que.

He said the warrants cover alleged pyramid sales and promotions in Quebec.

No arrests were made.

Millionaire's Daughter Held For Art Theft in Ireland

DUBLIN (AP) — The rebel daughter of an English millionaire was to be arraigned today for taking part in the biggest art theft in history.

Bridget Rose Dugdale, 33-year-old former debutante and member of a PhD from London University, was arrested Saturday when she drove up to a country house near Glandore, in southwest Ireland, police said.

The police said that in the cottage they found 16 of the 19 paintings stolen April 28 by a woman and four men from the country home near Dublin of Sir Alfred Beit, and the other three paintings were in the trunk of the car. They included masterpieces by Vermeer, Hals, Rubens, Goya and Velasquez and were valued at more than $20 million.

The gang had sent the police a note saying it would destroy the paintings unless $1.2 million in ransom was paid by May 15 and unless the sisters Dolours and Marion Price were transferred to a prison in Northern Ireland. The sisters are serving life sentences in London for bombings in the British capital.

Miss Dugdale is the daughter of Col. James Dugdale, chief of an insurance syndicate at Lloyds, and was one of the first women accepted as a member underwriter at Lloyds. She lectured on economics at London University, and in the United States and worked as an economist for the British ministry of Overseas development and United Nations agencies.

Last year she was given a two-year suspended sentence for leading a gang that burgled her father's horse of $102,000 worth of silver and art works while her mother and father were attending the Derby.

"I love you—but I hate everything you stand for," she told her father in court. She said her parents had tried to turn her into "marriage fodder" when she wanted an academic career.

"My hate of the system my parents practise and gain by is stronger than ever," she said as she walked out of the court. "I am going back to the poor."

She is wanted in England on a charge of arms smuggling and in Northern Ireland on a bombing of a border police station by a hijacked helicopter.

PCs Will Dismiss Many Civil Servants - - O'Leary

OTTAWA (CP) — There are going to be many unemployed senior civil servants around if the Conservative party forms the next government, says Conservative Senator Gratien O'Leary of Ontario.

"When we get in this time we're going to fire a devil of a lot of them," the 80-year-old Parliament Hill veteran told reporters on CTV's weekly program Question Period.

The interview was taped in Ottawa Friday.

Years of Liberal governments have drained many senior government officials of their anonymity and neutrality, and too many top-level civil servants "identify their own fortunes with the fortunes of the party," the former president of the Ottawa Journal said.

The federal budget to be presented tonight was not masterminded by Finance Minister John Turner but by Deputy Finance Minister Simon Reisman, Senator O'Leary said.

"Who's running the country now? There's no question that dear old John Turner is a sweet boy, but Reisman is the man—Reisman's budget."

Asked where the Conservatives would find people to replace senior Liberal civil servants, Senator O'Leary replied: "Do you think that these people have all the intellect Canada mustered under the Liberal party?"

As for the prospects of a federal election, he said he was not convinced there would be one soon.

"I think they're afraid of an election.

"David Lewis has never had it so good. He has never been so near the seats of the mighty and is likely never again to be so near," Senator O'Leary said of the New Democratic Party leader.

"I don't think he wants to end that position. And this is also true of Mr. Trudeau."

Senator O'Leary predicted a Conservative victory in the next federal election.

"When you pinpoint the ridings and take a realistic survey of the marginal ridings . . . I don't see the possibility of the Trudeau government being returned."

No Quebec Marketing Board

Hog producers in Quebec, unlike milk and poultry producers, have rejected creation of a marketing board. One member of the Quebec Farmers Union says the establishment of a hog marketing board is being opposed by the small

Quebec Hog Farmers Balk At Marketing Board Plan

JOLIETTE, Que. (CP) — One of the main stated objectives of the Quebec Farmers Union is to make agriculture pay and thus largely eliminate the problem of persuading succeeding generations to take over farms.

One favored device is the marketing board, which seeks to ensure a minimum income.

Milk and poultry producers already have such institutions and, without claiming to be getting rich, say they are doing satisfactorily.

On the other hand, Quebec hog producers, despite serious difficulties arising from uncertain incomes, have rejected creation of a marketing board in two referendums.

Many of them accuse the government of not considering the needs of farmers in the face of natural hazards and price fluctuations.

Other farmers, however, say they are getting on well.

Denis Simard produces milk and poultry on his farm near Joliette, about 35 miles north of Montreal.

In his mid-40s, Mr. Simard has 44 cows and 5,000 chickens. He doesn't believe in a magic formula for success, he says, except for hard work.

Mr. Simard has five children—the oldest is 18—and bought the family farm when he himself was 17.

He believes two organizations he belongs to—the Federation of Poultry Producers and the Federation of Milk Producers of Quebec—assure him of good prices and a sufficiently effective marketing system to guarantee his income over the year.

If such a mechanism helps milk and poultry producers, why not set up one for hog farmers, whose incomes fluctuate from year to year?

One member of the Quebec Farmers Union in Joliette says it is the small hog farmers who oppose establishment of a marketing board for fear of being driven out of business by larger producers.

But officials of the farmers' union say a pork producers' organization must come one day, even if it has to be imposed on the majority.

The poultry producers' federation has 1,600 members, an administrative council of 11 members, an executive council of five and a consultative committee as well as five production committees.

Affiliated with the farmers' union and founded in 1966, the federation groups 11 regional producer associations.

From 1972 to 1973, the gross revenues from poultry sales rose to $118 million from $84 million.

For the last three years, the federation has administered a joint provincial plan and has worked to promote a national agreement to establish an equitable sharing of production, eventually set up national offices and marketing agencies.

The same advantages exist for milk producers thanks to the work of their federation which was formed in 1970 in Drummondville, Que.

Considered a last hope by many milk producers, the federation stopped overproduction that was killing the market.

The organization, grouping the approximately 4,900 fluid milk producers in the province, established regulations and production quotas much as the poultry federation had done.

It would have liked the federal government to increase the support price of industrial milk $1 a hundredweight at the end of last March but Agriculture Minister Whelan announced an increase of only $1.30.

Milk producers generally credit the federation with promoting stable marketing and price security.

Hog producers, however, remain exposed to market fluctuations and variations in feed grain prices.

Studies indicate national hog production should not exceed 160,000 animals a week. Yet 200,000 are being marketed currently, compared with an average of 182,000 in 1973.

After several good years, Quebec producers are encountering difficulties and asking for increased assistance from the provincial government.

The province gives 34 cents a hundredweight in subsidies for purchase of feed grains. Producers want the amount increased to offset an expected rise in the price of corn from the United States this summer.

Quebec producers also want the province to match subsidies of up to $15 an animal provided by the governments of Alberta and Saskatchewan to help their hog producers make up their deficits. They see the direct subsidies by the two western governments as an attempt to break the equilibrium of the national hog market.

Over and above the provincial marketing board which the majority of hog producers have rejected, some of them would like to see a national marketing office to ensure uniform prices and an equitable marketing system.

A senior official of the Quebec agriculture department would go a step further, setting up national marketing boards in all sectors of agricultural production.

All of these steps are predicated on the ability of individualistic Quebec farmers to unite to achieve their common aims. One farm wife, interviewed for this series of articles, said:

"Are farmers capable of closing ranks and giving one another a hand so they can progress together?"

Newfoundland Fish Plants Getting Workers They Need

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Newfoundland fish plant managers, plagued by a shortage of workers during the last two or three years, are breathing a little easier these days.

New contracts recently negotiated between the Newfoundland Fishermen, Food and Allied Workers (NFFAW) and several fish-processing companies are attracting more and better people to work in the plants and consequently the work force has stabilized.

Better wages are bringing in skilled workers who want to work on a permanent basis.

A spokesman for Bonavista Cold Storage Co. Ltd. said female workers at the company's plant in Grand Bank now are the highest paid in the province, receiving $2.30 an hour. About 200 men and women at the plant recently voted to accept the company's contract offer.

Male employees at the plant will receive $2.55 an hour retroactive to Jan. 1, 1974, and $3 an hour beginning Oct. 1, 1974, the pay will rise to $3.15 an hour by April 1, 1975.

The women are getting $2.30 an hour retroactive to Jan. 1 and this will increase to $2.65 hourly by April 1, 1975. The contract expires Sept. 30, 1976.

Richard Cashin, onetime Liberal MP and now president of the NFFAW, says the release rate at the plant before the new agreement was around $2.10 and the new rates give female employees 40 cents more an hour than their counterparts at other processing plants in the province.

Gus Etchegary, operations manager for Fisheries Products Ltd. of St. John's, says new contracts signed mean that a skilled fish plant worker will earn as much as $100 a week, or between $5,000 and $10,000 a year with incentives within the next two years.

"The fact that people can earn this money will attract more people to the industry. There will be a greater selection of workers available and this will mean more skilled workers."

Vaughan Bay, manager of B.C. Packers Ltd. plant at Harbour Breton, said: "We believe there is a change taking place. There are indications that the new rates which have been applied are attracting new people."

Mr. Ray said his firm was one of the first to take part in negotiations which led to higher wages. The Harbour Breton plant always had vacancies since the company came to Newfoundland but now could not take on any new employees.

"We are counting on the contract to get us skilled workers and we believe it will," he said.

Mr. Cashin said the new contract also includes fringe benefits, such as time and one-half for Saturday work, improvements in statutory holidays, group insurance and sickness plans.

Fishermen are also receiving higher prices than ever for their catches. Last fall the average price for cod was 11 or 12 cents a pound, according to size, but fishermen are currently getting 13 cents a pound at some plants.

The older fishermen find the new prices almost unbelievable because just a few years ago they were getting a top price of three cents a pound for cod.

Low wages and low prices were a tradition in the Newfoundland fishing industry. They were based on the theory that fish merchants could not be competitive if they had to pay employees and fishermen more money.

Every suggestion for an increase in the past, whether from government or the people, brought choruses of lamentations from the fish merchants. Yet recent wage increases have only brought prosperity.

From a haphazard and rather individualistic activity, which the offshore salt cod fishery was for centuries, the industry is involving into a structured organization of multiple skills in which there is an increasing level of applied technology.

Shawville Blacksmith Outlasts All Rivals

SHAWVILLE, Que. (CP) — Harper Resnick's father opened a blacksmith shop in 1914, and in the intervening 60 years the other four in town at the time have gone with the horse-and-buggy age.

Mr. Resnick, 74, has stubbornly kept his father's shop open, despite business that has dwindled close to extinction and fondly recalls the days when people took real pride in their work.

He's still ready to shoe any horse brought to him.

"But I don't get many any more," he said in an interview. "There's a time when there were 40 teams of horses with as many delivery wagons around here and that kept us pretty busy.

We had four men in this shop who would shoe between 10 and 12 horses a day."

The cost was $2 for removing and replacing the shoes on a two-horse team.

Each shop had two or three men working in it, and when we'd see a team of horses going down the street we'd check to see how well the horses were shod," Mr. Resnick said.

The shop remains much the same as when it first opened, horse carriages, antique forge and box telephone belying the world around it.

"This summer I plan to recondition all those carriages you see in here," Mr. Resnick said, pointing to six of the horse-drawn vehicles.

"There's a big market, they say, for these among antique collectors."

The last smith in Shawville, 50 miles west of Ottawa, said he knows what he'd do if he were starting out all over again.

"There's a big demand for good blacksmiths at racetracks, and they can make a good living."

But Mr. Resnick appears ready to keep the fire in the forge at home burning and leave the thoroughbred trade to others.

"Life today doesn't ring a bell with me the way it did years ago."

CHICAGO (Reuter) — People who fainted, fell sick or were frightened while watching the film The Exorcist owe it all to a bowling ball and some foam rubber.

Director William Friedkin told a luncheon here Thursday some secrets of the special effects created in the film, the story of a young girl possessed by the devil.

The rocking bedroom was caused by resting the set on a bowling ball and having studio hands rock and shake it.

The sudden swelling of the girl's throat was caused by a rubber air bag hidden under foam rubber wrapped round the girl's throat. Friedkin filled the bag with air from a pump-off the set when he wanted the throat to swell.

The sudden gashes on the girl's arms were produced by make-up hidden by foam. The foam was attached to wires off the set and could be whipped away, revealing the make-be lieve gashes.

Pipes were taped to the girl and attached to a box carried on her body. When Friedkin wanted the girl to vomit or urinate, he simply pressed a button and by remote control liquid spurted out of the pipes.

NEW YORK (AP) — A pacemaker was implanted in actor Henry Fonda's chest "as a safety precaution against a heart rhythm disorder," a spokesman at Lenox Hill Hospitals id Thursday.

Fonda, 68, collapsed Tuesday night in his dressing room after a performance of his one-man show, Clarence Darrow. He was said to be suffering from exhaustion.

The hospital spokesman said Fonda will remain in the hospital aside Thursday.

Fonda opened May 3 in Detroit as scheduled.

An engagement in Boston, scheduled to begin Monday, was cancelled.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Agnes Moorehead, who died Tuesday, will be buried in Dayton, Ohio, her lawyer said Thursday. Frank Belcher said Miss Moorehead had requested that there be no funeral.

Miss Moorehead, 67, died in Rochester, Minn. The hospital declined to state the cause of death, saying Rewas ber request.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (Reuter) — Dick Martin of the comedy team of Rowan and Martin has been sued for divorce by English actress Dolly Read.

Miss Read, who appeared in The Valley of the Dolls, is to and Martin, formerly co-star on NBC's Laugh-In, is 52.

Miss Read listed irreconcilable differences in her petition filed Thursday, and says she and her estranged husband ac- "substantially" the community assets during their mar- riage of two years and five months.

She seeks alimony and division of community property.

NEW YORK (AP) — An Edgar for the best mystery novel of 1973 was awarded Friday to Mary Higgins Clark by The Mystery Writers of America at its annual Edgar Allan Poe Awards dinner, and activities of Poe.

Hillerman, a former newspaper editor, now is a professor of journalism at the University of New Mexico.

A Grand Master award for distinction in the mystery novel went to Ross Macdonald.

Voted best motion picture screenplay was The Last of Sheila, by Stephen Sondheim and Anthony Perkins.

The award for best special television was for Lane Olinger's Isn't It Shocking? Voted best teleplay for a series was Rod- ucers for an Informer by Sy Salkowitz.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A federal judge ordered singer Jerry Lee Lewis Friday to pay Virginia Commonwealth University $10,025 for breach of contract.

VCU said Lewis appeared for only 20 minutes of a scheduled two-hour performance at a park here May 5, 1973. He was paid an advance fee of $9,000.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (Reuter) — Margaret O'Brien, who won an Academy Award as the best child actress in 1944, and Roy Thorvald Thorsen, a Norwegian-born businessman, plan to be married late this month.

It will be the second marriage for the 36-year-old actress, and the first for Thorsen, 43.

Miss O'Brien made her movie debut at the age of four in Babes in Arms, and in 1945-46 was voted one of the 10 top money stars at the box office.

BRANTFORD, Ont., (CP) — The country's first multicultural festival will be held in July at Wayne's National Arts Centre. Multiculturalism Minister Stanley Haidasz announced Friday.

Speaking at a banquet and dance here to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the telephone, Mr. Haidasz said festival activities will include singing and dancing performances by some 30 folklore groups from across the country.

Mr. Haidasz also announced establishment of a Canadian ethnic studies advisory committee to promote greater awareness of the country's cultural diversity.

Imaginary Invalid

On the invitation of the Elizabethan Theatre Trust, the Adelaide Festival of the Arts, the Perth Festival and the Australian Council of the Arts, Stratford mounted a proconium production of Moliere's The Imaginary Invalid for an eight-week tour, including two weeks each in Perth, Melbourne and Adelaide and finishing in the daring, new and somewhat controversial Sydney Opera House.

One of the most important aspects of the tour, to my mind, was that it symbolized the culmination of the contribution made by Jean Gascon during his tenure as artistic director of the Stratford Festival. He has been responsible for getting the company outside Canada and providing an opportunity for us to test our ingenuity and our identity against other cultures, which is essential to the development of any company of artists. The Australian tour brought into focus the enormous contribution that he has made to the Stratford organization.

I was struck very early on by the idea that a formal cultural exchange program could not help but benefit both countries. This conclusion is based first of all on the fact that Australian film houses and television are inundated with United States material, as are our own. The problem common to both of us is finding a market that will circumvent the pressure of the U.S. and Great Britain.

Australia has a very healthy film industry which this year will release 25-30 films and which was at one time the second-largest in the world. Over a period of time U.S. interests barricaded all the film theatres which suddenly became nothing more than distributors' outlets. This came close to destroying the industry in Australia and it is only now reasserting itself. The promotion of a mutual market between our two countries is an idea that has already occurred to some of our government representatives there.

We were asked over and over again to come back to Australia. Many of us had individual offers to return, as actors or directors or both.

It seems to be that a logical and fruitful outcome of this initial visit might be an exchange that would see Australian acting companies touring all or part of our country, while Canadian companies were doing the same thing there. We need this chance to see each other's work. And we couldn't help but benefit from exposure to Australians as a people.

The Australians, in their isolation, have learned a valuable lesson. They know how to live with themselves. Perhaps not surprisingly when one considers that of between 15 and 16 million people, 95 per cent of the population lives in five major cities.

There attitude towards one another is clearly reflected in the attitude towards strangers. Nothing ever seems too much trouble. We had so many examples of their easy graciousness, it is difficult to know which encounters to describe.

There was the moving experience our first Sunday in Adelaide arrangements had been made for a group of us to visit a small hotel in a crossroads village about 100 miles north of the city. The hotel's owner was a friend of a friend of one of us, which meant he was a total stranger.

We were met at the door and ushered into the dining room where wine was immediately produced and a long Victorian table set laden with old silver, candelabras, gleaming china and a marvellous spread of food. We were treated last night with unbelievable hospitality and, when we came downstairs the next morning, we found a champagne breakfast waiting. When it came time for us to for the bill we were told that we could pay for our lodging but the food and wine were free of charge.

Another example—a restaurant chef in Melbourne who stayed open every night long past normal closing time (which is early by North American standards) to prepare superb meals for us after each performance. He offered to do so when he discovered we were having difficulty finding places to eat late at night. He and his wife came to a performance and he spent most of the next day personing a special feast at which he and his wife joined us. There was an added treat that day. Having learned that it was Jack Creley's birthday, he baked a cake, appropriately iced and inscribed.

The graciousness and warmth of the people is further attested by the young Sydney lawyer we met on a beach in Perth. I asked how large his farm was and without a moment's hesitation he replied, "12,000 acres". I went on to inquire as to the number of sheep he had and he replied, "10,000." My only comment then was "How do you know?" Sudden realization of the vastness of a country deceptively small on the map.

We subsequently became great friends and as he was on holiday he was able to take us around and dine with us in the evening—He came to see the play a couple of times and took us out into the country one day to show us a national park.

A brief aside on Australian flora and fauna. You don't really know what the expression "up a gum tree" means until you see one, incredibly smooth with the branches so high up there's no possible way of climbing either up or down.

The famous koala bear subsists entirely on the leaves of one particular variety of eucalyptus tree. Coincidentally the same variety of eucalyptus tree was at one time used to make an alcoholic beverage. Can it be that the invariably in a good mood because he's always slightly tipsy?

As for the reception to our play, critical response varied from excellent to non-existent. We were touched when on the last night of the Perth season the audience rose and threw red roses on the stage as we took our curtain call.

Everywhere we played we were told we could easily have performed a week longer. One resident theatre man said rather wistfully that local groups would be pleased to play to sold-out houses, as we were doing, but then it seldom happened.

The city of Adelaide was itself an experience of note. It is, laid out with great care, mostly through the efforts of one stubborn man, an early city planner who insisted that the centre of Adelaide be entirely surrounded by parkland. He does make this extremely unpopular at the time and, in fact, on his monument is a plaque that reads: "I hope history will prove me right." It has.

One rather surprising reaction was amazement that we were playing in our own accents. The mark of the accomplished Australian actor is still seems to be his ability to deliver a performance of the classics in an English accent. One drama critic suggested that my tongue was that of the actor responsible for making the Canadian accent acceptable. I replied that I hadn't known this was my image but when I thought about it I realized that over the years Stratford has indeed come to rely on its own accent, perhaps springing initially from a nationalistic impulse but increasingly now because we know that the Canadian accent is adaptable. We can present Shakespeare in our own voice and it works.

The most unexpected incident throughout the eight weeks took place shortly after our arrival in Australia. I walked into a restaurant and two people stood up and exclaimed "William Hutt." They were both from Kitchener.

Actor Gives Impressions Of Stratford Company Tour

William Hutt, associate director of the Stratford Festival, wrote this story for The Canadian Press of his impression of the company's recent eight-week tour of Australia with Meriere's The Imaginary Invalid.

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — I've just returned from what I can only describe as a fabulous, shameless love affair with Australia: the people, the climate, the food and the white wine, in approximately that order.

It started Feb. 10 when we landed in Perth, Western Australia, after 42 hours' crawling time. It was still yesterday in Canada. It was back to classes tomorrow for Australian school children just finishing their summer vacation. It was 75 degrees outside and the evening sky was lit with stars. We were Down Under and everything seemed strangely upside down.

On the invitation of the Elizabethan Theatre Trust, the Adelaide Festival of the Arts, the Perth Festival and the Australian Council of the Arts, Stratford mounted a proconium production of Moliere's The Imaginary Invalid for an eight-week tour, including two weeks each in Perth, Melbourne and Adelaide and finishing in the daring, new and somewhat controversial Sydney Opera House.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Tuesday, May 7

Aries (March 21-April 19) This is a good time to go to persons whose co-operation is needed to help advance a situation. Your charm will receive serious consideration.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) For best results at this time, keep what you're working on within the confines of those involved. Later you can tell others.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Understanding the other party's point of view and giving him the benefit of the doubt will help bridge a delicate situation today.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Today is a better day than tomorrow to press for advantages that affect your work or career. Don't put things off.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You're in your best sphere when you play the host or hostess role. A good day to take business contacts to lunch.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Take prompt advantage of any condition today that can contribute to your material security. The opportunity won't be there tomorrow.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your judgment is very astute today. After studying an issue, don't let another talk you out of your conclusions.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Buying, selling or just shopping, you're likely to make a pretty good deal for yourself. Hold to your terms.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Others will go out of their way to please you today. Don't be hesitant about asking friends to repay old favors.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) An occasion will arise today when you can make amends to one whom you haven't been as close to as you should lately.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Is persuading your ideas to others at this time, try to use a light approach. It will come on too heavy, the wrong foot.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March. 20) You will get much better terms in bargaining today than you'll be able to get later on. Decide matters while you're in control.

Bombs Left In Irish Seaports

BELFAST (AP) — Guerrillas struck at two small Northern Ireland seaports in County Down during the weekend, planting bombs in their main squares.

Troops and police evacuated more than 100 persons in the picturesque little fishing village of Ardglass, 30 miles from Belfast, early today when a car bomb estimated to contain 200 pounds of explosives was found after an anonymous telephone call.

Police believed the car had been parked there for more than 36 hours, and hundreds of tourists had walked by it.

Attempts by army experts to set it off failed and an attempt to defuse it was to be made today.

Security forces believed the bomb was left by the Irish Republican Army.

The village square in Warrenpoint, 40 miles from Belfast, was shattered and shops around it were damaged when a 200 pound bomb exploded Sunday.

Drury Says Illegal Strikes Intolerable

OTTAWA (CP) — The responsible conduct of the majority of federal employees "has been tarnished by the behavior of those who showed contempt of the law and disregard for the collective agreement" through recent illegal strikes, Treasury Board President C. M. Drury said Saturday.

In a letter to all certified bargaining agents within the federal public service, Mr. Drury warned that the government will no longer be patient with striking federal employees who refuse to go through established bargaining channels.

"Engaging in an unlawful strike is irresponsible conduct towards the taxpayer who has the right to expect services and towards the proper functioning of government," the letter says.

"Unlawful strikes in the public service not only damage the economy and stability of the country, but also make a mockery of collective agreements."

Gas Line Afire

FLETCHER, Ont. (CP) — A break in a natural gas line near this community eight miles southwest of Chatham resulted in a fire Sunday which sent flames shooting about 60 feet in the air.

No injuries were reported in the blaze which left about 180 customers without service until the afternoon.

An official for Union Gas Ltd., Chatham, said the line had been tampered with. About 1,100 operating and clerical workers at the company, with more than 20,000 customers in southwestern Ontario, went on strike Feb. 6.

White House Counsel Says Nixon Innocent

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's chief lawyer says the president's defence against impeachment depends on whether Nixon himself was involved in hush-money payments to Watergate defendants.

James St. Clair, White House special counsel, said Sunday the presidential tape transcripts released last week prove Nixon neither authorized nor knew of the payments and thus is innocent of any "criminal plot to obstruct justice."

St. Clair also said he considers it unrealistic to think that a constitutional dispute between Congress and the president over what amounts to an impeachable offence can be resolved in court.

In another televised interview, White House chief of staff Alexander Haig said he hopes the leading members of the House of Representatives probe judiciary committee will personally listen to the White House tapes and verify the transcripts.

Nixon said in releasing the material that chairman Peter Rodino (Dem. N.J.) and Representative Edward Hutchinson of Michigan, the senior committee Republican, could hear the actual tapes at the White House. They have not yet accepted the offer.

Haig said anyone who reads the transcripts "knows without a shadow of a doubt that there has not been much tampering with the contents of them."

"They speak for themselves." Haig declined to reply directly to questions about whether the White House also would turn over evidence sought on issues other than Watergate, such as the milk fund, the ITT case and a $100,000 would-be campaign contribution by Howard Hughes.

But he said these "are legitimate questions and for people involved to do any less than their best, they would, of course, be remiss."

Church Growth in U.S. At Virtual Standstill

NEW YORK (AP) — Church growth in the United States has sagged to a virtual standstill hitting its lowest level in more than a quarter century and is narrowly trailing the pace of population increase, statistics showed Saturday.

Church membership in the country stands at 131,624,564, up only 35,000 from the previous year and the smallest over-all gain since 1945 when the Second World War ended and U.S. church membership suffered a brief downturn.

The current scanty increase fractionally slipped behind the approximate one-per-cent population rise last year due to the masses involved, the percentage of Americans belonging to churches remained unchanged in rounded numbers—52.4 per cent, the same as the year before.

The figures were compiled for the 1974 Yearbook of American and Canadian Churches, published by the National Council of Churches.

Canada's 'Flying Bandit' Is Free Again--- Legally

WINNIPEG (CP) — Kenneth Leishman, gold robber, parole violator and escapee known as Canada's "flying bandit" has escaped from prison again—but this time legally.

Leishman, now 44, apparently has uncovered a new method of calculating sentences for parole violators, and as a result penitentiary officials are reviewing the records of all parole violators now in prison.

Leishman, had served eight years and two months in Stony Mountain pecitentiary outside Winnipeg.

He was sentenced in 1966 to 14 years for stealing $263,000 in gold bullion at Winnipeg International Airport while on parole. In 1972 he received another two-year sentence for parole violation, and that, said Raymond Derochers, director of Stony Mountain, is where the question arises.

Leishman was not expected to be released for two more years but the department of justice agreed with his interpretation of legalities involving the methods of sentencing parole violators.

Mr. Derochers said authorization for the release came from Ottawa and was a complete surprise to prison officials.

He said Leishman himself had initiated the inquiry.

Leishman first gained notoriety in 1958 when on two occasions he commuted to Toronto, ostensibly on business, but actually to rob banks there. On the first trip he returned the same day. On the second, he was caught.

In April of that year, he was sentenced to 13 years in prison but was released on parole in 1961 because he had been a model prisoner.

But Leishman again made headlines in 1966 when he took part in a Winnipeg gold robbery.

In September of that year, he led nine other convicts out of Headingley jail, stole an airplane at Steinbach about 40 miles away, and flew himself and three other prisoners to Gary, Ind., where they were captured after a brief gun fight.

On Oct. 30, he escaped a second time in as many months, but was only at large a few hours.

Mr. Derochers said the two-year sentences for parole violation in 1972 was added to the remnant of Leishman's other sentences, following the National Parole Board's established procedure.

But when Leishman questioned the legality of his total sentence, the justice department overruled the parole board, apparently taking the stand that the two-year term was to be served concurrently and not consecutively, Mr. Derochers said.

Earlier this year Leishman was turned down when he applied to the federal Local Employment Assistance Project program for a $93,000 grant on the basis he had been unable to get parole. The money was to be used to open a shop which would employ former Stony Mountain inmates.

Nixon Won't Reduce Calley's 10-year Term

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon decided Saturday he will not intervene against any further reduction of United States Army Lieut. William Calley's 10-year sentence for a massacre of Vietnamese civilians at My Lai.

The army released a memorandum from Nixon saying:

"I have reviewed the record of the case of the United States vs. Calley and have decided that no further action by me in this case is necessary or appropriate."

At the same time, Secretary of the Army Howard Calloway ordered Calley dismissed from the army.

Nixon upheld Calloway's April 15 action in reducing Calley's sentence by Calley's lawyers from 20 years. That sentence previously had been cut from life imprisonment on review by Lt.-Gen. Albert Connor, then commanding the 3rd Army.

However, Calley is expected to remain free on bond until a federal judge in Columbus, Ga., acts in a separate civil case brought by Calley's lawyers in an attempt to reverse his court-martial conviction.

Students' Union To Hire Lobbyist

VANCOUVER (CP) — The National Union of Students has decided to hire a full-time lobbyist to bargain with the federal government for financial concessions for its members.

Delegates representing 24 member universities and colleges attending the group's five-day annual meeting, which ended Sunday at Simon Fraser University, voted to hire an Ottawa-based lobbyist who would negotiate with the government.

NDP Opposes Budget Election Seems Sure

Income Tax Cut Assists Needy

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner brought in a give-and-take federal budget Monday on which he said he is prepared to fight an election.

It was a deficit budget with something for just about everyone—except a large segment of the corporate community. But there also were proposals which many Canadians will not like.

Tax cuts for low-income groups and a plan to help finance home ownership were among items in the mix of attractive measures. But this is balanced by planned higher costs for some luxury items.

Large corporations—mainly in the resource and service sectors—would finance a major share of the planned revenue increases.

Mr. Turner called the budget fiscally responsible and said it is aimed at fighting inflation by attacking shortages of supply.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield already has said Progressive Conservative MPs will vote against the budget.

Mr. Stanfield said after the budget speech was read to a boisterous Commons that it does nothing about the cost of living.

"It just hopes the whole thing will go away."

Government anti-inflation policies are in sharp contrast to Progressive Conservative proposals for a system of wage and price controls, which Mr. Turner says will not work. He cites experiences in other countries.

The Conservatives argue that tough policies are needed.

"We certainly will vote against it (the budget)," Mr. Stanfield said.

Mr. Turner told a news conference after the budget speech that he was ready for an election.

"If they (the opposition parties) want the people to be the arbiter, so be it."

He said it would be up to the electorate to "judge on the facts and the response that we've made. We've tried to do the best we can. Now that's the issue."

Standing in the 264-seat Commons is: Liberal 109; Progressive Conservative 106; NDP 21; independent, 1 and vacant 2.

The budget would continue favorable tax rates for manufacturing and processing corporations. But mining and petroleum industries would be hit with a series of tax increases.

There would be a 10-per-cent surtax on corporate profits, except that the resource, manufacturing and small businesses would be exempted.

Mr. Turner proposed a three-part approach to fighting inflation.

"First, we have to keep this economy rolling ahead and pouring out the goods and services our people need. Second, we have to reduce the strains reflected in particular market sectors. . . . Third, we must help those Canadians least able to protect themselves from the hardships of inflation."

Some of the main proposals aimed at easing price increases were:

—Removal of the 12-per-cent federal sales tax on all clothing. More than $5 billion in annual sales would be affected and finance department officials say they expect the savings to be more than the amount of the tax.

—Implementation of a plan allowing taxpayers to save up to $1,000 a year tax free towards purchase of their first home. Both husband and wife could save up to a maximum of $10,000 each under this once-in-a-lifetime scheme.

—Extension of lower tariffs for six months, to the end of the year, on a variety of imported consumer goods.

The key item in the proposals to aid lower income groups was an increase to $150 from $100 in the minimum amount of the five-per-cent tax credit introduced last year. Mr. Turner said this would remove more than 300,000 taxpayers from the tax rolls.

The list of medical expenses would be broadened and the definition of those who would qualify for the $1,000 deduction for the disabled would be expanded.

Additional medical expenses to become eligible for tax deduction.

Corporate tax revenue to jump $750 million through tax changes or 18-per-cent surcharge, with some exceptions.

Sales tax of 12 per cent removed from all clothing and footwear.

Cash bonuses to holders of Canada savings bonds to raise rate of return.

Up to $1,000 of interest income a year to be tax exempt.

New plan to allow tax-free accumulation of savings for first-time home purchase.

Higher portion of resource industries tax revenue to be rebated to provinces.

Brandt Quits Because Of Spy

BONN (AP) — West Germany's governing Social Democratic party nominated Finance Minister Helmut Schmidt today to succeed Chancellor Willy Brandt following Brandt's unexpected resignation.

Brandt, 60, whose "Ostpolitik" policies for East-West detents won him the Nobel Peace Prize during his 4½ years in office, fell victim to a spy scandal on top of state election setbacks for his socialist party.

The chancellor's resignation letter to President Gustav Heinemann Monday night said Brandt took "political responsibility for negligence" in appointing a spy for East Germany, Guenther Guillaume, to an important post in the chancellery.

Guillaume, 47, Brandt's aide for party political affairs since 1972, was arrested April 24 with his wife, who was secretary of the Hesse state government's office in Bonn.

Guillaume admitted being an East German army officer and agent for the East Berlin ministry of state security. He was appointed to the chancellery in 1970 and in that period is reported to have had access to detailed information on Bonn's detente negotiations with East Germany and other Soviet Bloc countries.

Kissinger To See Gromyko In Cyprus

NICOSIA (CP) — United States State Secretary Henry Kissinger flew to Cyprus today to discuss with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko the prospects for a disengagement of Israeli and Syrian forces battling on the Golan Heights.

Gromyko, who came to Cyprus after a two-day visit to Syria, requested the meeting.

Although U.S. officials said Kissinger is making progress, they also said there is "a distinct possibility" he will go back to Washington without a disengagement agreement and will return to the Middle East in three or four weeks.

Pulitzer Prizes Awarded

NEW YORK (AP) — Pulitzer Prizes for national reporting have been awarded for stories revealing President Nixon's comparatively small income tax payments and a secret $200,000 contribution to his campaign fund. James Polk of the Washington Star-News was honored for stories on the secret contributions by financier Robert Vesco. Jack White of the Providence Journal-Bulletin was honored for his reporting on Nixon's taxes.

Jobless Face Interviews

TORONTO (CP) — Bill Fox, an Unemployment Insurance Commission official, says the UIC will not indiscriminately cut off benefits to persons who pick up their cheques from emergency offices during the recent mail strike. However, those without satisfactory reasons for not picking up cheques may have their benefits stopped. He said that 9,000 persons who didn't pick up cheques will be interviewed this week.

Tourists Get Break

OTTAWA (CP) — Travellers would be able to bring home considerably more duty-free goods under federal budget proposals announced in the Commons Monday by Finance Minister John Turner. He said tourists would be allowed to bring back $50 worth of goods rather than the current $25, every three months, if their out-of-country visits lasted at least 48 hours. Additionally, the annual exemption would be raised to $150 from $100 and would be available after a seven—rather than 15-day absence.

Prisoner Stabbed

CALGARY (CP) — The warden of the Prince Albert penitentiary appointed to a Calgary woman Monday for not officially informing her that her husband died at the prison four days ago, but she insists she will press for an inquiry, RCMP in Prince Albert, Sask., said Mervin Johnston, 19, was taking a shower Friday when another prisoner stabbed him in the heart, Alvin Beaulieu, 26, of the Northwest Territories was arrested.

Complaint Change Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Vernon Singer L—Toronto-Don Valley called on the government Monday to establish an impartial procedure for persons to lodge a complaint against police. Mr. Singer said the present method of complaining to police or a police commission is not satisfactory. If a person feels aggrieved by police procedures, he should not have to take his complaint to the very body against whom he is complaining, Mr. Singer said.

Budget Wins General Praise from Economists and Businessmen

By GHISHLIM MacDonald
The Canadian Press

The federal budget Monday night drew general plaudits from Canadian business and economic sectors, but there were also pockets of discontent—particularly about government spending.

"The budget is prudent in right," said Lorie Tarshis, professor of economics at University of Toronto.

"I'm glad they finally don't pretend that any budget is going to lick inflation," he said. "It is a mirage that fiddling with the budget will lick inflation."

His views were shared, in part, by Douglas Sherbaniuk, director of the Canadian Tax Foundation, who said the budget reflects moderation on the part of Finance Minister John Turner.

"While seeking to combat inflation, he has remained alert to the dangers of increased unemployment," Mr. Sherbaniuk said. "He has therefore refrained from taking more radical Draconian measures to combat inflation, lest such measures deflate the economy and result in lost jobs."

Mr. Sherbaniuk and others said they were pleased that tax incentives were maintained for manufacturing and processing industries, which in turn were excluded from a 16-per-cent surtax on profits.

Keith Rapsey, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, although pleased with the tax incentives, was severely critical of the government's forecast budgetary deficit of $650 million.

"A deplorable aspect of the government's fiscal program once again is the steep-projected increase in federal expenditures over the coming year—no less than 23 per cent at a time when the gross national product is increasing by no more than 15 per cent at most," he said.

"This continued growth of federal spending—provincial and municipal as well—is a major cause of home-grown inflation."

Mr. Rapsey said a high proportion of the government spending will be paid by corporations through the special sector tax and the higher rates of taxation levied on the petroleum and mining industries.

"In fact, nearly one-third of the projected increase in total government revenues in the coming year will come from these sources," he said. "As in the past year, inflation will mean that companies will pay taxes on what are largely illusory profits."

However, Mr. Rapsey said the association is pleased that small business tax credits were increased and that the 10-per-cent surtax will not apply to small business corporations.

"Tax reductions affecting personal income and the improved incentives for personal savings are admirable and should assist in containing inflation," he said. Some criticism was harsh.

Donald Macdonald, outgoing president of the Canadian Labor Congress, said the budget was "cleverly and deceptively designed for an election."

And John Crispo, dean of the University of Toronto's faculty of management studies, noting the forecast deficit, said:

"I think what's really disturbing is the fact that the government is running a deficit when they should be running a profit, and spending is obviously running amok.

"It's obvious to me that the government now expects—and even wants—an election, regardless of the public interest."

Mr. Crispo said the budget's provision for a tax-exempt plan for a person to accumulate $10,000 over 5 years for the purchase of a home "sounds wonderful" at first.

"But if you assume that this government is going to do as little as it is now to stem the tide of inflation, one wonders what kind of down payment that's going to provide for what kind of house."

Other reaction to the housing provision was varied.

SOME BUDGET

NDP Says 'No'

New Democrat Leader David Lewis announced today his party will oppose the 1974-75 budget presented Monday night.

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democrats joined the Conservatives today in deciding to oppose the government's Monday night budget, almost assuring the defeat of the minority Liberals in the Commons this week.

After meeting his caucus for 90 minutes, NDP Leader David Lewis announced: "The caucus has decided to oppose the budget and I will give detailed reasons for that opposition when I speak this

Tom Bell, House leader for the Conservatives, told reporters moments later that his caucus was drafting a non-confidence motion designed to garner NDP support.

He told reporters the motion would be worded generally and "the NDP won't have any difficulty moving a sub-amendment."

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield had already announced opposition to the budget Monday night after it was read in the House by Finance Minister John Turner.

Conservative Finance critic Marcel Lambert will move the Conservative motion in the budget debate later today.

But the first chance to defeat the government will come on a vote on the NDP sub-amendment Wednesday. Until the contest of the NDP sub-amendment was revealed, the Conservatives would not say whether they would support it.

Mr. Lewis said that he is "going to move a sub-amendment which contains some of our suggestions."

"The Conservatives will decide whether or not they will support it."

He said his caucus decided unanimously to oppose the budget.

The situation raises grave doubts about the survival of the government and of most if not all the provisions proposed in the Turner budget.

Some including income tax changes took effect at midnight but parliamentary dissolution will be announced wipe them out unless some special intervparty arrangement is made to make them law.

Mr. Turner, under stiff questioning Monday night at a news conference, said one provision that could be implemented by cabinet decree is the increase in earnings on Canada savings bonds.

There were survival possibilities for the Trudeau government if either the Conservatives or the NDP found themselves unable to support each other on non-confidence votes.

Commons attendance possibly might be a factor as well.

A constitutional option for the prime minister is to resign after defeat and ask Gov.-Gen. Jules Leger to ask Stanfield to form a government without a general election.

NDPers Jovial

OTTAWA (CP) — "If there was any doubt before the New Democratic Party caucus to discuss the budget today, it didn't show. In fact, the members who crowded the small meeting room were positively jovial.

"I've got my plane booked for Wednesday night," said one NDPer, referring lightly to the possibility of his party bringing down the minority government on a non-confidence vote.

Even Barn Went as Garbage

Cleanup Week: Folk 'Cleaning Up'

TRENTON — Apparently Trenton residents are cleaning up on council's spring cleanup week generosity — abusing the privilege, says senior Councillor George Greer.

A report from commissioner of works Arie Hoornweg says some residents are "bulldozing their entire backyards and shovelling it all out to the roadway."

"Others are using the current cleanup week to have entire barns trucked away," said Mr. Hoornweg. "I'm amazed at what we find each year."

In the case of the barn Mr. Hoornweg said it took about five truck-loads to cart the debris away from the demolition site. No councillor queried whether works department employees protested the loads at the time.

Said Councillor Greer, "the privilege has been abused very badly."

Mr. Hoornweg said cleanup week — currently in progress — is a worthwhile effort that costs the town about $7,000. Supplementing the works department's four vehicles are another six rented vehicles. Five are equipped with backhoes.

Councillor Greer urged that councillors next year take a firmer line in what kind of garbage falls into the spring cleanup category.

Town Resolves Issue, Buys New Fire Truck

TRENTON — Town council Monday night authorized purchase of a $13,000 fire vehicle.

The purchase was the result of an experimental tendering technique, tried by the town in an attempt to cut overall costs.

Through an apparent lack of response to individual tendering for cab and chassis and for a truck body, council accepted a tender from King Seagrave, fire quipment supplier.

Recently, council asked the company when the town could expect delivery of another fire truck ordered last year. The company said truck chassis delivery delays had slowed construction, though council was under the impression delivery was to be made three months after order. In addition to the delay, King Seagrave asked the town to pay more for the truck than the price tendered. Inflation during the delivery delay drove the price up more than $1,000. The town refused.

The council, in its tender, explained a chassis was expected at the plant within the month. But there was no mention exactly when the town could expect delivery of the vehicle.

Arden Royce, deputy clerk, informed council that the tender should be accepted and that the council's vehicle be sold by the firm on a first-come-first -served basis.

Traffic Shutoff Asked Again For Downtown Trenton Sale

TRENTON — The Chamber of Commerce here has again asked town council to close off Trenton's main street for an upcoming sidewalk sale sponsored by downtown merchants.

Last year the request was denied when council was petitioned by east side merchants unable to join the downtown association who claimed unnecessary traffic interference.

The request calls for closing Front Street between the Dundas Street railroad tracks and the town bridge and a portion of King Street.

The closing for three days will require a bylaw and one is expected to be prepared for next week's committee-of-the-whole council session.

The Chamber said it reconsidered the request last year and attempted a sale without closing off traffic. But the project proved to be a "complete loss."

No councillor passed any opinion of the request at Monday night's meeting.

Student Jobs Show Increase Over 1973

TRENTON — Early response in the student summer employment office operated by Canada Manpower Centre has been good, said supervisors during Monday's open ing ceremonies.

CMC officially opened the King Street office which has already supplied about 70 job openings for students, well ahead of last year's listing.

Wes Nesbitt, CMC manager here, said about 200 students have made application for jobs and "it's shaping up to be a good summer for the office".

Queen's University student Al Hamilton will manage the centre this summer with a three-man staff.

He says the office had a successful year in 1973 through "excellent co-operation with the downtown community and area industry."

Telephone number for the centre, marked to be in use Wednesday, is 392-2159.

One-tier Proposal Meeting

PICTON — Town council has called a public meeting May 17, to view a position paper on restructuring Prince Edward County.

A presentation of the proposed plan will be made by Reeve Ross Crookwright and deputy-reeve Larry Richardson. It is expected the meeting will be held at Queen Elizabeth public school.

Discussion of the position paper follows a recent meeting in Picton between Prince Edward County and municipal councillors and representatives of the ministry of treasury, economics and intergovernmental affairs.

The ministry has requested resolutions concerning the proposed one-tier system from each municipality and from county council by May 25.

If discussions on the municipal reorganization of Prince Edward result in general agreement, legislation will be introduced in the Spring session of the legislature to restructure the county.

Fun of Fair Assists School

SOPHIASBURG — Sophiasburg Township Central School, Prince Edward County, had a capacity crowd at the 1974 Fun Fair got under way for the fourth consecutive year.

Sponsored by the Friends of Sophiasburg School Association, the event last week featured a barbecue supper and a assorted items donated by area residents.

Essentially a fund-raising project, it is geared to raise money for school activities. Part of the funds go towards the purchase of plaques, awards and trophies.

Co-ordinator of the "fun fair", James Cullen, Northport, says the items for sale were donated by the community.

"We collected approximately $300 at last year's fair," remarked Mr. Cullen. "And the prospects look even better this year!"

Although relatively new to Sophiasburgh Central, the fun fair has been successfully held in past years in other schools throughout the county.

Tweed 4-H

TWEED — Some 19 new members have joined Tweed 4-H Calf Club this year, which is elected Lorne Gunning as president.

Other officers: Bruce Thompson, vice - president; Sandra Harrison, secretary; Jeff Hubbard, reporter.

Next meeting will be held May 13 at Tweed Senior School at 8 p.m.

Horse Show

PICTON — Prince Edward Horse and Pony Club will hold its first show of the season May 20 at Picton fairgrounds. Judge will be Douglas Rollins of Carbyville.

The program, featuring English and western riding classes, will begin at 1 p.m.

Further details are available from club secretary Carol Waite of Lakeview Riding Stables or Mrs. John Sorenson of East Lake.

Ideas Still Sought For Tribute to H. J.

PICTON — Town council is seeking greater public input for a project to pay tribute to Picton's late mayor Harvey J. McFarland.

A special committee of council, including Deputy - reeve Larry Richardson, Mayor James Bird and councillors Bessie Ward and Jack Evans has reviewed four proposals submitted by area residents.

A Picton couple, Fred and Audrey Fruesi have suggested construction of a swimming pool to be named after Mr. McFarland pool.

Roy Dingwall, a teacher at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, also has proposed construction of a pool at the county fairgrounds.

Mrs. Karl Moore suggested a donation from the town to the Viet Nam Services Committee of Canada in memory of the late mayor.

A Waupoos area woman, Mrs. Margaret Love has urged a fund to provide for annual betterment of a Christmas tree at the Cenotaph and payment of the cost of an annual Salvation Army children's Christmas party. In past years, a tree outside the late mayor was erected at the war memorial each December.

"We want to be sure that the project we select is most appropriate," said deputy - reeve Richardson.

Boat Speeders Pose Hazard, Action Sought

MARMORA — Motorboat speeders on nearby Beaver Creek have been creating washing around Marmora-Lake township council.

Two area residents, Stan LaChapelle and Bill Smith have appeared before township council with a request for help to curb speeders on the narrow waterway leading to Crowe Lake.

Several people have nearly drowned because of carelessness, Mr. Smith claimed. He said police patrols have failed to curb the problem.

Reeve Grahaill-Ball said he would take the matter up with the municipality's solicitor. There was the possibility of a bylaw being passed but the reeve felt the issue was a provincial police problem.

The situation has been discussed at the Crowe Lake Property Owners Association, Gordon Bennett said, and it was agreed that visitors to surveying bylaw council has no right to establish a speed limit on Beaver Creek.

A sign has been placed on the upper end of the bridge warning boaters of possible speed traps in the area. Otherwise behaves while the police patrol boat is in the vicinity, Mr. Bennett said.

Mr. LaChapelle and Mr. Smith said they would contact other residents in that area and return with a request for a bylaw limiting boat speeds which police would then have to enforce.

Reeve Apologizes Over Bar

PICTON — Picton reeve Ross Crookwright has apologized to the arena commission for referring to a bar operated at the County Centre by special forces as "dig ousing".

Reeve Crookwright emphasized that he thought the bar was "disgusting" but this was simply his personal opinion.

He said that he was sorry if his remark had reflected in any way on members of the arena commission who are all "hard workers".

"If they feel this is the best thing for it, then that's that," commented the reeve.

The bar is operated by special licence for dances and other weekend events held in the auditorium of the County Centre. Reeve Crookwright termed the arrangement "working" during the April session of town council.

Marmora Development Needs Reports

MARMORA — Terry Coughlin, owner of Crowe Lake Estates, subdivision in Marmora township is now awaiting results of two inspections to find if he can proceed with proposed development.

An environment, ministry representative and a two-man Hastings County planning board team alone with Terry Carney, county planning director, studied the site. Results of their inspections will assist Marmora-Lake township council to decide what requirements must be met before development is permitted.

The site has been approved by the buildings — Prince Edward confies health unit and Central Hastings and Housing Corporation. But, because of its rocky nature, council has been cautious to allow building, fearing the possibility of pollution draining into nearby Crowe Lake.

Approval For Homes

PICTON — Town council has given final approval to the houses and lots of Picton Estates, a 30 house development on Pitt Street.

The plan for the houses was submitted by J and L Developments.

Town solicitor Jack Ward said he been instructed by council to prepare the necessary draft of the subdividing agreement for the homes.

Each phase of development calls for construction of 15 houses.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and actually reduces the size of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished without surgery.

Mayor: Some Builders Cost-cutting PUC Asks Say in Building Permits

PICTON Mayor James Bird will appoint a council committee to discuss approval of building permits with the Public Utilities Commission.

The decision Monday night followed a PUC resolution that all building permits require commission approval.

Also, a request was included for council's cooperation in supplying copies of building permit applications.

Mayor Bird termed a letter and a resolution from the commission "Lengthy letters designed to confuse the issue."

He explained that in multiple dwellings, frequently builders attempt to cut costs by ordering one installation. Tenants pay their hydro with their rent. Special transformers are required to accommodate this type of service.

The PUC can no longer absorb the cost of these things.

The mayor stated that it is unfair to make the whole system pay" for this service.

"It can be very, very expensive and we just don't have that type of money," he added.

Mayor Bird predicted that with rising costs, hydro rates also will increase in the next year.

He termed the PUC's resolution an attempt on the commission's part to recover, some of its costs.

"The budgets are in the market to make money and this looks like another way to make more," noted the mayor.

He said the commission would be unable to face labour contract costs unless there is some return from persons using the evices.

Councillor Jack Evans questioned the mayor's stand and suggested." There must be a way the PUC can recover costs on the installation by a simple billing system"

Town clerk Andrew Jarvis requested a liaison between the PUC and builders be said he would be willing to send copies of all building permits to the commission for review.

Deputy-reeve Larry Richardson observed that by passing council's authority over building permits to the PUC, delays might be encountered.

Reeve Ross Crookright echoed this point of view noting that as out-of-town subdivision proposals had been rejected and in-town building should not be delayed.

Picton Council Wants More Fire Inspections

PICTON — Picton town council favors more fire inspections of private residences but firefighters are concerned with the possible hazards of one-man tours.

Deputy-reeve Larry Richardson Monday night said in April firemen had made only three inspections. He suggested that they could have taken only about 20 minutes time.

Councillor Norman Marsh declared it "is a new old story" calling for two firefighters to make an inspection. If both leave the fire hall, then there is no one on duty there in case of emergency.

Several councillors noted that, by making an inspection alone, the firefighter may be accused of theft by a homeowner.

Town solicitor Jack Ward suggested that if private inspections are given adequate publicity and done by appointment there is "a minimum chance" that accusations of any sort will be made.

It was pointed out that metre readers enter private residences alone and telephone service men work alone if there is someone at home.

Pay Hike

PICTON — Town council has voted a five-per-cent pay increase to full-time employees now earning $8,000 or less a year.

The raise, effective June 1, will benefit approximately 20 workers, says town clerk Andrew Jarvis.

Picton Mayor James Bird commented: "We may be criticized, but I think its a good move."

The raise has been under consideration for some time, according to the mayor.

UELs Hold Election

ADOLPHUSTOWN — Gwen Smith, RR1, Bath, has been elected president of the United Empire Loyalists Inst of Quinte Branch.

She succeeds Charles F. Young.

Other executive members: vice-presidents, Shirley Foster, RR2, Consecon, Richard Laverne, RR1, Bath, Patrick Galt, RR1, Bath, William Vankoughnet, Napanee. For the Birds--and Nature Lovers

PT. TRAVERSE — Nature lovers from as far away as Kingston and Toronto will be flocking this weekend — May 11 and 12 — to Point Traverse, the southern-most tip of Prince Edward County.

The attraction? Birds!

This point of land, recognized within the last decade as a major stopping station for migratory birds, will be the scene of much activity as bird lovers comb the area with binoculars and telescopes. The field trip, now a traditional event every year, is expected to coincide with the peak of the spring bird migration.

Seasoned bird watchers predict that more than 160 different species of birds may be chalked up during the two-day period this weekend.

Time For A Change

Has the Liberal party been in power too long in Canada — too long for its own and the country's good?

If for no other reason than the fact that inflation is threatening to ruin the economy and the government is either unwilling or unable to do anything about it, a change of administration may well be in order.

A clear sign of Ottawa's economic recklessness is its heavily-documented extravagance, its attitude that the public purse is bottomless, or alternatively, that it can ward off recession simply by printing more and more paper money. Certainly there is reason enough for public dissatisfaction and questioning, beginning at the personal level of Prime Minister Trudeau's expenditures on his official and vacation residences, his extravagant personal official car, his use of Government aircraft for vacation trips, and continuing through ministerial bungling of Unemployment Insurance opera.ions.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp has been one of the first on the Government side to admit that an election may soon be called. He sees inflation as the principal issue, harking back perhaps to his own indifferent performance as Minister of Finance, but also conveniently overlooking Canada's curious posture on the world scene.

For instance there is the controversial matter of Ottawa's moral and monetary support for African territories where so-called "liberation" forces, backed by Soviet and Chinese arms and training, are operating. The aid is described as "humanitarian", and "non-military," which is all very will but does not explain why Canadians should be thrust willy-nilly into the same boat with a Communist world bent on fomenting coups and revolutions. Or as Tom Ottawa forgotten what happened in the not too distant past in Budapest, in 1956, or in Prague in 1948 and again in 1968, or the unfortunate events that took place in Havana in 1959 (some of them justified perhaps, but there is a limit). Or does it choose to ignore the conditions in Soviet prison camps as described by exiled author Alexander Solzhenitsyn?

As to the spending of public funds on these kind of aid programs overseas, the time is long since past when western peoples can give without considering what the purpose and direction of such aid. For international politics today are omnipresent, all-embracing, subtle and often sinister. Who is to say that the hand which feeds ultimately will not be bitten by alien systems which deny the very existence of a Christian God?

The Government and the churches explain the disposition of such funds in a general sort of way, but there is no detailed accounting as far as the public, which hands over the money, is concerned. That is why the public should emerge from its sleep and start asking questions.

Park Initiatives

City and area parkland is in the news.

Council's arrangement with St. Andrew's Church to develop the church lawn at the corner of Victoria and Church Street, creating a parkette, is an outstanding plan, even allowing for an objection by Ald. Joe Cox. There may be some validity in his contention that this might open the door for other churches; however we feel this is unlikely. The St. Andrew's lawn seems singularly suited to such development; and, as Parks director Lloyd Syer points out, it is one of the few places in the area available for this kind of initiative. For the kind of reasons the unit anticipates any stampede to city hall by other churches.

The other park development is one that was first mooted a year ago. It is at Massassaga Point, an almost legendary recreation spot in the annals of Quinte recreational facilities. A favored venue in years past, boasting a hotel with dancing facilities, and reached by boat as well as by road, Massassaga fell into disuse only to catch the public eye again in the last year or two.

It appears that only the need for obtaining a deed of right-of-way to a proposed campsite by the Prince Edward Conservation Authority is holding up the opening of the park. For the many Quinte-area residents who know this area only from the pages of local history, Massassaga Point should provide a valuable addition to the region's recreational facilities.

Bilateral Associations Strengthen Ties

British Connection Still Firm Says High Commissioner

By JOHN D. HARRISON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Sir Peter Haymes, the outgoing and also retiring British High Commissioner to Canada, doesn't agree the long Canada-British connection has withered during the early 1970s when he has been in Canada.

Neither he sees continued Canada-British co-operation and meeting of views in areas not widely publicized or even contemplated by the man-in-the-street. He is still inclined to assume our association with the Motherland of English-speaking Canadians around the response to a royal visit or personal memories of British interviewers inclined to be a war or from overseas kin.

Sir Peter in a brief interview in terms emphasizes other dimensions, what he calls "a shared approach" by Canada and Britain in such diverse areas as full diplomatic and trade ties with the People's Republic of China or relations with a booming European Common Market.

On China he suggested "Your China policy is exactly the same as we have, bring China into the community of nations, not leave China in an ivory tower".

This came also in response to a query that Prime Minister Trudeau's alleged greater interest in Communist systems, the Soviet, Yugoslav and China, had inevitably weakened the traditional Canada-UK. ties.

At another admittedly high level Sir Peter indicated the UK connection had been strengthened through bilateral associations of a kind he had obviously encouraged as high commissioner between November, 1970, and May, 1974.

For example, bilateral visits of cabinet ministers, both ways, British ones to the Ontario government and vice versa, have been continuous and influential, aided no doubt by Sir Peter's known support for former prime minister Edward Heath.

Nevertheless the new Labor government has already sent one cabinet minister to Canada to talk up trade, since Mr. Wilson returned to the prime ministership.

Sir Peter also felt last summer's Ottawa Commonwealth Conference pointed up the basically no-nonsense relationships between Commonwealth countries these days offering the additional comment that Prime Minister Trudeau had set it up in a pragmatic, not sentimental, sense. "Canada probably found it a place to differentiate herself from the United States," he added.

"People like Britain these days not because of shared grandmothers but because as he said, "... neither of us are supporpowers and must live by our wits".

It's true Sir Peter leaves with the balance-of-payments between the two countries still determinedly in Canada's favor, credit to about $1.5 billion since 1971.

The reasons the British can't bring up the balance in their favor seem to be as elusive as they are persistent, namely lack of follow-through on sales of admittedly superb machinery or other high technology equipment competing fiercely against Americans, Japanese and Germans as well as Canadian industrial market.

Primate Scott Outlines Church Stand on Aid Program

The following is an extract from a lengthy letter from Primate E. W. Scott of the Anglican Church in Canada regarding church aid in Africa and what the World Council of Churches calls its Program to Combat Racism.

The letter, which appeared originally in The Toronto Sun, has been forwarded to The Intelligencer in response to recent editorials questioning Canadian churches' support for liberation movements in Africa and aid programs to regions controlled by Communist-backed guerrilla forces.

A covering letter is under the name of Rev. J. Bain Prever, Program Director and Administrative Assistant to the Bishop of Ontario, who notes that the editorial "Church's Stand" which appeared in The Intelligencer recently needs to be answered.

By The Most Reverend E. W. SCOTT, Primate of The Anglican Church of Canada

What is happening in Southern Africa these days? And what are the churches of the world doing about it, especially the Canadian churches? In these matters, the Sun is providing much more heat than light.

Let us set the matter straight. The churches need more, rather than less criticism. We are the first to know that judgment begins at the House of God. But let the criticism be rational and constructive, not intemperate and demagogic.

The subject of the churches and Southern Africa is very complex, and there is by no means a general consensus as yet, either in the churches or the country as a whole. But here are a few facts.

The Canadian Churches have had a long history of involvement in Africa. Their goal has always been, and remains, the communication of the gospel. Everywhere indigenous autonomous churches have sprung into being. In no small measure too, the emergence of independent countries throughout Africa was aided by the training in church schools at what became the political leadership of the new nations.

The Roman Catholic Anglican, Presbyterian, Lutheran and other churches from European and Canadian roots are deeply involved in Southern Africa.

The United Church of Canada, for example, has had nearly 100 years of work among the people of Angola There, after 500 years of colonial rule, the Portuguese continue to control a vast black majority

The pressure for liberation grew to such an extent that in 1961 it exploded in a rebellion which was ruthlessly put down. Almost a million refugees fled to Zaire, and to other countries. The United Church still has a handful of missionaries in Angola, The African church pleads that they continue to serve among them, particularly since their spiritual solidarity; their medical and educational services, are so meaningful under present conditions.

The existence and growth of liberation movements is a relatively new factor in relation to the minority white regimes of Southern Africa It is important to note that these are movements which have arisen among oppressed peoples responding to the violence of states which have been arrayed against them for so long. These states are themselves the source of "terrorism". The Portugese regime, for example, spends close to 50 per cent of the national budget on its African wars. It has about 120,000 troops in arms in Africa, perhaps 50 per cent of them Africans forcibly drafted into the wars to kill their fellow-Africans. How far the colonial rule be maintained. The churches are offering help to the victims of violence, of either perpetrators of it in Southern Africa

For Christians, violence is always sinful. Yet the Christian as a whole has traditionally argued that there are conditions which justify violence in overcoming entrenched injustice. Our country has taken part in two massive wars on this.

The Liberation Movements of South Africa, with all their divisions, the partly to the long years of frustrated hopes and to the tribal antagonisms which have been exploited and reinforced by colonial powers, are black resistance movements. They have put their lives on the line for their fellow-Africans, themselves and their children. — seeking to affirm their own God-given identity and worth as images, their right to have some say in shaping their future.

The Anglican Church of Canada has established a Program which has funded effective projects supporting the aborigines in Australia, the Korean minority in Japan, Native peoples in Canada and the United States, as well as Southern Africa liberation movements. All the programs are designed to provide solidarity with human beings who are discriminated against and the oppressed, and are seeking redress. In the case of the 30 million Africans of Southern Africa, no legal constitutional redress is available, as it is in other countries such as Canada.

World Council of Churches funds are granted to African liberation movements for the medical, educational and other human needs both of refugees and of African peoples in liberated areas in Angola and Mozambique, where life is bleak. Is it not sheer racism to suggest that Africans are incapable of keeping the promise that the money given to them will be used for these humanitarian purposes? Is it not sheer inhumanity to refuse to meet their needs? These too are neighbors whom Christ enjoined us to love. In a world where 800 billion dollars are annually on armaments, and only 77 billion is international aid, is it not sheer hypocrisy to decry the minimal violence of the liberation movements, while keeping silent about the legalized systemic violence of the white minority regimes of Southern Africa, whose oppression, unlike that of other countries, is declaimed by them to be an expression of Western Christian civilization!

You and Your Car Can Be Taken for a Ride

By VINCENT EGAN

Comes spring, and many motorists decide it's time to do the car "looking nice."

Auto service shops (where a knowledge of human nature is one of the most valuable tools) know just how you feel.

Car owners are wise to choose, some time other than Canada's busy spring season for the type of service job that has to be done at any time.

It's a good idea, for example, to think twice about those low-priced spring service specials, which are often "loss leaders". If you want only the special, make sure that the service order specifies in writing that you are authorizing absolutely no additional labor or parts.

As most car-owners have found, obtaining reliable and reasonably priced service is seldom easy. It's no wonder which many garages are operated makes it cheaper and more profitable for a mechanic to replace parts than to repair a defect.

If replacing the spark plugs doesn't clear up the trouble, then maybe you've a new distributor will—it's only the customer's money, after all.

The consumer may be most vulnerable when it comes to the English Language according to The Canadian Consumer Handbook (Self Counsel Press, 38 Columbia Ave., Hamilton, $2.50).

"A mechanic or dealer will charge as much as the traffic will bear," says the handbook.

Its advice: Anyone seeking an estimate for body repairs should dress 'modestly,' and the car "should be disorganized and untidy inside, and only moderately clean outside."

If your trouble is with a car still under warranty, you have a special problem.

Consumer Reports found an average of 8 defects in the new 1974 cars it has bought for testing, according to its April issue. (Five years ago, the average was 36 defects in each new car delivered to it.)

During the warranty period, make a detailed list of the defects you encounter. Give it to the dealer's service department, keep copies for yourself, and—then check off whether each defect has been corrected or not.

If the dealer refuses to rectify your legitimate complaint, take it up with the manufacturer's regional office. If that fails, consider legal action (not a step to be taken lightly) or assistance from such bodies as the Better Business Bureau or the Consumer and Corporate Affairs Department's Box 99.

But keep your expectations within reasonable bounds. You may be convinced that you have a lemon, but the dealer contends that there is no such thing. No Canadian has obtained a refund on a new car in the past three years, and only 15 have obtained replacements.

Your best bet is to try as much as possible to avoid service problems at the outset, by carefully choosing both the car and the dealer. If you locate a reliable garage and mechanic, get to know them and don't stray.

Election a Strong Possibility

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — It's conceivable there would be a July election, although the odds heavily favor it, and if this happens it will mean that a fundamental amount of high-priced conversation has gone to waste.

In the last few weeks around Parliament the likelihood of a July election has dominated all conversations. Every party has had organizational meetings, all $26,000-a-year MPs have talked about it in caucus, and $40,000-a-year cabinet ministers discussed it in their meeting this week.

"Somebody begins talking about election, everyone else starts in and before you know it the whole thing is irreversible."

Prime Minister Trudeau has been maintaining his no-election stance. Even late Thursday he was saying the government has not expect an immediate campaign, but aides close to him do.

Regardless of what the prime minister says on television cameras, his assistants are busily thinking of how best to gear up the expected campaign.

Headquarters for all major parties are looking in terms of a July vote. The Liberals, Conservatives and New Democrats have all been in touch with airlines about chartering campaign aircraft and in some cases the discussions were detailed to the point of deciding what individual cabin personnel would be aboard.

While the Liberals have discouraged early nominations in heightening election fever, officials say the local organizations are all ready to go. Officials of other parties say the same thing.

Mr. Trudeau paid a warm tribute Thursday to the ingenuity of opposition parties when it comes to talking about government in office, but there seems to be an overwhelming feeling here that such efforts have ended.

One cabinet minister, who until a few days ago predicted that a way would be found to avoid an early election, said Thursday that only a miracle could save this Parliament.

Portugal And The Left Wing

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I always read the editorials in The Intelligencer not so much for the information contained in them but rather for the gymnastics performed by the editorialist in making sure that the so-called "left" are always the bad guys.

Sometimes I am forced to agree, but for the most part I don't.

Since the coup in Portugal I have been sitting in anticipation waiting for the inevitable denunciation of "communist plots, leftist radicals", and so on. To date nothing. Can it be that our editorialist is losing his touch? Or better still, can it be that for once, the people have bettered themselves by getting rid of a tyrannical dictatorship?

I trust the editorialist took time off to read the comments by Rev. David Murphy and his colleague from the ministry regarding the use of church money for the cause in Africa.

We can expect to see him relegated to the columns of dissident priests for his audacity I suppose. Funny that only editorial writers seem to be permitted to hold forth on matters political. Any political decisions affect us all, why should the church and its ministers not be actively involved?

CLARENCE YOUNG.

Editor's Note: How unfortunate! then, how would Portugal be of any interest after the fall of Salazar? Community organizations, pollution in the Bay of Quinte, et all? And why the editorial writers are the only ones holding forth on politics? In the case of the clergy, when no comment was forthcoming, The Intelligencer provided no comment. Three responded.

Budget Eases Sales Tax

Consumers Get Goodies With Some Tax Boosts

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumers got a grab bag of goodies, offset by some increased tax hikes, under the budget presented Monday by Finance Minister John Turner.

Clothing and footwear will cost less, as will bicycles and some aids for the handicapped. But big cars, liquor, wine and tobacco will cost more.

Mr. Turner said in the Commons that dropping the 12-per-cent federal sales tax on all clothing and footwear would affect $6 billion worth of family expenditures annually and save consumers an estimated $289 million.

Similarly, the tax would be dropped from bicycles, buses and other municipal transit equipment, aids for the blind, crippled people and purchases by day-care centres.

Although consumers ultimately would benefit from these cuts, however, would depend on how the reductions are passed down the distribution line, Mr. Turner warned wholesalers and retailers particularly that the consumer affairs department would monitor clothing and footwear prices to see that the benefits were passed on.

Removal of the sales tax on the items mentioned would cost the government $422 million in lost revenue. Some of that would be regained through stiffer taxes on other consumer purchases.

An additional $20 excise tax would be slapped on each 100 pounds of new cars "weighing more than 4,500 pounds. About 85 per cent of the estimated one million car sales this year would not be affected by the move, but the remaining 15 per cent would be taxable at rates varying between $20 and $300.

This would add an estimated $6 million to government revenues and is aimed at high energy-consuming automobiles.

Also, new station wagons would be subject to a stiffer tax—$20 on each pound over 5,100 pounds. People buying new motorcycles, would have to pay a special three-per-cent excise tax on machines with motors larger than 250 cubic centimetres.

Table wine would cost 10 cents more for a 25-ounce bottle under a proposed excise tax increase to 36 cents from 26 cents a gallon. The tax on sparkling wine would be boosted to $2.95 a gallon from $2.35, also a 6.5-cent increase to the consumer level.

A pack of 20 cigarettes would cost two cents more under another suggested increase. Current excise taxes to 2.5 cents per 100 cigarettes and 10 cents. Mr. Turner estimated that increase would add $67 million in a year to government revenue.

The cost of a one-pound tin of tobacco would increase by 15 cents and the selling price of cigars by three cents.

Mr. Turner proposed a special income-tax surtax on all of the manufacturer's selling price of privately - owned airplanes, motor boats and yachts more than 20 horsepower. This move would add another $13 million a year to the treasury.

He said new taxes on high-energy-consuming vehicles was aimed at encouraging economic use of fuel.

Those taxes, plus higher tobacco and alcohol taxes, would offset reductions in bicycles, clothing, footwear and other articles.

Also of significance to consumers is a proposal that tariff reduction initiated in the February, 1973, budget on $1.8 billion worth of imports be extended until the end of this year.

The tariff cuts averaged about five per cent on a wide range of consumer products and Parliament, although it has been asked to extend many of the reductions until the end of 1974.

But former reductions on cattle and beef, canned fruits, some fresh fruits and vegetables and citrus juices have been reimposed because of pressure from producer and processor groups.

While the sales tax applies on bicycles, buses, and day-care and handicapped equipment that is not as large as those on clothing, they represent substantial amounts of lost government revenue.

For buses and other municipal transit equipment, for instance, the government would lose $3.5 million on sales of roughly $125 million. Absorbed by the provinces, it would cost $30 million on sales of up to $200 million, and on aids for the handicapped, $500,000 on annual sales of $5 million.

On bicycles alone the government would expect to lose $8.5 million in tax revenue. Sales are worth about $90 million a year.

A bike buyer, on the other hand, interested in a $112 10-speed, could expect to buy the machine for an even $100.

$1000 in Interest Income Tax Free

OTTAWA (CP) — New tax measures to encourage savings, including a free tax ride on $1,000 of interest income a year and a six-month lee for Canada savings bonds holders, were proposed in Finance Minister John Turner's budget Monday night.

Both were obvious attempts to slow the inroads of inflation which, for instance, has seriously undermined the attractiveness of Canada savings bonds as an investment. Some economists have said that bondholders may even be actually losing money on a short-term basis.

Under Mr. Turner's proposals, individuals would avoid income tax on up to $1,000 of interest a year on securities such as bank and trust deposits, mortgages, Canada bonds and all other bonds.

He also proposed registered retirement savings plans changes to allow a working taxpayer to share in a pension for a spouse.

A working taxpayer now gets a tax exemption on contributions to a registered retirement saving plan to retain limits. Those not working or self-employed—such as a housewife—could not be covered.

Mr. Turner proposed that working spouses be allowed to establish a plan for their non-working mates, and that the portion of allowable contributions not going into their own plans, to maximums allowed are $4,000 for self-employed persons and $2,500 for other employees.

Cash bonuses to Canada savings bond holders would raise the yield to maturity to nine per cent, still below the return available on many high-grade corporate issues. This bonus would be considered as a capital gain for income tax purposes and would therefore be taxable only to one-half the bonus only. That's another tax break for the bond holder who until now has had to tax on the total interest received.

About $10.5 billion in Canada savings bonds are outstanding and nearly two million Canadians are affected.

Under the Turner proposal, bonds maturing before Nov. 1, 1975, would receive the cash bonus and those maturing after that date would receive two. For example, the holder of a $1,000 bond of the 1967-68 series would receive $60 in terms of 1220 in 1979, and a second bonus of $30 at maturity in 1982.

Mr. Turner said all other features of the federal bond issues, including the optional interest feature, will remain unchanged. The current issue will remain on sale and will be eligible for the cash bonuses.

He said the $1,000 tax-free interest proposal will relieve pressure on fixed-interest tax by about $210 million in 1974.

Savings for Homes Are to Be Tax-free

OTTAWA (CP) — Government measures to ease the housing squeeze for middle-income earners were outlined in Finance Minister John Turner's budget Monday.

Mr. Turner proposed tax concessions and new rules on down payments to help middle-income earners, particularly young people, save enough to buy a house.

Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford said the new tax and later these programs are designed to ease the lower two thirds of the income group buying homes.

"We are trying to increase the supply of moderate-priced housing and help people to accumulate down payments and to postpone that purchase," Mr. Basford said.

One key proposal is to allow people over the age of 18 to contribute up to $1,000 a year to a registered home ownership savings plan with a lifetime limit of $10,000. These contributions would be free of the purchaser's saving the money to buy his first home or to furnish that house.

Mr. Basford said the government found that there is an unnatural demand for housing at the moment. More than 200,000 new housing units were bought last year—a pace greater than the increase in new families.

Through tax concessions, couples contributing to such plans would be gaining about $280 a year on $1,000 in contributions by waiting.

Mr. Basford said he expects house prices will level off after a period of unusual growth.

Under the savings plan, two members of a family could accumulate as much as $20,000 to put down on a house. Or a husband and wife could each buy a house using the tax measure.

But an individual owning a home would not be the saving program to buy another house, finance department officials said.

Mr. Turner also suggested that property taxes and interest payments on undeveloped land should not be claimed as a tax deduction against other income. These costs should be taken into account only as the land was sold.

A government measure implementing this proposal could encourage land developers to hurry more land on the market. Scarcity of land is considered one of the prime reasons that house prices are soaring in such cities as Toronto, Ottawa and Vancouver.

House Steps Up Its Pace While Waiting for Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — Relegated to the parliamentary back seat by Finance Minister John Turner's budget, routine Commons business Monday made up in speed for what it lacked in drama.

One bill was given final approval without debate, another was pushed through second reading—approval in principle—and second-reading debate began on a third of proposed legislation.

The budget seemed on members' minds as they ripped into each other with political zeal, scoring as many points as possible in the two hours left for routine debate.

A bill designed to encourage further domestic processing of natural resources received third reading minutes after the daily question period ended.

The House then zipped through second reading of a bill to replace the 30-year-old Industrial Development Bank with a federal business development bank that would offer management counselling and other business services. It also would provide loans to help small businesses that have difficulty getting funds through normal channels.

An all-party agreement to limit the number of speakers facilitated the fast-handling of this bill which now goes to the Commons finance committee for detailed study and possible amendment.

The third bill would increase interest-free loans available to farmers who use their land as reverred grain as collateral. The maximum loan would go to $15,000 from $6,000.

With the minority Liberal government's fate hanging on acceptance or rejection of Mr. Turner's budget, some of the speakers Monday sounded as though they already had hit the campaign trail. This feeling soon may become reality if the government is toppled by a budget confidence vote which may come as soon as Wednesday night.

Otto Lang, minister responsible for the wheat board, said the advance grain payments bill is "a small step, but an important step" in demonstrating the government's concern for the West.

Conservative Frank Hamilton (Swift Current-Maple Creek) said he is concerned that the bill would give the wheat board authority to purchase options and force farmers to deliver more grain.

A farmer, Mr. Hamilton said this would wreak hardship on farmers who use their land as security to make extra deliveries.

New Democrat Hank Nesdoly (Meadow Lake), who also represents a farm riding, said the bill should have been part of government farm policy package.

He said that as long as the government's feed grain policy is not defined clearly, there will be problems with the cash advance system.

When debate resumes today, this and more than a dozen other bills introduced since the current session began Feb. 27 will fall by the wayside while the budget is dealt with.

All Below $14,000 Income Get Relief

OTTAWA (CP) — A $50 income tax cut for most lower-income earners was proposed in the federal budget Monday night.

"This change means lower taxes for everyone up to the $13,000 to $14,000 income range, and the benefits are concentrated among income earners receiving less than $10,000," Finance Minister John Turner said in the Commons.

He said the reduction, effective for the 1974 taxation year, if the government survives, would remove 300,000 persons from tax rolls and reduce over-all personal income taxes by about $440 million.

Wage deduction tables would be adjusted July 1 "to give the full benefit of this measure in the second half of this year."

The reduction would be made by altering the five per-cent tax credit plan announced by Mr. Turner in his February, 1973, budget.

Under that plan, taxpayers could deduct a minimum of $100 and a maximum of $500 from the tax they otherwise would pay. The change announced Monday would raise the minimum deduction to $150.

Here is how it will affect the income tax of sample taxpayers:

The tax shown is the combined federal and provincial tax, using the lowest provincial tax rates—Ontario and British Columbia. Equal wages are assumed to have claimed the standard $100 charitable-donations exemption and the three per-cent employment expense deduction, to a maximum of $150.

Other deductions such as child-care expenses and pension contributions are not included. The taxpayers are assumed to be under 65 and to be receiving only earned income.

300,000 More Jobs Expected

Turner Pins His Faith To Processing Industry

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner has tied his prediction of economic growth and inflation control to faith in the success of the upgrading and processing industries.

His budget speech Monday predicted that more than 300,000 new jobs would be created this year, a gain of more than 3.4 per cent. This compared with 430,000 and a gain of 5.2 per cent last year.

Total growth is expected to be about 5 per cent, down from 7.1 per cent in 1973, Mr. Turner said in tabling his third budget as finance minister.

Inflation, he said, is basically a problem of supply and how to ease this formula to contain it:

"First, we have to keep this economy rolling ahead and pouring out the goods and services our people need.

"Second, we have to reduce the strains reflected in particular in those prices where this can be done in a practical way without harmful side effects.

"Third, we must help those Canadians least able to protect themselves from the hardships of inflation."

The budget proposed by Mr. Turner would continue favorable tax rates for the manufacturing and processing sector with substantial adding to the income from other corporate sector.

He firmly rejected price controls but introduced measures aimed at moderate prices of sensitive items—housing and clothing.

He proposes tax cuts for lower income groups.

Mr. Turner said his forecast of growth anticipates that demand will expand in line with capacity to produce.

"Interims of the total demand required to keep the supply of goods flowing at capacity rates, we are on the right course now. We do not require additional stimulus."

Mr. Turner said the core of the government's plan to increase supply has been in effect for some time. The lower rates for manufacturing and processing industries provided in 1973.

Many industries now were at or near capacity and he recalled surveys showing plans by manufacturers for sharp jumps in rates of investment in new plant and equipment.

"New capacity is already coming on stream to relieve shortages of the past few years. Jobs, and the will gain momentum as the year goes on."

He repeated the assertion that a principal cause for inflation "here is a worldwide trend of increases in prices of basic commodities.

There were no indications in the speech of contemplated changes in the monetary policies.

"Rates of interest are painfully high, but the way to bring them down is to get the rate of inflation. This will take some time."

The exchange rate value of the Canadian dollar has gone up in exchange rate value of the Canadian dollar has gone up in exchange rate value, rising above 1.04 in terms of the U.S. dollar.

Both he said, "there can be no question that the appreciation that has taken place is providing some relief in moderating the increase in the cost of living."

A higher value for the dollar makes imports cheaper.

The budget calls for a budgetary and non-budgetary deficit of about $2 billion, about the same as projected a year ago.

Small Businesses Escape Tax Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner proposed Monday new tax bites on the rising profits of almost all Canadian businesses, hitting selected industries with specific tax adjustments and covering most of the others with an across-the-board surcharge.

Small business, manufacturers and processors would escape the sweep which would yield an additional $760 million in corporate tax collections for 1974-75 fiscal year.

Mr. Turner rejected as unsound demands for an excess profits tax, but proposed instead a one-year, 10-per-cent surcharge on corporate profits—with a wide list of exemptions—and suggested using the tax collection from the gimmick to aid certain industries and financial institutions.

A finance department spokesman said all the proposals will be of the government's design and not those of the industries affected.

At the same time, a large part of the federal tax bite would be rebated to the provinces in the form of a new "resource profit abatement" in recognition of the "special position" of the provinces with respect to the taxation and management of resources within their boundaries."

Much of the increased federal income would come from structural changes, mainly the elimination of provincial royalties, mining taxes and other payments from the corporation of income.

The basic corporate tax rate for production profits from mines, oil, and gas was to be increased from 40 per cent to 46 per cent, up from 48 per cent in 1974 and due to be lowered to 47 per cent in 1975 and 46 per cent in 1976.

From this, there now is a provincial abatement of 20 per cent. With addition of the new resource profits tax, the total of the tax on mineral profits would be 46 per cent of the profit on petroleum profits.

The effect of these moves would be to reduce the net federal tax rate, but the added income, would come from rising corporate profits and the change in the tax base.

As part of the "new corporate tax regime" for mining and petroleum corporations, Mr. Turner also proposed a cut in depletion allowances and other incentives.

"It is apparent that the petroleum and mineral resources industries in Canada have reached sufficient maturity that the existing tax incentives are more generous than is needed for continuing development," Mr. Turner said in his budget speech.

He proposed that from now on depletion be claimed only if it is in excess of the annual equivalent of 25 per cent of production profit, rather than 33 1-3 per cent.

Exploration and development expenditures would be partially deductible immediately, would be amortized at 30 per cent a year, on a declining balance basis.

Mr. Turner said that with rising resource profits and discontinuance of automatic depletion allowances, the proposals will be a very effective incentive for encouraging exploration."

The 10-per-cent corporate tax surcharge, which would be effective for a year from May 1, 1974, would apply to the profits of sharply higher corporate profits and political criticism.

It would not be applied to companies, for instance, increased their profit 44 per cent during 1973, and the four that have reported first-quarter 1974 earnings are more than $3 per cent. Imperial and Gulf each doubled their profit over the corresponding period a year ago.

Mr. Turner said collection of corporate tax monthly payments would be based on profits estimated early and final tax payments would be due a month earlier—giving the government an immediate increased flow of funds.

The surcharge would not apply to individual business corporations, to the mining and petroleum corporations affected by his other changes, or to the profits of manufacturers and processors. A finance department official estimated that 1,000 firms have about one-half the country's corporation taxes subject to the surcharge.

"I am attempting to do all I can to encourage the growth of small business corporations, which are largely owned and managed by Canadians," Mr. Turner said.

The exemption increased the income eligible for the corporation tax rate reduction to $100,000 a year from $50,000 a year and the over-limit to $500,000 fro m$400,000.

The surcharge was not applied to the manufacturing and processing in Canada because "it is essential to maintain the reduction in the tax burden on that vitally important sector to enable it to strengthen its international competitive position."

Navigation Error Blamed For Tanker's Grounding

OTTAWA (CP) — An error in navigation led to an oil tanker running aground in the St. Lawrence River near Brockville April 15, the transport department said Monday.

"The ministry inquiry revealed that the vessel hit a shoal after incorrectly identifying a buoy marking the channel," the department said in a statement.

The Imperial Sarnia, owned by Imperial Oil Ltd., was en route to Montreal from Sarnia with a cargo of western oil when she grounded on Middle Whaleback Shoal in U.S. waters. Navigational aids in the area were reported in position and operating correctly at the time of the accident.

Waffle to Run Candidates

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Waffle party says it plans to run up to four candidates in the next federal election.

The party said in a news release Monday it will be the first time the Waffle has entered candidates in an election since it split from the New Democratic Party in 1972. It said at least half its candidates will be women.

The break from the NDP came after the Waffle group proposed large-scale public ownership of Canada's resource industries and key manufacturing industries.

The party said issues it will stress during the election campaign will be foreign ownership of the economy, oppression of women, the "stagnation" of Ontario manufacturing and the need for an independent Canadian trade union movement.

The Waffle said that if a federal election is called this week the party will meet Sunday to ratify candidates.

Former CFL Player Facing Drug Charge

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three men, including a former Canadian Football League player, were freed on their own recognizance Monday awaiting trial Aug. 21 on charges of possessing cocaine for the purpose of trafficking.

Jim Thorpe, 28, former Toronto Argonaut and Winnipeg Blue Bomber player, William Louis Hughes, 25, and Charles Hingwing, 30, entered no pleas and were remanded by judge Nick Mussallem.

What's all this about no-fault car insurance?

There's a lot of confusion about no-fault car insurance. Even the term "no-fault" means different things to different people.

The Consumers Association of Canada* feels many people don't really understand what's involved. Professor Allen Linden†, Osgoode Hall Law School, York University, agrees. In response to this growing concern about no-fault, CIAG INSURANCE is offering you some information and a chance to voice your opinion.

What does "fault" mean in auto insurance?

The "fault" principle goes back beyond Biblical times. The idea of an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth, was adapted by English common law to mean the guilty must pay. In auto insurance it means if someone damages your car or injures you by negligent driving he must pay for your loss. Most motorists carry third party liability insurance to pay for losses they cause.

Over the years insurance programs have developed which ignore fault. Workmen's Compensation, for example, pays for loss regardless of who's at fault. In traffic accidents, however, many people still feel the guilty should compensate the innocent.

The fault system theory is that careless drivers must pay for the accidents they cause and its purpose is to encourage drivers to be careful. Insurance premiums are calculated to cover the cost of claims for which drivers in different rating groups are responsible. According to a recent study the average liability claims cost for married males over 24 was less than half that for married males under 20. The liability coverage premiums for each group reflect this difference.

How about no-fault?

No-fault automobile insurance describes the insurance plan that exists when fault law does not apply to auto accidents. Motorists no longer rely on getting payment from another motorist for vehicle damage or injury but must provide their own protection. Each company pays its own policyholder regardless of blame.

Pure no-fault automobile insurance does not exist in North America. The so-called no-fault plans in some states and provinces are only partial no-fault programs.

By the way - don't confuse no-fault insurance with government insurance. Although limited no-fault coverage is part of government automobile insurance plans in western Canada, no-fault benefits have been offered by automobile insurance companies in Ontario for some years. CIAG was first to do so through additional coverage introduced in 1959.

What do we have now?

Motorists insured in Ontario have no-fault benefits broader than those offered in most other provinces and states and also have the right to sue a guilty party for loss.

No-fault death and disability coverage is part of all liability insurance policies issued in Ontario. It provides:

Total disability benefits for:

—an employed person (or unemployed person age 21 to 65 who has worked six of the previous 12 months) - 80 percent of wages up to $70 weekly, for up to 104 weeks, or for life if disability is permanent

—a principal unpaid housekeeper - $35 a week, for up to 12 weeks

Death benefits for:

—head of household - $5,000 plus $1,000 for each living dependent after the first) or

—a spouse - $2,500

—any dependent child - $1,000

Medical and rehabilitation benefits:

—up to $5,000 a person (four-year time limit) and up to $500 funeral expenses

If an injured person receives accident benefits from his insurance company and recovers from the responsible party, recovery is reduced by the benefits received. But future weekly payments are not affected.

What's wrong with our present system?

• The fault principle served well in the early years of the automobile. Now, with masses of vehicles, complex roads and higher speeds, even a split second counts and it's sometimes difficult to decide who's to blame and to what degree.

You might think it's easy: bad drivers cause accidents. Yes, they do. But good drivers cause accidents too. And bad weather and poorly designed roads and unsafe cars cause accidents. When we try to find the cause of an accident, we can't look only at the driver.

• Who is paid? Only the "innocent" can recover the full amount of their losses. Where responsibility is divided, others may recover part of their loss. Where a driver is judged responsible for the accident, he and often his passengers recover nothing from the other party. But they may suffer loss of wages, vehicle damage, serious injury requiring rehabilitation or a change in lifestyle - all from a momentary lapse of judgment. Their recovery is limited to accident benefits provided by their own policy.

• A committee appointed by the Ontario Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations in 1970 to inquire into claims adjusting practices concluded:

"The public simply does not understand the nature of insurance coverage (and auto insurance particularly) nor do they understand the manner in which claims are settled . . . . Most of the complaints which we received had to do with automobile damage claims and we think that much of the problem and public resentment which may exist against insurers results from the adversary system of resolving such disputes."

Ninety percent of accidents involve vehicle damage only and account for 70 percent of total claim payments.

• Consumerism, the law, and competition among insurance companies have not created satisfactory claims service because of a crucial gap in the system. When you are involved in an accident you deal with the other person's company - not the one you chose yourself.

• Many people feel automobile insurance costs too much. But how does it relate to other costs? In major metropolitan areas it can cost twice as much to park a car ($2-$3 per day) as to insure it; 15 hours auto repair time at current rates of $10-$15 costs as much as the average annual insurance premium. People may be more concerned about paying automobile premiums because they feel they have nothing to show for it until they have an accident.

Why are people talking about no-fault?

• The Ontario government has announced its intention to extend the no-fault benefits now in existence.

• People hope that no-fault will reduce or control the rising cost of automobile insurance.

• Publicity in the United States about no-fault plans as the solution to insurance problems has spilled over into Canada and caused confusion. American problems are not quite the same as ours. The U.S. legal system is different. Ontario automobile insurance costs are substantially lower.

1972 average annual premiums

Toronto	$192	Hamilton	$194	Kitchener	$170
Chicago	470	Buffalo	286	Akron	258
Brooklyn	576	Minneapolis	263	Sacramento	281

• Some people believe the government can solve all our automobile insurance problems with a no-fault monopoly.

• Times are changing rapidly - and so are social conditions. To keep pace, institutions are examined and modified more often.

• The Insurance Bureau of Canada has proposed a no-fault plan to pay for vehicle damage and a substantial portion of wage loss and out-of-pocket expenses for personal injury. The plan would maintain the right to sue for additional expenses and for pain and suffering only in cases of severe injury. The proposed coverage would pay medical and rehabilitation expenses up to $20,000 per person, lost earnings up to $250 a week for up to three years, and a death benefit of $1,000 for dependents under 18.

• The Ontario Law Reform Commission has recommended compulsory, no-fault automobile insurance and the abolition of court action to determine blame for traffic accidents. The Commission recommends that all traffic victims be compensated for medical expenses, lost wages and property damage, but not for pain and suffering.

Is no-fault the answer?

• The question of service: Will a change in the law improve insurer attitudes towards claimants? Taking the emphasis off the adversary fault system and having drivers deal entirely with their own insurers could help.

• The question of rights: The fault system permits compensation of the innocent victim not only for actual out-of-pocket expenses, but also for pain and suffering. It denies compensation to the person at fault in the accident. No-fault seeks to rehabilitate all victims regardless of fault and the extra funds are provided by eliminating the right to sue in whole or in part.

While some rights may be lost, no-fault would bring new rights more important than money compensation, like the right to rehabilitation and help in adjusting to the new situation created by an accident. Rather than focusing on the allocation of guilt and innocence, no-fault emphasizes solving the victim's problems.

• The question of responsibility: Advocates of the fault system suggest that when careless drivers must pay for the accidents they cause, they are more careful. No-fault supporters argue that a careless driver does not pay, but his insurance company does. They say because 85% of motorists are insured, merely making them theoretically responsible does not reduce accidents. Nor does an extra premium charge change the attitude of a person who has caused an accident.

• The question of cost: The cost of automobile insurance reflects the amount paid out for claims. No-fault will not reduce the number of accidents or the amount of damage - it's only a change in law.

Only entirely "innocent" traffic victims receive full payment for their injuries under the fault system. Under no-fault, more people will be compensated. If the guilty are also paid, the cost of insurance will rise. The Insurance Bureau of Canada and the Ontario Law Reform Commission recommend reducing or eliminating payment for pain and suffering and other "general damages" to provide funds for out-of-pocket losses of all injured motorists.

Under no-fault proposals, the young, single driver will pay relatively less in premiums and the middle-aged husband and father may pay slightly more. The reasons: the younger, unmarried person usually drives a lower-value car and has lower income. The older driver heals more slowly and because of generally higher income, must receive more and higher benefits. No-fault insurance rates for each rating group are based on the amount of benefits expected to be paid to each group.

Is there a single best answer?

Please consider the following questions, then complete and return the coupon to Ontario Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations.

• Are you in favor of scrapping entirely the fault approach to vehicle damage claims? In other words, you and another driver would collect for vehicle repairs from your own insurers regardless of who caused the accident. This could avoid the delays that concern most claimants.

Premiums would reflect the benefits paid rather than who was at fault. If you're not satisfied with the service from your company you can change to another.

• Would you favor removing the right to sue for pain and suffering in the case of some or all injuries? Each insured person would be paid out-of-pocket expenses, and trained for other employment if disability prevented his resuming a previous occupation.

I would prefer (for little change in premium):

☐ to keep the present insurance system in Ontario

☐ to have a broader no-fault plan (to be paid for vehicle damage and expenses of most injuries by my own insurer while keeping the right to sue for severe injuries)

☐ to have as complete a no-fault plan as possible (with my out-of-pocket loss paid by my insurance company regardless of who's at fault and giving up all right to sue)

My major concerns about automobile insurance are:

☐ delays in settling claims

☐ other people getting my money because I've never had a claim

☐ having to pay a deductible when I have a claim

☐ poor service from ☐ my agent
☐ my company
☐ my adjuster

Organic Gardening—Healthful And Sensible Advice

Story by Isabel Huggan

If you're one of the many budget-conscious people beginning a garden this year, you're probably already knee-deep in mud, compost and a welter of advice from long-time gardeners.

But you can never get too much information about growing good healthy vegetables. The more you know the better your chances are of finding the gardening system that suits your needs.

One of the most well-informed gardeners in the Quinte area is David Harris, who with his wife Ingrid and son Thoth moved here from Vancouver two years ago.

They are organic farmers, who eschew the use of chemicals and poisons in the garden.

But are their methods successful?

Yes, says David, and adds that recent studies show that vegetables grown organically are superior to chemically-treated ones.

The Ideal Plowing System

COMPOST

A good garden, he says, begins with good compost and he describes the various methods of creating your own compost.

"There are several ways to go about the aerobic method," Mr. Harris says, "but basically all it means is that air is allowed to circulate within the pile or bin.

"The usual method takes three months. You can either use a pile or a bin, but I recommend building a bin because it helps to control moisture and heat. However, don't make it air-tight.

"The bin should be no more than six feet wide, five feet high and 10 feet long.

First you layer six inches of table scraps, sawdust or any type of vegetable matter that will decay. On top of this put two inches of any kind of manure, and on top of this, one-eighth inch of topsoil.

"Sprinkle agricultural lime or wood ash on top of the topsoil to counteract the natural acidity of the compost.

"I also recommend adding ground rock minerals, which take a long time to break down in the soil, and add considerable amounts of valuable mineral content.

"After you've done this, wa-

Plowing with a team of horses is the old way - and the best way - to ready your garden for planting. However, today the horse-drawn plow is seldom seen, although there are some fellows like Bob Reid who'll hitch up a team to plow for a neighbor. Ed Perdue of Foxboro had his field done by Tony and Jess, the Belgian stallions and mares belonging to Bob Danford of Skirling who enters these horses in drawing competitions. But for the rest of us, a rototiller and a load of manure will have to substitute for the real thing.

ter the topsoil till it's damp but not soggy. Then place pipes made of chicken wire along the bin, about three feet apart. This lets air travel through when you place your next layers on top."

After two or three weeks, Mr. Harris says you should turn the bottom layer up to the top and mix the material together. In about five weeks it should be turned again.

In three months, the compost will have reached sufficiently high temperatures (150 degrees) to kill weed seeds and break down the organic matter into dark, sweet-smelling humus-like soil.

A much faster, and actually preferable method is the "14 day aerobic method", which uses the same materials as the first one, but all material is shredded or ground. A rotary lawnmower can be used to do much of the shredding.

"Also recommend adding ground rock minerals, which take a long time to break down in the soil, and add considerable amounts of valuable mineral content.

"Sprinkle agricultural lime or wood ash on top of the topsoil to counteract the natural acidity of the compost.

"I also recommend adding ground rock minerals, which take a long time to break down in the soil, and add considerable amounts of valuable mineral content.

"After you've done this, weeks you'll have usable compost.

This system is better because grinding provides smaller particles, which creates better aeration and more surface area to be worked on by bacteria. Also, this type of pile is lighter and easier to turn.

Another advantage is that this method doesn't leach its nutrients into the underlying soil since it holds its moisture more successfully.

Mr. Harris recommends the use of black plastic sheeting over the top of the bin or pile to prevent rain water from washing away valuable nutrients. Also, he says, keeping the pile covered helps to raise and maintain the high temperature needed for good compost-making.

There are "compost helpers" on the market, which Mr. Harris says aren't necessary, since the herbal activators don't really increase the speed, and the chemical activators make the compost too acidic.

The aerobic method of compost-making is pretty much the same as the one described, except for one major difference: the material is allowed to sit for a long period of time, without aeration of any kind. This system takes well over a year to produce compost, and if you have the time, is certainly the easiest way, as you never need turn the layers of organic material and soil.

Two further hints regarding compost — don't use too much sawdust, as it is particularly low in nitrogen, and if you do use low-nitrogen matter, sprinkle ground blood meal to the compost to compensate for this fact.

MANURE

"Manure is a big field," says Mr. Harris, "and really useful to your garden."

There are two classifications for manure — hot, which is high in nitrogen content (horse, sheep and chicken manure) and cold, which is low in nitrogen (cow manure).

If you find a source of manure for your garden, be careful to avoid small piles that have been outdoors for a long time, as most of the goodness will have leached out.

If you get a load of manure and intend to keep a small pile by the garden, scoop out the top of the pile to prevent the rain water washing down the sides and leaching the "goodness" away.

Don't use "fire-fanged" manure that has white streaks in it, caused by the evaporation of nitrogen during fermentation. If the manure doesn't have nitrogen in it, it isn't useful.

Look for manure that has lots of "bedding" (straw) which has trapped the urine and ents for your use. Look also for well-rotted manure for your garden, since it no longer has an odor, and it won't burn your plants.

If you're going to use fresh manure, you must plow it into the soil a year before you plant. If you've got manure this spring that isn't perfectly rotted, plow it into the soil but wait three weeks before planting.

The best proportions for fertilizing your soil, Mr. Harris suggests, are 25 pounds of manure, mixed with 10 pounds of rock phosphate, per 100 square feet of garden.

MULCH

Talking of what to put in the soil, brings us to what to put on the soil. Mulching is fast becoming the most popular way to garden, largely because hopeful people expect it to eliminate weeding.

They'll be disappointed, Mr. Harris says, since mulch will certainly reduce the weed growth, but won't end it entirely.

"Besides," he says, "weeds can be your friends. Deep - feeding long - rooted weeds bring nutrients up to where your vegetables can use them too."

Mulch is good for your garden in other ways, such as preventing the soil from drying out, and replacing some nutrients as the layers closest to the soil decays.

Mr. Harris' only objection to black plastic mulching is that it doesn't give anything to the soil. He suggests hay, peat moss, grass clippings, ground leaves or corn cobs, and any combination of these with sawdust, as ideal mulching material, since they help the soil.

Don't use unshredded leaves to much, he advises, since the leaves form a heavy mat that can lower your vegetable production by as much as 20 per cent. Don't use straight sawdust either, he says, since it will "suck" nitrogen out of the soil.

With most compost make your layer about six inches thick, but with peat moss keep the layer shallow, no more than an inch deep.

The most important thing to remember about mulching, Mr. Harris says, is not to do it too early. If you mulch young seedlings, your efforts will produce a condition known as "damping off", a white cobweb-like fungus that is 90 percent fatal to the young plants. Wait until your vegetables look like themselves more than sprouts, about three inches high, before you mulch around and beside them.

PLANTS

Planting time is one of the essential elements in having a successful garden. Knowing when to plant various vegetables makes the difference between a great crop and a meager one.

"You don't need treated seeds if you plant at the right time," says Mr. Harris.

"Your peas should already be in, so that they get a good start in cool weather. So if you're late with them, plant again this week for insurance.

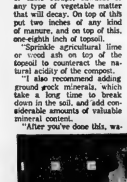
"Onions also should be in, since they need lots of sun to bulb properly. They should get 4 good growth now so that they're ready to crowd beets later in the summer.

"Broad beans are the only beans to plant early, all others go in the end of May, when you plant corn, melons and carrots."

Radishes can go in early as well, and several small plantings over a period of a month is best, so you don't get too many at once."

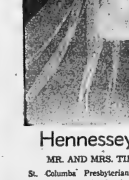
Herbs are very, easy to grow, and are useful dried during the winter as well as fresh during the summer. Summer savory, parsley, marjoram and rosemary can all go into the garden early, as can sage and mint.

One of the "discoveries" of the past few years is something that farmers have known for years - some plants get along, and some don't. The theory - of "companion gardening" is a complex subject, and if you're interested in doing your best by your vegetables, do a little research at the library before you plant. There are many available books on the topic.



Basically, the best way to plant your garden is in terms of time (make your rows chronologically) height (don't put tall plants like corn in the way of short ones that need sun) and compatibility.

One of the best things you can do for your garden is to plant field marigolds throughout the plot.



These pretty and pungent yellow flowers are a tremendous aid to keeping away harmful insects and those dreaded baddies of the gardening world, nematodes, the near-blind creatures that nibbles away on roots. Dried marigold flowers make a safe astute for saffron.

Other helpful hints from Mr. Harris: Mulch your cabbage plants particularly well, and give them as much water as you can to get them through the dry spells of summer to their heading-time; Chinese cabbage is very easy to grow, and can be transplanted until the end of June for harvest in September; Sunflowers have a tendency to kill all nearby plants; Swiss chard is a cinch to grow and continues to multiply as you pick off leaves; If you haven't got your head lettuce started by now, don't bother, the season isn't long enough; If you cover your beans and peas with innoculant (made specially for them) when you plant, your plants will give a better crop, and your soil will be better enriched when it's time for producing nodules the innoculant encourages on the roots.

Finally, use your common sense, and enjoy yourself out of doors, puttering in the garden. That's what it's all about!

Towns — Hall

Holloway Street United Church was the setting for the April 13 wedding of Elizabeth Ann Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hall of RR 3, Frankford, and Ronald Orval Towns, son of Mrs. Thomas Donaldson of Fort Saskatchewan, Alberta and Ron Towns of Smithers, B.C.

Rev. W.J. Lamb of Toronto officiated at the ceremony, assisted by Rev. Clare Kellogg.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of organza and chantilly lace, with a bodice accented by a wedding band collar and lace trim. Full sleeves drawn by a wide cuff and a skirt which formed a chapel train. Her headpiece of organza rosebuds and rose blossoms held a four-tiered illusion veil. She carried red roses and a white Bible, and wore a pearl necklace which belonged to her great grandmother.

Marriann, Debra and Donna Hall, the bride's sisters, were dressed in pink in gowns identical to the maid of honor. Each attendant carried a white satin Bible with carnations tinted to match their dress.

The best man was Gary Petherick, and the ushers were John Blakely, the groom's brother-in-law, Andrew Brown and Robert Gibson cousin of the groom.

After the reception held in the church hall, the newly married couple travelled to Kingston. They reside now at RR 1, Trenton.

Hennessey — Lloyd

MR. AND MRS. TIMOTHY HENNESSEY

St. Columba Presbyterian Church was the setting for the April wedding of Elizabeth Jane Lloyd, daughter of Mrs. Inez Lundberg Lloyd and Timothy Earl Hennessey, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.E. Hennessey of St. John, New Brunswick.

Rev. David Murphy officiated at the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her brother Gregory Carl Lloyd and her mother the bride wore a gown of white satin over organza with an empire waist. Her picture hat held a veil which fell in three tiers to her shoulder, and then in one tier to make a flowing lace-edged train. She carried yellow roses, white mums and ferns.

Debbie Dunn of Minden was maid of honor in a gown of green and orange sheer print over taffeta, with a V-neck and long sleeves accentuated with butterfly ruffles. The A-line skirt was trimmed with orange ribbon at the waist that fell in streamers at the back. She carried white mums and fern.

Bridesmaids Elizabeth Windsor and Joanne Fahey were dressed in a similar style to the maid of honor.

Gregory White of Toronto was the groom's best man. The ushers were Wesley May and George Vasilopoulos.

After a buffet-style reception at the ANAF Club, the newly-married couple travelled to the east coast on their wedding trip. They now live in Windsor, Nova Scotia.

Browne — Ketcheson

MR. AND MRS. ROGER BROWNE

The April wedding of Barbara Lynn Ketcheson and Roger Robert Browne took place in the evening at Trenton United Church. Rev. James Paxton officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Ketcheson of RR 5, Trenton and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R.K. Browne of Trenton.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a pure silk crystal organza gown with a full skirt and a chapel train, long full sleeves and a stand-up neckline. The moulded bodice was accented with an overlay of Chantilly lace, as was the skirt front and the long veil. A Juliette cap held her tiered scalloped veil and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

Helen Ketcheson was maid of honor in a floor length sheer gown with long banded full sleeves, a V-Neckline accented by frills, and a flounce around the skirt hem.

Bridesmaids Rita Vanderlinden, Bonnie Uhrys and Rita Browne wore gowns similar to the maid of honor's in variegated shades of orange, pink and green. All the attendants carried bouquets of white daisies and carnations.

Dennis Roche was best man, and Ken Fowler, Randy Browne and Karl Ketcheson were ushers.

WILDERNESS WOMEN. (Canada's Forgotten Pioneers)
By Jean Johnson

In school we heard all about Leif the Lucky and Jacques Cartier, Champlain, Hudson, Brock, Fraser and Mackenzie. But we didn't hear about the remarkable women who were there, too— the women who played indispensable roles in the exploration of North American and the development of Canada.

Some of these "wilderness women" were Godrid the Viking, a key member of the 1000 expedition to Vinland; Marguerite de Roberval who showed Champlain it was possible to live off the land, and Molly Brant who played the great game of high politics with the destiny of Canada as the stake.

There was Marie-Anne Lagimodiere who roamed the prairies with the explorers and the Nor'westers and Martha Black became Canada's second woman MP among the Canadians who shaped this country.

All these women are part of the hidden half of the Canadian saga, and Jean Johnston has brought them into present day focus revealing their difficult but exciting, dramatic lives.

This book is available in the Corby Library.

Volunteers Break Through Poverty

LONDON (Reuter) — "Hey, white girl," a black driver yelled at a young Englishwoman walking down a street in a suburb of Kingston. Jamaica, and she snuffed by an indignant local who turned to the driver and said, "She no white girl, she teach here."

Both the girl and her organization, Voluntary Service Overseas (VSO), take this in their stride in the incident. It illustrates a level of integration with a local community which is the aim of every VSO volunteer.

By latest count there are 1,250 volunteers working in some 60 developing countries to break through, in the words of a spokesman, "the vicious circle of underdevelopment, poverty and ignorance."

VSO was founded in 1958 to assign volunteers to development projects overseas.

Receiving three-quarters of its £50,000 ($2 million) budget from the British government and the balance from private and corporate sponsors, VSO is open to all British citizens over the age of 18.

A few of the volunteers are retired people who make up in skills and experience what they might lack in youthful energy.

A 71-year-old veteran, appalled by the thought of retirement, is lecturing last year at the animal health and industry training institute in Nairobi, Kenya.

At the other end of the scale an 18-year-old, just out of school, was teaching English and history in the Gambia, and Ellice Islandi in the Pacific Ocean.

Both the pensioner and the 18-year-age undergoes a stringent selection process before being assigned to their posts—more than half the applicants are turned down.

The selectors attach great importance to the "character," stability, a sense of humor, tenacity and the ability to communicate with people.

Equally, the selection board looks for specialized and sometimes highly sophisticated skills.

The majority of volunteers are given teaching assignments, as university lecturers in Egypt and Indonesia or as primary school teachers in west Africa and the Caribbean.

But there is a wide variety of other posts, ranging from speech therapists in Malaysia, from aircraft maintenance engineers to agricultural economists with experience in co-operative farming.

Whatever the actual job and the qualifications of the volunteer, the conditions of service are challenging and even austere.

After a short training course, the successful applicant receives a modest grant towards equipping himself and passage to the host country.

The volunteer serves there usually for two years, receiving free accommodation and medical care and an allowance of some £3 ($8.75) a week.

At the end of an assignment the volunteer qualifies for a modest resettlement grant on his return home.

Many employers consider VSO service as valuable experience and some hold positions open for volunteers when they return, but clearly the rewards are personal and not financial.

There is a consensus among the volunteers when they return that their VSO service constituted a two-way benefit, that in the developing countries where they served they took just as much as they gave.

This does not rest solely on the scope that VSO gives a young teacher, doctor or engineer to gain practical experience and a degree of responsibility at an early age.

The personal rewards are essentially the increased awareness of others gained through working with a community.

Malnutrition Still Undefeated

GENEVA (Reuter) — Government measures, improved medical services and better methods of farming are still failing to defeat malnutrition in the world's developing countries, says the World Health Organization (WHO).

Some 10 million children throughout the world are "at great risk of death" because of vitamin deficiency, and in Asia, Latin America and Africa another 90 million are suffering from malnutrition, said Dr. Jose Brengo, head of the Geneva-based organization's nutrition unit.

Advances in medical science are keeping many malnutrition sufferers alive where in the past they would have died, but they are not solving the root causes of the problem, Brengo said.

Technological progress in agriculture has been considerable "but any benefits depend on the extent to which man can make use of he new advances," he wrote in the WHO official journal, World Health.

"The world's nutrition problems cannot be solved just by increasing food production, nor is any action taken by health services in itself sufficient to improve the nutritional status of a population."

Brengo, who is Venezuelan, said there is a marked global decline of mortality in children under five.

"In some countries the decline is impressive and might even suggest that nutritional conditions are improving rapidly. Careful consideration, however, shows that this is not so.

"It is well established that specific public health action in preventing deaths has to any improvement in the standard of living, including general nutritional conditions.

The WHO said the world is under-utilizing its food resources. Of more than 3,000 edible plants available on the earth, only between 200 and 300 were consumed.

The report said hundreds of thousands of children, mostly in Southeast Asia, were blind every year because of vitamin deficiency. In some cases the corneas of the eyes were destroyed.

In South America iron-deficient anemia had been found in between five and 15 per cent of men and between 10 and 35 per cent of women. "Even in the United States it is highly prevalent."

In Asia WHO showed that up to 40 per cent of pregnant women were suffering from anemia. In some areas of the world between one and five per cent of the population were suffering mental retardation because of a lack of iodine in their diet.

Successful Living

Courage for Kindness

By DORIS CLARK

The man or woman, boy or girl, filled with active kindness, does not shrug shoulders at cruelty and say, "It's none of my business."

He does something about it. And sometime this is very difficult.

Above is the message I am reading on a bookmark turned out by The Kindness Club, an international organization now with many branches in many countries, which was started by Mrs. Hugh John Flemming (Alda) a few years ago.

Have you ever thought that it takes courage to be kind? All too often we associate courage with the ability to stand up for ourselves, either mentally or physically, by being ready to fight and protect ourselves from physical abuse or ridicule.

When we are very young we sometimes try to show our "bigness" by exerting our strength or by mischievously picking on some thing or someone smaller than ourselves.

Put in his worst terms this is really "bullying".

Yet courage, put in its best terms, means the courage to do what we see as right and human and to do those things which make an improvement in the world around us. That is what Aida is trying to say through her Kindness Clubs — and making a wonderful job of it, too!

Dear Doris: I was touched by a story about a little boy who found his mother after many years of separation.

At 18 I had a child whom I gave up for adoption. I am now 65 and alone. I never married.

I still go out to work every afternoon but I am heart hungry to learn something about me and if possible to see him. Could you help me?

So Many Years.

Dear So Many: Before replying I wrote to the family agency in the city where you live.

Now I have the answer officially! All the files that had to do with the adoption of your son have been destroyed. At the time you made the decision to let your boy go, you must have been warned that adoption information was kept strictly confidential. So even if they did have information at hand now, they could not tell you.

This rule protects the parents who welcomed your little one with open arms and took him on as their own, raising him and loving him. It could be desperately confusing to a young boy to suddenly discover that there was another person claiming him!

If you are lonely for your son at this late date, try offering that unused love of yours where it is needed. There are many young — and older — people (and service groups) who need what you have to give. You are likely to live another 20 or 25 years (a quarter of a century!

Confidential to Money Matters: Many years ago a finance man who is much respected by men and women alike, impressed on me the importance of achieving a balance between what we spend right now and what we put by for a rainy day. It is no more sense to save every last cent beyond what bare living costs us, than it is to squander it all.

Local Political Action Suggested For Women

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Women must be prepared to conduct an "intellectual political coup" if they desire to bridge the gap dividing the sexes on the local government level, a women's conference was told Friday.

Anne Jones, regional chairman of Hamilton-Wentworth, told delegates to a weekend workshop on the role of women in local government that belief in themselves is the first step.

"If women have the desire to bridge the gap dividing the sexes on the local government level, a women's conference was told Friday.

Anne Jones, regional chairman of Hamilton-Wentworth, told delegates to a weekend

A balance home consists of a father and mother and their children, she said. "Upon surely balanced government depends that both men and women help to make a decision that will affect countless families."

Ann Landers
'Cut the Bull' Reader Advises

Lady: Why don't you cut the bull and tell those guys who request it when the little woman wants a night out that she was just as much right to "single it" as he does?

When men say they want a night out with the boys, what they are really looking for is a night out with the girls. If a wife is willing to be that broad-minded (ha, ha, he'd get broadside his mind all right), then he should say "OK, Honey, go out and enjoy yourself, too."

I am not a Women's Lib nut or anything like that. I just believe fair is fair. And the rules of the game should be the same for both sexes. The double standard went out with the buggy whip and corset days.

Let's face it, after five years every marriage goes stale. A little diversion can be a very good thing. So why not encourage people to be open and truthful instead of putting on a big act? There isn't a husband in the country who hasn't strayed at least once after five years of marriage, and you can bet your life on it.—Mr. Truth

Dear Mr. T.: Bet your own kiddo. Your sweeping generalizations are too darned sweeping as far as I am concerned.

Dear Ann Landers: Is something wrong with me? Whenever I get a compliment, like "Gee, I like that dress," I always reply "It's three years old"—or, "I got it on sale for half price."

Yesterday somebody complimented me on a chain I was wearing around my neck. I said, "It's not real gold. It's actually a cheap little thing I picked up in a novelty shop."

Afterwards I'm always sorry I answer that way because sometimes I think I insult people. It's like telling them they don't know quality from junk.

What's wrong with me? How can I overcome this habit?—Cheddia

Dear C.: Everyone, no matter how sophisticated or well-adjusted, has some area of insecurity. You need practice in accepting praise of any kind with this: Have a stock answer ready for the very next person who gives you a compliment. Say: "Thank you. I like it, too. How nice of you to notice."

Dear Ann Landers: Some of your experts aren't so expert. For example, that music teacher who suggested to parents that they start their children on a second-hand instrument when they begin to take lessons.

I teach music in the public schools. I always advise parent (particularly those of talented children) to go to a reliable music store and use the rental plan if they can't afford to buy a new instrument outright.

There is nothing more defeating (or frustrating) to a child than playing on a bum instrument. Those violin violins, for example, can drive a learner crazy. The same goes for rusty reeds and antiquated wind instruments.

Music can be so rewarding. Children should be encouraged by producing the best music possible early in their learning careers. A decent instrument helps.—Also A Teacher

Dear Also: I bow to your superior judgment. So, here's a change in signals, folks. Rent a good instrument for your learner. (P.S. I started on a new violin which my father bought—and it still sounded awful.)

General Chews Out Major

Seated in the courtroom, Tony van Bridge as General Burgoyne chews out his subordinate, Major Swindon, portrayed by James Valentine in George Bernard Shaw's melodrama The Devil's Disciple. The general disagrees with Major Swindon's viewpoints concerning the American rebels during the United States' struggle for independence. Shaw's three act play is being brought to Belleville's Centennial Secondary School Thursday, May 9 under the sponsorship of the Quinte Arts Council and The Intelligencer. Tickets for the Shaw Festival production are available at McKnight's in Belleville and Brunnx Jewellers in Trenton. Curtain time for the one night performance is 8 p.m.

Opera Winners Announced

TORONTO — Soprano Constance Adorno, tenor Stephen Young and technician Neil Needham, students of the Opera Department of the University of Toronto's Faculty of Music, have been named as the 1974 Canadian Opera Guild Scholarship winners. The announcement was made by Mrs. Norman O. Coxell, guild chairman of the Guild.

Constance Adorno, winner of the Vida H. Peene Scholarship, was educated in the United States and Canada and has sung with opera workshops at Florida State University and in Florence. Stephen Young, a native of Kirkland Lake, is winner of the Herman Geiger-Torel Scholarship. Both singers participated in the University of Toronto's 1974 Opera Dept. productions of Don Giovanni, Dido and Aeneas and Gianni Schichi. Hamilton's Neil Needham worked with theatres in Toronto and Hamilton before entering the Opera Dept. in 1973. Winner of the Canadian Opera Guild Technical Scholarship, he has been engaged for the 1974 Stratford Festival season.

The scholarship winners will receive their awards at a special dinner May 13 at the Ontario Science Centre. The scholarship dinner, which will feature Miss Adorno and Mr. Young in a short musical program, will be followed by a showing of the film version of Verdi's La Traviata, starring Anna Moffo in the Science Centre Auditorium.

Showbiz Shorts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was a love feast for Groucho Marx, and nobody had a better time than Groucho. He sang old songs and heard tributes.

More than 200 entertainment figures came to the party Wednesday night paying homage to the 83-year-old comedian.

The event was arranged by comedian Bill Cosby, actor Jack Nicholson, and Marvin Hamlisch, who won three Oscars for his music in The Sting and The Way We Were.

Groucho received an honorary Oscar at the award ceremonies last month.

Cosby said legal difficulties have been solved and the 1930 Marx comedy, Animal Crackers, will be seen by the public for the first time since 1936.

The second of the Marx Brothers films, Animas Crackers had been bought from Paramount by Universal in 1950. Lawyers discovered the copyright had reverted to the authors, some of whom had died.

Cosby said Animal Crackers will have an official "premiere" May 23 in Los Angeles. Among those present will be Zeppo, 71, and Gummo, 81, who handled business for the team, and Groucho.

HOBART, Tasmania (Reuter) — American jazz drummer Buddy Rich was fined $50 Australian (about $53) Wednesday for possession of marijuana. The judge also ordered forfeiture of $400 bail as Rich did not appear for the hearing. Rich, 56, of New York, was arrested in November, 1973.

NEW YORK (AP) — Alan Alda had a system for fighting homesickness when he was in Los Angeles filming M-A-S-H. He writes, But because of this system he will have to work doubly hard this summer and next fall.

He now has a second CBS series to worry about. It is We'll Get By, a half-hour comedy show coming up in September. Alda created it, has written six scripts for it and will be its co-producer.

Alda lives in suburban New Jersey with his wife and three kids when M-A-S-H is not being made.

The new show is not the first TV writing he has done. The Manhattan born actor said he had written two M-A-S-H scripts that were filmed and a pilot for another proposed series ABC turned down last year. The proposed comedy series was about New York politics, Alda said.

We'll Get By has an apparently unlikely premise for a comedy series. It is about a sales engineer, his wife and three children, who live in suburban New Jersey.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Wednesday, May 8

Aries (March 21-April 19) Be careful whom you criticize today. The person you're apt to be talking about may be a potential friend of the listener.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Be wary, very careful today with goods or possessions of others. You'll be held accountable if anything goes wrong.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Weigh your decisions today with extra care. Boobies made now will be big-size and difficult to resolve later.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Don't-tackle any tasks today that you know for sure are beyond your talents. Results will be anything but productive.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You will be tempted to take some risks today that you normally wouldn't. Don't yield to impulsive judgment.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Matters that have an effect on the family as a whole should be thoroughly discussed by all, and not decided by you alone.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Yesterday you looked at things realistically. Today, you're apt to make matters far too optimistic. Come down to earth.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The shoe will be on the other foot concerning finance or business. The edge you had yesterday has shifted to the other guy.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Forbidden pleasures will hold a tantalizing appeal today. If you get involved, you'll later have no one to blame but yourself.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) When making judgments today, focus only on the conditions pertinent to the issue. Your reasoning is subject to irrelevant influences.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Someone you're involved with could turn out to be an expensive pal if you get too caught up in her interests. Tread lightly.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't agree to something for the sake of expediency. You will make an enemy if you back down later.

Threat Continues

In the last two decades, accidental deaths of pre-school children in the United States have decreased only half as rapidly as deaths from disease.

Ontario Housing Raises Bid Limit to $18,750

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Housing Corp. (OHC) hopes to provide detached homes for low-and middle-income earners at prices ranging from $18,750 under a new pilot new policy to permit builders higher construction costs.

In a statement Monday, OHC said it is inviting contractors to bid on construction of 647 houses on leased lots in Carleton Place in Ontario; Elmvale; Illson; Kingston Township; London; Petrolia near Sarnia; and Woodstock.

They will be erected under the Home-Ownership Made Easy (H.O.M.E.) program and builders no longer will be forced to keep their bids to eligible for a three-bedroom house or $21,500 for a five-bedroom bungalow.

Housing Minister Sidney Handleman announced April 26 that the province would no longer insist at first prices for construction costs, but would permit builders to submit bids on current appraised building costs in each municipality.

Target levels for the 647 houses would be $18,750 to $20,750.

"We're hoping these target levels will even be lower," Handleman spokesman said, commenting on the statement.

If OHC raised the construction ceilings because builders were not responding to requests they erect houses at the $15,000 to $21,000 levels.

Under the H.O.M.E. program, those earning $14,500 or less are eligible to purchase the house for which mortgage financing is available from the province at 8% per cent.

The minimum down payment would be five per cent of the monthly payments must not exceed 25 per cent of the purchaser's earnings.

Families with two incomes are eligible if their combined salaries don't exceed $17,000.

Under terms of the H.O.M.E. plan is that the buyer leases the lot from the province, which retains ownership of the land.

Under Monday's statement, OHC said it was making serviced building lots available for 15 detached and eight semi-detached houses at Carleton Place. It also plans to be able to provide units at $20,000 to $22,000 for three- four-and five-bedroom houses.

The monthly payment for the leases on the lots will range from $23.30 for semi-detached and $32.05 for detached houses.

Builders will have until May 24 to make their submissions in Hamilton where the demand for lots is so high that they will be distributed by lottery.

OHC has 300 lots for detached houses in the Lawrence Park area of the Kingston Town ship where prices go from $18,750 to $20,750 a unit.

In London, there are 43 lots available for detached houses in the $18,750 to $20,750 range. Leases will be $20.27 for 55-foot lots and $42.81 for 60-foot lots.

Cutting of Nerve Not Pain Cure

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Five years ago I had a severe case of shingles from my back around my right shoulder, up my arm and breast. The skin is scarred and the nerve hurts all the time. I've had to take pain medication all this time, at least to go to bed.

Would having the nerve cut to stop the pain leave that whole area numb? Is there any other method of relief?—Mrs. K.C.N.

Most cases of post-herpetic (after shingles) pain ultimately subside, but some will continue on and on, as in your case, it is indeed a distressing misery.

Neurologists tell me that severing the nerve is not a solution in such cases, but that they are having success with combination of therapy (effective with the extreme pain of lic ancer) and Dilaudid. Besides they report, is much more effective than the pain-killers commonly in use in the past.

Tegretol does demand careful use and watching, but it is effective in these difficult cases.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please tell me what causes heartburn and what can be done to relieve it.—Mrs. L.M.P.

It's an ulcer in the duodenum, which is the first section of the stomach, and that type of ulcer is the commonest of the peptic ulcers—that is, ulcers related to the digestive area.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 75. X-rays show my neck is very bad, likely from the effects of a fall many years ago, or both. I see doctors often who in my therapist writes me they have success stretching the neck or cervical spine. Of course a doctor first studies x-rays to see if it is warranted.

The stretching is done on a special machine, made in this country. How come nothing like it is recommended here? I asked several doctors but none had heard of it.—B.O.W.

Can't say I ever heard of a machine like that—but traction, the more usual term for "stretching," has long been in use here for many purposes.

Perhaps the arthritic joints isn't likely to help the arthritic, but traction, in suitable cases, can sometimes draw the bones apart to relieve pressure on a nerve.

The particular name of the device used is of no great consequence. And anyway, it is often perhaps usually, more practical to use some sort of mechanical harness and a pulley so a patient can use traction for a few minutes each day.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Ten girls and I are very puzzled about this one problem: At the age of 13 can a girl menstruating easily get pregnant if she has sexual love during that time? We really want your help because at the moment that girl is not ready and needs some advice—Mrs. K.

The answer to you and 10 other girls is this: pregnancy is unlikely at that time but it has in rare instances been known to occur.

If the girl of 13 had asked my advice—which she didn't—I would have given her terms. First, not to depend on that as a means of birth control unless she is willing to take at least a slight gamble. Second, that it would seem to be more comforting in 10 other girls is a bit extreme.

Use Revenues For Arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former defence secretary Melvin Laird says Persian Gulf countries are using their oil money to build an "awesome arsenal of weapons." Commenting in a forword to a private study of arms in the gulf, Laird said: "The major gulf powers, with their immense oil revenues, have been able to procure large amounts of weapons and are being instructed in their use."

Win at Bridge

By Oswald and James Jacoby

In an all-expert game South would go down at his three notrump contract with no hesitation in play or bidding.

East would win the first trick with the ace of hearts and lead back the five spot. Expert South would play the 10 and the defender would collect four hearts and the ace of spades.

An ordinary player sitting South might well start with the queen and make his contract or he might have no problem to start with. An ordinary East might well cash the ace and king of hearts, anyway.

Why would the expert South play the 10 and not the queen?

It is a matter of something called restricted choice. Suppose to simplify matters that East plays the king and then the ace.

South knows it makes no difference if West holds both the ace and jack, but it matters if West holds just one of them. South also knows something else. If West holds just one he is twice as likely to be holding the ace as the jack.

The reason is that if East held king-jack he would surely have played the king. If he held king-ace as was the case here expert East could be expected to play the king half the time and the ace half the time. Thus, when he played the king he was twice as likely to be left with the jack as with the ace.

♠♥CARD Series♦♣

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
Pass	2 ♠	Pass	?

1. You, South, hold:
♠K3 ♥A J 7 10 8 ♦A 6 4 ♣Q 9 6 4
What do you do now?
This is a tough one. Either four spades or three notrump is a reasonable bid. Or you might try a fancy bid of three diamonds or three clubs.

TODAY'S QUESTION
You hold the bid three notrump and your partner bids four hearts. What do you do now?

Answer Tomorrow.

Mounties' Questions Likened to Newsmen's

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand has compared RCMP investigating reporters with reporters investigating anyone else—both are seeking information that might be of use to them.

The minister made his comparison Monday in a written reply to questions on the Commons order paper in which he again refused to confirm or deny that four Alberta journalists were involved in the RCMP.

Mr. Allmand and the RCMP have refused to comment on charges, published in the Western Report, that four were investigated.

However, in answering seven written questions from Peter Bawden (PC—Calgary South), he said the RCMP's responsibilities in security screening, counter-subversion, counter-espionage and the protection of important persons necessitates contact with various elements of society, including the mass media.

This contact might develop leads and in that event the RCMP security service is obliged to determine if leads have substance, Mr. Allmand said.

In such cases, it was sometimes necessary to make inquiries with a responsible person, such as the individual's supervisor, a fellow employee or other persons.

Such a procedure is standard whether the inquiry is of a criminal or security nature and, as such, varies little from the procedures utilized by members of the media when pursuing a potential news story.

The undertaking of any inquiry is not an indication that the security service is singling out for investigation any specific individual or group."

Takes Leading Role

TORONTO (CP) — British soprano Anna Green has been engaged to sing the leading role of Senta in the Canadian Opera Company's production of Wagner's The Flying Dutchman opening May 7 in Toronto. Miss Green has appeared in major opera houses in Europe and makes her debut with the Metropolitan Opera in New York this spring.

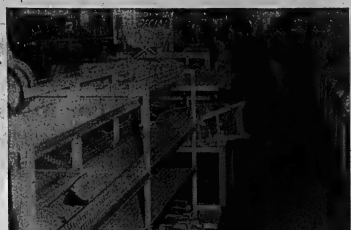
Don't Pack Woolies Yet



If you found yourself putting an extra blanket on the bed last night you don't have to be told that it's been cold lately.

The weatherman at CFB Trenton said last night's low temperature of 36 degrees was about 10 to 15 degrees below normal. It wasn't any record for that date, though. That occurred in 1907 when the temperature for a May 6 dipped to 26 degrees.

The reason given for this chilly weather is a surge of cold air coming down from the north and pushing its way down.

Other record temperatures for this time of the year are: 31 degrees reached on May 7, 1966 and 34 degrees on May 8 of the same year.

If will remain cool the next few days the weatherman says, with low temperatures in the high 30s and high temperatures in the low 50s forecast for the weekend. So if this is the week you're chosen for your holidays, you better unpack that wool sweather and lay on lots of wood for the fireplace.

Moving Out

The shelves at the Metropolitan Store on Front Street are being cleared in preparation for the store's closing on June 1. The store has been a downtown institution since 1929 and plans for the future of the building are not yet definite. The store employees four full-time workers, two part-time boys and a part-time girl.

Shelves Being Emptied For June 1 Closing

After 45 years of being a downtown institution, the Metropolitan Store on Front Street will close its doors for the last time on June 1.

Stock is currently being readied to be sent out to other stores of the Metropolitan chain throughout the country.

Chris Robinson has been manager of the store since the death on April 20 of Charles Parker, who managed the store for the past five years.

Mr. Robinson said the building, built in 1929, has already been rented or sold but didn't know right now who would be taking it over.

As part of the reason for the store's closing, he said the downtown store was not large enough to carry the line of merchandise it would like to.

"The line carried in this store is small compared to those of the larger Metropolitan stores. Metropolitan has a plan to phase out smaller and older stores as the new ones come in," he said.

All workers at those Metstores that stores are provided with severance pay and with excellent chances of carrying on their jobs in other Metstores throughout the country, should they move.

Indicating that should Metropolitan choose to relocate in Belleville, Mr. Robinson, who came from the chain in Ottawa, said that employees here would have no trouble getting their old jobs back.

At the downtown store, there are seven employees, four full-times women, two part-time boys and one part-time girl. The part-time workers are students.

Mrs. Daley has worked at Metropolitan for 21 years, the last 19 of these as chief cashier at the store.

She says she has seen a lot of changes both in the store and in Front Street in general. Shee recalls the many fires that have occurred downtown since she started working at Metropolitan in 1952.

The fire closest to her store at Black's Meat Market, she remembers by the smoke that filled the Metropolitan Store.

As for her future plans, she says: "I'll continue to work. I don't have any plans. It happened so fast. But I'm not going to worry about it. I'm sure something will open up soon."

Top Dog

This weekend during the Quinte Exhibition, the Belleville and District Kennel Club will hold a field trial, and obedience demonstration as well as approved sanction show. But before a dog is ready to be shown, it is necessary to learn the basic steps of proper handling. For 10 weeks, the club has been running a course for dog owners on proper dog handling. Judging was this week and a Maltese owned by Pat Plante placed first. Here Mrs. Plante, poses with her Maltese, Tommy, while judge Bill Shillington left and course instructor, Allan Chambers looks on.

Quinte MPs Predicting Federal Election July 8

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The next federal election: Eight weeks away.

The issue: Inflation.

That's the predicted sequel as Conservative MPs for both major Quinte ridings reflected on Monday night's national budget.

Both Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, and George Hees, MP Prince Edward-Hastings, see an early overthrow of the minority Trudeau government as the New Democratic Party withdraws support after failing to win budget concessions.

"I would think that would be the end of the government. I'd think the government would be out at that time — and that the election would be on," he said.

Its timing? The first two weeks in July, says Mr. Ellis.

"July 8th," says Mr. Hees.

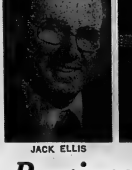
Both forecasts fall within the time framework of an earlier prediction made last week in Madoc to The Intelligencer by Paul Helfper, former Liberal Cabinet minister, now Conservative MP for Toronto Trinity. He looked to July 8th.

Both Quinte MPs almost twinned descriptions of Finance Minister Turner's budget proposals.

"A bits-and-pieces budget," said Mr. Hees.

"Patchwork-type of changes in tax measures," said Mr. Ellis.

Both claimed the budget does not tackle the "crunch" national issue — inflation, although there are measures that cannot be argued away and which the Conservatives could support.



Those include abolition of clothing-shoes tax, making it easier for young farmers to stay in business, egalation of veterans' pensions, taxes off municipal water services.

"But there isn't a single thread through the whole thing you can hang your hat on and say the budget is anti-inflationary," said Mr. Ellis. What was needed was some "new ... imaginative" measure. "It just isn't there."

"It does absolutely nothing to get at the root causes of inflation — and therefore control," says Mr. Hees.

Politely, demands already set forth by the NDP as "non-negotiable" with the Liberal government it has been helping stay in office — cheaper mortgages, stiffer anti-profiteering legislation, — were not conceded by the finance minister, said Mr. Hees.

"So I can't see that they can possibly support the budget," he said. "If they did, it would be the eighth wonder of the world. It would be the most unbelievable thing that's ever happened. After what they said they just couldn't do it and stay, in any way, shape or form, creditable."

Students Run Coffee House

BRIGHTON — Brighton's youth-operated coffee house has been a sort of salvation for the young people of that village.

The coffee house, held every Saturday night in the basement of the Scotty Broughton Youth Center at Dundas and Alice Streets, provides both musical entertainment and a meeting place for young people.

Mike Zuber and Vince Callahan, students at East Northumberland Secondary School, started the project as an offshoot of their mini-business as disc-jockeys for social events, weddings, banquets and public school dances.

The sound system for the coffee house, owned by the two students, supplies continuous music from record and tape for dancing. Their lighting equipment is part of a new setup including a strobe light and colored floods.

The coffee house attracts from 60 to 70 people every weekend and, says Vince, "we have had no trouble yet this year. The police usually checkin once or twice a night and we have adult chaperones along with anyone else who wants to drop in."

More adults are needed by the coffee house crew to act as chaperones.

"Quite a few adults around town like the coffee house and others think it's a bad idea," Mike said.

This brought a response from one young Brighton girl: "This is the only thing we have left to do. There used to be a store with picnic tables where we could sit, but people complained and now we don't have it anymore."

Nine students at ENSS and Brighton Public School joined together to solve the problem.

Province Will Assist Farmers to Get Help

Many Ontario farm operators have been frustrated in recent years by a shortage of qualified farm labor for seasonal and full-time work and to ease the situation the provincial agricultural manpower services in co-operation with Canada Manpower has decided to do something about it.

The primary function of the Ontario Manpower Services Branch has been in the selection and placement of full-time farm workers but in co-operation with Canada Manpower, training programs for farm workers with little or no agricultural experience have been established at the College of Agriculture Technology at Kemptville.

The training periods cover a ten-week course of classroom and on-the-farm training.

The major obstacle to the Branch's efforts to assist farmers has been the difficulty in finding people willing to work on farms, mainly due to the long-term image of the "hired man" being regarded as the low man on the social totem pole.

However, these images are gradually being overcome and agriculture officials say they must continue to change ra-

The second edition of the city's Chamber of Commerce book "... Happening in Belleville booklet is available now.

About 3,500 copies of the 24-page booklet are being distributed said managing director of the chamber, Don Santos.

They can be picked up free at such places as banks, industries, and other public places. As well they will be distributed to various Chambers of Commerce throughout Ontario.

The latest booklet contains articles such as' New Developments in Belleville; Growth and Change; Dining Out in Belleville; Accent on Industry and a helpful, comprehensive map of the city outlining various landmarks.

The booklet is the Chamber's official publication and its editor is Ed Howard.

Frankford Residents Supported

Sidney council came out in favor of the provision of water and sewer services to township residents living around Frankford Monday.

Services would be provided through the plant Frankford is now constructing.

Trash Pickup Requested

Sidney council will investigate the cost of semi-annual bulk item garbage pickup following a complaint from a township resident that Quinte Sanitation Services Ltd. does not provide such a service.

In a letter to council Monday, Frances Wilkinson suggested set times in the year should be provided for pickup of large items and garden refuse. She said hauling garbage to the township dump was difficult since in spring the dump road is often axle-high in mud.

Council discussed hiring a private contractor to remove large items, such as mattresses, that the Quinte Sanitation-Sidney township contract does not provide for.

Reeve Gordon Wilman will talk to both Quinte Sanitation and private contractors to canvass costs. He said Monday he will report his findings to council in the near future.

Witnesses Sought

The Ontario Provincial Police are seeking the assistance of the public in their investigation of a criminal offence.

They request passengers who travelled by the 9 a.m. Voyageur Colonial bus from Toronto to Peterborough and the 11 a.m. bus from Peterborough to Toronto on Thursday, December 4, 1973, to telephone either Detective Inspector G. H. Cooper at 416-965-6871 or their local Ontario Provincial Police detachment office, (968-5507)

Helping Out

It was people helping other people yesterday as the Salvation Army's Red Shield residential blitz got under way. And while it's too early for exact figures brought in from last night's blitz, indications are that a good start has been made toward the $13,000 goal set for the month of May. While Major Ray Nelson of the Salvation Army Corps looks on, David Pudge processes the returns of volunteer Mrs. L. A. Daugherty who collected a total of $111.

Hungry Thief Helps Himself

A hungry thief has left Belleville police scratching their heads, after he stole two pizzas from the rear of a delivery truck in front of a home on Hastings Drive last night.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie reports that Jim's Pizzeria lost two pizzas to a thief around 11.20 p.m. yesterday when their delivery man was making a delivery at 135 Hastings Drive.

Jewelry Stolen

An unspecified quantity of jewelry has been reported stolen from the repair shop in Broad's Jewellery and Gift Shop, 206 Front Street.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie says the store manager reported the loss of a quantity of jewelry from the repair shop to police around 2.30 p.m. yesterday.

The jewelry, which was in the shop for repairs, was believed to have been stolen sometime between Friday and 2.30 p.m. Monday.

At present, police do not have a list of the stolen items and they are unable to estimate the value of the goods that have been reported stolen.

Meet Aeros in WHA Final

Cougars Knock Off Toros

TORONTO (CP) — "Our plan was to play for the breaks—and when they came, we capitalized," said player-coach Pat Stapleton of Chicago's 5-2 victory over Toronto Toros Monday night that sent the Cougars into the World Hockey Association final against Houston Aeros.

The best-of-seven series opens Sunday in Chicago's 8,000-seat Amphitheatre.

Bob Liddington sent a backhander into the Toronto net off defenceman Carl Brewer, who had attempted to deflect the shot, after 39 seconds of play in the second. The Jean Pagel put Chicago in front by shooting the puck over Toros' goalie Ron Grahtie, who was prone on the ice at the 7:43 mark.

Bob Sicinski was awarded Chicago's third goal when the Toros' Guy Trottier deflected the puck into his own net and Darryl Maggs made it 4-1 by deflecting Rod Zaine's centring pass past Grahtie. Liddington got the other assist on the play.

Chicago's Duke Harris and Toronto's Rick Sentes traded third-period goals.

Remaining dates for the finals: At Chicago, Wednesday, May 15; at Houston, Friday, May 17; at Houston, Sunday, May 19; at Houston, Monday, May 20, if necessary; at Chicago, Wednesday, May 22, if necessary; at Houston, Friday, May 24, if necessary.

"Chicago played better than we did," Toros' coach Billy Harris conceded. "They were a better team and healthier. But I'm not disappointed with the Toros' effort under the circumstances. In fact, I'm proud of them."

As an example, Harris called centre Wayne Carleton's performance "remarkable."

"He couldn't walk, but he wanted to play tonight. He took treatment all day for an injured leg and a sore back which was strapped before the game."

Regina Pats Whip Hawks In Memorial Cup Action

CALGARY (CP) — Regina Pats whipped St. Catharines Black Hawks on hot hockey and fisticuffs Monday night as they collected a 4-0 victory in the second game of the 1974 Memorial Cup finals.

From the time that Regina's pesky Rob Laird beat Larry Finck after Finck rapped him with a high stick in the first 10 seconds of the opening period, the Pats were in charge.

They got two goals from defenceman Greg Joly and singles from Laird and Rick Uhrich.

A crowd of 7,415 loud and boisterous fans in support of the Western Canada Hockey League champions, watched the clubs battle through the first two periods before play slowed in the third as the Pats protected Eddie Staniowski's shutout.

The nimble netminder blocked 28 shots. Bill Cherepita and Fred Saliive of the Hawks combined for 28 saves.

Cherepita and Staniowski also tangled in the larger of two brawls that delayed the first two periods. Each drew a minor for roughing and a minor for leaving the crease at 3:44 of the second period.

The incident started when Wilf Paiement of St. Catharines and Clark Gillies of Regina had a brief fight, the second of the game for each. Laird and Finck also had their second bout.

Referee Marcel Vaillancourt of Sherbrooke levied a game misconduct against Laird and another against Greg Craig of the Hawks. Laird got his for refusing to enter the penalty box and Craig was banished for using the first to leave the bench.

In all, the Pats had 15 penalties for 30 minutes while St. Catharines took 14 penalties for 34 minutes.

Joly lofted a high shot for the opening goal and connected from a scramble for the last one with St. Catharines two men short following the second period brawl.

Laird who helped set up Joly's first goal, made a brilliant individual play to notch the second. He blocked a shot at his own blueline and hustled down the right wing, hesitated to allow a defender to move out of position, then drilled a low shot past Cherepita.

Uhrich's goal came after he split the defence and fired a shot that trickled under the Hawk goaltender's pads.

The Pats meet Quebec Remparts Wednesday night in the third game of the Canadian junior hockey finals. The Remparts dropped a 4-1 verdict to the Hawks Sunday and need a win to level each team with a 1-1 record.

If Regina wins, the Pats and St. Catharines will meet Sunday night in the final. If Quebec wins, a c'kiw will be held to determine which team receives a bye into the final. The two other teams play Friday with the winner reaching the final.

Big Third Period Gets Job Done For the Steelers

OTTAWA (CP) — Selkirk Steelers have a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Centennial Cup Junior hockey final and they've done it all in two third periods, says coach George Dorman.

"It was another big third period for the guys tonight. It sure makes you feel good," said Dorman after the Steelers dumped Smiths Falls Bears 7-4 Monday before 2,800 fans.

The Steelers scored three unanswered goals in the third period Monday and came from behind in the third Sunday to win 5-4.

"Our goaltending was great again tonight, and the whole club is getting better each game, but (Andy) Stoess made three great key saves in the third that held the lead for us," Dorman said.

Stoess turned aside 39 shots while Rocky Menard stopped 33 for Smiths Falls.

Brothers Ken and Gary Kluzniak combined for three goals and three assists, Mario Vaxmorkovics scored twice, and Erwin Martens and Owen Wilkinson had singles for Selkirk.

Wingers Bill Barber and Don Saleski held similar feelings.

"Some of us, talked it over during the summer and convinced ourselves we had a team that could go all the way," Barber said.

Saleski said there had been a decided carry-over this season from the effort made by the team last year.

"We knew we had gone farther than any other Flyers team last season, and we felt we were in for a big season."

Coach Fred Shero supplied the work and an easy discipline that built a good team spirit.

Shero says his team will employ the same tactics against the Bruins that it has used all year.

The Flyers, led by left winger Dave Schultz, generally run a people. This includes opposing goaltenders as New York's Ed Giacomin found out in the semi-final.

By the same token, the Philadelphia defence throws a ring around Bernie Parent, clearing attackers from the goaltender's area with regularity.

Coach Bep Guidolin said Monday the Bruins will not stand for the "intimidation" tactics.

"No one on this club backs off," Guidolin said. "They have too much pride in that Boston sweater."

Flyers Began To Plan Early

BOSTON (CP) — There may be a few skeptics who believe Philadelphia Flyers' surge to the Stanley Cup final was a "fluke." But the doubters would be wise not to express their views to the Flyers or the New York Rangers.

The success of the Flyers this National Hockey League season arises from planning, hard work and a determination to win.

Philadelphia will meet Boston Bruins at 7:30 EDT tonight in the first game of their best-of-seven final. The game will be shown in Canada by the CBC television network.

The plot to have Philadelphia become the first NHL expansion team to join the cup began a year ago in Montreal Forum.

The Flyers lost there, eliminated by the Canadiens, eventual Stanley Cup winners, in the fifth game of the semi-finals. Philadelphia won only the first game.

But several of the Flyers already were planning for the current season.

"I, for one, couldn't wait for this season," centre Bobby Clarke said. "So before training camp—in August, I think—some of us got together at a New Jersey rink to start workouts.

"Nothing serious, just a few guys skating and shooting the puck."

McLain's Position Clarified

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Former major league pitcher Denny McLain and catcher Jim Price will play in as many games with London Majors of the Senior Inter-County Baseball League this season as time permits, club president George Hall said Monday.

Hall said in a news conference that the two former Detroit Tigers would be in uniform for the season opener here May 24, against defending champion Kitchener-Waterloo Panthers.

He said he called the meeting to clarify an earlier report that McLain would be pitching for $30 a game.

McLain apparently heard the story in Detroit, Hall said, and he called a radio station there to deny the figure and say he had not signed for the complete season.

Hall said he drove to Detroit last weekend and ironed out the misunderstanding.

The president emphasized that it was an amateur league and that job commitments come first, as is the case with McLain and Price.

He said the pair would participate in as many games as these commitments allowed and would be paid their expenses.

Boston or Philadelphia? It's Bruins in Seven

Well, it didn't happen exactly the way you read it here back on April 9 but, the Stanley Cup finalists are the teams we - (ahem) told you would be there.

If it weren't just a piece of bloomin' luck on the part of this pseudo swami, there would be a strong inclination to say "We told you so".

Fact of the matter is, when someone reminded us we'd chosen Boston Bruins to take Philadelphia Flyers in seven games in the final, we couldn't recall having done so.

Quickly digging out an April 9 issue, we learned the truth. There it was staring back: "In the final Boston will outlast Philadelphia in seven games".

And we'd been betting Flyers.

But then, that's exactly the way to recoup some of our earlier losses. Back the team which has been counted out.

It's been a foolproof method most of the time. Check the favorite here and put your money on the other guy.

Can't lose. Or can we?

Who's gonna pull it off for Bruins?

As Dick Burrowes remarked just last evening: "Watch out for Sheppard".

And who can argue with that?

Greg Sheppard didn't cause, too many raised eyebrows while toiling during regular season play. He counted something like 16 goals.

However, once the playoffs began, the guy started to produce. And so often, that is the case.

Sheppard's nine goals is second only to the 11 chalked up by Philadelphia's Rick MacLeish. Rick has played 11 playoff games to Gregg's 16.

Of course, this time around, the Boston shooter will be facing a magician in Flyers' Bernie Parent. If anyone can turn the tide in Philly's favor, it's that incredible performer.

If you're looking for other heroes from the ranks of the Flyers, how 'bout Rick Foley or Bill Flett? Either one of those fellows could break loose in the big series.

Past performance indicates MacLeish, (11 and 9?), Gary Dornhoefer (5 and 6); Ross Lonsberry (3 and 8) and Bobby Clarke (2 and 8) will carry the mail for the Philadelphia squad as it attempts to become the first expansion team to take all the marbles.

Boston counters with veteran Johnny Bucyk who has seven goals and seven assists to date. Then there's the big line, Phil Esposito (7 and 4); Ken Hodge (5 and 6) Wayne Cashman (3 and 7) haven't been exactly handcuffed in the playoffs. Need we mention Bobby Orr?

It should be a very interesting series.

And when the moon comes over the mountain, Kate Smith and the Flyers may have pulled off an upset.

But it says here, there will need to be two moons in the sky.

SLICES — The thought which must be running through the minds of most ball club officials these days is: "How in tarnation do we prepare for league openers in weather like this?"

But prepare they must.

Many softball and baseball leagues will be opening the holiday weekend, May 20.

The Belleville Industrial Softball League doesn't have that long to get set. Teams that group will get into the swing of things Monday, May 13.

Quinte Fastball League play begins May 20 with a twin bill at Alemite Park. In the first game, Belleville Ellis Juniors meet Howard and Robert Printing while Trenton Auger Men's West took up with Rollins Construction in the second half of the doubleheader.

Other teams in the loop are Deseau Motors and Bardon Supplies.

McKittrick Heads Junior League

The East Central Ontario Junior Softball League has picked up its four teams and will begin play in its inaugural season Wednesday, May 29.

That's the word from the meeting held last night in Napanee, with Kingston Township the fourth team to indicate their intentions for the upcoming season. That team, along with clubs from Cobourg, Picton, and Napanee posted its bond to the league at the meeting last night.

The executive of the league was also named at last night's meeting, with Don McKittrick of Napanee the president.

Jim Tetworth of Belleville is the first vice president, while Bob McGreer of Napanee is the secretary-treasurer.

Serving as second vice-president is Cord Smith of Cobourg, with Ralph Mountenay of Hillier the third vice president.

Cliff Belch of Belleville, second vice-president of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association was named as a special advisor to the league.

Brian Beatty of Bloomfield will handle the statistician duties.

Deadline For Entries

The final meeting for entries in the Belleville and District Ladies' Softball league will be held tonight at the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club.

Starting at 7:30, the meeting is expected to draw some seven teams to enter, a rather abrupt change from happenings in the league last week, when membership in the loop dropped to three from last year's five.

No entries will be accepted after tonight's meeting.

Just Out of Reach

Two Pitchers Make Trade Look Good

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The best baseball trade is supposed to be one that helps both clubs. For the time being, the recent seven-player American League swap between Cleveland Indians and New York Yankees is a good one.

Fritz Peterson, was sent from New York to Cleveland, yielded eight hits but only three runs in six innings and notched his second victory since the April 28 deal as the Indians whipped California Angels 5-3 Monday night.

Dick Tidrow, who came from Cleveland to New York, made his first start for the Yankees and scattered nine hits in eight innings, picking up a 6-4 triumph over Texas Rangers.

Elsewhere, San Diego Padres edged Philadelphia Phillies 7-6 in the only National League contest for unbeaten rookie Dave Freisleben's third victory. Baltimore Orioles downed Oakland Athletics 9-3 at Detroit Tigers nipped Chicago White Sox 5-4.

Two National League games were rained out—Los Angeles Dodgers at Montreal Expos and San Francisco Giants at New York Mets.

Oscar Gamble drove in two runs with a homer and double and Buddy Bell also homered for Cleveland, and then started a decisive two-run fifth inning with a single as the Indians snapped the Angels' six-game winning streak.

Peterson blanked the Angels until the fifth when Dave Chalk doubled, Bobby Valentine singled and Frank Robinson bonered. He gave way to Milt Wilcox at the start of the seventh.

"I would have enjoyed going longer," he said, "but I know I haven't pitched that many innings this year. I'm disappointed I didn't go longer, but three starts from now I'll really feel bad."

The Yankees won when Jim Fregosi, who batted Texas back from an early four-run deficit with an RBI single and three-run homer, controlled a two-base throwing error in the seventh inning that led to a pair of unearned runs, driven in by Bobby Murcer's single and Ron Blomberg's infield out.

Fred Kendall's single in three runs for the Padres with a home run and double, and Nate Colbert knocked in three with a single and double to help Freisleben, who needed help from Rich Troedson in the seventh inning and Vicente Romo in the ninth.

Freisleben, a 22-year-old right-hander, yielded six hits and four earned runs in 6 1-3 innings after pitching complete-game four-hitters in his first two appearances.

Pinch-hitter Dick Sharon drove in the tying run with a grounder in the seventh inning then stole second and scored Detroit's winning run on a single by Jerry Moses, ending Chicago's five-game winning streak.

Jim Northrup, who homered for Tigers' first three runs, started the winning rally with a single. Pat Kelly and Ed Herrmann homered for the White Sox.

Brooks Robinson rapped out four straight hits and drove in a pair of runs, and Paul Blair hit a two-run homer to help Baltimore snap a five-game losing streak and give Mike Cuellar his first pitching victory of the season.

Robinson singled a run home in the third inning and doubled during recent American Baseball League action.

New York Yankee Jim Mason connected for the hit another across in the fifth. Blair, who singled and scored in the first inning, homered in the sixth. Cuellar allowed seven hits, including consecutive first-inning homeruns by Joe Rudi and Reggie Jackson. It was Jackson's 11th of the season, tying him with Graig Nettles of the Yankees for the major league lead.

Oakland starter Paul Lindblad not only took the loss, but committed a throwing error in the first inning, ending his major league record string of 385 errorless games. His last miscue was in 1966.

Alston Gets Tough

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers' manager Walt Alston, angered by three losses to Philadelphia Phillies during the weekend, apparently ordered his slumping players to bed at 8:30 Sunday night.

The Los Angeles Herald Examiner reported Monday that Alston issued the order after being called to the hotel lobby to quiet his players who were causing a disturbance during a poker game.

"If I played like you did in that game today, I'd be in bed with the pillows over my head," Alston told the players.

"I know when the skipper is mad, and he was mad," said pitcher Jim Brewer. "I've seen him that way twice in 10 years and this was the second."

The Dodgers lost Sunday 3-2 when pitcher Mike Marshall walked home the winning run on four pitches.

'Best Three Holes' Win for Allin

DALLAS (AP) — "Those were probably the best three holes of my life," said Buddy Allin, winner of the $150,000 Byron Nelson golf tournament.

Allin swept away from three challengers with three birdies on the home stretch Monday to capture his fourth tour victory and the $30,000 top prize.

He closed with a three-under-par 66 for a record 72-hole total of 288—13 under par.

Allin had a four-stroke victory over Tom Watson, Lee Trevino, Charles Coody and Hoopers Blancas.

Blancas, who was one shot off the pace entering the final round, closed with a par 71 on the soggy 6,957-yard course and pocketed $10,233 along with Watson, Coody and Trevino.

Watson had a 70, Trevino a 69, and Coody 68.

Kermit Zarley seized sixth place money of $5,408 with a 66 for 284. Bob Charles, 69, and Jim Simons, 70, shared seventh, good for $4,619, while Butch Baird, 65, Bob Wynn, 68, and Bruce Crampton, 72, were a stroke back at 276.

Reds in Trouble

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds manager Sparky Anderson, concerned over his club's stumbling start in the National League, says the Reds "are not going to quit."

"We've hit bottom and we'll dig in and go from there."

Losers of four of their last five games, the Reds open a nine-game home stand today against St. Louis Cardinals hoping to iron out some inconsistencies that left them in third place in the league's West Division and trailing Los Angeles Dodgers by four games.

The Reds' 13-11 record has the earmarks of the 1971 collapse when they fell 8½ games behind in the first month and never recovered.

"We have no alibis," said Anderson. "We've lost some tough games. But, over a season, you're going to lose a certain number of those games. What difference does it make when they come?"

Anderson blamed much of the team's problems on ralnouts which have left his five-man pitching rotation rusty.

PCOs Stop Excelsiors

BRAMALEA, Ont. (CP) — Etobicoke's PCO defeated Emmaks Excelsiors 17-14 in the only Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A game Monday.

Brian Hoey, Paul Murdoch and Wally Clozza scored four goals each for the winners.

Single goals came from Al Bert Ford, Mike Fisher, Bob McDonald, Brian Lagree and Dave Hoey.

Northmen Now Southmen

TORONTO (CP) — The first down for Toronto Northmen of the World Football League will be in the $1,000-seat Memorial Stadium in Memphis, Tenn.

John F. Bassett, president of the Northmen, said Monday night in an interview that he abandoned plans to play in Toronto's CNE Stadium as soon as he was informed that the city parks commission in Memphis voted to lease their stadium to his team.

"We'll be moving the franchise the moment the lease is formally signed," Bassett said.

The owners of the Northmen—whose name will likely be changed to the Southmen—will be joined in Memphis by a group headed by country singing star Charlie Rich as partners.

"Our group will retain control and interest, of course," Bassett said. "We will have a five-year lease with an option for another five years."

The Memphis city parks commission's decision might have dashed the city's hopes of obtaining a National Football League expansion franchise.

Grain millionaire E. W. (Ted) Rogers said today he approved that the grant of the lease would mean the NFL would not be interested in moving to Memphis.

The NFL has said Memphis was one of four cities under consideration for an expansion franchise.

Bassett was bitter about legislation introduced by Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde designed to bar WFL teams from Canada.

"This team (the Northmen) may leave, but I am sure there will be others in the WFL that will eventually come into Canada," Bassett said.

"If an election is called, I hope the people of Toronto will remember that Lalonde denied them football of a superior quality."

Lalonde's legislation, which bars any United States football league from Canada, has passed second reading and now is being considered in committee.

As for raiding Canadian Football League teams, including Toronto Argonauts, Bassett said, "the gloves are off now."

"Lalonde went to every extent to protect the CFL but as far as I am concerned that game is over.

"I would never return this team to Canada. The Northmen now belong to the people of Memphis."

Training camp will begin June 1 in Memphis with a squad of 110 players, Bassett said.

The commission voted 3-1 to approve a lease under which Toronto would have preference of playing dates in Memorial Stadium for the next 10 years.

Toronto had asked for a three-year exclusive lease.

Safe--Out

Montreal, Expos' pitcher Steve Rogers has it made until he oversleeps the bag at second base during game with New York Mets. Ted Martinez makes the play.

Veteran Back Traded

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League have traded veteran running back Ken Willard to St. Louis Cardinals for future draft choices. Willard, 30, who has been in the NFL nine seasons, is the leading rusher among the league's active running backs with a total of 5,920 yards.

Bans Muscle Builder

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — The International Olympic Committee (IOC) announced Monday that anabolic steroids, the controversial but increasingly popular muscle builder, will be banned at Olympic Games. At the same time, the IOC's medical commission called on international sports federations to follow its lead and help enforce the ban.

Bill Debated

Ontario Land Tax Won't Cut Prices

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario tax to combat land speculation will not reduce housing prices, Revenue Minister Arthur Meen said Monday.

But Mr. Meen told the legislature before the bill received second reading—approval in principle—that he did expect it would reduce the rate of increase.

Progressive Conservatives and Liberals supported the bill—which imposes a 50 per cent tax on speculative land profits—and the New Democratic Party opposed it as being toothless.

Mr. Meen said he would propose some amendments in committee and before the bill gets its third and final reading.

One amendment, designed to protect the small builder, will allow him nine to 18 months to get dwellings on purchased properties.

The second amendment is designed to protect those who maintain rental properties by giving them an abatement tax.

They would become eligible after two or three years and the tax would decline on a graduated basis for those who keep the property.

Mr. Meen said that the bill was not designed by itself to drive down the cost of housing and said it was "part of a package . . . a multi-pronged attack on inflation."

The revenue minister said the government was "pricking the inflation boom" and expected the bill would reduce the rate of increase of the cost of land.

"I'm not suggesting it's going to reduce (housing) prices. Nobody is," he said.

Earlier, NDP leader Stephen Lewis said the government should be getting $500 million in revenue from the tax, not the $25 million projected in the present bill.

"The loopholes and exemptions in the bill are like a sieve, through which speculators will slide easily and comfortably all the way to the bank," he said.

He was critical of the Liberals for supporting the bill in principle.

Liberal spokesmen said they would support it but the bill would require substantial changes before it became law.

Bernard Newman (L—Windsor-Walkerville) said he supported the principle of a speculative tax because "I think it is right that if one does nothing to a piece of property, that one should be taxed substantially."

Mr. Newman said rising house prices have spread 50 to 70 miles beyond Toronto and "We don't want to see it coming into the Windsor and Essex County . . ."

Mr. Lewis said if the government really wanted to impose controls on land speculation it would raise $950 million from the $10 billion real estate industry.

He said the tax—50 per cent on land speculation profits—"won't make one jot of difference. The speculation will continue unabated."

"This legislation has opened up so many avenues of escape for the development industry it is virtually irrelevant."

Earlier, Donald S. MacDonald (NDP—Toronto York South) refused Treasurer John White's request that he apologize for calling the bill "a fraud."

Mr. White said it was not fraudulent because Toronto real estate officials already have credited it with softening the market.

But Mr. MacDonald said housing prices would be increased as well as consolidated.

"In short . . . the tax is a fraud. I am sorry to put it into such blunt phrase alogy but the tax is a fraud," Mr. MacDonald said.

DAM FOR DUCKS

GILMOUR, Ont. (CP) — The ministry of natural resources is building a dam near this Belleville, Ont., area community to create a marshland for ducks and other wildlife. The area's feeding grounds for waterfowl became choked off by undergrowth when logging activities ceased several years ago.

Sharp Sees Scant Hope Of Fast Famine Action

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp had little hope Monday that an international conference on world food supplies can be moved ahead to deal with problems expected this year.

The three-week United Nations-sponsored conference is scheduled to begin Nov. 4 in Rome. Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) asked in the Commons whether it might be held earlier.

Mr. Sharp said Canada recognizes the problem, but it would be difficult, if not impossible, to have the conference earlier because such meetings are arranged far in advance.

An external affairs department spokesman said later that Canada expects to send a delegation of about 10 persons to Rome, including one or more cabinet ministers.

The conference apparently was called in response to appeals by American State Secretary Henry Kissinger last September.

Whole Newspaper Pages Transmitted

LONDON (CP) — The world's first international news-page transmission system has started operating between Paris and London.

Film transparencies of complete made-up pages of the International Herald Tribune were sent from its Paris office to printers near London by a facsimile system developed by the British Muirhead company. The quality of the transmissions is so good that printing plates can be made from the transparencies.

The system is called Pagefax. It solves a major problem for the Tribune by relieving pressure on its Paris office. The printing firm of King and Hutchings, based at Uxbridge near London, will produce some 50,000 copies a night for the United Kingdom, Scandinavia and parts of northern Europe.

Although this is the first European installation of Pagefax, the system is in use in the United States where pages of the Christian Science Monitor are transmitted from Boston to Chicago and Los Angeles. In Turkey it will shortly be used to send pages of the newspaper Hurriyet from Istanbul to Ankara and Izmir.

Muirhead officials say the system will lead to more decentralization of printing operations.

Slum Profits Era Over in Australia

SYDNEY (Reuter) — Australia's Labor government has served notice on property developers that the era of big profits from rundown inner-city areas is over.

As part of a program of inner-city rehabilitation, the federal government has announced the purchase, for $25.2 million, of 47 acres of decaying tenement houses in the Sydney suburb of Glebe.

The land and buildings were bought from the Church of England, which for nearly a century has kept this harborside section of Sydney a low-rent area for students, low-income earners and pensioners.

Some aged pensioners had been paying as little as $8.40 a week for a house in what is prime land area for developers of home units and modern town houses.

The government announced a $7.5-million facelifting will be carried out on the historic tenements of Glebe, but the low-rent population is to stay put.

This move is a major blow to the property developers who have made millions by ousting the established low-renters of the Sydney inner suburb of Paddington and converting the area into the city's trend fashionable suburb.

Sydney's Paddington, less than a decade ago a failing down, dying suburb, now is the in place for rising young executives, architects and the better-off fringe of Sydney's artistic world.

A tiny two-storey restored tenement house or brand-new three-bedroom townhouse in Paddington can have land developers had already decided to make a Paddington of Glebe. But that was before the government stepped in.

As an agent said, "Other inner-city suburbs have already become Paddington-ized, and Glebe had the potential to be even more so because of its closeness to the city and its older, more historic architecture."

It is only the Church of England, keeping the area in low-rent one and without the funds to restore the 19th-century houses, which has kept the developers out up to now.

Announcing the purchase, the federal minister for urban and regional development, Tom Uren, said the Labor, traditionally known as "the lands of Bishop Thorpe and St. Philip's had been bought in one fell swoop to prevent fragmented ownership.

"This would have opened the way for harmful redevelopment of individual properties, and pressures for changes in the nature and intensity of land use in the area," he said.

"Purchase of the estates by the Australian government will enable coherent, planning and development," Uren said.

The decision is being lauded by the pensioners and students of Glebe, as well as the conservationists of Sydney.

Real estate values here, as in every major city in the world, are skyrocketing as inflation continues to eat away the value of the dollar and people search for a stable investment for cash.

Most other inner city areas are already well out of the reach of average income earners, let alone students and pensioners. Glebe, it is hoped, will become the exception to the rule.

Historic Citadel Hill Is Halifax Attraction

HALIFAX (CP) — Citadel Hill is known to every Nova Scotia schoolboy as both the birthplace of this historic port and guardian of its colorful past.

It was to this windswept mass rising 225 feet above the harbor that Governor Edward Cornwallis and his 2,500 English settlers came in 1749. And the hill where they first established has a fond place in the hearts of Haligonians to this day.

Once a stronghold of British power, the historic hill retains none of its military might. Long gone are the huge guns which once commanded the harbor, now obscured by a phalanx of high rises.

Yet the number of tourists who annually visit the Citadel by far outnumber those early settlers and soldiers who gave British rule in North America some of its earliest roots.

Each year visitors by the thousands are drawn up the winding roads for a glimpse of history, or, simply to get away from the bustling city below.

Many are cultural enthusiasts interested in the provincial museum which displays artifacts of the early settlers and of the Micmac Indians who once peopled the area.

Even more are drawn by the military hardware of bygone eras in the national park museum where display cases show weapons from spears of the 15th century to the bombs of the Second World War.

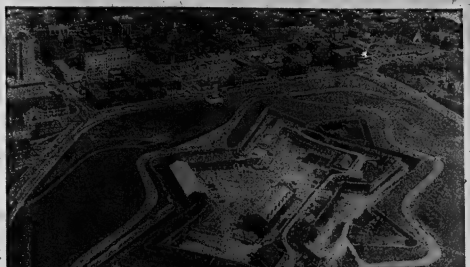
Among the array is a bronze-jacketed Enfield Maxim machine-gun, introduced to the British Army in 1891 as a replacement for the Gatling gun.

Four of them used in concert, as the inscription says, bear the dubious distinction of having mowed down more than 3,000 Zulu warriors during a 90-minute clash in Africa in 1905.

It was the 'citadel' or series of forts from which Halifax's most famous hill draws its name.

Originally, five stockaded forts connected by a palisade surrounded the early townsite as protection from marauding Indians.

Over the years, with threats posed by the American Revolution and the rise of Napoleon, the defences were continually improved.



The Citadel was torn down and rebuilt on four separate occasions until the original chain of weak forts became a mass-like system of rambling polygonal earthworks, and granite walls five-feet thick.

Work on the fourth citadel, an impregnable mass of stone and brick which stands to this day, began in 1825 and the fort became known as one of the strongest military installations in the Empire.

The 20th century saw the proud Citadel reduced to a relic and an anti-aircraft installation with occasional service as a detention centre.

The military vacated the structure completely in 1951 and the Citadel was declared a National Historical Site—its only epitaph a small sign declaring its restoration was not a monument to war but a tribute to the Citadel's importance in maintaining the peace.

Perhaps it was a concession to changing social mores, but in this case strangely fitting. For almost 200 years the military prepared for attacks that never came and never did the Citadel fire a shot in anger.

Historic Hill

Halifax's famed Citadel sits atop a hill 225 feet above the harbor which it has guarded since the 18th century. The Citadel has been torn down and rebuilt several times and became known as one of the strongest military installations in the British Empire (CP Photo)

Veterans' Pensions Will Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner proposed Monday that an additional $10 million be spent this year on increasing pensions and allowances to veterans and their survivors in line with the cost of living.

He suggested in his budget speech that, effective last October, such benefits be raised 3.3 per cent, then adjusted upward every three months to keep pace with the consumer price index.

Mr. Turner said the move would "preserve the relationship between veterans' allowances and old-age pensions," currently tied to rising living costs.

He also proposed, retroactive to April 1 this year, increasing to $125 a month from $111.95 the allowance given to orphans. Such allowances would be tied to increases in family allowance payments.

Under the proposed veterans' changes, an unmarried veteran would receive monthly benefits amounting to $170.45 compared with a current $161.27. A married veteran with two children would receive $300.22 a month up from $314.55.

Ontario Place Offers Skating Up on the Roof

TORONTO (CP) — A rooftop skating rink will be one of the big attractions at Ontario Place this summer.

The 3,000 square feet of artificial ice will be covered with a special plastic finish to protect it from the elements.

Eric McMillan, head designer of recreational facilities at the Ontario government showplace on Lake Ontario, says the surface will be the first of its kind used in North America.

Mr. McMillan came up with the idea for a rooftop rink when he saw the wasted space on the roofs of the exhibition pods.

If he and his staff are able to get the materials by mid-July, adults visiting Ontario Place will also be able to enjoy a giant musical box ride and a musical cloud ride.

The weather posed a problem for the design and engineering staff when they were planning the rooftop facilities.

"There is little or no protection from the elements, so we designed all-weather roofs that appear and disappear automatically with the chances in weather," said Mr. McMillan.

Ramps will be constructed to provide public access to the rink and rope bridges above the ice will cater to those who'd rather watch than skate.

Mr. McMillan estimates the new facilities will cost about $300,000.

"The rooftop concept will extend Ontario Place's activity so that by 1975 I hope we will have introduced even more pleasures," he said.

Six African Lands to Show Handicrafts

PARIS (CP) — Six French-speaking African countries are to participate in the world handicraft exhibition at York University in Toronto this June.

Dahomey, Gabon Republic, Chad Republic, Mali, and the Republics of Upper Volta and Togo will present a selection of their native crafts with financial help from the Paris-based Agence de coopération culturelle et technique.

A spokesman for the agency, which groups 25 countries partially or completely French-speaking, said it has offered to pay transportation and insurance costs, as well as costs of purchasing and selecting objects, to any of its third-world country members wanting to go to Toronto.

The exhibition was organized by the World Handicraft Council to promote a fuller understanding of the role and condition of the artisan in society.

BALANCE POPULATION

JAKARTA (AP) — The Indonesian government will move 51,000 families this year to the sparsely-settled outer Indonesian islands from overpopulated Java, says Transmigration Minister Subroto. He said 15,000 persons left Java for the outer islands in 1973.

CP News Roundup

Douglas Protests Oil Sales

OTTAWA (CP) — T. C. Douglas (NDP—Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands) protested in the Commons Monday that, at a time when Canadian oil reserves are declining, the National Energy Board agreed to a daily increase in oil exports of 200,000 barrels during May.

He said that will bring May exports up to six million barrels and asked if the government approved the board's decision.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said the board makes an assessment each month as to what can be exported. The board now was in the midst of hearings on long-term aspects of exports.

Mr. Douglas said the oil inventory in the West had built up because the oil could not be shipped to the East and asked why production in the field had been increased.

Mr. Macdonald said production levels are a provincial matter.

Time's Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald indicated Monday that the cabinet has waited long enough for comment from Alberta on a proposed ethylene plant in that province.

"We're just about at it this week," he said in an interview when asked whether the government has set a deadline for any response from Alberta.

His comment came about two weeks after Mr. Macdonald said he was having difficulty soliciting the province's views on the proposal, which includes ethane and ethylene pipelines out of Alberta.

Suspects Fraud

OTTAWA (CP) — Charging that there is evidence of fraud, Conservative Lincoln Alexander called Monday for an investigation into why thousands of unemployment cheques were not picked up during the recent postal strike.

His question in the Commons was prompted by reports that 29,000 claimants in Metropolitan Toronto did not collect their cheques at Unemployment Insurance Commission (UIC) offices during the strike.

"It certainly poses a lot of questions," Mr. Alexander said, asking Manpower Minister Robert Andras whether the situation will be investigated.

Mr. Andras said only that his department is "looking into it."

Pick Cases

OTTAWA (CP) — A government bill amending the Supreme Court Act allowing the court to decide what civil cases it should hear was given routine first reading Monday in the Commons.

The nine-member court now is obliged to hear all civil cases involving $10,000 or more.

The amendments would do away with this requirement and persons seeking to appeal civil judgments, such as damages in car accidents and wills, must apply for permission to seek a high court review.

Debts Rise

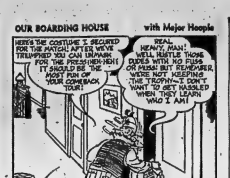
TORONTO (CP) — John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial affairs, told the legislature Monday he is unhappy with bad debts piling up in the provincial motor vehicle accident claims fund.

About 7,000 persons owed a total of $33 million to the fund.

Reward Raised

CHATHAM (CP) — Union Gas Co. Ltd. announced Monday it is increasing to $10,000 from $2,500 its reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible for tampering with company gas lines in southern Ontario.

May Run



WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Edward Kennedy said Monday he would like to be president and is giving some consideration to running in 1976.

He said that by late next year, and possibly earlier, "I'll make a definitive kind of a decision. . . ."

Meeting Set

OTTAWA (CP) — A meeting of all RCMP divisional commanders plus elected representatives of the 13,000 men will be held here Wednesday to discuss publicized grievances, Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said Monday.

The minister told a reporter the meeting will discuss the move among some RCMP members to form a police association which would negotiate salaries and other working conditions.

Davis Wants Fish Used To Feed Hungry World

OTTAWA (CP) — Environment Minister Jack Davis has called for industry-government co-operation to help feed a starving world with fish and enrich the fishing industry itself.

In a speech Monday to the Fisheries Council of Canada, Mr. Davis said Canada has the wealth and know-how "to be a major part of any successful solution" to the gap between world food supplies and the demands of a growing population.

To help itself and the world, the fishing industry must cast a wider net, seeking more varieties of fish, the minister said.

He cited greater exploitation of dogfish on the West Coast, capelin on the East. Mackerel, skate, billfish and other species were relatively unexploited but nutritionally rich.

By lengthening fishing seasons and expanding production, Fishermen's income could double to $600 million by 1980 from the $300-million catch of 1973.

He said the Canadian position at next month's law of the sea conference in Caracas—extension of fisheries jurisdiction to 200 miles offshore or to the edge of the continental shelf, whichever is farther—"is absolutely essential to the wise and intelligent management of our fisheries resource."

"We believe we are going to get it."

No Complaints

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Consumer criticism the Ontario Milk Marketing Board is based on emotion rather than fact, George McLaughlin, the board's chairman, said Monday.

Speaking to the local Rotary Club, Mr. McLaughlin, a farmer in the Barrie area, said that farm marketing legislation has built-in safeguards to protect the consumers' interests.

He said the Milk Commission of Ontario, a group formed to handle appeals or complaints about the milk industry, has never received a complaint concerning a price increase in milk.

Church Election

NEW YORK (AP) — A Pennsylvania minister is reported planning to challenge Rev. Dr. Robert Marshall, president of the Lutheran Church in America, for the top office at the church's convention this July in Baltimore.

It would be the first time the incumbent president of the three-million-member denomination has faced opposition for re-election.

Case Heard

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada reserved decision Monday on an application by Xaviera Hollander, author of The Happy Hooker and other books, for leave to appeal a deportation order. She was ordered deported in February, 1973, and has been appealing since.

Boy Freed

MILTON, Ont. (CP) — A charge or theft was dismissed Monday in juvenile-and family court against a 15-year-old Oakville, Ont., boy accused of stealing a station wagon in which eight teen-agers were killed last Feb. 25 when the vehicle plunged over a 150-foot embankment.

Judge Kenneth Langdon said that a statement made to police by the boy was inadmissible.

An inquest into the deaths will be held Wednesday in Oakville.

Probe Case

TORONTO (CP) — John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial relations, told the legislature Monday that he will look into a complaint by a Toronto restaurant owner that he was refused a liquor licence two months before another restaurant on the same block was granted one.

M. G. Grunvald said Saturday his restaurant venture has been ruined financially because he did not get a licence. The Liquor Licence Board of Ontario (LLBO) refused the licence after it decided the area was adequately served at that time.

Two months later, another restaurant was granted a liquor licence.

World Inflation Rate Difficult to Predict

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Ministers, John Turner figures that a forecast of the inflation rate for this year would be just too tough to make.

The minister told Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield in the Commons Monday that a government would be rash to put a precise figure on the rate.

The minister made his response as the government was put under pre-budget presentation questioning from the opposition in the daily question period.

Mr. Stanfield noted that Mr. Turner had been about 50-per-cent wrong when he forecast the '73 inflation rate and asked if precautions have been taken to improve his accuracy.

Mr. Turner said no one around the world has been able to predict the force of increased commodity prices and the political and economic implications of the Middle East war. The only agency that was close in predicting real growth was the Canadian finance department.

He told Mr. Stanfield that in view of the number of factors involved—food, agricultural and petroleum costs—it would be rash to predict the 1974 rate.

He also told Mr. Stanfield that some of the high increase in the wholesale price index eventually will be reflected in retail prices.

However, Mr. Turner said that while price increases at the retail level will be "in some ratio" proportionate to the wholesale price increases, they will not involve "the same extravagant figure."

George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) quoted Prime Minister Trudeau as saying Friday that the government's anti-inflation contingency plan would involve price and wage controls.

In view of the rise in wholesale prices, did Mr. Trudeau not think now would be a good time to implement the contingency plan?

Mr. Trudeau said it has been known for a year that the contingency plan included such controls, but the government does not plan to implement them except in extraordinary circumstances.

—When Stanley Darling (PC—Parry Sound-Muskoka) asked Mr. Turner if he thought the average wage earner is staying ahead of inflation, Commons Speaker Lucien Lamoureux stepped in and said Mr. Darling's question was more a matter of debate and Mr. Turner did not have to answer it. The finance minister remained in his seat.

Slain Girl's Father Returns to Rhodesia

SALISBURY (Reuter) — Oscar Dribjer, father of a Canadian girl tourist killed by Zambian military gunfire at the Victoria Falls May 15 last year, has returned to Rhodesia to spend the anniversary of his daughter's death at the falls.

His daughter Marjan, 19, of Rockwood, Ont., and Christine Sinclair, 19, of Guelph Ont., were shot dead in a Zambesi River gorge below the falls, which forms the border between Rhodesia and Zambia. Miss Dribjer's body was never found.

O'Leary Is Critical Of Information Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Information Canada is not fulfilling its duties and should be constructed "anew with new people," Senator Grattan O'Leary (PC—Ontario) said Monday.

A former journalist, Senator O'Leary said in the Senate that the federal information department has not been fulfilling its duty of co-ordinating and controlling information issued by government departments.

"What I would do with it myself had I the power to do so . . . is to get rid of the whole shebang, pass an act of Parliament or even an order-in-council defining the duties, the obligations and the limitations of Information Canada."

Senator O'Leary was speaking on a recent Senate committee report on Information Canada.

The report said that the role of the information bureau should be more clearly defined so it can do a better job of regulating and co-ordinating government information programs.

Information Canada was established in 1970.

Ottawa Backs Moves to Raise Hog Output

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is working toward agreement with the provinces to provide support for hog producers, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan told the Commons Monday.

Mr. Olivar (NDP—Saskatoon-Biggar) said four western provinces and Quebec have had to provide support for hog producers. Saskatchewan was paying $23 an animal to hog farmers.

When was the federal government going to take its responsibilities in this field?

Mr. Whelan said talks are in progress with the provinces and he hopes agreement can be reached soon.

July 8 Likely Election Date

Liberals Seem Sure To Lose Budget Vote

OTTAWA (CP) — The Trudeau government faces the Commons today for what appears to be certain defeat on its budget and possibly the start of a national campaign for a July 8 election.

The New Democratic Party Tuesday branded the budget niggardly, mean and cruel, and vowed to vote against it in a non-confidence test at 6 p.m. EDT today.

NDP Leader David Lewis, whose party has been the effective balance of power in the Commons since October, 1972, moved a budget sub-amendment late Tuesday afternoon that left the door wide open for Conservative support which might throw the outnumbered minority Liberals out of office.

A final decision will be made by the Conservative caucus before the Commons meets at 2 p.m., but party Leader Robert Stanfield saw no difficulty in supporting the NDP motion.

Conservative and NDP members reared approval when Mr. Lewis read his sub-amendment which condemned the government for "failure to apply any measures to help pensioners, or others on fixed incomes, to deal with the housing crisis and to remove the glaring inequalities in the tax system."

Prime Minister Trudeau, calm when he left the Commons to face reporters and television cameraz, was equally collected later when a spectator interrupted his Commons speech by shouting: "You're nothing but a damn Yankee sucker."

The spectator, who identified himself as Jim Brown of the Ottawa-based Canadian Review magazine, was ushered out of the public gallery by security staff.

Mr. Trudeau told reporters the opposition in the past always has found a way to keep the government in office. The same might apply this time.

"I'll believe it (defeat) when I see it."

But he delivered a two-hour Commons speech challenging opposition MPs to justify an election.

"The Liberals don't want an election now but . . . if the Conservatives and the NDP want to end this 29th Parliament, they will have to answer to the people."

He was interrupted repeatedly by Liberal cheers and won a 4½-minute ovation when he concluded. His wife Margaret and their 2½-year-old son Justin, watched from the gallery.

Defeat of the government depends on almost full attendance and Conservative and NDP support of the non-confidence motion.

Standing in the 264-seat House: Liberal 108, Conservative 106, NDP 31, Social Credit 15, Independent 1, vacant 2.

Mr. Caouette accused the two other opposition parties of piling on "the most ungracious show I've ever seen on the Canadian Parliament."

If all members are present and vote on party lines, the outcome would be 137 to 124 against the government—a difference of 13. It could be overturned by a switch of only seven votes, but NDP and Conservative spokesmen say they are confident of their members.

Mr. Trudeau told reporters he will go to the Governor-General for an election writ if the government is defeated, but he might delay" his visit until Thursday.

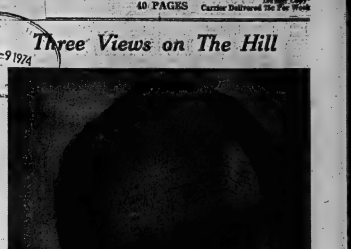
He said he would not recommend that the Conservatives be called on ao form a government, nor would he ask for a writ before the vote is taken.

July 8 would be the earliest available election date if the government fails.

In the Commons, Mr. Lewis and Conservative finance critic Marcel Lambert attacked the budget in detail," delivering scorching denunciations of government economic policy.

"I'd like to understand the kind of psychology that makes a government produce this sort of niggardly, mean and cruel box on the people," Mr. Lewis said.

As a Liberal, Finance Minister John Turner still motivated by the notion that the marketplace is free, he said.



"Like hell it is, Mr. Speaker!"

Mr. Lambert said the government's idea of coming to grips with inflation is to "shove its head in the sand, bare its backside to the breeze and hope for the best." He said excessive government spending is a key cause of higher living costs.

Only two governments have been defeated on the floor of the Commons, neither on a federal budget. They were the Conservative administrations of Arthur Meighen in 1926 and John Diefenbaker in 1963.

Both fell on formal supply votes, dealing with the government's spending plans.

Without Energy Bill

Oil Price Could Jump

OTTAWA (CP) — A serious financial situation confronts the federal treasury if Parliament dissolves for a federal election before passage of its two-price oil legislation, government spokesmen said Tuesday.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald told reporters that the oil companies legally can start collecting an extra $4 a barrel from the price fixed at $6.50 a barrel for domestic crude oil as of May 1. The $4 has been going to the federal government to help meet costs of a subsidy on oil consumed in Eastern Canada.

A finance department spokesman said the government would still be stuck with the Eastern Canada subsidy and agreed with the suggestion that the minority Liberal government might attempt to work out an inter-party agreement, if defeated to solve the financial bind. He did not elaborate on what might be done to finish passage of the legislation.

Mr. Macdonald said parliamentary dissolution for an election, now considered probable today, would leave the oil price system without any legislative basis.

However, Alberta, which produces 85 per cent of all domestic crude oil, has agreed to support the main thrust of the agreement. It fixes the price of crude produced and used domestically at $6.50 a barrel, about $4 a barrel lower than the going international price."

Still, Mr. Macdonald said there would be nothing to prevent individual companies "from ripping off" an additional $4 a barrel.

Over a year, that would amount to about $1 billion.

Mr. Macdonald said there might be a "general adverse reaction" by Canadians if oil companies attempted to harvest the extra $4. But consumers had little more to bank on than "the goodwill of the companies."

Eastern Canadians still might have their oil prices held down by a previously-adopted subsidy program, he said. This could be continued by the cabinet.

But authority to collect the $4-a-barrel federal export tax on oil would be lost and the cost would have to be borne "by the taxpayers of Canada."

Outside the House, Mr. Mac-

Ominous Thirteen In Picture

OTTAWA (CP) — Thirteen, a bad omen for centuries, may be the fateful figure that topples the minority Liberal government tonight.

Thirteen votes is the difference between the combined 127-seat Commons strength of the Conservatives and New Democrats and the 124 seats held by the Liberals and Social Credit.

The governing Liberals, with 109 seats, will be supported by the Social Credit with 15. The 106-seat Conservatives and the 31-seat NDP say they intend to vote against the government.

Indications Tuesday night were that the chamber will be jammed at 6 p.m. EDT when party whips march in for a non-confidence vote on the budget.

"No doubt about it," said NDP Whip Bill Knight, whose party is responsible for the vote tonight. "They'll all positively be here."

When Mr. Lewis announced earlier Tuesday his party would oppose the budget, he stressed it was a unanimous decision of caucus. There had been speculation that up to six New Democrats are hesitant about an election.

There was similar talk about some Conservatives, but Whip Bob McKinley (Huron) said he expects all his MPs to be present "barring any last-minute change." His Liberal counterpart Tom Lefebvre (Pontiac) was equally definite.

He even expected Keith Hymmen (Kitchener) who has been ill for about a year.

"He's under strict doctor's orders to rest," Mr. Lefebvre said. "But if we can get the doctor's permission to have him back for the vote, he'll likely be here."

Donor Pays Union Fine

LONDON (CP) — An anonymous donor paid a British court £65,000 ($152,000) today in a bid to end a national engineering dispute that threatens to paralyse the economy.

The money was paid to the National Industrial Relations Court which earlier had seized assets of the Amalgamated Union of Engineering Workers and thereby set the stage for the strike. The court ordered the assets returned on receiving the £65,000.

But there was no immediate indication whether this would satisfy the union which called the strike in protest against the court seizure of the assets.

15 Refugees Jump to Death

NASSAU (AP) — Authorities remained unclear today as to why 15 Haitian refugees jumped to their deaths from a battered wooden sailboat at the eastern tip of Nassau Harbor.

Witnesses told police that the Haitians panicked and jumped overboard early Tuesday when a Bahamian patrol boat approached the 40-foot sloop.

Story Is Out

'No More Tapes' Says White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saying "the story is out," the White House has said it will turn over no more Watergate tapes to Congress or the courts even if it means a constitutional court battle.

The announcement came from White House lawyer James St. Clair, who said Tuesday that President Nixon has reviewed Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski's subpoena for 64 tapes and ordered his lawyers to fight the demand to the Supreme Court if necessary.

St. Clair declined to say what Nixon would do if the Supreme Court should rule against him, saying "it is rhetorical and hypothetical and I don't think we will get to that point."

A spokesman for the prosecutor's office said Jaworski is sticking by his guns. "We plan to continue with our litigation," the spokesman said.

St. Clair also said Nixon will give no more tapes to the House of Representatives judiciary committee for its impeachment inquiry. The committee has requested tapes of about 75 Watergate-related conversations, in addition to the 42 for which it was given White House-edited transcripts instead of the tapes.

Asked what Nixon would do if the committee issues another subpoena demanding tapes, St. Clair said he would "respectfully decline to comply."

If the committee persisted, St. Clair said, "Then, we're going to have a confrontation because the president is firm in his resolve that he already has told the facts."

Mountie Wounded

OTTAWA (CP) — An RCMP officer was in serious condition in hospital early today, victim of an accidental shooting as he and a partner patrolled on Parliament Hill.

The constable, Alan Bird, 25, underwent prolonged surgery after the 12:30 a.m. shooting.

Ottawa city police said a bullet lodged in the upper abdomen after being deflected by a duty book he carried in his pocket.

The police said Const. Bird and Const. Roger Holmes, 31, had just come on duty and were patrolling in front of the Parliament buildings and "checking their guns."

One gun went off and Const. Bird was struck by a .38-calibre bullet.

Both men were relatively new members of the force: Const. Bird has been on the force less than 1½ years and Const. Holmes for 13 months.

RCMP would give few details of the accident.

Procter and Gamble to Start Building

Procter and Gamble will start clearing the site for its Belleville plant in May and probably hiring production workers next summer.
The company made the announcement today without still revealing just what consumer product it will manufacture in the plant in northeast Belleville.
But it reiterated: "The products planned for manufacture will create no environmental problem and will be fully compatible with the existing industrial community."
Identified with soap products, Procter and Gamble has diversified its operations in recent years.
The plant will be built on 150 acres in the city's northeastern industrial park and neighboring Thurlow township, and will eventually house offices, production and warehouse facilities expected to employ about 150, "most" to be hired locally, says the company.
"Local hiring will probably begin in summer 1975," says the announcement.
The site clearing will commence in late May. Approximately 15 acres of the 150 acres will initially be developed."
The plant will be designed in Montreal and the general contractor will be a Hamilton firm, Adam Clark Co.
The facility will total more than 130,000 square feet, and for access and shipping, Belleville plans a street extension and Canadian National Railways rail service will be provided.
The city plans, to extend University Ave. south 600 feet easterly to the city limits. A CN

Motorcycle Course Available

If you ever wanted to learn to ride a motorcycle, but didn't have the courage or the money to buy a bike of your own, now is the time to take advantage of a special Novice Motorcycle Training Course that is being offered by the Belleville Police Department and the Belleville Arena and Recreation Department.
Registration for the two three-day courses will take place tonight between 6.30 p.m. and 8.30 p.m. in the main foyer at Centennial Secondary School.
You don't even have to own a motorcycle to participate.
By paying a $10 registration fee you can receive instruction in the mechanics of motorcycles, highway safety for motorcycles and also have some practical riding experience.
Motorcycles will be provided for the use of course participants.
To be eligible for the course you must be at least 16 years old and, if you are under 18, you must have a letter of consent from your parents.
The two courses are scheduled to be held at Centennial Secondary School May 21, 23 and 24 and on May 28, 29 and 30. A third course will be scheduled if the response is great enough to warrant it.

Damage Charge Costs $150

An 18-year-old Oshawa man, Daniel Patrick McCormick, was fined $150 and placed on three months probation Tuesday, after he was convicted in provincial court of willfully causing more than $50 damage to a glass door at the Wayfarer Restaurant and Service Centre on Highway 401, just north of Belleville.
McCormick was convicted of having kicked his foot through a plate glass door at the restaurant March 10.
Court was told that McCormick, in the company of another man, had caused an estimated $62.63 worth of damage when he put his foot through a plate glass panel in the door.
At approximately the same time, McCormick was also breaking the glass in the door, vandals had destroyed a thermostat, valued at approximately $67, and had thrown some trash cans inside the ladies washroom at the service centre.
McCormick was arrested by officers from Cobourg detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police after his car was stopped on Highway 401 in answer to a description of the vandals who had fled from the scene.
Judge J. L. Clendenning ordered McCormick to make restitution, within two months, for the value of the glass door to the owners of the Wayfarer Restaurant.

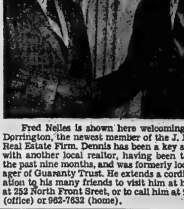
City, County Budgets Due



Fate of the federal budget tabled last week in the House of Commons may be in doubt pending an election, but 1974 budgets for Hastings county and the city of Belleville could be all but settled next week.
On Tuesday, May 14, Hastings county council will meet for its annual budget session which is likely to extend into the second day.
On the next week — on Thursday May 16 — the city budget committee will meet for what is hoped will be a final session before the year's budget goes on to city council for consideration.
City officials are keeping close mouthed on what the 1974 Belleville mill rate might be, but with an increased county education requisition, and salary increases for city department personnel, it is only one way to go and that is up.
Also during next week's county council session, retired

Arts Council Gets Provincial Grant

The Quinte Arts Council has received a $2,500 grant from the province with the condition that a portion, $1,000, be matched on a dollar-for-dollar basis by the community, the Ontario Arts Council revealed Monday.
The first $1,500 portion is the grant under a first time Quinte area.
"It's the first time that the Ontario government has recognized the importance of general activities in the smaller communities, Mr. Koechlin said.
"They've been handing out money in the larger cities, but this is the first time that the Quinte area, and more specifically Belleville, as its centre, has received this kind of recognition."
Mr. Koechlin said the council can expect the full $2,500. But the $1,000 must be raised matched by the community.
The funds will be used to stimulate and promote local

Licence Lifted, Fined $200

A Belleville man, Gary Allan Palmer, 30, was fined $200 Tuesday and ordered not to drive a motor vehicle for a period of 18 months, after he was convicted in provincial court, of impaired driving.
Palmer, who was convicted of careless driving in a separate court case Monday, was arrested by a member of the Ontario Provincial Police March 11, after he had been observed driving on Highway 37 at a high rate of speed.
The OPP officer chased Palmer to a private driveway on Centre Street in Belleville before making the arrest.
Court was told that Palmer was clocked at speeds approaching 75 miles an hour in a 30-mile-an-hour zone while he was being chased through Belleville.
Palmer had a breathalyzer reading of 250 milligrams of alcohol per 100 millilitres of blood when he was arrested.

Fred Nelles is shown here welcoming Dennis Dorrington, the newest member of the J. F. Nelles Real Estate Firm. Funerals

JOSEPH A. CARON
Deseronto
The funeral of Joseph A Caron, Dundas Street, Deseronto, was held Tuesday afternoon from the White and Morris Funeral Home to St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church where requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. Gilbert Van Der-Heijden. Interment was in the parish cemetery.
Bearers were James Sharpe, Wayne Vance, Wilbert Dowdell, Basil Easterbrook, and James and George Caron.
Mr. Caron died May 4 at his residence, following an illness of two years. He was 60.
Born in Deseronto, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Caron and had lived in Toronto for many years before returning to Deseronto 12 years ago. He was an oil furnace installer and repairman. He was a member of St. Vincent de Paul Church.
Aside from his wife, the former Sadie Dolbeau, he is survived by sons Leon and Gary of Deseronto, and a daughter Mrs. Dennis (Jo-Anne) Roy of Oshawa.
Also by a brother of Mrs. Mary Willis and Mrs. Blanche Lindsay, both of Toronto, and Mrs. Howard (Clara) French of Deseret, Mrs. Eugene Kingston, and James and Jack of Deseronto.

MRS. ETHEL CARR
Rev. Roy Veney conducted the funeral service Thursday for Mrs. Verna Carr, 123-F Church St. The funeral was held from the Grant Funeral Home with interment in Belleville Cemetery.
Bearers were David and Paul Francis, Ronald and Tony Carr, Bobby Mountenay and Douglas Brunet, Jr.

Blitz Brings Campaign Closer to Objective

The Salvation Army has passed the $50,000 mark two-thirds of this year's Red Shield campaign target of $75,000, Major Roy Nelson said Tuesday.
He added that Monday night's door-to-door blitz to raise money for the Army's

$250 in Fines On Two Counts

A Roslin man, Leon Joseph Labarge, 24, was fined a total of $250 in provincial court Tuesday, after he was convicted of impaired driving and driving a vehicle with liquor in it that belonged to another car.
Labarge was arrested by police on 20, after the car he was driving spun out of control and came to rest in a snowfilled ditch on Highway 37, just north of the Fourth Concession, Thurlow.
When arrested by the Ontario Provincial Police Labarge had a breathalyzer reading of 160 milligrams of alcohol per 100 millilitres of blood.
The car Labarge had been driving was certified to be mechanically unfit and bore licence plates that belonged to another vehicle.
Judge J. L. Clendenning fined Labarge $175 for the impaired driving conviction and $75 for the conviction relating to the licence plates.

Found Guilty, Fined $200

A Stirling man, Brian Kovach, 21, convicted of impaired driving following a two-car collision in which three persons were injured, was fined $200 Tuesday in provincial court.
Kovach was arrested by the Ontario Provincial Police April 4 after the car he was driving was involved in a head-on collision with another vehicle on the Glen Ross Road, just north of Highway 33.
Court was told that Kovach was northbound on the Glen Ross Road and was passing another vehicle on a curve when he came into a southbound car.
Two passengers in the other car and a passenger in the Kovach vehicle received minor injuries as a result of the accident.
Kovach had a breathalyzer reading of 150 milligrams of alcohol per 100 millilitres of blood when he was arrested.

Lower Town Rate; County Expenses Awaited

Picton to Benefit From Decreased Tax Levy

By Margaret Haylock
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Town council meeting in committee, has adopted a budget, with a tentative mill rate of 12.84 residential and 13.96 commercial for town purposes. Both rates represent decrease from 1973 figures.

Council is expected to call a special meeting shortly to confirm the town purposes levy of $720,515 and the mill rates.

Figures released Tuesday by town clerk Andrew Jarvis, show that the residential mill rate has decreased 1.83 from 1973 and the comunercial rate by 1.13. One mill raises approximately $20,000.

School rates for 1974 show elementary commercial at 4.96 elementary residential at 4.47 secondary commercia at 40.9 and secondary residential at 3.68.

A comparison of 1974 school rates with last year's rates shows an increase of .31 mills in elementary commercial and of .29 mill in elementary residential. Secondary commercial shows an increase of .11 and secondary residential a raise of .10.

Council's 1974 budget includes $8,000 for council indemnities in compraison with $6.96 budgeted in 1973.

Administration salaries in 1973 totalled $23,570 and in this year's budget are estimated at $26,600.

A total of $61,821 has been budgeted this year for the fire department and $145,180 for the Picton police department. In 1973 a total of $80,405. was budgeted for the fire department and $138,000 for the police department.

The streets department of the town's public works this year has been budgeted at $180,700 in comparison with $159,000 in 1973.

The Prince Edward County rate has not been set yet and must be considered in relation to the town's budget. Town council's budget session already has basically established the town's expenses.

Cleanup Challenge?

Town council was urged Monday to take another look at the spring municipal cleanup campaign which a councillor says is "very badly abused." Crews are expected to complete pickups by Friday.

Municipal Labor Negotiations Are Trenton's 'Biggest Problem'

TRENTON — Dealing with labor and its accompanying contract negotiations is this community's biggest problem says town treasurer Brian Fagan.

He and Commissioner of Works Arie Hoornweg leave for Toronto later this month to attend special seminars designed to provide guidance to small Ontario municipalities in their handling of labor. Both men are active as negotiaters for the town, having recently participated in talks involving police, Canadian Union of Public Employees and firefighters.

"It's getting pretty damn difficult for small towns to keep up," the treasurer says.

While unions quote figures from municipalities of "similar size," Mr. Fagan contends the average wages quoted from these other municipalities can be misleading and turn into a millstone for local councillors.

"The general rule is towns with populations between 10,000 and 35,000 people. We can't pay the same as the larger municipalities though they fall into the group," he said.

Of negotiations, he said "it doesn't matter what the economic climate of the community is. The emphasis is on this average."

Recently the town's professional firefighters asked for an 18 per cent raise — a raise the firemen believed would bring them up to the average professionals' pay.

The town refused to go for the 18 per cent hike and terminated negotiations when both sides stalemated. The only resort left open to the firefighters is provincial arbitration. It too bases much of its award on the average wage of similar-sized municipalities.

"If they go to arbitration they'll get it anyway," said Mr. Fagan, referring to unions generally who apply through the averaging route.

The May 22-24 seminar will be of special interest to Trenton delegates. A special segment is being devoted "strictly to arbitration proceedings as they refer to negotiations with firefighters," said the treasurer.

"It's a big dilemma," he said.

Approximately 52 town employees could indirectly be affected, by revised negotiating techniques following the seminar to be held in a downtown Toronto hotel.

For Local Thieves

Copper Good as Gold

PICTON — All that glitters is not gold, but if it's copper it still may prove a target for thieves.

Town solicitor Jack Ward this week reported the theft of a quantity of copper trim, including a 10-foot downspout.

Study Denticare

MARMORA — A three-man committee appointed to look into the local arena situation has picked the firm of Chrysler and Latham of Willowdale to carry out a needs-benefit study of the area.

Two other tenders were received. The engineering consultant firm is to start immediately on the project.

Saw Given

MARMORA — Formal thanks will go Marmora District Lions Club from Marmora — Lake township council for the gift of a power saw that will cut steel.

The saw will become part of Marmora fire department's equipment and will be used should anyone be trapped inside a vehicle after an accident.

from his Mary St. law office. The trim, taken late Monday evening or early Tuesday, also included two lengths of copper and two lengths 11 feet long.

Mr. Ward recently had renovated his office building, decorating it with a copper awning, eavestroughing and other trim. Police report the awning remains intact.

The theft remains under investigation. A spokesman for the Picton police department said today that used copper possibly has a value of 80 to 90 cents a pound.

Roads OK

MARMORA — Local township roads are in good shape, Deputy-reeve Gordon Jones reported to Marmora — Lake townships council at its May meeting.

Patching of roads has been carried out and oiling will be under-taken soon, Mr. Jones said.

Reeve Graham Bell suggested the road committee make a tour of township roads in the near future.

Mr. Jones said the committee is looking for a new name for Cook's Cheese Factory Road.

Caucus on County Reform

Ameliasburg in One-tier Huddle

AMELIASBURG — At a caucus meeting of township council here Tuesday night, the date for a public meeting on one-tier government proposals for Prince Edward County was set for May 17.

A representative from the Ontario Inter-governmental affairs ministry has been asked to attend to outline the provincial government stitude.

Under the one-tier system, municipal councils will disappear and the county's 10 municipalities would send representatives to a single government. Population will depend on representation.

Amelisburgh clerk William Nightingale, however, has already warned county council that the new system would require "quite a selling job" in Amelisburgh township.

Last night's meeting here, closed to public and reporters, was to familiarize township council with the restructuring proposals, said Mr. Nightingale. It was not know what opinions were expressed.

The May 17 meeting will start at 8 p.m.

Elsewhere in the county meantime, Hillier township will hold a public meeting May 11, also at 8 p.m., to inform residents of recommendations for county government reform.

The meeting, first to be held throughout the county, will take place at the Hillier Community Centre.

On May 15, Picton town council will hold a similar meeting at 7.30 p.m. at Queen Elizabeth school.

Grants Triple for Park Through Conservation

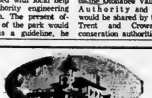
By RUB YMCCOY
Staff Reporter

MARMORA — This village's riverside park project triple provincial government grants if developed through a conservation authority. The obvious result would be speedier development of a drawn-out project.

The reminder was emphasized at village council this week when it heard from Peter Gill, Crowe Valley Conservation Authority manager and Ralph Neal, village's representative to the authority.

Mr. Gill explained the Authority could get a 75 per cent grant if it develops the park, compared to the 25 per cent for which the municipality is eligible for park development.

Of concern, the council was the fact it might lose control of the park if it were turned over to the Authority. But Mr. Gill said in any agreement the village's autonomy could be preserved.



Mr. Gill said the park could be completed with local help under Authority engineering supervision. The present official plan of the park would be used as a guideline, he added.

Reeve Jack Reynolds said council has been spending roughly $4,000 a year on the park since it began. But he admitted the project doesn't look it. The same areas have all been filled in and the area could now be completed without too much more work, he added.

Mr. Gill said that some municipalities are entering into agreements with the Authority to acquire parkland because the Authority has access to additional provincial funds that the municipalities do not have.

An announcement by Mr. Gill that Marmora dam had been placed near the top of a projected five-year plan by the Authority was welcomed by Council. Mr. Neal said once the dilapidated dam is completed the Authority thinks it would replace the Marmora dam. At Mr. Gill's suggestion Council passed a motion to request the Authority to make a preengineering study of the dam.

Mr. Neal announced that Mr. Gill has been transferred to the Otonabee Valley Rever Authority and successor would be shared by the Lower Trent and Crowe Valley conservation authorities.

Growing Up

Growing up has elements of fear, exhilaration, sadness and satisfaction — contrasting factors to be sure — and much else besides. Later in life, upon reflection, the mood is of nostalgia, a poignant looking back to what went before.

But there is a time, at the kindergarten and primary school levels for the most part, when the reality and harshness of later life does not intrude. Oh there are cruelties then too, amid the family and community environment, and they can affect the child, but we assume that for most youngsters this is a time of trusting and happiness and faith in people and in simple things. It is reflected in their conversation, in their writing, and in their outlook on life.

There is a bakery and coffee shop in The Mall here in Belleville and it plays host on occasions to primary school groups. They learn a bit of the baker's art, partake happily of the results ("M. . . mm . . . mm" wrote one youngster) and perhaps absorb a little history from the wall prints depicting members of several generations of the Royal Family.

Invariably, the young people write messages of thanks: "I would like to thank you . . . it was nice of you . . . I enjoyed myself and hope you did too. . ." That sort of thing, and there is in it all the artfulness and ingenuousness of youth. The sort of thing too that Kipling had in mind when he wrote: "Teach us delight in simple things . . .". In mirth that has no bitter springs . .".

There is a piece in similar vein from a nine-year-old, Bruce Wright, regarding the recent music festival. It was sent to Dr. Bruce Cronk of this city and it is quoted in the current bulletin of the Rotary bulletin which sponsored the festival.

It reads as follows: "Recently I have been the proud recipient of your $25 award for accordion solo 11 years and under.

"I have played in the festival the last four years, and I have had very nice adjudicators.

"Mr. Lewis, my teacher, has taught me the songs quite well though the adjudicators have had lots to say about them. From these experiences I have learned a great deal about accordion. This year I sang in our school choir and have had a very good experience at this because we didn't do very well. In one selection we had pronunciation, in another we forgot the words, and in the third we sang too fast — and off key.

So I have had a great deal of experience in music, but have never won an award before, so I would like to thank you very much for this award."

Having read this, we are sure many of us will feel less anxious about our education system, and about tomorrow's world and tomorrow's society. It may be in better hands than we know.

Seven Years

Those of us who think back to Canada's glorious Expo 67 will feel a touch of nostalgia at the thought that it all took place seven years ago and that now a new world fair is opening in Spokane, Washington.

Canada's effort is said to be a modest $500,000 development on an island site in which British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan have had a hand. Apparently the federal government had not planned on anything much, but came through with some support after understandable prodding from British Columbia. The landscaped site will be handed over to Spokane when the fair closes.

For Spokane a, smallish city of a quarter of a million or so, the fair is seen as a rejuvenator and an emergence from obscurity. The CBC's man in Vancouver, Ab Douglas, noted the other day that even some Americans had been asking, "where is Spokane?"

And we complain about them knowing so little about Canada!

Trade Mission's $300,000 Bash

Marco Polo-Style Expedition From Ottawa To Shanghai

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — For some $300,000 — and that was not the full price-tag — Industry Trade and Commerce sent 62 representatives of 34 Canadian firms along with 22 federal public servants, to Shanghai for an electronics and scientific instruments Chinese trade fair.

And the question has been raised in Chinese dispatches from Shanghai as to whether the Canadian buyer received his money's worth.

The department has fielded a team of four, captained by Alan Duckett, director general of its 138-member Information Services staff, to reply to that and other critical questions asked from Shanghai.

Right off the top — because the Shanghai report led off with a reference to "bottles of Balantyne's whiskey" being provided for "a few special guests" — the department suggests the despatch was "loaded," (no pun intended) or, at least, given a hostile slant.

The hosts, they explain, taxi and custom free, was provided by the Canadian embassy, partly by much of a routine courtesy extended official delegations, trade or otherwise, visiting China under the aegis of the federal government.

"When you go to China," they explained, "you've got to be absolutely self-sufficient and self reliant," so if you need something either you take it with you or know where you can get it — like booze from the embassy.

But the Scotch was a small thing anyway, even if it was, in the view of the department, used to critically flavor the report.

Much bigger question: Will that $300,000 investment pay off?

Can't answer, says the department, until the returns start coming in, at the earliest three months from now.

"And who knows, "Director Duckett counters question with question, "what the long-term will bring in sales, say over the next year when perhaps one or more of the firms go back to China to sew up a deal?"

Another question: Was it essential for 22 public servants to go along, shepherding 62 businessmen.

Answer: There were 21 only, 15 from Trade, four from Information Canada (to set up the exhibits) and one each from Communications and Energy Mines and Resources (to deliver papers).

And yes, every one was "essential" because the Chinese said they were insisting on "one person for every area of authority," one for protocol, and so forth.

"You take a group to China," says Director Duckett, "and you do it their way, conform to their requirements, fit into their system of doing things and you don't have much choice."

Next question: What is imperative to secure participation of the 34 firms that the government ship out their exhibits and provide two-way economy air tickets?

Answer: Yes. In China, reports Director Duckett, you do business government-to-government, all state trading, and there's no other way.

So the firms had to go under government sponsorship or not at all.

And those air tickets? One to each firm to help defray the "fantastic costs," a sort of government "introductory offer" to the 34 firms to explore the Chinese market.

After the government breaks the ice and warms the water, any one of those 34 firms could get back into the Chinese business swim.

A further question: Was the one media relations man from Trade "the most daring example of redundancy," as the Shanghai report said, when there were only two journalists covering the show, and any of the senior departmental officials well able to handle the information required?

Answer: No. The media man wasn't there to fill in the two Canadian "journalists, but to look after the very many Chinese news representatives.

And furthermore, explains Director Duckett, his media man had "worked on our trade fair program from its inception, helping to organize, and of course worked with the marketing team from the start."

Final question: How about that four days' pay, some at double time, on the Easter weekend for the media man? And why not add the salaries of all 21 public servants on the mission to that $300,000 cost?

Answers: Well, yes, the media men did draw some double time, "but that's in the union contract." And figure the salaries for the 17 who "way . . . they're going to be paid wherever the work is done, at the department's Ottawa headquarters or at the Shanghai Mission Office."

Closing note: "You've got to be mighty careful in China," counsels Director Duckett, "for the Chinese are that sensitive. So sensitive that if you've got a film clip with a long-haired kid in it, get it out of there; the Chinese don't go for long hair. But leave that out, please, for they might not like me saying that."

But how would they know?

"They've got an embassy here, haven't they?"

"Observed subject perusing subversive-like document . . . something called the Human Rights Bill . . ."

Fiscal Riddle

Canadian Dollar Is Down But It Is Also Up

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

You may think that the value of your dollar is going down—which it is, by one per cent a month, in terms of domestic purchasing power.

But its value has been increasing steadily in relation to the U.S. dollar and most other foreign currencies.

Currently, it stands at about its highest level since 1956 — brief $1.04 (U.S.) and heading for $1.02.

Our dollar is being pushed up on foreign exchange markets by a combination of factors that only an international banker or investor could fully savor.

The recent post office strike, by holding up cheques and invoices, had something to do with it.

So, too, have businessmen's exceptionally heavy cash requirements and the banks' tight liquidity position (that is, their lack of enough money to meet all the demands of borrowers).

A higher Canadian dollar is no source of joy except perhaps to importers—and they include thousands of Canadians on shopping trips to the United States or on vacation trips abroad.

It is a decided burden to our major exporters, because they tend to set their prices in U.S. dollars. The impact is spread throughout the Canadian economy, from primary resources—copper and nickel, for example—to processed products such as newsprint, and on into manufactured items such as original equipment and replacement parts for the automotive industry.

In some of these businesses, such as automotive parts, the profit margin may be slender even when the Canadian and U.S. dollars are at par. A depreciation of four per cent in the U.S. dollar can wipe out the profit of Canadian exporters, and pose a serious threat of business failures and more unemployment.

Experts see little prospect of a reversal of the uptrend in the Canadian dollar. Vic Miles, money market specialist at Wood Gundy Ltd. in Toronto, says:

"It is hard to get a view on just what price it will level out at.

"Certainly, the Bank of Canada does not have the capacity to maintain a prolonged stand, as recently as November, and balances are anything but robust."

Senior economist of the Royal Bank of Canada, Robert W. Baguley, commented recently on Canada's capital requirements during the 1970s for three major energy projects — the Mackenzie Valley natural-gas pipeline, the James Bay hydro-electric project, and development of the Athabasca tar sands—and the danger that massive inflows of foreign capital will force the Canadian dollar higher and higher.

"If the monetary authorities follow a restrictive monetary policy, and if governments are heavy borrowers, or depend-ence on foreign capital will increase and upward pressure on the dollar will occur," Dr. Baguley told a Penticton audience.

"To check the rise in the dollar, either the policies will have to be reversed or capital import controls will have to be established.

But if we keep out foreign capital, in effect we kill new developments—and thus run short of energy supplies, and increase unemployment substantially.

The only alternative source of capital is domestic savings. But the saving-investment habit is being extinguished by uncontrolled inflation and steadily increasing harassment—by governments and even by investment industry — of those who, in the past, would gladly have invested their money in the stocks and bonds of Canadian ventures.

Business 'Self-Centred'

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service . .
TORONTO — John Clement, the able minister of consumer and commercial relations, gave businessmen hell recently in a speech to the Toronto Board of Trade Club.

Essentially the minister, in very blunt words, said that business was too self-centred and that it was inviting government intervention and on the way to destroying itself by not paying attention to problems beyond its own little world.

In one sample paragraph he said:

"The magnetic centre around which most of our problems revolve is that we allow ourselves to be dominated by a negative behavior. We allow some industries to turn clear water into effluent and we allow government to take an even larger chunk of our GNP. We allow individuals, we fail to act except as part of the herd."

But then there was a section of his speech which had an odd twist.

As business becomes more and more specialized, he said, individuals feel themselves to be less and less responsible for the behavior "of the corporate monster—the public—that government and its civil servants should be feeding."

The employee believes he is working for the company, not for consumers. Managers work for the boss, who, in turn, works for the shareholders. The system's natural tendency is to become sealed off from society and individual consumers. The emphasis is on aggregate behavior—the company, the industry, the union or the market. People start to get left out.

The end-product of this process is what I like to call 'industrial obsession.' As the universities and in business, we have very few universal men. The man who manufactures widgets is completely committed to his product. He never lets it go and rarely appreciates the fact that other people will never be as interested in widgets as he is."

The switch is that in this indictment the minister was also describing government.

Government today is getting to be a plain mess of widgetmakers.

There are empires and empires, and empires within empires.

The empire and its particular widget is the thing.

And there is less and less consciousness of the corporate monster—the public—that government and its civil servants should be feeding.

Tax Hits and Owners

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The land speculation tax recently tabled at Queen's Park is cruel legislation which heavily penalizes thousands of rural land owning Ontario residents. I suspect it origin from an idea that they are being acted against. When the law is passed, these people will find they are subject to a tax of 50 per cent of their profit on land sales. The tax will be in addition to any capital gains tax they have to pay on the land transaction. All of this amounts to expropriation of land with little compensation.

The following is a partial list of properties which are taxable:

1) All lands owned by rural residents, unless such property is smaller than ten acres and is farmed. This land is ten and greater than ten acres then it becomes taxable.

2) All other properties all rural income producing properties which are not a place of residence.

The tax is unfair to farmers, lumbermen and other rural people who have worked all their lives on their property and have their life savings tied up in this asset. You really have to stretch the imagination far to classify them as land speculators, as the title of the bill suggests.

The government has stated that they intend on driving the price of real estate down by increasing land speculation tax and another tax of 25 per cent if a rural resident sells any of his property to a foreigner. This, of course, will enable the foreigner to buy rural land at cheap prices. They have also conveniently neglected legislation that would that if land is sold to the Crown instead of to private persons, the tax will not be payable. The government will never be in a position to force the farmer or lumberman to sell his land to them.

Land speculation and skyrocketing house prices is strictly a city problem. This being the case, why should the farmer and the rural resident have to suffer because of the situation in the big cities and surroundings? It is unfair to harness country people with this legislation. This should only cover certain cities and towns and not the whole province.

Focus on English Usage

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I have one suggestion to add to the controversy about the decline in student nurses from Grade 12, Grade 13 or by lottery.

Could not these efficient kind young women be taught the correct use of the common English word "lie" (not meaning to tell untruths)?

I am not a school-teacher. I learned my elementary English from babyhood by ear, the easy normal, most-suitable way to learn a language, and when along the line in public or in high school I was taught the grammatical reason for refusing some frequently-heard errors.

During a recent sojourn in our local hospital I waited in vain for many days to be told that I could "lie down now" or "Can you lie on your other side?" etc.

Like all the young nurses come from illiterate homes? In Canadian Colleges can some stress not be "laid" on filling in the evident gaps in teaching

African Hostilities

Is It Liberation — Or Genocide?

The following report by Reuters News Agency appeared in The Globe and Mail on January 29. Relevant to the activities of liberation movements in Africa which are receiving moral and monetary support from Canada, the report gives rise to questions whether is fighting for "liberation" from colonialism the guerrilla forces are not also indulging in genocide among their own people.

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — Guerrillas of the Front for the Liberation of Mozambique killed 258 civilians, injured 534 and abducted 1,788 people last year, according to a Mozambique government spokesman quoted by the South African Press Association in Johannesburg.

In a report from Beira, the agency quoted the spokesman as saying that of the 258 killed, 46 had been summarily executed. Most of the others killed had occurred after severe beatings and under threat of death, the spokesman added.

During the year, guerrilla activity had taken place mainly in the northern districts of Tete and Cabo Delgrado, although there had been some raids in the two central regions of Vila Pery and Beira.

However, in the Niassa district — the only one with a common border with Malawi and Tanzania — there had been fewer raids since Frelimo began its campaign in 1964.

The spokesman said over two-thirds of the casualties had been caused by land mines planted on paths leading to African farms.

The agency said the number of civilians killed since guerrilla activity started stood at 947. In the same period 1,972 people have been injured and 8,258 abducted.

The spokesman said most of the 284 village and 15 hamlets raided during 1973 had been subject to concentrated shelling by Russian-made heavy and automatic arms before the attacks were moved in.

He added that 67 African stores had been ransacked and 7,700 head of cattle stolen.

In another report from Beira, the agency quoted a military high command communique as saying that in the last three months of last year, 247 Frelimo guerrillas were killed and 461 of their camps destroyed by security forces.

The security forces lost 58 men killed in action and another 74 from sickness.

Too Costly To Check On Grants

TORONTO (CP) — A government official said Tuesday he would require an additional staff of 100 persons to provide a thorough check against abuses of Ontario's student awards program.

F. J. Kidd of the ministry of colleges and universities was responding before the legislature's public accounts committee to a plea by provincial auditor Norman Scott for tighter reviews and control of student grants.

Mr. Kidd has a staff of about seven.

Mr. Scott's annual report for 1972-73 revealed that checks had resulted in only $501,564 being returned to the province by students who had received too large a grant or who should not have received any at all.

This represented about six per cent of the 62,000 students who received $29 million in grants in 1972-73.

Committee members complained the auditor was getting at grant money that was used to buy cars or to take holidays.

Patrick Reid (L—Lab.-Rainy River), committee chairman, said he knew of one student who spent his grant speculating on the stock market.

James Taylor (PC—Prince Edward-Lennox) said the program has been abused for years.

"It doesn't do much for the image of the program when we're continually being had. These kids are pretty sharp."

Mace Banned

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will outlaw small cylinders of mace or tear gas sometimes purchased by women as a protection against molesters, Justice Minister Otto Lang announced Tuesday.

Mace, tear gas or other such gases, plus liquids, sprays and powders capable of "injuring, immobilizing or otherwise incapacitating a person" will be outlawed as of July 1, he told a news conference.

Intervene

TORONTO (CP) — An official of the Ontario labor ministry said Tuesday the provincial government has decided to intervene in a strike by the International Brotherhood of Teamsters at the Oshawa Group wholesale food terminal.

Victor Scott, director of mediation services for the ministry of labor, said the ministry is stepping in because "there have been some incidents and we thought we'd better see what we can do."

Strike Continues

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia construction industry strike continued today with no apparent moves by either side.

Cy Skirrs, chief negotiator for 10 of the 16 unions negotiating jointly, said Tuesday there had been no developments.

Farmer's Take Up Cent a Can

OTTAWA (CP) — Higher prices for farm produce should have little effect on the market price of processed food, the president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture said Tuesday in an interview.

President Lorne Hill said that while "it is true the growers will get more for raw vegetables, the farm price has little effect on retail shelves."

ROBERT NIXON.

Ad Ban Asked

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Nixon called Tuesday for a ban on liquor and beer advertising.

Mr. Nixon said recent reports indicate a tremendous increase in the use of alcoholic beverages in the province and a corresponding increase in alcoholism.

Study Arena

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario is considering a dental-care policy, Health Minister Frank Miller said Tuesday.

In response to questions in the legislature, Mr. Miller said a dental plan would cost $10 million to $20 million for those six and under but as the age groups got older, costs "can escalate to $200 million or $300 million a year.

Budget Hit

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Treasurer John White labelled the federal budget a failure Tuesday during an exchange in the legislature.

Over much opposition heckling the treasurer said he expects many of the proposals in the budget will fall by the wayside after Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield becomes prime minister.

Mr. White said the budget is not anti-inflationary.

"It is much more expansionary than the Ontario budget," he said.

Still Taxed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Journal says that a survey of 22 stores here shows that one-third of them still are charging sales tax on items that now are non-taxable under Ontario regulations implemented April 29.

The newspaper says it paid a total of 73 cents tax on 12 of 30 non-taxable items purchased.

In some stores lists of non-taxable items were posted but cashiers made no reference to them.

PM Is Called Yankee Sucker

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau was interrupted in the Commons Tuesday afternoon when a man stood up in the public gallery and shouted, "You're nothing but a damn Yankee sucker."

The man, who identified himself to reporters as Jim Brown of Ottawa, was ushered from the chamber by the Commons security staff and a few minutes later was led from the Parliament Buildings.

Members of the security staff said no charges would be laid.

The outburst came during Mr. Trudeau's comments in the budget debate that he once had attended some New Democratic Party meetings years ago. However, he had soon realized the party was "too doctrinaire," for his tastes.

At that point, the disturbed man, wearing a grey suit and a green plaid shirt, shouted:

"The Yankees weren't paying you enough then, Trudeau. Now they are. You're nothing but a damned Yankee sucker."

He told reporters outside the building the outburst came on the spur of the moment.

Mr. Brown said he is 28 and works for Canadian Review, an Ottawa-based literary magazine he described as dealing with "severe problems of Canadian culture."

"The Liberals have continually tried to destroy the Canadian publishing industry," he told reporters between requests to security staff for his coat and briefcase, left in a Commons cloakroom.

He said Mr. Trudeau "just stands there with his whole Liberal party and they play with Parliament."

"The Canadian people have had enough of this damn government. They've sold us out to the United States."

Sargent Offers to Resign In Exchange for Hospital

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal firebrand Eddie Sargent offered his resignation to the government Tuesday in trade for new hospital facilities for Owen Sound.

Despite loud entreaties from both opposition and government benches to accept the offer, Premier William Davis declined.

Mr. Sargent said it was common knowledge in his riding that the premier had said Owen Sound wouldn't get a new hospital as long as he represented Grey-Bruce constituency.

The premier said the allegation was without foundation.

Outside the legislature, Mr. Sargent said the issue had been discussed in the Owen Sound Hospital Board and noted that "the man in charge of dispensing Conservative patronage in the area is also on the board."

Mr. Sargent said the 250-bed hospital in Owen Sound is seriously crowded but noted that 45 miles away in Hanover a new hospital was built in a Conservative member's riding that wasn't utilized to full extent.

"Hanover got a hospital because of Winkler (Eric Winkler, chairman of government's management board) and we can't get beds," said Mr. Sargent.

He said about 300 more beds were needed immediately in Owen Sound.

Mr. Sargent was mildly rebuked in the house by Speaker Allan Reuter for calling the premier "Smilin' Bill."

He asked the premier to allow the area to postpone a scheduled road project so Owen Sound can get a new hospital.

Premier Davis said he had told Mr. Sargent "that I would personally take a look at it and I'm in the process."

Outside the legislature, Health Minister Frank Miller said government consultants had issued a confidential report on the problem in Owen Sound and had made a number of suggestions concerning utilization of staff and other matters.

In addition, the government had agreed to remove 21 chronic-care patients from the hospital to free more space.

Land Speculation Bill Is Stalled

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's anti-speculator bill stalled in the legislature Tuesday when opposition members balked at last-minute amendments by Revenue Minister Arthur Meen.

The New Democrats, who opposed the bill in principle, and the Liberals, who approved of it, did not get around to discussing the 11 pages of amendments proposed by Mr. Meen, but instead objected to changes in the name of the act which Mr. Meen insisted was just housekeeping.

After two hours of debate and one vote on the change, which the government carried by a 62-to-25 margin, Mr. Meen agreed to delay debate until Thursday when the bill, complete with amendments, could be reprinted.

The bill, which imposes a 50-per-cent tax on speculative land profits, was originally tabled to act to impose a tax on speculative profits resulting from the disposition of land."

It was changed to "an act to impose a tax on land in respect of certain dispositions affecting the control or ownership of land."

After the first vote, Mr. Meen moved that "certain dispositions" be replaced by "specified transactions."

Opposition members questioned the constitutional validity of changing the title of an act already given two readings.

Lalonde Might Amend Bill So U.S. Teams Play Here

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Tuesday he might amend his bill intended to ban American football leagues in Canada, allowing teams from American leagues into the country under strict conditions.

An amendment to the bill proposed in a Commons committee by a Progressive Conservative member of Parliament would allow foreign football teams to play in Canada under five conditions. They are:

—That the games could not be broadcast in Canada.

—That all the teams in the U.S. league honor Canadian Football League player contracts.

—That the teams belonging to the U.S. league and playing in Canada contribute money to amateur football in Canada up with a workable plan for comparable to the amount a each action, Mr. Lalonde told a Commons committee.

CFL team would contribute.

—That the U.S.-league teams pay to the CFL any losses in player equalization payments caused by the teams' operations in Canada.

—That consent of civic authorities be required before any U.S. league team can operate in a Canadian municipality.

Mr. Lalonde told the committee that this amendment would protect Canadian football, but that there were problems in determining how much money the teams would pay for amateur football and in equalization grants. He did not want the government involved in determining these amounts.

Such an amendment would depend on whether health department advisers and the Conservative opposition could come

Mr. Lalonde said a section, Mr. Lalonde told a Commons committee.

He would also want a pledge from Conservatives that they would support the bill as amended.

The announcement came less than a day after John Bassett, owner of the Toronto Northmen of the World Football League, announced the team will play in Memphis, Tenn.

The bill was intended specifically to prevent the Northmen from playing in Toronto.

The bill was approved by the committee following a 9½-hour long meeting during which nine Conservative amendments were defeated by Liberal and NDP members.

In Toronto, Bassett said the proposed amendment did not change his plans for moving to Memphis.

Menus For Kids And Dads To Make For Moms

If you're a mother, don't read this.

The object of the article is to provide simple recipes for inexperienced cooks whether they're children or fathers— who want to prepare a special meal for Mom on Mother's Day.

For an early lunch before a pleasant Sunday afternoon drive, the family can prepare Ham'n Cheese custard. Serve with a green vegetable, like beans, and a salad.

Ham'n' Cheese Custard

4 slices bread, cubed
1½ pound cooked ham, cubed
2 cups (about 8 ounces) shredded cheddar cheese
½ cup finely chopped green pepper
4 eggs, slightly beaten
½ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon salt, dash pepper
2 cups milk, scalded

Combine bread, ham, cheese, green pepper in greased 1½ quart casserole. Mix eggs and seasoning together until well blended. Pour milk into egg mixture; stirring constantly. Pour over ham mixture in casserole. Bake in 350 F. oven until knife inserted halfway between outside and center of custard, comes out clean. 30 to 35 minutes. Recipe is for 4 servings.

Salad Nicoise

½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1½ cup wine vinegar
¾ cup olive or salad oil
1 cup cut green beans, cooked
2 medium potatoes, cooked, pared and sliced
1 medium onion, sliced
1 clove garlic
Lettuce
1 medium green pepper, thinly sliced
2 cans flat fillet anchovies, drained and chopped
1 can (6½ or 7 ounces) tuna, drained and broken into chunks
½ cup pimiento-stuffed olives
4 medium tomatoes, cut into eighths
2 hard-cooked eggs, quartered

Combine first 5 ingredients; beat until blended. Combine half of oil dressing with beans, potatoes and onion; chill several hours. Rub salad bowl with garlic and arrange lettuce in bowl. Form a "pyramid" of green beans, potatoes, onion, green pepper, anchovies, tuna, olives and tomatoes in bowl over lettuce. Garnish with eggs. Add remaining oil dressing just before serving; toss. Serves 6.

Seafood with Spanish Dressing

½ pound frozen crab meat, thawed and drained (1½ cup)
½ pound fillet of flounder, poached
½ cup small pimiento-stuffed olives
Spanish Dressing (recipe below)
Lettuce
Lemon slices and pimiento-stuffed olives

Halve the shrimp and combine with crab meat, cooked flounder and the ½ cup of olives in large bowl. Add ½ cup of the Spanish dressing and toss. Chill.

Mound salad in lettuce-lined salad bowl or serving dish. Garnish. Serve with remaining dressing.

Spanish Dressing

½ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup catsup
2 tablespoons chili sauce
2 teaspoons brandy
¼ teaspoons Dijon-type mustard
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire
¼ teaspoon curry powder
¼ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon coarsely ground black pepper

Blend first 9 ingredients. Add brandy. Stir in remaining ingredients. Chill. Yields about 1 cup of a very sophisticated dressing.

For experienced cooks, or the adventurous, plan a special dinner. The menu: roast lamb, minted green peas, boiled baby carrots, peach melba.

To mint green peas, simply throw a few dried mint leaves in the water when boiling the peas.

Peach melba is easily made by topping vanilla ice cream scoops with well-drained sliced peaches, heated raspberry jam and sprinkling with nuts and dab of whipped cream.

Roast Lamb

5 to 6 pound leg of lamb
2 tablespoon flour
1½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon rosemary leaves
¾ teaspoon ground black pepper
½ teaspoon instant minced garlic
½ teaspoon oregano leaves
½ cup wine vinegar
½ cup hot water

Place lamb in roasting pan; brown in 500 degree F. oven for 10 minutes. Remove from oven. Reduce heat to 325 degrees F.

Combine flour with seasonings and rub over entire surface of lamb using the back of a wooden spoon. Add vinegar and water to roasting pan; cover. Roast for 2½ hours or until meat is tender.

Remove meat to serving platter. Strain pan drippings. Serve over hot sliced lamb. Serves 10.

HAM 'N' CHEESE custard has eggs, milk, green pepper, seasonings—comes out of the oven light, fluffy, and nourishing.

Provocative Dressers 'Asking for Trouble'

Dear Ann Landers: First, you should know I am a happily married man, father of two children. I work in the shoe department of a large store in a shopping centre. I don't know what to expect next in the way of women's apparel.

It's not what they are wearing but what they are NOT wearing that bothers me. Middle-aged women as well as young girls come in with their bare midriffs, belly buttons wiggling at me through rolls of fat, breasts flopping around under flimsy halter tops, hip-hugger pants so low you are afraid to look for fear they might slip a quarter of an inch.

This afternoon, a girl about 17 came in with her father. I couldn't believe my eyes. She was built like Raquel Welch. There she sat in a see-through blouse with such an innocent look on her face. The blouse was so tight she was about to pop two buttons.

If a guy had made a pass at her, the old man would have flattened him, yet that girl was a case of indecent exposure if ever saw one.

Please tell all the females out there that when they go in public like half-naked, they look like tramps. Sorry, Ann. — Aieted Grass Bat Freak

Dear S.A.G. Bag P.: I've seen some mighty indecent get-ups on the streets of Chicago, and I agree that young girls and women who wear wildly provocative outfits not only look like tramps, but they are asking for trouble.

Dear Ann Landers: I am one of your younger readers, but I think I have something to say. The letter signed "Editor Who Has To Eat Out" said he darned well wasn't going to leave a tip for a waitress who threw the food at him and gave him poor service.

My grandmother has a better way to let a waitress know the service was bad. She says you could leave two pennies under the plate. If there is no money under there, the girl might think the person just forgot. If she sees two pennies, she knows what the customer thought of the service.—Marshall Who Addresses You A Whole Lot 'n Mpls.

Dear Marshall: Thank your grandmother for a sensible suggestion. (And P.S., Marsh, I like you and Mpls. a whole lot.)

Dear Ann Landers: We are two girls, 27, attractive and working in the same office in New York city. We didn't agree with your advice to "Suicidal in Indy." That girl doesn't need a shrink—all she needs is a nice boy friend!

It's tough to find a decent, sincere guy these days, and we know because we have the same problem, and so do half a dozen other girls in this office. We talk to each other a lot and every one of us has gone into black moods of depression.

Your advice was not only off target but could be damaging. When you tell someone they need a psychiatrist they get the idea they are nuts. Believe us, Ann, there's anything wrong with "Indy" that a great boy friend couldn't cure.—Lynn 'N Lil

Dear L and L: Go back and ready Indy's letter again. When a girl says she can barely drag herself out of bed in the morning, goes into a deep depression whenever a friend gets married, and signs herself "Suicidal"—believe me, she needs psychiatric help.

I agree, a great boy friend would be a big help, but I'll bet one of the reasons she doesn't have one is because she is panicky and unstable, and it shows.

Religious Movement 'For Women Only'

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Neil Maxwell, founder of a new Christian faith movement for women only, says she has no explanation for the sudden popularity of her organization in Ontario.

"It's a phenomenon; it has evolved from the most unusual circumstances," she said in an interview Friday following a rally of 1,200 women at the second Women Alive Conference.

The 43-year-old Barrie, Ont., mother of two is the inspiration behind the new interdenominational organization operating outside church structures.

Three years ago she attended similar conferences in London, Ont., and Farmington, Mich., organized by Winnipeg Women, an outgrowth of a Michigan Bible-study group.

She said she found in that group—now grown to more than 4,000—"concern there" for each other that I had never experienced in any church."

Her plan is to import the movement, aimed at giving women a new self-image through the Christian faith.

"Women's Lib isn't the answer," Mrs. Maxwell said. "It's pushing the negatives."

"Women are the heart of the home. The home is the basic unit of society. If a woman really has a sense of worth and is aware of God's love, she will influence her home and her community."

Mrs. Maxwell said she believes women tend to "get stale" within church organizations, meeting the same people regularly.

Treasurer Ruth Kemle of Barrie said the conference budget here of about $5,000 had will be covered by $5 registration fees. Delegates are charged another $22 for rooms, and meals at University of Waterloo campus.

The executive plans to hold another conference Oct. 4 in Barrie for couples "to help husbands and wives bridge communications," Mrs. Maxwell said.

A friendly call is always welcomed by newcomers to your neighborhood. They'll be happy to meet you. Later, they'll want this newspaper.

Let Far Horizons Call

By DORIS CLARK

"Your troubles tend to shrink when you get away from home. It's something like a night's sleep — things look so much better in the light of day. Anything that can break the chain of habit is good mental therapy.

"Most of us respond to the challenge of a new adventure. The bus companies announce a 'trip to nowhere' and willing adventurers crowd their buses.

Thus reads a leaflet on travel written for us by my sister, Pearl Clark. It is called "Let Far Horizons Call You." She points out that, in this modern world, travel can do great things for us; that psychiatrists say it is normal and necessary to go places and see things well beyond our own front door — unless we want to be hermits; and unless we want to miss a lot of fun.

You can go places, if you want to, badly enough. You can make yourself one with the rest of humanity.

Dear Doris: Can a man marry his daughter-in-law? My nephew deserted his wife and six years (year ago and my brother (his father) was, and is, living in the home as a boarder. He has been wonderful to the children and has become very fond of his daughter-in-law.

Now he is wondering about marriage (to the daughter-in-law). But the license bureau would not grant a license and could give no real reason.

— Doubtful.

Dear Doubtful: Any such relationship is too close, legally, to permit marriage. I guess it is almost looked upon as incest. I am told that if such a marriage were performed it would be declared void.

Sorry about this. It seems unfair in the case you describe, doesn't it.

(When writing in to Doris, in care of this newspaper, allow four weeks for private reply, which will be sent if an eight-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed.)

Won't Hire Woman

TORONTO (CP — Mayor Mel Lastman of North York declined to hire a woman to replace his driver, who quit to take another job. "I'm not having a woman open the door for me or wait around late at night while I am at some meeting," the mayor said.

Sidney Brief Proposes $350,000 Rink on Wallbridge Road

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Sidney council is expected to consider Thursday a special committee's recommendation that calls for construction of a $350,000 arena and the township's fourth at Wallbridge-Loyalist Rd.

The proposed site, suggestia The proposed site, suggests a brief to council, would minimize travelling distance to the single ice surface for most township residents.

Among the brief's recommendations is the formation of a permanent recreation committee to operate all forms of township recreation.

The five-member committee, headed by chairman Fred Hoskings, was appointed by Sidney council late in 1973 to consider and investigate the need for a township ice surface.

The brief marks the end of five months of work by the committee. During its operation, the committee polled opinions of township residents as well as, talked to arena interests in Belleville and Kingston.

In reaching its conclusion, the committee report to council stated that ice surfaces in the Quinte area are now being used to their maximum capacity. More ice time is necessary for minor hockey leagues.

The proposed building would be located on township land. It would be built with a minimum ice surface of 85 by 200 feet under a roof 100 by 240 feet.

Included in the structure, the brief proposes, would be heated dressing rooms, a canteen, ice plant capable of a maximum eight month's operation. A water recycling system would prevent excessive use of water.

The two - storey facade would be brick in order to blend with existing municipal buildings — the township municipal offices, and garage and firehall.

With an ice surface built on a sand base, the building cost would run an estimated $350,000. This figure excludes ice maintenance equipment.

The committee brief noted that construction costs would likely rise by mid-May with the estimated 10 per cent rise in steel prices.

In concluding its brief, the committee said: "We know it can be an economically viable operation, with no extra cost to the taxpayer, provided careful planning and dedication to the task are realized."

Wrong Man To Put The Bite On

A Belleville woman, Jean Muriel Milner, 49, was fined $100 in provincial court Tuesday after she was convicted of committing common assault by biting a policeman.

Mrs. Milner was arrested by police Feb. 23 after she attacked an off-duty police officer who was trying to arrest a man, who was driving the car in which she was a passenger, for impaired driving.

Mrs. Milner was the passenger in a car driven by Percy Henry Babcock, 26, also of Belleville, when Mr. Babcock flagged down a passing motorist, an off-duty policeman, to ask directions to Belleville.

After the officer told Mr. Babcock how to get to Belleville, he followed Babcock's car along Highway 401 and decided to stop it and arrest the driver for impaired driving.

The officer identified himself to the occupants of the car by showing them his badge and warrant card.

When the policeman was questioning Mr. Babcock, the two men became involved in a scuffle as Babcock tried to get back into his car and drive away. At that point, Mrs. Milner got out of the car and started to throw gravel, from the shoulder of the roadway, into the officer's face. She was kicked him, threw a sign at his head and finished up by biting him on his arm, just above the elbow.

The officer, an Ontario Provincial Police Constable from Kingston, told the court that Mrs. Milner latched onto his arm with her teeth and bit through his ski jacket and parka and his shirt, leaving an inch and a half gash on his arm.

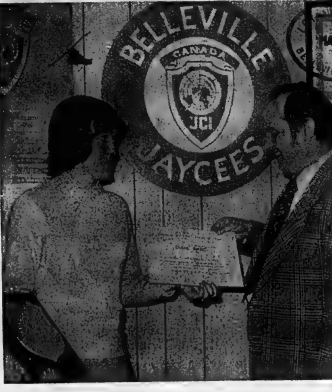
After Mrs. Milner had bitten the policeman, Babcock got into his car and drove to a service station in Marysville, where the policeman recaptured him.

Babcock was convicted of impaired driving two weeks ago and was fined $175.

Rampage Costly

A Corbyville man, Glen Carroll, 36 was fined a total of $175 and was placed on probation for three months Tuesday, after he was convicted, in provincial court, of failing to remain at the scene of an accident and of causing wilful damage to a door of the Skyway Lounge in Deseronto.



Carroll was arrested by an officer of the Ontario Provincial Police Feb. 25, after he had kicked open a door to the Skyway Lounge, causing an estimated $160 damage, and had fled from the accident scene near the lounge Feb. 22.

Court was told that a waitress at the Skyway Lounge had told police that Carroll kicked open a locked back door at the lounge approximately 15 minutes before opening time Feb. 22.

The waitress told the police that Carroll had said he wasn't going to wait outside in the rain and snow when he was asked why he had kicked the door open.

After leaving the Lounge, Carroll drove his truck into the back of a parked car on Mill Street, causing an estimated $200 damage. He failed to remain at the accident scene and did not report the accident to the police.

Judge J. L. Clendenning ordered Carroll to pay the owner of the Skyway Lounge $160 72 compensation for the damaged door.

Jaycee of the Year

This year's Jaycee of the Year was chosen during a meeting at the Sun Valley Motor Hotel. She is Diane Brady, shown here accepting her award from past Jaycee president, Glenn Wardell. The award is made annually to the person making the most outstanding contribution to the Belleville unit.

Townships Protest Method Of Restricting Building

Reaction to a provincial stop order on large scale commercial development in rural municipalities remains mixed following Tuesday's meeting with Ministry of Housing officials in Sidney township.

In Telephone interviews today, both Sidney Reeve Gordon Wilman and Thurlow Reeve Horace Casey said they expect delays in gaining provincial approval for any commercial developments in their townships.

When the ministry first made the announcement we thought it applied only to shopping plazas. We didn't think it applied to us," he said.

Sidney Handleman slapped zoning restrictions on 62 rural municipalities without zoning bylaws or official plans. The stop order was aimed at restricting shopping centres locating just outside large cities.

But municipalities in Quinte are affected — Sidney and Thurlow in Hastings County, Hallowell, Ameliasburgh and North Marysburgh in Prince Edward and Murray township in Northumberland County.

But Thurlow has an existing zoning bylaw restricting development of commercial structures such as shopping plazas, says Reeve Casey. "We felt we were protected."

"My reaction is that nearly before any government department puts a freeze order on any municipality that it should investigate what zoning restrictions there are."

During Tuesday's meeting, ministry officials learned for the first time that Thurlow development roughly between Sidney Street and the Moira River north of Belleville is covered by bylaw.

Thurlow expects to hear today whether as a result the township will be excluded from the stop order. The ministry is expected to review the situation today.

If exclusion is not granted, the reeve expects delays in gaining approval for commercial development.

"They assure us it will take only four to six weeks, but it may turn out to be more like four to six months," he said.

Prior to sending a request for provincial approval a commercial developer must have the following: a building inspector's approval, a legal property description, council's approval, septic tank approval from the environment ministry, transport and communications ministry approval if the plan is to build on a highway, and ministry of natural resources approval if the development abuts a water course.

An amendment to the order provides that the ministry will accept the first three conditions. Ministry officials would then get other necessary approvals from various government bodies.

Reacting to the housing ministry freeze, Frank Stokmans, Quinte Planning Board deputy director, said today, "As a planner, I think the concept of restricting large scale commercial development is right. But the procedures should have been thought out a lot better."

Despite provincial assurances, Mr. Stokmans expects delays in approvals past the stated four to six weeks.

Dog Tags Expired

Belleville dog owners who haven't bought their 1974 dog tags are now in contravention of the city bylaw.

1973 tags expired Dec. 31 and the deadline for renewal was May 1, 1974. The Humane Society which is now under contract on to the city to enforce the bylaw, is telling the dogs at the shelter, the owner of Avonlough Rd. and the Second Concession of Sidney road. Society officers will deliver tags to those who cannot pick them up at the shelter.

Cost of a dog tag for a male is $4 and for a female $6. Tags will be issued to owners of spayed females, who produce spaying certificates, for $4.

One Moment Please . . .

MARMORA — A report that someone was dumping garbage bags at the gate of the old disused site recently sent Deputy-reeve Gordon Jones off to try and catch the culprits but as the Marmora and Lake townships council meeting was starting.

Mr. Jones returned a few minutes later empty handed, saying the culprits got away before he arrived. Grant Bell called the meeting to order.

Be Prepared

It is all a move on the part of the Ontario Ministry of Transportation and Communications to give travellers a hint of things to come, but the odd kilometres sign is now appearing up along Highways 401 and 400.

On a weekend motor trip to Toronto a sign near Oshawa was observed stating Bowmanville is 66 kilometres away.

And there is another one for eastbound motorists measuring the kilometres to Kingston. The new signs are in preparation for the day when Canada converts to metric measurement in favor of the present system of miles, pounds, and gallons.

For people who still haven't given the metric scale much thought, a kilometre is 1,000 metres or 3,280 feet, which works out to roughly five-eighths of a mile.

Labor Council Threatens United Way Boycott

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Organized labor will be asked to boycott Belleville's United Way Campaign this fall if the community YMCA receives any form of grant from city hall.

Quinte labor consultant Ian Reilly tendered a notice of motion at last night's Quinte District Labor Council meeting in Trenton outlining his plan.

Mr. Reilly said the crux of the issue was the YMCA's practice "of dipping into the taxpayers' pocket twice — once by the fund campaign and then through a municipal grant in lieu of taxes".

"I'm not opposed to the 'Y' or the United Way sponsors, the United Community Services, but I am opposed to dipping twice into the same pocket," he said.

His notice of motion was seconded immediately and Reilly says there will "probably be some hot debate at the next labor council meeting".

Representatives of the council have seats on the boards of the YMCA and the United Community Services.

Mr. Reilly says he hopes city council takes notice of the motion if it passes successfully. He said the labor council "swings a fair sized stick" in terms of the thousands of labor members and public support.

Belleville's United Way, already hard pressed with declining totals in recent years, may not be able to raise a combined boycott, he feh.

Asked if he had considered the jeopardy in which he places the fund drive, Reilly said he had and "it's time the UCS, Y and city council consider the ramifications of the double dipping practice".

Doug Sword, labor council president, urged members to be as potent and damaging as possible in the fund drive. It provides for voluntary restraint of any donations and a "campaign to inform the union members of the labor council decision to be launched just prior to the UCS drive".

Mr. Reilly says he will speak in more depth concerning the motion at next month's meeting, when a vote is expected.

"we must take a stand."

"We're having problems connected with the UCS here . . . Belleville fails far short in personal contributions and there must be a reason."

The motion is designed to

Centennial Committee Planning Draws Fire

TRENTON — Belleville's Centennial Committee was described Tuesday night by Labor Council president Doug Sword as another organization unable to support itself and living off the taxpayers.

The Quinte District Labor Council passed a motion during the evening to petition Belleville council protesting its tax free status in order to gather $200,000 over two years.

Mr. Sword, representing labor on the centennial committee, said "we don't need any more edifices for centennial constructed at the taxpayers' expense.

"Anything that will inflate the mill rate, I am against it," he said.

According to Mr. Sword, much of the centennial dollar is headed for Belleville's downtown in the way of beautification.

"They're using our dough to make the Chamber of Commerce look good," he said.

The question, of exactly what the city intended doing with the money was not fully answered, which lead to one council member asking if the present procedure was not premature?

Mr. Sword responded he was in favor of the motion as it stood and said, "it is time this council got on its hind legs and finds out what city council is doing with its money."

Mr. Sword said first a letter of protest would be sent, followed by a delegation to council and — if necessary — a campaign.

"If the plan goes through for the $200,000, we'll try to remove those responsible during this fall's municipal election," he said.

He said the city would be better served with street projects than with centennial schemes.

Reaction Unsure

President of Belleville's United Community Services Virginia O'Rourke said she was "upset and confused" this morning after hearing the threat of an organized boycott of the United Way campaign this fall.

The Quinte District Labor Council Tuesday night was confronted with a notice of motion calling for a boycott if Belleville's YMCA received a grant in lieu of funding or grants from city hall. The motion, if passed, will ask all organized labor to refrain from donating to the appeal.

Mrs. O'Rourke said today, "every campaign is crucial, but this year's perhaps more than others."

During the past year the UCS — due to internal problems — weathered several storms which led to the dismissal of the executive director and the hiring of a replacement. The fund raising paign has failed to meet its goal in recent years.

The president said she had no official comment at this time and preferred to wait with the UCS board for discussion. "I can't take any comment on this. I haven't met with anyone from labor to talk this over," she said.

"The ultimate solution to the problem of the 'Y' seems to two places to get money would be the United Way sponsors to give more so the UCS could completely fund the organization," said Mrs. O'Rourke. "This is the way I would prefer to operate."

Di Dimantides, general secretary of the Y, said "I don't know what to say."

"I don't know what is behind the motion ... everyone will get hurt," he said referring to the dozen agencies supported through the fund drive.

Mrs. O'Rourke could not say what kind of an effect the boycott would have but intends going over the UCS labor files to check donations in past years.

Shaw in Belleville

A rare opportunity for Quinte theatre goers, a chance to see a live performance of Niagara-on-the-Lake's Shaw festival players. The troupe will perform the Devil's Disciple in Centennial Secondary School auditorium Thursday. Tickets are $4 and $6 and will be available at the door. Curtain is at 8 p.m.

Shaw Festival Here Tomorrow

Returning from its first Maritime tour, the Shaw Festival production of The Devil's Disciple will go on stage in Belleville tomorrow.

It's a first for this Quinte city. The Niagara-on-the-Lake based theatre group has not played in Belleville prior to this year's production of the act melodrama.

The one-night stay here is sponsored jointly by the Quinte Arts Council and the Intelligencer. Curtain time is 8 p.m. at Centennial Secondary school.

Diana Aitken, QAC secretary-treasurer, company's arrival in Belleville marks the end of a successful season for the group. It is the third out-of-town production the city has had.

Late last year, the QAC attracted the Festival Singers to the city for the first time. The third year running, the Kingston Symphony Orchestra has made an appearance before Belleville audiences.

Council organizers are expecting good public response to the Shaw Festival's production. Tickets are selling well and are still available at McKnight's in Belleville and Brunix Jewellers in Trenton or at Centennial.

In the play's lead role, that of Dick Dudgeon, is Alan Scarfe. He is making his second appearance in Shaw Festival productions — the only theatre group in Canada that specializes in the work of George Bernard Shaw. Scarfe will also take on the role of Burgess in the play to be Good later this season.

Previously, the English actor received critical acclaim for his roles during his three-season tenure at the Vancouver Playhouse. He appeared in The Ecstacy of Rita Joe, production that subsequently opened the theatre in Ottawa's National Arts Centre. Calgary, Montreal, Regina and the Stratford stages have all received praise from Canadas Academy of Music and Dramatic Art educated actor.

Also appearing in the play is Dominique Pamphile and Domini Blythe also appear in the production.

After Thursday's production here, the Shaw Festival troupe travels to Kingston before returning to Niagara-on-the-Lake for a student matinee May 13. The regular season opens at the end of this month in the Niagara Escarpment city.

Volunteers Hold Draw

Volunteer firefighters in Point Anne are nearly $1,000 closer to buying themselves a new cab and chasis for the tanker truck that they hope to build for their fire department.

The volunteers, members of the Thurlow Townships fire department, are finished holding a raffle, and after selling nearly 2,000 tickets they raised between $1,000 and $1,200 for the activities of the Point Anne Firefighters' Club.

The volunteer firefighters will use the money they gleaned from the draw to finance such operations as the purchase of the tanker truck and the refitting of a ladder truck recently purchased by both of the firefighters' clubs in Corbyville and Point Anne and by the township.

Corbyville volunteer firefighters are also selling strawberry pie - shares to be held June 1 at the Corbyville fire hall. The prize in that draw is a full-grown steer and $50 in cash or a propane barbecue and 50 pounds of steak.

Computerized

MARMORA — Marmora and Lake townships property owners will be receiving computerized tax bills this year.

Council has decided to use the services of a firm using computers — Welby Company — this year-at a cost of $725.

Fire Rates

Firefighters will be paid $3.75 per hour, fire wardens $3.75 and mileage 15 cents per mile.

Wholesale Gasoline Price to Rise 9 Cents

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Wholesale gasoline prices likely will climb by eight to nine cents a gallon by midmonth, but the full impact on retail prices is not known.

The increase is a result of the federal-provincial decision to allow the price of Canadian crude oil to rise to $6.50 a barrel at the wellhead from the present price of $4. The increase is effective May 15.

The new price is still well below the international crude price of about $10.50 a barrel.

The effect on retail prices is uncertain because most dealers set their own prices. But some rise is inevitable.

An Imperial Oil spokesman said recently that Imperial's present wholesale price allows dealers a profit margin of about 11.5 cents a gallon. Some dealers take a smaller profit to lower the retail price.

The oil companies themselves set the prices at their own outlets.

Premier William Davis has said the province will not take steps to control gasoline prices. The province might do so by lowering provincial gasoline taxes or by giving the energy board power to reduce unwarranted increases.

Prices across the province vary only a few cents a gallon, except for areas east of the Ottawa Valley line.

The line, which runs from Pembroke, on the Ottawa River 90 miles north of Ottawa, to Gananoque, Ont., about 15 miles west of Kingston, was set up by the federal government to divide the country into two markets for oil products—one supplied by Canadian crude and the other with overseas crude.

The line has been abandoned as government policy, but until a pipeline can be built to link Montreal refineries to western oil fields, it still serves to divide higher-priced overseas petroleum products from cheaper Canadian products.

Oil companies now are allowed to ship gasoline and heating oil east across the line, but there is a transportation problem and most oil companies still supply the eastern Ontario area from Montreal.

That leaves Ottawa with the highest gasoline prices in the province, ranging from 65.9 cents a gallon to 69.9 cents for regular gasoline and up to 74.9 cents for premium.

The Cornwall area shows prices ranging from 57.9 cents to 65.9 cents for regular and 64.9-70.9 for premium. The lower prices are prevalent at discount stations or areas of high competition.

In Northern Ontario, west of the line, prices are fairly regular. Timmins shows an average of about 58 cents for regular and 63 cents for premium.

In the south, where gasoline is produced from cheaper Canadian crude oil and transportation costs are held to a minimum, gasoline prices are lower.

Toronto and Kingston prices run about 58.9 for regular and about 64 for premium.

In St. Thomas, in the southwest, regular prices are about 56.8 and premium about six cents higher.

On average, gasoline prices across the province, with the exception of the foreign-supplied areas in the east, vary between 55 cents and 60 cents a gallon of regular and between 60 cents and 65 cents for premium.

British Columbia Steps Up Apprenticeship Programs

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia employers, under the gun as the federal government tightens its immigration policy and out of province workers stay away, are stepping up apprenticeship programs.

The programs will not have an immediate effect. Most apprentices work and learn for four years before they become journeymen.

The federal government, which wants more trained Canadians, is shutting off immigration, a source of tradesmen employers have long depended on.

Larger developments in other parts of Canada are attracting the out-of-province worker, for many years another source of B.C. manpower.

Union and management spokesmen in the forest industry recently criticized each other for failure to train new workers.

At a truck loggers' convention, a spokesman for Forest Industrial Relations, the industry's bargaining agent, said seniority clauses in contracts are an impediment to training young workers.

But Pat O'Neal, western vice-president of the United Paperworkers International Union, said in a letter to Labor Minister Bill King that the forest industry, which produces 50 to 60 cents of every B.C. dollar, employed only 12 per cent of the apprentices.

The Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau is surveying manpower needs and hopes to come up with a projection for the industry.

B.C. labor department statistics show that employers are taking on more apprentices in 1974. About 12,000 apprentices are currently working, up more than 1,300 from the end of 1972.

Several construction trades report large increases in apprentices.

W. J. Cameron, co-ordinator for a carpentry program run jointly by management and labor, said there has been a "phenomenal" increase in the number of carpentry apprentices.

"In 1962 we had only 200 apprentice carpenters. Today we have about 1,400, the highest in North America in relation to journeymen," Mr. Cameron said.

The bricklayers, who have traditionally relied on immigrants, have tripled enrolment of apprentices, said union secretary Norma Anderson.

The B.C. labor department's apprenticeship branch is responsible for all apprentices. The standard procedure is for the person to find a job, then he or the employer advises the branch.

The branch requires that the employer and the apprentice meet certain procedures, including a wage that must not be less than 35 per cent of a journeyman's salary.

In the plumbers' trade, the apprentice rate is set at $3.70 an hour, 50 per cent of the journeyman's wage.

During each year of the apprenticeship, the branch sends the apprentice to school for four to eight weeks. The trainee, whose tuition is paid, receives living and transportation allowance.

But the initial step of finding a job sometimes fails, said Blair Anderson, assistant training.

Because employers sometimes insist that workers have experience, the labor department devised the pre-apprenticeship program.

At colleges and vocational schools, five to six months' training in trades such as bricklaying, cooking, carpentry and heavy-duty mechanics is offered.

Tuition is free. A subsistence allowance is paid and return transportation is provided by the department.

Mr. Anderson said advantages of this program are that it screens workers unsuited for the trade and it improves a successful graduate's chance of getting a job.

Mr. Anderson said that while jobs are not guaranteed, most graduates have jobs waiting because of heavy demand.

In the carpentry trade, Mr. Cameron said pre-apprentice students are in high demand. "The union gives him preference over people who come off the streets."

Don Fearey, co-ordinator of the sheet metal industry's joint committee, said the program is excellent. "Our industry hires all of them (the studengh)."

Mr. Fearey said the sheet metal industry is continuously short of workers perhaps because of a lack of glamor and ignorance of the trade.

The troubleshooting guide shows how to identify various malfunctions and how to correct them.

LOVE AND WHISKY — The Story of the Dominion Drama Festival — Betty Lee.

For almost 40 years, theatre enthusiasts from across Canada congregated annually to participate in the Dominion Drama Festival. Betty Lee, a top-ranking journalist and playwright, recreates the drama which took place behind the scenes. There was an early struggle against overwhelming financial odds; there were difficult personalities and public furors; there were prominent figures working to keep theatre alive in Canada: Vincent Massey, Legrand Brockington, Pauline McGibbon, Yousf Karsh, Jean Gascon, Lorne Greene, and many others. This is the first comprehensive picture of a long-standing cultural event, the forerunner of today's regional theatres.

WILDERNESS GEAR YOU CAN MAKE YOURSELF — Bradford Angier.

For the complete outdoorsman who wants to save money, fill his outdoor needs faster, or simply enjoys working with his hands, Mr. Angier, veteran woodsman and author, provides complete instructions on making items for outdoor living — everything from a candle-holder to a canoe is included, some of which must be made at home but others from materials at hand. Forget your toothbrush? Pound one end of a small green twig to a fibrous mass. All the gear used before the days of mass production can be duplicated today.

ELECTRONIC SECURITY SYSTEMS — Leo G. Sands.

With burglary insurance rates spiralling, a demand for information about security systems has developed. This book is written for electricians, security directors and for the do-it-yourself businessman. The functions and applications of the various components are explained in easy-to-understand language. Many alarm control, detection and surveillance systems are described in detail.

Job Outlook Good for Grads

TORONTO (CP) — Job prospects for university graduates are better this year than they have been for the last two years, say placement officers at York University, University of Toronto, and Ryerson Polytechnical Institute.

But then, things have not been good in the last two years.

Edward Harvey, chairman of the department of sociology at Ontario Institute for Studies in Education, says those making predictions of brighter prospects for graduates in any field are "optimistic."

"They look on the short term. From 1972-73 we had nowhere to go but up."

Although engineering and commerce graduates are in great demand this year, the situation looks less promising for arts and science students.

David Currey, director of the career counselling and placement centre at the University of Toronto, says it's "a hell of a good year" for engineering and commerce students.

Engineers are getting about $800 a month to start while commerce graduates are finding jobs paying about $725.

But arts and science students must find their own jobs in a wide range of categories, and are "selling their personality and potential more than a skill," says Rida Alrakis, acting director of Ryerson's placement office.

York University placement officer Bill Potton concurs: "It's marketing the individual. They have to do much more job hunting on their own."

Mr. Potton says students are learning how the job market operates.

"It is a frustrating experience sometimes, but I don't think they have unrealistic expectations.

Mr. Harvey is concerned about developing more successful ways to guide students to careers that will find them jobs. He concludes that one of the nation's biggest problems is "youth unemployed and underemployed."

In the last half of the 1960s there was a high demand for science graduates, says Mr. Harvey.

"If you had a PhD in anything you could write your own ticket. Since then, I've seen cab drivers who were PhDs in physics."

Doctor's Orders

CHESTER, England (CP) — "Members will be sorry to hear that Miss X is disposing of all her pekes," said the newsletter of a Cheshire dog club. "She will continue to judge at local shows but her doctor has advised her to stop breeding and showing herself. She is 72."

These Toronto Neighbors Only Meet at Bridge Table

TORONTO (CP) — Sam Kehela and Eric Murray live only a few blocks away from each other in this city of more than two million but they see each other only over a bridge table.

And the table is more likely to be in Stockholm, New York, London or Miami than in Toronto.

Murray and Kehela are unquestionably the top tournament bridge pair in Canada and probably among the first five in the world.

Their partnership has endured 15 years amid the tension of international competitions and world mate basket cases of millions of mere mortals who play the game.

Bridge partnerships at the national and international level have all the security of a Hollywood marriage.

Murray and Kehela say the secret of their success is never to see each other socially and never to talk to each other at the table.

Whenever either makes a bad bid or a bad play, "there's no discussion at the table whatsoever," says Murray.

"We have come to an understanding that there is value in a long standing partnership. Misunderstandings are kept to an absolute minimum."

Kehela says if they met socially "we'd get on each other's nerves."

Playing bridge can be dangerous. Kehela recalls one incident where two Americans had to be separated by bystanders when they nearly came to blows.

Murray says bridge "is an infectious game."

"It grabs people. It is so fascinating it gets a hold of people and destroys them."

Top tournament bridge, where the prizes are only trophies, "is not a ladies' tea party."

Murray recalls an episode in a Canadian tournament when one player clobbered his partner over the head with the aluminum board that contains the duplicate bridge hands.

In another incident, when a player made the wrong opening lead, his partner called him "a moron, an idiot and a cretin."

The offending player admitted that yes, indeed, he was a moron, an idiot and a cretin.

"He also admitted he was somewhat sloppy and proceeded to dump the contents of an ashtray over his partner."

Murray — is a 45-year-old, well-heeled Toronto lawyer. A pillar of several establishment clubs, he's married to another lawyer and is active in law reform.

Kehela, 39, came to Canada in 1959 by way of Baghdad, London and Berkeley, Calif., and lives in a first-four, one-bedroom apartment festooned with bound volumes of bridge magazines, trophies and a poster blow-up of Humphrey Bogart glowering over the dining table.

Kehela has no visible means of support. He just plays bridges.

Murray, in contrast, plays the game infrequently, preferring out only a few weeks of the year to participate in top competitions.

Both will be busy in May. First it's the world pairs competition in the Canary Islands. They placed fifth of 128 pairs when the event was last held in 1970.

Then they go to Venice with the North America team put together by Dallas millionaire entrepreneur Ira Corn in the Bermuda Bowl the game's World Series and Stanley Cup rolled into one.

The North Americans will be trying to oust Italy's arsenal of some Blue Team which has yet to lose in world team competition.

Murray and Kehela have represented Canada in four team Olympiads. The team was fourth in 1964 and third in 1968 and 1972.

How good are they?

"To play winning bridge, you have to believe that you are the best," Murray says.

Kehela is a little more modest.

"It is very difficult to rank bridge players. We're one of the top pair in the world. Bid does that mean top 100 or top 10?

"I'd say the top 10. That is more or less conceded."

MEMO FROM HELEN GAGEN, CONSUMER ADVISOR, MIRACLE FOOD MART

SOMETHING SPECIAL FROM LEFTOVERS

It's a rare person who estimates exactly the amount of food to buy and serve to the family. So every cook should have lots of inspired ideas for serving leftovers in nourishing ways.

BACON FAT: Use to "draw" such vegetables as green or lima beans, spinach, succotash, onions. Use a part or all of shortening for spice or peanut butter cookies.

BREADCRUMBS: Use to sort foods for frying; for scalloped tomatoes; to coat tomato slices for frying; for meat or fish loaves. Flavour before using with favorite herbs, onion salt, etc.

CAKE, PLAIN: Split, spread with ice cream, top with chocolate or caramel sauce and nuts; or use for fruit shortcake or trifle; or as-is, and otherwise in parfait glasses with custard pudding.

CHEESE, DRIED: Grate and use over casseroles or vegetables, in stuffed baked potatoes, under top crust of apple pie.

EGG WHITES: For meringues; seven-minute frosting; baked alaska; fruit whips.

EGG YOLKS: Beat slightly with 1 tablespoon water per egg — use to dip foods for coating with crumbs and frying; or use to thicken sauces; for mayonnaise; as liquid in icing.

MEAT, FISH, POULTRY: Chop finely, add sauce and seasonings, roll up in crepes — cover with sauce, bake; or heat in sauce and serve in cream puff or pastry shells.

VEGETABLES: Use in soups; meat pies; creamed meat, fish, poultry; souffles; tomatoes. Save and use all vegetable liquid.

He Started His Job in 1922 And He Is Still Driving Taxi

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Christmas Eve, 1922, was the day Walter Dillon started a lifetime job. He remembers the day vividly. He set up a taxi stand at the old smart house near the waterfront and he has been operating from the site ever since.

He set up his stand, at the foot of the courthouse steps with a horse and sleigh.

"I can still remember the day I started," he said in an interview. "I began work at noon and went home at 6 p.m. I earned $11 for the day and that was pretty good money at that time."

Now 70, Mr. Dillon believes he is the oldest active taxi driver in this historic port city and the longest at any one specific location.

Starting a taxi business turned out to be a simple choice.

"At the time I started you were lucky to get any kind of work. I found the business good as far as money was concerned so I decided to stay with it.

"I must say we were always kept busy."

The "we" he referred to included George Roberts, now 68, who joined Mr. Dillon at the courthouse stand in 1924.

"Over the 50 years we have been more than just co-workers," said Mr. Dillon.

"We are very good friends and in all that time there hasn't been one bad word between us. This is something when you consider the length of time we have been together."

There were only a couple of taxi stands in town with cars when Mr. Dillon started business. Most stands at the time used cars only in the summer and switched to horse-and-sleigh cabs in winter.

The two taximen picked up business in winter from strands that used only cars and also carried merchandise for larger businesses in the city. It was 1930 before Mr. Dillon got his first car.

The 1940s brought the Second World War and one of the busiest periods of taxi business either man can remember. There were many trips from St. John's to the naval station at Argentia, about 80 miles southwest of the city. Most of the passengers were servicemen.

"We worked like dogs during the war," Mr. Dillon recalled. "It was a steady go, back and forth to Argentia. You have to remember that the drive wasn't like it is today.

"Now there is all paved road but at that time it was all dirt and it took between four and five hours to make the trip."

Mr. Dillon remembers one trip in particular.

"I had a carload of servicemen and we were forced to spend the entire night on the road when all of the tires on the car blew out."

A major problem for business during the war years was the shortage of cars. It was almost impossible to get a new car.

Mr. Dillon's most frightening experience was during the war while he was driving two American servicemen to an anti-aircraft gun emplacement on the Logy Bay Road, just north of St. John's.

"I picked them up in the city and they asked me to take them to Logy Bay Road. Both appeared to have been drinking but at the time I didn't pay too much attention to it.

"When we arrived at our destination one of the chaps pulled out a knife and told me that if I wanted to get paid I would have to argue with the knife.

"I told him I wasn't foolish enough to do that.

"After this they told me to take them to Torbay. Just as we pulled out I spotted two American military police driving towards us.

"I pulled the car in quickly, jumped out and told the MPs what had happened. They wanted little time to taking the two troublemakers."

Mr. Dillon says the years have slowed him a little but he still begins his day at 9 a.m. but he only works Thursday and Friday nights to 9:30 p.m.

He figures he'll hold down his taximan's job "as long as I feel up to it and my health holds out."

Computers Replace Navigators in Air

In just a few months, he will be automated out of his job by computers.

And with him will go the other 82 navigators on the government-owned airline as it joins the trend of most major international carriers in relying on computer tapes to direct its planes.

"But there are no tears over it," said Mr. Willis, who began his career in the Second World War when he navigated by means of some elementary equipment "and a certain amount of looking over the side."

"Navigators haven't resisted automation. It's simply the end of a cycle that began when we first started to improve the system."

The first improvements 35 years ago were the addition of charts and sextants to the basic navigational aids—landmarks and compasses.

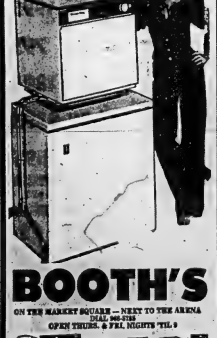
Many of the pioneering navigators who filled the now-traditional seat behind the captain of the aircraft have seen the cycle go full circle.

The company will train 57 navigators for pilot duties. The others have been offered cash settlements or other company positions.

The navigators first felt the pinch when they were restricted to trans-ocean trips because the pilot of a continental aircraft could keep contact from one airport to the next.

But the biggest change came with the fast-flying jets which demanded a more precise system than propeller-driven aircraft.

A system that not only located an object, like conventional radar, but allowed the object to locate itself was introduced.



But this system is bowing to the latest improvement, which will come this fall when Air Canada installs tiny black boxes on its fleet of DC-8s.

The box—an Inertial Navigation System—does everything the other system does, only it does it faster and more precisely and without the help of a navigator, says the airline.

It can be programmed to pick the best route and can tell the pilot exactly where he is at any given second and how long it will take him to get to his destination within six seconds.

"It's the same as the lunar space ships use—just a little less sophisticated," said Mr. Willis.
